Updated Orpheus A Crowd-pleaser

OTTAWA (CP) — Helen of Troy arrived on the beach on the back of a centaur while the Spartans were eating pizzas, cooling themselves with soda pop, and liberally coating themselves with suntan oil before the sailed away to Troy with her new-found love, Paris.

That, at least, is the interpretation put on the tale of the cause of the Trojan War, about 1200 BC, by Jacques Offenbach more than 100 years ago, aided and abetted by conductor Pierre Hetu and director Paul Buissoneau in the second of this summer's National Arts Centre opera productions.

Offenbach's story is outlandish, as is his retelling of the legend of Orpheus in the Underworld, and the new production starring Canadians Colette Boky and Pierre Duval as Helen and Paris makes it thoroughly outlandish. But the opening night audience lapped it up, giving the opera routing applause and frequent chuckles at the up-tempo punchlines.

It took cracks at les Anglais, the Olympics, this legislature, capital, Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal, and just about anything else that can provoke a jibe in French Canada today.

Hetu, now resident conductor of the Edmonton Symphony, led the arts centre orchestra in the scintillating score, mostly made up of waltz songs that have long been popular since the opera's first production in 1864. It is the first time the arts centre has departed from the Mozart repertoire in its three years of summer opera festival productions.

Buissoneau, founder in 1965 of Montreal's Theatre de Quat'Sous, employed just about every comic device this side of plain slapstick. The result is something between grand opera and the Follies Bergeres.

Imagine Helen's husband, Menelaus, sung by Claude Letourneau, sailing off on the bounding main in a tiny craft borne on the shoulders of Spartan warriors. And Paris comes in disguise to abduct her in a golden sailing ship with the most dazzling voluptuous figure head — a ship that opens its brow like a Second World War landing craft to take Helen on board.

The whole cast at times breaks into go - go gyrations and the Kings of Phlotile, Salamio and Lorcians go into a soft-shoe routine.

Claude Corbeil sang a rollicking funny Calchas, the high priest of Jupiter, and Napoleon Bisson was Agamemnon, the King of Kings. Mona Kelly, wife of orchestra founder-conductor Mario Bernardi, sang Orestes. Agamemnon's son, and played the part of the young man to a T.

Lorraine Richard had the prime role of the little god Pan, seeing everyone was in his proper place for the unfolding of the legend. Other parts were taken by Benoit Marleau, Andre Montmorency, Andre Lortie and Lucille Dansereau.

The costumes and stage props were lavish, and there seemed to be so much activity backstage with such things as centaurs, cabanas and boudoirs, that many of the entrances and exits were from the front of the house.

One mark of an audience-winning success is how quickly the bars and kibbles clear as soon as the lights are flicked at intermission. For this production, there was a stampede back to their seats by the first-night audience.

"Within two or three years, I expect co-productions will be made here or partially here with Russian people and Russian money," Valenti said Tuesday.

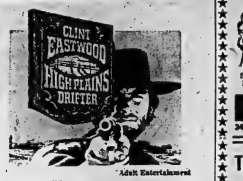
He said the Soviets are pushing for co-productions.

MADRID (AP) — Samuel Bronston, who produced the films El Cid and King of Kings, has been indicted for fraud, says a Madrid court order.

The order said that Bronston, 73, an American, defrauded Air Algiers of 2.2 million pesetas, or more than $29,000, in passenger fares.

Bronston, honored by the government in 1963 for producing films in Spain and bringing new movie industry to the country, will be arrested if found in Spain, the order said Tuesday.



Bronston's whereabouts was not known. He was last reported in Madrid about a year ago.

The producer suffered financial difficulties that began in 1963. His studios on the outskirts of Madrid were auctioned off and now are operated by Spanish National Television.

CONVERSATIONS TYPED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conversation units attached to telephone receivers and teletype printers will soon be used to let the deaf hold telephone "conversations". The B.C. chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America is sponsoring the project in which deaf people use home-installed units to dial a number and then typeout messages on the teletype.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Forecasts for today:

Aries (March 21-April 19): Focus on issues today. Get neglected work cleared up, or at least current. Let go of problems at quitting time.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): This is a difficult day for those who have examinations or showdowns of any sort. Bluffers will fail.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Work is hopeful but incomplete. Strive to improve your contacts, using spare time as well as working hours.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Competition is good for you. Inspiring a more coherent effort. Be open to talk about any sort of proposal.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Although you have a clear field, the day lacks the force for carrying any project to final stages.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cooperation comes more readily, bring snags up for joint resolution. Conserve your energy by keeping steady pace.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Safe and sane is your policy today. Security rather than adventure. Minute adjustments are the order.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22): Ongoing activities gather intensity without showing changes. Save your strength for the peak demand that is coming.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Change for its own sake isn't the best path to follow—it's your turn to coax somebody to stand steadily.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Despite a tendency to say too much too soon, you have a chance to set something right—don't let it slip.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This is tidy-up day. Ask questions which resolve lingering doubts, check your accounts, and survey your possessions.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): New business seems complex, has details beyond your previous experience. Stick to what you know will work.

LIBRARY LOSSES

PITTSBURGH (AP) An estimated 80,000 books about six per cent of the total have disappeared from the University of Pittsburgh library since 1968 when the facility switched to a self-service method of book distribution, library officials said.

Blood Pressure Readings Vary

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is a high school instructor in school took blood pressure readings of all the students in his class and his was highest, 130. Is this unusually high for a boy of 17? Should it be checked?—Mrs. P.H.

Blood pressure readings can vary considerably, depending on the technique used, proper application of the cuff, and particularly—psychological factors.

If your son was excited about having his pressure taken, or frightened, both pressure and pulse could be somewhat elevated.

Yes, 130 could be a bit high for a boy his age, but don't draw any conclusions from a single reading. And neither you nor the teacher can make an issue of it, because that could create anxiety and affect his pressure.

My suggestion would be to find some convenient place for blood pressure to have your son examined. Wait a day or two off the doctor in advance to take his pressure.

Incidentally, it would be wise to take pressure in both arm and leg as a check in the event the called coarctation can produce a higher reading in the arm than in the leg. (Pressure normally is higher in the leg than in the arm.)

A urine test also would be a precaution, since kidney trouble can affect pressure.

One other question I would want to ask: What about your own blood pressure? Elevated pressure can occur in children when the parents have hypertension (high blood pressure). In most of these cases, no specific cause in the children can be found.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it advisable to have a humidifier when one is asthmatic? My husband is allergic to mold. Doesn't the humidity cause mold or can it be controlled by a particular setting? I'm thoroughly confused. Without the humidifier it is also uncomfortable.—Mrs. C.

Let's uncontrol you. Humidity isn't an all-or-nothing thing! Either too little or too much can be harmful, but for different reasons.

Too little humidity in the air can have a drying effect and increase the likelihood of allergies and asthma.

It is true, of course, that too much humidity encourages growth of fungus or mold.

Your answer: Stay somewhere between too much and too little. The ideal humidity varies with temperature, but if you can keep it at 45, plus or minus about 10 per cent, you will avoid the discomforts of either extreme.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is being treated for fluid in the ear following a bout with hay fever. The doctor prescribed a decongestant and nose drops, but after several months there has been no improvement, and he is a defense-learning loss. His doctor doesn't seem worried but I am concerned. Is there any chance of permanent damage? Should I take him to an specialist?—Mrs. S.S.

I wouldn't be able to say whether permanent ear damage may result, since I don't know enough about your son's specific condition. As fluid in the ear is not normal, and, yes, I would take him to an ear specialist for diagnosis.

Note to J.F.: Sorry. But I have seen any evidence that garlic capsules will do anything toward preventing any of the various diseases you mentioned.

Big Incentive

TORONTO (CP) — Norm Holland, who tips the scales at 300 pounds, thinks his life is worth more than $10,000. To prove it, Holland has made a $10,000 to $2 bet, which has been checked by two lawyers, that he will lose 70 pounds before May 31, 1975. "What the bet is really about," he said, "is adding about 10 years to my life. That's an even greater incentive than losing 10,000 bucks."

Opening lead—king of diamonds.

It was impossible to anticipate the type of error Sylvia might make next. Sylvia bid some hands well, played some dummies passably, and defended acceptably on occasion. But her partners knew that these always seemed perched on a volcano, never knowing what catastrophe might befall them next or when some peculiar process of thought would take possession of her and topple everything in sight.

These adventures into the unknown occurred with distressing frequency, and most members of the club trembled fearfully whenever they cut Sylvia as a partner. They knew that the reverses things might happen, and they also knew that no amount of prayer or cajolery could reverse Sylvia from her predestined course.

But with all that, Sylvia occasionally accomplished a feat that would serve for months as a conversation piece among the other members. Here—is an example of the kind of play that made Sylvia the darling of the club.

West led a diamond and Sylvia won it with the ace and cashed six clubs. West discarding two spades and a heart, while East discarded three spades. Sylvia now played the Q-K-A of hearts and then, having seen the jack fall and proceeding under the delusion that her nine was a trick, she tried to cash it. This interference had a devastating effect on West, who had no discretion when Sylvia played the nine:

West had no safe discard when the heart was led. Whatever he discarded, dummy would score the last two tricks.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three LX for the two P's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Federal 'Aid' Widens Economic Gap--West

By JOHN DODD

EDMONTON (CP) — The four Western provinces today assailed the federal government for working hard to increase the economic gap between central Canada and the West.

This has been the effect of assistance programs of the federal department of industry, trade and commerce, the four provincial governments said in a joint statement.

While the West has more than 30 per cent of Canada's total population, it received only eight per cent of the total value of the department's assistance programs, they said.

The statement, released under the names of the Western premiers, outlines what the West wants from Ottawa in the area of opportunities for economic and industrial development.

It forms the base for the West's case in this area in discussions at the Western Economic Opportunities Conference in Calgary next week.

The Western premiers attacked Canada's tariff policy for encouraging the concentration of manufacturing in central Canada, "with Western Canada supplying agricultural products and other raw materials."

They said Ottawa should pursue a policy of selective tariff revisions designed to favor new industry in Western Canada.

The strongest language in the 18-page statement comes in criticism of the federal government's purchasing policy.

"Western Canada demands for its industries a fair share of the business arising directly from the substantial expenditures made by the various departments of the federal government to purchase goods and services."

In other recommendations, the statement uses the milder terms, "it is recommended that" or "there should be."

The Western premiers said that in the past 85 per cent of the federal government's $1 billion annual purchasing has been done in Ontario and Quebec.

"However, since the federal government is responsible for the economic well-being of the nation, it must make a conscious effort to overcome this pattern and go out of its way to promote purchase from areas other than central Canada."

The statement noted that Ottawa has announced a policy to allow Western businessmen to double the amount of goods they sell to the federal government but added:

"The Western provinces are of the opinion that this policy, while a move in the right direction, does not go far enough."

"Western Canada has over a quarter of Canada's population and is entitled to a similar share of the federal government's expenditures."

In its own background paper prepared for the economic conference and released earlier this week, the federal government outlined the benefits of existing programs and promised more for the future.

Unlike the federal paper, the provincial one contains specific recommendations for federal action on which the Western premiers want a yes or no answer at the conference.

One major recommendation is that the department of industry, trade and commerce use industrial assistance programs to help regions like Western Canada realize their "full development potential."

The provinces also recommended the federal government use more research and development from institutions, firms and universities in Western Canada.

They said Ottawa must recognize that Western firms are often at a disadvantage because of transportation costs and that federal purchasing policies should make allowance for this.

Ottawa should support the expansion of "those industrial sectors in Western Canada which have a high potential for development."

"Western Canada should no longer be considered a captive market for Eastern manufacturers and emphasis must be placed on encouraging Western production capable of serving its regional market and competing with output from central Canada."

Brothers Catch Prize

With seven to their credit, 9-year-old Jamie and 11-year-old Jeff Fleming are old hands at catching groundhogs. But never before have the brothers caught a white "spring barometer" in the hayfield near their home on Concession Three, Sidney. Jamie feeds the captured albino. The boys plan to either release it or hand it over to the Department of Lands and Forests.

The Weather

Synopsis: The sunny, dry weather over southern Ontario for the last few days is coming to an end. Showers and thunderstorms that have been moving slowly through northern regions are expected to spread into the lower lakes region by tonight. Skies will clear in the north Friday but showers and thunderstorms will likely persist in most southern regions.

Ministers' Interests Limited

OTTAWA (CP) — Broader conflict-of-interest rules limiting the personal financial activities of cabinet ministers were outlined in the Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Largely in effect already, he said, the rules would force all cabinet ministers to divest themselves of personal financial interests on taking office or place their holdings in a blind or frozen trust fund.

Mr. Trudeau said the broadened conflict restrictions will have only a marginal effect on the 29 members in his cabinet and they will be given "the next few months" to make any changes necessary.

The new rules will apply over and above proposed conflict-of-interest laws recommended for MPs and senators in a working paper tabled by the government Tuesday.

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party House leader, said cabinet ministers should not be allowed to hold any corporate shares. He joined Gilles Ouellet (SC—Charlevoix) in urging that the rules be tightened and approved through legislation.

Mr. Trudeau said the government will consider all opposition suggestions and will also announce a further set of rules of conduct for public servants and those who hold offices in government agencies or Crown corporations.

Egypt Bars Marchers

CAIRO (AP) — The proposed marriage of Egypt and Libya faced new strains today as Cairo barred thousands of Libyan "unity marchers" from the country.

Cairo Radio said Hafez Ghonem, secretary-general of Egypt's governing Arab Socialist Union, had visited Col. Moammar Khadafy, the leader of the Libyan government, Wednesday. It said Ghonem arranged for the long procession to stop today at Mersa Matruh, on the Libyan-Egyptian border west of Alexandria.

Water Police Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Harbor Commission suggested Wednesday that properly constituted police forces be established in every provincial port under the supervision of an Ontario waterfront police commission. "The problems of crime in ports is a specializing one requiring a great deal of specialized experience and knowledge and, therefore, cannot be handled by 'part-time' port policemen," it said.

Husband Finds Body

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Demeter, 40, found the body of his 33-year-old wife Christine when he returned to his suburban Mississauga home Wednesday night. Police said she had been struck on the head with a blunt instrument. Mrs. Demeter was mother of a three-year-old daughter.

Oil, Gas Prices Curbed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's newly-announced Phase 4 program includes regulations aimed at controlling gasoline and petroleum product prices. Two price ceilings are included in the rules, which take effect Aug. 12. One ceiling is on prices of gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel, while the second is on prices of domestic crude oil.

Mars Probes Planned

LONDON (Reuter) — Russia is ready to launch two or possibly three unmanned probes toward mars within the next few days — and a Soviet manned spaceshot may also be imminent, Western experts said today.

West African Famine Grows Steadily Worse

TORONTO (CP) — One member of a Canadian mission, recently returned from a 10-day tour of drought-stricken regions of West Africa, says the situation there is "constantly worsening."

Paul Ignatieff, Toronto-based executive director of the United Nations Children's Fund, said the Sahara Desert is slowly moving south in Mauritania, Mali, Chad, Niger, Senegal and Upper Volta where rain has not fallen in any substantial quan tity for five years.

With pasture lands drying up, the United Nations mission estimates that 14 million people, mostly nomadic herdsmen, are threatened.

"When we arrived in Aznder, the southern capital of the desert, it was 8:30 at night and the temperature was 100 degrees," Mr. Ignatieff said.

West Wants More Control Over Banks

VICTORIA (CP) — The Western premiers want more regional financial institutions and banks based out west which they can control, to counter the near-monopoly of chartered banks in central Canada.

The present system of 10 federally-chartered banks has "all the characteristics of a tightly-controlled oligopoly," the premiers said today in a joint policies paper on capital financing and regional financial institutions, prepared for next week's conference with Prime Minister Trudeau.

NDP Convention Facing Split on Price-pay Curbs

VANCOUVER (CP) — The contentious issue of price and wage controls appeared as a potentially prickly problem today as the New Democratic Party prepared to review its policies in the light of its increased political clout in Ottawa.

The NDP, which holds the balance of power in the minority Parliament, opens its seventh biannual convention today—with no overriding conflicts in sight, but with the Parliamentary caucus keeping a close eye on the party's delegates to the party's stance in supporting the minority Liberal government.

"There seems to be strong support for our position," said one MP, "but I have heard some criticisms which could spill out on the floor."

However, the question of price and wage controls appeared to cause the most problems. A delegation from the project had to be sent back to the resolutions committee for rewording, and debate went on into the evening.

Some delegates are said to be pushing for such controls, and if divisions erupt it could make matters difficult for the parliamentary caucus, now maintaining a delicate balance between the Liberals and Conservatives.

But party sources doubted whether the split would be very serious when the convention begins discussing the cost of living.

Canadians Drawing Back

SAIGON (CP) — Cautious Canadians have started to withdraw from some teamsites of the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

This week, well in advance of the scheduled withdrawal of Canadians from the field, two teamsites in Viet Cong-controlled territory or in contested territory were evacuated by Canadians.

Ben Het is in Viet Cong-control territory and An Loc is a South Vietnamese base surrounded by the Viet Cong.

'Did All We Could,' Gauvin Heads Home

SAIGON (CP) — Michel Gauvin fired some parting shots at the Hungarians and Poles today, then headed home content that he and other Canadians had done all they could to make the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) work.

"I think our record is a good one, in that we behaved responsibly and objectively," the Canadian ambassador said of the six frustrating months that Canada was a member of the ICCS. "We did all we could to create the right climate."

Gauvin made his twice-daily trip to Saigon the last 10 days before the rest of the Canadian ICCS members were to board planes.

The chief spokesman and aide to Canada's "open-mouth" policy in Vietnam during the months he was here, Gauvin's last words in public showed his usual frankness.

At a news conference just before his departure, he:

—Gave his first public condemnation of the detention of two Canadian officers for 17 days by the Viet Cong. This "incredible" action would not happen in a civilized country, he said.

—Criticized both the Hungarians and Poles for bias in their ICCS findings, for the first time mentioning these two Communist countries by name in this connection. He said he could understand their attitude but we're not satisfied with it.

—Commented that Canada has been neutral and objective in its dealings with both sides in the Vietnam conflict and said if it appeared that Canada was partisan to the South that was because until recently the Viet Cong Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) has not made proper use of the ICCS.

Food Costs to Rise Due to U.S. Policy

TORONTO (CP) — Food prices in Canada likely will increase as a result of the lifting of price controls on food in the United States, Morris Huff, secretary of the Ontario Food Council, said in an interview today.

President Richard Nixon Wednesday lifted price controls on all foodstuffs, except beef, announcing his Phase 4 plan that will ease the limits on price increases which business can pass on to consumers.

The plan, which comes into effect immediately, lifts ceilings imposed on pork and lamb prices but retains ceilings on beef prices.

Mr. Huff said he expects higher prices for processed and frozen foods.

Ken Counsell, a spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, agreed that Canadian prices will rise but not as sharply as those in the U.S.

Canadian prices will go up because we're in close tandem with the U.S.", he said. "But price increases will not be as severe here because the mistake was not made here of arbitrarily freezing prices."

He said price controls contributed to food shortages in the U.S. because farmers refused to produce at the controlled prices. These shortages have not occurred in Canada, he said.

Gordon Milling, research director of United Steel Workers of America, said the new U.S. policy recalls mistakes made in earlier wage and price controls.

"There were farmers and growers under tremendous pressure because of the earlier freeze and this could have led to a reduction of food production," he said.

New Zealand Warship Near A-test Atoll

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter) — The Otago, New Zealand's nuclear protest frigate, is awaiting orders from Wellington to take up position just outside the French territorial 12-mile limit around the Mururoa test area of the South Pacific.

The news came from the New Zealand Press Association's special correspondent, David Barber, aboard the 2,400-ton frigate, which has been defying the French inside their "forbidden zone" for the last eight days.

There is no news of the whereabouts of the Vega, a private American anti-nuclear test protest schooner, and its crew of 13 more than 24 hours after it was towed away from the zone by a French navy vessel Wednesday.

New Zealand has sent a note to France about the Mururoa test area of the South Pacific.

Bird's Nest Good Sign For New Cherney Outlet

A bird flew in the store when the Cherney brothers first opened for business in their Peterborough hometown in 1925.

Friends said it was a good luck sign.

This week, while Harry and Oliver Cherney moves viewed the facade of their big new Belleville sales operation, they spotted a bird already nesting away up in the recently-installed business sign.

There was little need for well-wishers to talk about auguries of good fortune.

The expensive new enterprise — fronting North Front St., — is also only one of two in a new concept of consumer merchandising i between Montreal and. Toronto. The second such operation, flourishing in the Oshawa-Whitby area, is also a Cherney undertaking.

"It's a unique concept in furniture retailing," says company president. Harry Cherney of the new operation which officially opened today. "What we've done is custom-build a furniture warehouse and showroom under one roof."

Raised on 40,000 landscaped square feet, its cleancut lines are a showcase — housing a spectacular array of home furnishings — that also is its own supply centre.

Having a built-in stockpile from which supply can be constantly renewed means two immediate benefits.

For a company as big as Cherney's, the concept consolidates operations, cutting cost and inconvenience of moving merchandise from scattered points to the sales centre and consumers.

For the consumer there also is the presence of a huge back-up stock, guaranteeing instant delivery at a time when boom demand can mean considerable long delays in filling orders.

For the Cherneys, that concept was first tried several years ago in the Oshawa-Whitby district.

Its success spurred its introduction to Belleville, where the firm first entered the business a decade ago in the city's eastend Belleville Plaza.

The company's track experience in the city to date, plus future development indicated throughout the district make it a "viable economic undertaking," he believes.

The new centre is expected to draw customers from a 50-mile radius in the Belleville-Trenton region — and likely further.

That, and the variety and quality of goods demanded by consumers are major changes in the trading scene since the Cherney's personally staffed their first small store nearly 40 years ago.

Furniture is arranged in more than 150 specifically designed individual room settings, complete with accessories from paintings to lamps.

The display system also gives shoppers an idea of how their purchases can be best to best advantage at home.

"The secret of this building is that we have complete control on overhead expenses" says the company president.

The operation means cost cuts to customers. Those quoting up big percentages in original factory cartons also are offered savings, he says.

Will the new concept be introduced throughout the Cherney chain — which also counts outlets in Kingston and Cobourg?

"Obviously you can't do this overnight in every area," says Harry Cherney. "But we're looking at the future of our company in this concept.

VD Information Kits Are Ready for Schools

Venereal disease prevention programs will be available to schools this fall, Hastings and Prince Edward Counties health officer Dr. C. R. Lenk said Wednesday.

The province's Ministry of Health has assembled information kits for aiding instruction of students in both secondary and elementary schools he told the counties' health board.

The kits include leaflets, film strips, trafficanderma, and tapes and will be supplied to teachers.

Dr. Lenk said he would be discussing the program soon with school authorities.

Reported cases of venereal diseases increased by 37 per cent in 1972, the ministry reported earlier this year.

The over-all rate in Hastings and Prince Edward was below the provincial average — but had also increased from 35 to 38 cases.

While new reporting technique contributed to the rise, Health Minister Richard Potter nonetheless concluded, there was a "significant, true increase" in the rate across the province.

Tourist Advice Booth Is Busier

By JIM SEMELIE
Staff Reporter

Most people don't like to be told where to go but Heather Smith is spending part of the summer doing just that.

She's not being unfriendly, though. Just doing her job. You see, Heather, a Queen's University student, has returned in the fall, is one of two girls, the other is Paula Coleston. They have been manning the information booth this summer at the Bay Bridge and since its official opening June 28.

The booth is sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and the two girls assist at the chamber's downtown office when not working in the triangular shaped booth on North Front Street near Highway 401.

The girls work from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. seven days a week. The booth will close September 2.

Heather estimates she handles about 10-25 requests for information daily. "It's hard to really give an exact figure since it varies from day to day," said Heather. "We don't get as many people on a Monday as say on a Saturday.

So far the two girls have answered over 300 requests for traveller's aid. The majority of them, of course, are from out-of-town tourists, about 120 so far. The rest are from local travellers just needing a road map or information on campsites.

The tourists come from as far away as Britain, Germany, and the southern United States and Californ as well as from many points in Canada.

Heather, who asks those questions, recalls one of the strangest requests received in the 21 days the booth has been open.

"A gentleman from the southern United States came in and wanted to know how to get to Anne of Green Gables. He had mistaken Prince Edward County for Prince Edward Island. It was hard to tell him he was about 500 miles away," recalled Heather.

Since the booth opened, it and the downtown information office, together have handled over 300 requests. "This," said Chamber of Commerce manager Don Sutton, "is more people who made inquiries for information than we had all last year."

Chamber for District Is Belleville Plan

It all depends on how those nearby communities without chambers such as Ameliasburgh, Sidney and Thurlow townships feel about the matter.

It was also disclosed yesterday that the city's chamber would like to form a council of chambers of commerce involving the chambers of Madoc, Picton, Trenton, Tweed and Napanee.

"This is so all the chambers can help one another and Belleville could become a hub of activity," said city chamber president Richard Lumbers.

If the proposal to form a Belleville and District Chamber of Commerce is realized, changes in the organization's bylaws and regular meetings perhaps twice a year with all the areas involved would result.

10th Year

Gemboree Set For Bancroft

BANCROFT — The Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree this year is staging a celebration.

In recognition of its 10th anniversary, the popular North Hastings County event - which attracts visitors from as far away as Texas - this year will be extended to six full days with a number of brand new events scheduled.

Already 26 dealers in mineral specimens, rockhound equipment and supplies have lined up as exhibitors. Another seven dealers in handicrafts and 33 other exhibitors have indicated their intention of participating.

The Gemboree gets underway Aug. 6. Although no field trips are scheduled for opening day, there will be rockswapping on the grounds every day from 10 a.m. until dark and a corn roast every evening commencing at 8 p.m.

Commencing Tuesday, field trips will leave the grounds each day at 9 a.m. with rockhounds invited to go along and "prospect" for minerals.

Also starting Aug. 7 will be daily musical entertainment ranging all the way from old-fashioned gospel singing, to country music with evening dancing, climaxed by Cross Country Jamboree musicians on the last two nights.

Featured in the Cross Country Jamboree programs will be the Singing Post family from Carrying Place, Bancroft's own Roadrunners, and the Echo Valley Boys from Toronto and New Brunswick.

New events at the Gemboree this year will be the Royal Ontario Museum's touring fossil display - of high interest to rockhound fans - and a horseshoe pitching contest.

There will be the usual weight-guessing contest, the contest this year centering on a large block of mylonite. A rock auction will be staged on the final afternoon of the show, August 11.

An associate professor of geology at University of Toronto will also be on hand to provide free rock and mineral identification.

The youngsters are not forgotten. There will be midway rides on the final three days of the Gemboree. Friday afternoon will be Children's Day, with half price rides during the afternoon as well as a bicycle draw.

Perth Man Hurt in Crash

TWEED (Special) — A Perth man is in Belleville General Hospital with head injuries sustained in an accident on Highway 37 at 1 a.m. today.

James Arthur McInnis, 22, was northbound when he fell asleep at the wheel and went off the road, taking out a guide post valued at $10 and a fence belonging to John Lajoie, valued at $50. Damage to his car was $1,500.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls Wednesday:

3:34 p.m. . . . Pinnacle Street parking lot; gas spill.

7:05 p.m. . . . North end of Herchimer St.; rubbish fire in field.

Youngster gazes pensively at a past on wheels at Ameliasburgh Museum. A pride of place is given to this sparkling restoration of Model-T Ford, an automobile that wrought major change in the traditional rural way of life recalled by exhibits at popular centre of local history.

Ameliasburgh Museum:

It's A Local History Showcase

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

AMELIASBURGH — In January, 1906, residents of Ameliasburgh township were invited to hear an expert discuss "how to build good and bad roads" at the town hall.

This poster numbers among hundreds of displays at the Ameliasburgh museum opened in 1968 in the former United Church building.

The ground floor of the museum contains exhibits of old china, a school room furnished in detail and a small chapel with pews.

The upper floor contains displays of children's toys, costume pieces and an Indian canoe and arrowhead collection.

The original furnishings from the first division court of the village of Ameliasburgh are grouped to form "the courthouse" where a large picture of Queen Victoria hangs.

Nestled in a wooded corner of the museum's spacious grounds is a small settlers' cabin donated by Vincent O'Hara and rebuilt by members of the museum board in 1969. The log cabin was taken from Lot 101, Concession 2, Ameliasburgh.

It is furnished as it was in pioneer days and all available floor space has been utilized. An old - fashioned garden which would have supplied the dwellers' needs in in former times, ajoins the cabin rounding out the perspective of a living environment in the days of settlement.

Pioneer Park is a highlight of the Ameliasburgh museum. It features a farm barn containing all the farm implements used by settlers. In contains such as a 1909 Model - T Ford — are displayed.

This turn - of - the - century car has a "mother-in-law's seat" and was restored by its owner, Elmer Young of Ameliasburgh.

A goose-necked racing cutter is stored in the barn as well as an ultra-modern contraption, the unicycle.

Children visiting the museum enjoy the poultry display at the rear of the building. Here geese, ducks, banties, guinea hens and pigeons are caged. Rabbits also are on display.

Museum curator Harry Bisdee has hit upon a highly effective and novel mosquito repellant for the museum grounds. A birdhouse built especially to attract mosquito-chasing Martins is fully tenanted.

The Ameliasburgh Museum was opened officially July 1a and will remain open until Labor Day.

It Still Hath Charms

Years-old music still hath charms as this scene at Ameliasburgh's museum proves. Youngsters from nearby day camp listen to strains from the past on old gramaphone—among many exhibits of lifestyles now faded, but still to be appreciated at township history centre.

Belleville Man Hoping To Buy Obsolete Bridge

AMELIASBURGH — Fankford bridge is coming down, and a Belleville man has plans, for preserving and utilizing this turn of the century structure.

With permission from the Ministry of Transport he hopes to buy the Frankford canal bridge to span the 100 foot distance to the mainland.

Mr. Plane says that the scrap value of the old steel bridge is approximately $800. It is 186 feet long and 22 feet wide and would provide access to the construction worker's island retreat.

He notes that many persons have moved houses, but it is seldom that a bridge is moved.

The Frankford canal bridge is located on highway 33 and is now being replaced by a new high level bridge.

Bible Chapel Site On Harder Drive

Inside the city limits immediately east of Palmer Road is Centennial Secondary School, the Sir John A. Macdonald Public School, and the Dick Ellis Rink. On the south is the athletic grounds owned by the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Further west along the north side of the street in Sidney township is the new Greek Orthodox Holy Trinity Church and now the Hastings Park Bible Chapel is also planning construction of a church building in the same area.

The church group through Sidney township clerk E. H. Lyons has made application for city water and sewer service to the property.

The application was read at Monday's council meeting but was tabled for further information.

Pressure on Farmers

"To keep them on the land," he said recently, "we must give them a decent profit."

The minister put it succinctly when he said city people (who had been burning his ears on food costs) "don't understand — or maybe they don't want to understand" that this was the only way the public could expect a food bargain. Keeping them on the land that is.

"Tens of thousands" of farm children and "thousands of farmers," he pointed out, had already left farming "because it has not been as attractive as the fat pay cheques in the city."

We have a prime example of the manner in which urban dwellers have been spoiled in the recent prolonged strike of a city plant, ending only after ten weeks and the usual wage increases.

If the farmers do not go on strike — and we are fortunate they do not — the effect is the same when they suffer a worse alternative in being forced out of business. Mr. Whelan has said as much and his remarks should serve to put the higher food costs of late in perspective.

The situation facing the farming community in the United States is equally difficult, what with governmental curbs and similar pressures in the fight to make ends meet. The state of Vermont for instance, once a top milk-producer, is reported to be losing dairy farms at the rate of no fewer than 750 a year. From 28,000 small family farms in 1954, Vermont has gone down to about 4-000.

Farmers there, as in Canada, say they cannot fight inflation, taxes and government regulations any longer.

It is a sad state of affairs and one which should give all of us pause, this evidence of rural decline. It means that with all the dire threats of there not being enough to eat at some time in the future, we seem all the more eager to bring this calamity about by making it more difficult for the farmer to run his business like any other, on a profitable basis.

Treasure Trove

The wealth and influence of the Spanish world centuries ago are matters of historic record. Today the whole fascinating legend is coming to life with the discovery of still further treasures from sunken ships of that era.

A few years ago there were the incredible discoveries on the ocean floor off the coast of County Antrim when a team of divers headed by Belgian Robert Stenuit came upon the wreck of the flagship Girona. Following the defeat of the armada by Drake, the Girona and one or two others fled, hoping to return to Spain by a circuitous route. It foundered in a storm on September 26, 1588. Stenuit's discoveries are now on permanent display in the Ulster Museum in Belfast.

Now, from Tallahassee, Fla., comes word of the discovery of some $750,000 in silver, gold and coins, believed to be part of a $100 million treasure carried by two Spanish galleons which sank in 1622. It was found under 20 feet of sand 30 miles off Key West and officials believe there is more still hidden amid the altered environment of the centuries.

These discoveries might be thought to be in the realm of pure fantasy. Yet they are absolutely real — and for that reason all the more fascinating. We can think of no more significant links with the past, and no more exciting accomplishments of exploration than these various finds from old Spain in waters in different parts of the world.

Still Together

It is some years now since we had the pleasure of seeing and hearing the Sing-Out group from CFB Trenton. Indeed we were wondering if they had disbanded. Then we read that they had given a performance at Kingston's Homecoming Week. And it was typical of their youthful vitality and enthusiasm that they sang on despite a downpour.

Much more dampening and disappointing was a discovery made later. Returning to their bus the young people found wallets and money missing. One Kingston businessman was upset enough that he said he planned to offer a cheque for $50 to cover the $38 stolen. It was a handsome gesture and in any event the theft might have happened anywhere.

Mediation Efforts Recalled

To What Extent Was Canada Involved in Vietnam?

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In spite of our best intentions and our determination to be the traditional Canadian mediator in Asia, we were involved after all in the Vietnam War.

Is that what the excerpts from the Pentagon Papers dealing with Canada and Vietnam are trying to say? Or is that the message which is meant to come through from the portions published already in several Canadian newspapers?

The doubt exists because the published items deal largely with once - secret cables and messages between the United States Embassy in Ottawa and the state department about the visits of two Canadian diplomats to Hanoi between 1964 and 1966 on behalf of the U.S. state department.

The six visits of Blair Seaborn to Hanoi in 1964-65 and the later two trips of former Ambassador Chester Rooning to Hanoi in 1966 and 1967 are revealed by the Pentagon Papers. They were well-known before.

In fact, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp had to tell the House of Commons when he was under press and parliamentary attack to do so, that Mr. Seaborn acted as, "a channel of communication" not "as a representative of the United States" during those trips.

Their purpose was to inform Hanoi the Americans meant what they said about bombing the North and try and force Hanoi the action on war could only be Canadian terms of mediation.

But the Canadian portions of the Pentagon Papers are by no means the most significant development. First, Mr. Seaborn and even the pro-Peking Chinese specialist Chester Rooning, ended up in the information-gathering business for Washington without possibly knowing it.

Second, the visits and attitudes of both men were held in scorn by Ragged Johnson's most senior diplomatic aides including State Secretary Dean Rusk and H. McGeorge Bundy. This was especially true of Chester Rooning, considered a "Hot dove" by Washington because of his well-known conviction that nothing would stop the war or de-escalate the bombing until America and China came to a mutual understanding.

The real dramatic irony for Canadians reading these skeptical and once top-secret cables of the state department about Chester Rooning, is that today we read them after a Republican president, once a top Communist baiter, has made the journey to Peking and announced the rapprochement which Rooning had declared essential as far back as the late 1950s.

So, who needed to help out the Americans in the first place? After all when Blair Seaborn made his six trips he was Commissioner for Canada on the former and defunct International Control Commission for Indochina (ICC) of which Canada was supposed to be one of the three neutral member nations.

The question lingers, even with the revelation of the most private thoughts of the American ambassador in Ottawa, Messrs. Lester Pearson and Paul Martin, why was Seaborn sent to Hanoi when he was head of a Canadian commission serving in Vietnam in a "neutral" capacity?

All of which begs the question whether Washington conned us again a few months ago to be a member of the International Commission of Control and Supervision, the successor to the ICC in a post-truce Vietnam.

We are getting out of the ICC on July 30, with one officer dead and two captured for a time for merely neither aiding nor the Viet Cong will divulge. It's only three men compared to the thousands of Americans lost in Vietnam.

But then as our masters and leaders who involved us in Vietnam after all, kept telling us out of the other corner of the bureaucrat's mouth, this is an American war not ours.

Ecological Purists Standing in Way of Progress?

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The ecology bandwagon might just get out of control—perhaps because it's becoming so overcrowded.

All of us are in favor of preserving the environment. Just possible, however, the environment needs to be protected from some of its loudly self-proclaimed friends.

You may have heard of the heroic if mosquitoes which recently descended upon central and northern Alberta, inflicting severe bites on humans and cattle.

In past years, the insects could be controlled with DDT. But in 1972, that insecticide was banned on the grounds that it could endanger some species of sea birds, and could harm humans if excessive amounts were used.

The ban ignored the fact that game laws allow hunters to kill millions of birds of the gift of life each year. It ignored DDT's established contribution to prevention of insect-borne diseases. And it ignored the fact that no death of a human has ever been attributed to DDT.

If Americans didn't have enough fuel to heat their schools and public buildings last winter, and don't have enough gasoline this summer, a major reason is that environmental extremists have helped to halt or delay the construction of new U.S. oil refineries.

The false prophets of the ecology movement might argue that nobody froze to death last winter and there is too much traffic on the roads anyway.

"Too much" by what and whose standards? Cars don't have lives of their own—they contain people going to work, to school, to countless worthwhile activities.

Those who wrap themselves in the banner of environmental purity must, after all, have a divine right to dictate the life style of others. Yet all too many elitists seek to impose their values not only on their urban neighbors but also on people in non-metropolitan areas that the elitists have never seen.

There is a real need for sensible, perservering efforts to preserve the quality of air, water and land. But the cause is being hurt by those who have just lately and noisily discovered environmental concern, and whose fanaticism has helped to halt or delay the construction of new U.S. oil refineries.

Raise for MPPs in Fall

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO—Members went home for their summer recess somewhat disconsolate.

When they arrived in the winter they fully believed they would get an increase in pay before the end of the first part of the session.

It was due. Precedent is that in the second year of a new legislature indemnities are raised.

This past year there was the camp committee studying the legislature. As one of its terms of reference it was to recommend on the recompense for members. It was accepted that the committee would report on it at least this aspect during the session.

The committee did its job. It submitted an interim report in April proposing that members should be boosted to $22,500 from their present $18,000.

But Premier Davis, who has to start the ball rolling in these matters, didn't do anything about the report before the session recessed.

So members went home a bit low in spirits and short in the pocket.

However in the end there will be no loss.

And it will be retroactive.

There has been some confusion on this point.

Newer members have worried that you can't make a pay increase matter all showed a lack of thinking through as to what the consequences might be.

But surely the most flagrant example of this was on the question of bridge tolls.

In the budget, Treasurer John White announced that as of July 1 there would be no more tolls on the Burlington Skyway and the Garden City Skyway (the only toll bridges in the province).

Two days before the end of the session NDP member Lin Deans from Hamilton said in the House that 65 of the 74 toll collectors hadn't found jobs and what was the government going to do about it?

Three days later the government announced the tolls would stay on for another six months.

Why didn't somebody think of this before? Or what a way to run a government.

Community Services Organization

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The words "citizen and taxpayer" are frequently resorted to by members of the community by politicians at election time and anybody else that has an axe to grind.

The reason is that at one time they really meant something. They are words having connotations related to responsibility, dignity and community. That has gone out of the window, at least in Belleville.

The current UCS-City Council situation is a case in point. We elected our Council on a variety of promises, the sum total of which was to serve the community to the best of their ability. I recall fine words about progress, moving forward, communication with the people, and a desire to serve their fellows.

The Board of Directors of the United Community Services do not have time on a voluntary basis to serve their less fortunate members of the community. So this end they hired a professional social worker to direct the organization. At this future it appears most of them feel they had fulfilled their part from token appearances at Board meetings.

A great deal of criticism has been levelled at Executive Director Isidore Cooperstein, both personal and pertinent. However from what has happened, one wonders if the Board of Directors should not be called upon to shoulder some of the blame.

The public is now told that the Board has decided to clamp down and ask the Director to prepare his working guidelines and terms of reference. This is ludicrous. Surely even in the most elementary organization employing and paying people to perform certain functions, it is their duty to provide their terms of reference and to supervise their performance. The taxpayers of Belleville, in this case, have been contributing a considerable sum of money to a worthy and much needed organization with little or no guarantee their investment has been supervised as they have a right to expect.

When things reach the stage that City Council becomes involved, politically as to what is going on must be satisfactory. The UCS Board at its last meeting did not back up the situation. A similar secret session scheduled for the Council meeting of July 16. There is no escape for this.

A great deal of fence-mending is needed. Secrecy will not help it one bit. The Board really destroy the acceptance of the United Way concept in Belleville. The people have a right to know what is going on, how its money is being spent and what its elected members and appointed Boards in the city are doing with their money.

Put the United Community Services back on the track. Its present terms of reference at one time was to collect money that could be better spent and, in co-operation with its agency members, to spend it on behalf of those in need. They have strayed completely away from this. Committee members are all very well for those that can afford the time and money to attend them. They have little effect on the community as a whole and are time and money among the needy.

Cut out the secrecy — cut out the committee overkill — cut out professional directors. Belleville has many down - to - earth ordinary men and women capable of doing what is needed; a first-class ongoing public relations job that leaves the average citizen knowledgeable as to his United Community Services, and eager to contribute to it.

Secret meetings letters, paternalism, seminars, innumerable committees leave the community gone laying no more goldon eggs for those in need.

No Place For Quacks

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

When are governments going to realize the importance of the Arts in our society?

Queen's Park seems eager to protect us from many different kinds of people in the sciences and trades. Now, we even have Bill 246 to keep us from getting pinched with cheap dentures. Yet the government seems to have a very indifferent attitude toward practices in the Arts; teachers are the people mainly responsible for preparing students for entrance into university music faculties, and every year the general public is virtually robbed of thousands of dollars and many musical futures are ruined by unqualified and incompetent music teachers.

Even though there has been a Licensing Bill before the House for several years, which, if passed, would gradually eliminate the charlatans from the music-teaching field, the government simply passes it from one department to another hoping, apparently, that by the shuffle it will somehow get lost. In the meantime, all kinds of people are teaching music, some with doctorates and some with a musical education of the kindergarten level — all with equal blessing from Queen's Park.

The damage done by quacks in the music - teaching field is just as severe and just as permanent as that done by poorly-trained dentists. The difference is that the slipshod work of the former often takes a period of months or years before unsuspecting clients detect it. Sad to say, many people do not make the discovery until after the damage has become irreparable.

I trust that the many lonely people who have suffered at the hands of artistic charlatans will let Queen's Park know that it is high time our elected representatives started accepting some of their responsibilities in the area of the humanities.

Majority Must Be Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — A new law requiring majority membership for Canadians on boards of directors and spelling out duties of directors and new rights for shareholders was introduced in the Commons Wednesday by Corporate Affairs Minister Herb Gray.

The bill, which received routine first reading, would affect only federally-incorporated companies, about 10 per cent of the 270,000 corporations doing business in Canada. But officials say they are among the country's largest, doing up to 40 per cent of all corporate business.

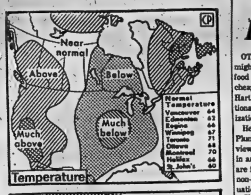
It would require those companies to include resident Canadians as a majority of their directors.

For foreign-owned firms, the requirement is even more strict: employees of the firm could not be counted in the majority, meaning more than half the directors must be outsiders.

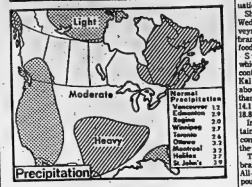
Mr. Gray said outside the House the provision would give a louder Canadian voice in foreign-owned firms, forming "a useful adjunct" to the foreign investment review bill now before the Commons finance committee.

But he acknowledged it would be hard to predict how the new requirement would affect the performance of subsidiaries or their relations with parent companies.

The provision is similar to laws recently enacted in Ontario and British Columbia requiring majority Canadian membership on boards.



Officials said the combination of federal, Ontario and B.C. laws would affect more than half of all Canadian corporations.



Existing federally-incorporated firms would have five years to meet provisions of the new law, or face dissolution.

Mr. Gray said he hopes for its passage by Parliament in time for January application.

Among new rights granted shareholders would be power to initiate or change company bylaws, remove directors by simplified procedure or change company articles of incorporation.

Shareholders who dissent from a significant change in company operations could require the company to buy back their shares.

U. S. Embassy Blamed For False Oil Facts

OTTAWA (CP) — It was the United States embassy in Ottawa and not the U.S. state department that apparently fed misleading information to Congress on Canada's attitude towards an oil pipeline in the Mackenzie Valley, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp indicated Wednesday.

Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield sought Commons approval to send an all-party delegation to Washington to get Canada's position clearly before the American legislators.

His motion required unanimous consent and a lone, unidentified Liberal said no, wiping out the motion.

Mr. Sharp told the Commont:

"According to my information, the state department sought a report on the views of Canadian government departments through its embassy in Ottawa.

"The U.S. embassy in turn submitted a questionnaire to officials of the department of energy.

"We gather, however, that before the Canadian reply was received the embassy sent forward its own assessment of the Canadian attitude.

"This was reflected in the initial response provided to the U.S. Congress by the state department."

When the embassy in Ottawa received the energy department responses, these were passed on by the state department to Congress, Mr. Sharp said.

Dog Food Said Better Than Cheap Meat

OTTAWA (CP) — Poor people might be better off eating dog food instead of the so-called cheap types of meat, says Margo Hartling, president of the National Anti-Poverty Organization.

Here for a meeting with Beryl Plumtre of the food prices review board, Mrs. Hartling said in an interview that poor people are forced to pay high prices for non-nutritious food—and the situation is becoming worse.

She produced the results Wednesday of laboratory surveys carried out last spring on brand-name wieners and dog foods.

Swift Canadian wieners, which sold for 89 cents a pound, contained 12.1 per cent protein. Kal Kan dog food, selling for about 38 cents for slightly less than one pound, contained 14.1 per cent protein and only 18.8 per cent fat.

In addition, the dog food contained only 4.8 per cent fat, compared with 23.3 per cent in the wieners.

The best showing of the four brands of wieners was by Burns All Beef wieners at 99 cents a pound, which contained 14.1 per cent protein and only 18.8 per cent fat.

Fletcher's Wieners, at 89 cents a pound, contained 12.5 per cent protein and 26.2 per cent fat, while Maple Leaf Wieners— 75 cents a pound—contained 13.4 per cent protein and 31 per cent fat.

All four brands averaged more than 55 per cent water.

The two other dog foods, Dr. Ballard's and Husky, contained 5.6 per cent protein and 6.5 per cent protein respectively while averaging less than five per cent fat.

Despite federal laws which allow a maximum fat content of only 30 per cent in ground or minced beef, the three samples averaged 27.3 per cent fat.

Advertised as ground beef, they averaged 13.6 per cent protein while the lowest protein content only 13.6 per cent. The average price for the beef was 79 cents a pound.

Mrs. Hartlin said she doesn't think that merely publicizing some of the practices of the marketing industry—one of the roles of the review board—"is going to put more food into the mouths of our children.

Mrs. Hartlin wants the federal government to develop better means of controlling testing food quality and she feels that the food industry could "go a long way towards policing itself."

"People must demand this quality. They've just got to get up and demand it of the food industry. We're entitled to a lot better than that."

CP News Roundup

Doctors' Incomes Highest

OTTAWA (CP) — Doctors and lawyers had highest incomes followed by accountants, engineers and merchant chiefs, latest figures show.

Doctors averaged $39,555 in 1971—latest figures available—the revenue department said Wednesday.

Next were lawyers and notaries with $27,863 average income for the year, dentists with $25,823, engineers and architects with $21,946.

Accountants averaged $18,631, other professionals $10,836 and salesmen $8,766.

The figures refer to self-employed professionals.

Property owners averaged $7,566 and business proprietors $7,442.

The average income for all Canadian taxpayers in 1971 was $7,237, the report said.

The city with the highest average income in 1971 was Oakville, Ont., where residents averaged $9,051.

Average income in Sept-Iles increased from its 1970 first-place figure of $8,165 to $8,706 in 1971, but Oakville's jumped even more from $8,068. Sept-Iles, where iron ore is a major income producer, slipped to 13th place.

Second-ranked in the latest report was Mississauga, Ont., a Toronto bedroom community, where average income was $8,820.

Sarnia, Ont., a petro chemicals centre, retained third place with $8,647 in 1971, up from 1970's $7,894.

Named Deputy

TORONTO (CP) — Richard M. Dillon, 53, an engineer, business executive and management consultant, has been appointed deputy minister of Ontario's new energy ministry.

The new ministry was established July 3 under Darcy McKeough, former treasurer.

Outlook Good

OTTAWA (CP) — Hot windy weather is aggravating already dry conditions in "rather extensive areas" of the Prairie grain belt, but crop prospects in the remainder are favorable, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

'Rescue' Fatal

NORWOOD, Mass. (AP) — James DeMeneces, 20, trapped in a construction ditch by a cave-in, drowned Tuesday when would-be rescuers hit a water main that flooded the trench. Police said De Menezes became trapped up to his knees in the cave-in and was covered with water and mud when rescuers struck the water main.

GRACE MacINNIS

No Panic

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan denied in the Commons Wednesday that rising production costs have caused panic selling of hogs in Canada.

Responding to Grace MacInnis (NDP — Vancouver Kingsway), who said "even pregnant sows" are being sold, Mr. Whelan said statistics don't bear this out.

He said the slaughter rate is up slightly in Ontario but there has been no notable change over last year in the rest of the country.

Receivership

TORONTO (CP) — King Petroleum Ltd. of Toronto, operator of 12 service stations in the Ottawa Valley and Quebec, has been placed in interim receivership.

On the application of Imperial Oil Ltd., which claims King owes it $705,250, Clarkson Co. Ltd. of Toronto has been appointed interim receiver.

Forty-six Convicts Loose

OTTAWA (CP) — Forty-six of the 8,300 convicts in federal prisons last year got away and avoided recapture 22 on straight escapes and 24 while on temporary-leave passes, last year, 309 were picked up and brought back.

But the figures indicate that most of the prisoners are inept or unlucky or both on getaway attempts.

Last year, for example, there were 351 escapes from federal prisons, including 127 from minimum-security institutions, but 329 of the runaways were recaptured.

Similarly, of 330 who failed to return from temporary leaves

Strike Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM), Local 764, served strike notice to CP Air Wednesday that a strike of 1,300 machinists will take place July 25 at 12 noon PDT.

The strike will affect machinists at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, and as far north as Whitehorse, as well as in Vancouver, where there are about 1,000 machinists.

Produce Less

Trucker Killed

TORONTO (CP) — William Leonard, 22, of Toronto was burned to death Wednesday as firemen tried to free him from the burning cab of a van which crashed on Highway 401 between Yonge Street and Bayview Avenue.

The van was being towed by a tractor cab when the chain snapped, causing the van to veer across the highway, smashing through the centre guard rail, it landed on top of a taxi and burst into flames.

Open Talks

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations between United Auto Workers (UAW) and General Motors of Canada Ltd., and Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. opened Wednesday with the union presenting its list of proposals for the 1973 contract.

No discussions of the issues took place in an effort to allow company negotiators time to examine the list of formal proposals presented by the UAW.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Pack were taken by surprise Saturday evening when about 25 of their former neighbors arrived to hold a housewarming party at their new home, RR 2, Eldorado. Mr. and Mrs. Pack were presented with a pole lamp and their two children each received a gift.

Mrs. John Bell has returned home to Peterborough after spending five weeks with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl McMillen, RR 1, Havelock, and their family. A former Marmora resident, Mrs. Bell, now 81, enjoyed meeting many of her friends in town on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cuddy and their two children attended the 21st birthday party for Mrs. Cuddy's twin sister and brother, Peter and Judy Cox, in Toronto on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Acorn and daughter Julie of Belleville spent the weekend with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Acorn.

Newfoundlanders Rolling Their Own

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Thousands of Newfoundlanders have found a way to beat the recently-increased provincial tax on cigarettes and tobacco.

They've started their own factories at home.

In times of depression, most island smokers rolled their own by hand but now they have the benefit of quick and easy cigarette-rolling machines.

Local retailers have been displaying a "supermatic" machine that makes up to 200 cigarettes an hour and it has been selling like hot cakes for almost a year. Some stores report the only problem is keeping supplies of the machine on hand.

The make-your-own idea caught on last year when the government decided to raise taxes on tobacco products.

The new tax amounted to 10 cents on a package of 20 cigarettes; two cents on each half-ounce of loose tobacco and one to 10 cents on each cigar, depending on price. There was no increase in the price of plug tobacco but few islanders chew tobacco any more.

The new tax was supposed to bring in between $3 million and $4 million in extra revenue but the government has released no figures.

A package of 20 cigarettes cost the smoker about 65 cents before the tax increase. A package of tobacco, with the tax added, costs about 70 cents and the machine will produce about 40 cigarettes from the package.

The cigarette-making kit costs about $10 and users say the machines produce an excellent product, filter and all.

A new twist has also been added to the old game of smuggling to, and within, the province.

In addition to its regular retail tax, the provincial government has an import duty of 20 cents per package of cigarettes and the justice department has received complaints that cigarettes are being brought in for resale without the duty being paid.

Finance Minister John Crosbie says the matter is in the hands of the police and an investigation "is still active."

Not Allowed to Write Exams, Nurses Protest Requirements

TORONTO (CP) — A group of Ottawa nurses has complained to Premier William Davis that its members have been refused nursing registration in Ontario because they were educated outside Canada.

The 62-member group, called the Ottawa Association of Professional Nurses Educated Abroad, made public today a five-page brief to the premier which called for a government study group to look into the situation.

The nurses want the group, to be composed of "persons from a number of walks of life," to look into the stand on registration being taken by the College of Nurses of Ontario.

The brief says there "appears to be little rhyme or reason" given by the college for refusing registration to the 62 nurses.

"Despite the fact that many of the professional nurses educated abroad received their nursing education at some of the most renowned institutions in the world and practised nursing as professionals for varying periods . . . they were deemed to be of such low calibre that they were not even eligible to write the Ontario registration examinations."

Commenting in an interview from the brief, Joan Macdonald, director of the College of Nurses of Ontario, said nurses educated abroad are required to meet the same standards as Ontario-trained nurses. She said a problem sometimes arises over documentation because the college does not always receive from foreign schools records to show a nurse has completed the required training.

Many Nurses 'Imported'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada imports more than one-tenth of its working registered nurses from abroad, says Statistics Canada.

A recent report on nursing manpower in 1971 showed 12.9 per cent — or 14,102 — of the 108,630 employed registered nurses graduated outside the country.

Ontario and British Columbia relied more on foreign graduates than other provinces.

Ontario had the highest number of employed foreign nursing graduates—17.9 per cent—while foreign graduates in B.C. totalled 17.1 per cent.

New Brunswick had the lowest, only 2.9 per cent.

Quebec ranked as the highest user of its own graduates, the report said. A total of 19,847 of 20,056, or 74.3 per cent, were graduates from within the province.

"At the other end of the spectrum, the province of British Columbia ranks as the lowest employer of its own RN graduates . . . 44.5 per cent were trained in B.C."

Of the 10,783 employed registered nurses in B.C., 1,836 graduated outside Canada. Also, B.C. had 4,336 RNs from other provinces—including 2,294 from the Prairies.

Ontario was the highest importer of RNs from the Maritimes, Quebec and Manitoba.

The report, one of a series on health manpower, was compiled from registration documents. Registration is not compulsory in all provinces, so there may be more nurses working in Canada than are listed.

HANNA SPILKER: 'I'M VERY DISAPPOINTED'

Nurses Trained Abroad

They Pleaded 'Come Over'

Hanne Spilker and her husband, both English-trained German nurses, were working in St. James Hospital in Leeds, England when they read a recruiting advertisement in an English nursing magazine.

"The 1963 advertisement," placed by a hospital in what was then Galt, Ont., pleaded with English nurses to emigrate to Canada. The Spilkers answered the ad and were interviewed by the Director of Nursing for the hospital at Canada House in England. They were hired and their passage to Canada was paid by the hospital.

"They pleaded with us to come over," Hanne Spilker says.

The Spilkers came to Canada, worked in Galt, then in Oakville. During that period Mr. Spilker left nursing and Mrs. Spilker took time out to have two children.

Now resident in Belleville, Mrs. Spilker, whose youngest child will attend school full time in the fall, is ready and willing to go back to nursing.

Trouble is, the College of Nurses of Ontario says she can't. They say she's not qualified.

In fact, Mrs. Spilker will not even be allowed to take the qualifying examination which registers graduate nurses.

"I'm very disappointed," Mrs. Spilker says.

A graduate nurse, she was trained for three and a half years in Leeds. When she left the hospital, she was assistant head nurse in the children' ward.

"I worked very hard in training and often studied till 3 a.m.," Mrs. Spilker says.

"I can't see doing the whole thing over again," she adds.

Like many nurses trained abroad, Mrs. Spilker took "registered" by the province.' While employed, until now, she was called a graduate nurse, she say, doing a nurse's work for lower pay.

At one hospital in Mississauga, she says, she got Registered Nursing Assistant pay while doing the work of a Registered Nurse.

Now that there is not a severe shortage of nurses, she can no longer find employment.

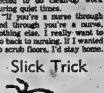
With what she admits was a lack of foresight, Mrs. Spilker failed to take an examination when she and her husband arrived in Canada.

"I wasn't aware there was any pressure to go for the exam then. If I'd known, I would have done it."

When she enquired about registration, the college of nurses informed her by mail that Ontario training.

"At my age you don't exactly fancy yourself among '17-year-olds," she says.



At that, she adds, it's difficult to be accepted in a nursing school.

"There's absolutely nothing I can do."

Mrs. Spilker said she's thought of nursing in a nursing home but a recent job interview revealed she'd be expected to do clean-up work during quiet times.

"If you're a nurse through and through you're a nurse, nothing else. I really want to go back to nursing. If I wanted to scrub floors, I'd stay home.

People and Events

The sixth annual picnic of descendants of Empire Loyalist Conrad Sills was held in Adolphustown Provincial Park recently with nearly 100 family members attending.

The members thanked Mrs. Ralph Sills who traced the descendants and the group discussed erecting a plaque in memory of Conrad Sills.

Telegrams of greetings, including one from the Queen, surrounded Mrs. Margaret Ella Massey, as she recently celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary, near London, England. She spent 20 years of her life in Africa where her husband, Dr. Alfred Yake Massey was a medical missionary. His wife returned to England after his death in 1922. Their only child, a baby daughter died in Africa.

Dr. Massey was born in Sidney township, the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Levi Massey. Carman Massey of Belleville and Kenneth Massey of Foxboro are nephews of Mrs. Massey.

More than $1,000 was made at a recent senior citizens banquet, Mrs. Elsie Brenton reported at the last meeting of Canilton - Corbyville Senior Citizens. About 58 members attended the meeting, the last before the summer holiday.

Descendants of Bell and Bailey families of Marmora, gathered for a yearly reunion at Rice Lake Sunday. Prizes were awarded, and family members swam and played games.

Summer enrichment programs with supervised arts and crafts, plays and games will be held at Hamilton Park (Bird's Crescent), Plainfield Hall, Bethel Zion Hall and Roslin United Church.

Each Tuesday and Thursday from 9.30 a.m. to noon, two supervisors attend each location.

One dollar is admission cost which covers craft material.

Thurlow Recreation Centre and Dept. of Ontario Ministry of Community and Social Services is sponsoring this project.

The annual community picnic of River Valley Women's Institute was held Sunday at a park on the River Trent. More than 80 persons attended the picnic at the park of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bush.

Engagement

Mrs. Maxwell McCann, 31 Sinclair Street, Belleville, announces the forthcoming marriage of her daughter, Carol Ann Helena, only daughter of the late Maxwell McCann, to David John Patterson, youngest son of the Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Patterson of Huntville, Ont. The wedding will take place August 18 at 2:30 p.m. at Centennial Free Methodist Church, Belleville.

Eldorado, Bannockburn W.I. Meet

Family and Consumer Affairs convener Mrs. Harley Blackburn presented a program including a nutrition quiz and a discussion of safety in the home.

Mrs. Melvin Johnson and Mrs. Harold Chambers also participated in the program.

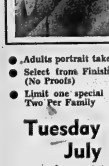
Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Foster, Havelock, Ont., are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Lois Raylene to George Thomas Partridge, Oshawa, Ont., son of Mr. & George Reed, Belleville, and Walter Partridge, Kingston, Ont. The wedding will take place at Havelock United Church, August 18 at 12 noon.

At Home



Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tucker are invited to Westminster United Church, Wallbridge-Loyalist Road, for an open house on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary. The celebration also honors the 85th birthday of Mrs. Edith Bristol. Friends are invited to attend Sunday July 29 from 2 to 5 p.m. Best wishes only please.

The best homemade jams are made with Certo. Goodness, it's easy.

Most everyone knows about the superior freshness and flavour of jams and jellies made at home. It's a simple matter of good taste.

And with Certo, the natural fruit pectin, the process of acquiring this goodness is, also a simple matter.

You see, Certo reduces the boiling process to a mere 60 seconds. An entire batch of jams and jellies takes a mere 30-45 minutes to make, start to finish. A larger batch because almost nothing boils away. One more thing. Certo guarantees a perfect set.

So, for the freshness and flavour of pure homemade jams and jellies, remember Certo. Goodness, it's easy.

Dear Doris: I am in the throes of getting a divorce. My husband left me for a mere boy of a girl only three years older than our own teenaged daughter.

It has been all I can do to keep my head through these past months, after the first shock. Both my daughter and my young son have felt terribly rejected by their father, and at the same time aware of how see me as being at fault.

I think their eyes have gradually been opened, and I am now getting the three of us pulling together as a unit, both of them getting summer jobs to help them through university in the fall. Both of them seeing the job that I have done, too.

Now, what is troubling me is the three or four friends of mine who, coming to visit be because, they say, I am looking then pressed to pour out all of their own terrible life history. I find myself exhausted, and yet in every case I have tried to put aside my own emotional turmoil to give them some help. — Completely Spent.

Dear Completely Spent: The telephone company writes specific sentences for their operators to say when they are trying to explain a busy reputation or something difficult about the way they have equipped a call. Couldn't you write out a sentence or two for use when the sobsisters — and brothers — begin bending your ear

It might go something like this: "Look, dear, I am fond of you, but you will understand that I am emotionally spent. I'd love you to come and see me tonight, but only if you can help me to be cheerful. Or could we get tickets for a good comedy."

You must recognize your own limits, before a breakdown makes you unavailable even to those you raised on fallant teenagers.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have very high regard for your advice; however, I think you have it all wrong, Mr. Secretary. Correct me if I'm wrong. Ecclesiastics is not one of the books of the Apocalypse but rather of the Apocrypha.

The Apocalypse is the book of Revelations. Apocalypse itself means revelation, discovery, or disclosure.

The Apocrypha is made up of 14 books appended to the Old Testament but not considered canonical by the Protestant faiths, and omitted from the Bibles used by the Protestants. Eleven of them are accepted by the Roman Catholic faith and are full of wisdom if controversial in authenticity or authorship. — Bible Student.

Dear Bible Student: My face is red; I'd better write to myself for a cure for blushing! Of course you are right; I mean Apocrypha. Thank you for sending in the correction.

Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, in care of this newspaper, can put you on the way to more Successful Living.

Pork Prices Up Again

TORONTO (CP) — Pork, bacon and ham prices are soaring about any let-up in sight, one expert claims.

James Boyton, executive secretary of the Ontario Pork Producers Marketing Board, said Tuesday that "everybody is nervous" over the rising prices which reached a record $63.25 for a hundredweight of dressed hot meat Tuesday.

Mr. Boynton said farmers are shipping every pregnant sow for slaughter in the face of the current high costs of feeding stock. This has been caused by the sharp rise in soybean feed—the basic food for pigs—which is running at $400 a ton compared to $200 a ton last year.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM HOPKIN

Hopkin – Andrews

Debra Ann Andrews and William Douglas Hopkin were married in Zion Presbyterian Church in an afternoon ceremony.

Debra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Andrews, Belleville. William is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas D. Hopkin, Belleville.

Rev. A. McDowell officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length chiffon gown with a fitted waist, high neckline and long sleeves. Guipure lace trimmed the gown. A matching headpiece caught a floor length embroidered gown. She carried red roses and baby's breath.

After a reception at the IOOF Hall, the couple took a wedding trip to the Grand Macinac Island Hotel.

The couple will reside in Belleville.

Ann Landers

Hitch-hiker Bribes Driver

Dear Ann Landers: Since you pull no punches and deal with every conceivable aspect of human behavior, I hope you will print this letter as a warning to others.

Yesterday I picked up a nice-looking, neatly dressed young lad who was thumbing a ride at a busy intersection. He appeared to be about 15 years old. Two minutes after he got into the car he said, "If you don't give me a couple of dollars I'll make a scene at the next intersection and swear you tried to molest me."

I'm a prominent man in this city and I can't afford any trouble, so I gave the kid two dollars and let him out at the next stop light.

I told my story to friends at church this afternoon and one of them had the identical experience just last week. Please pass the word, Ann. Thumbs down on hitch-hikers—No Name In Cleveland

Dear N.N.: I've been passing that word for a long time. And now I'd like to pass another word. So long as people like you knuckle under and allow yourselves to be shaken down, this sort of racket will flourish. Every person who comes across with "a few dollars" makes the game bolder. You should have told that little creep to get lost.

Dear Ann: Most of your medical consultants are men. I'll bet on it. So how can they understand a woman's sexual feelings (or lack of them) after 30? No matter how good a physician is at diagnosis, surgery or treatment, a male simply cannot fully comprehend what happens to a woman's sexual appetite after she has gone through the menopause or had a hysterectomy.

It makes me furious when I read comments from physicians who think a woman should be as good as ever (some said better) after she has experienced the change of life or had her reproductive organs removed. What do they know?—Fulsthel Thompson Reader

Dear Fulsh: Your assumption that the only way a lesbian can know anything is by experiencing it first-hand is fallacious.

A gynecologist who has treated hundreds (maybe thousands) of women is infinitely more knowledgeable on this subject than one lone female who has only her own experience to go by.

The best authorities, of course, are the women themselves—not just one woman, but large numbers. This is where the doctors get their information. Every gynecologist I have consulted says a woman's sex life should not be less interesting after menopause or a hysterectomy. In some cases, medication is needed to replace the lost estrogen. Her doctor can determine whether or not she needs this replacement.

The woman who says she lost all interest in sex after menopause or surgery probably didn't have much interest in it

Italian Designers: Now They Flatter Figures

ROME (AP) — Italian fashion designers are no longer trying to make women look exotic. The idea is to flatter the figure without stressing any part too much.

American-born designer Tiziani achieved this Tuesday with tapering jackets worn over pants, 'round and wide all the way up, or classically tailored, knee-length dresses with pleated skirts.

Per sulla Tiziani widened jackets to give them a comfortable if somewhat older look. Rather than pleated, skirts were gored and flared. One came in a Burgundy wine color with a matching fur collar and a mellow rose silk shirt. With winter in mind, the designer chose a snowflake as the pattern on fabrics for his collection.

Two shades of wool—brown and peach—were used for double-face coats, shaped wide and fastened with tie belts sewn on. Sartie's women were made women were made to look created this effect with the use of high heels and slim but loose fitting coats and jackets.

There again, trousers played an important role in the collection. In rust, chocolate or curry-colored wool, they had matching coats and a fox collar or warp. Jacquard jumpers, reminiscent of other collections, featured two angry cats facing each other.

Cocktail dresses were designed with a cool-over-dress look. They had deep pointed necklines, fastened with a diamond brooch, and a double-skirt effect.

Evening wear included slinky emerald green gowns slit in front up to the knee or higher. The designer adorned flowing lavender-colored dresses with a short chiffon cape trimmed with feathered flowers.

Senators Peel Layers off Cover-up

'My Hopes Great, Expectations Small' Says Ervin on Awaited Nixon Reply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dollar by dollar, the Senate Watergate committee is peeling the protective layers from last year's costly and futile cover-up.

Further testimony was scheduled today from Frederick LaRue, one of the paymasters of that cover-up. He faced more questioning about the sources of the money paid secretly to the original Watergate defendants and the names of the persons who authorized the payments.

Meanwhile, the committee waited for President Nixon to announce whether he will voluntarily release copies of tape-recorded conversations he had with several of the principal figures in the Watergate affair.

"My hopes are great, my expectations are small," Chairman Sam Ervin (Dem., N.C.) told reporters Wednesday when asked about the expected reply from Nixon.

LaRue testified that he could not back up former attorney-general John Mitchell's claims to have vetoed plans for electronic surveillance of the Democratic national committee offices in the Watergate.

And LaRue, a friend, staff adviser and campaign associate of the president, said that shortly after the Watergate arrests June 17, 1972, he had heard Mitchell tell campaign aide Jeb Stuart Magruder that incriminating files should be burned.

But most of LaRue's afternoon of testimony concerned the payments he channelled last fall and winter to the lawyers and families of the seven men charged in the Watergate break-in.

LaRue inherited the job after Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, found it so distasteful that he asked to be relieved.

Using th ecode name, "Mr. Baker," La Rue said he continued the payments, drawing in part on a $350,000 White House fund.

LaRue has pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and in a prepared statement he told the committee: "I am fully aware now that what I did was wrong, both morally and legally."

He also testified that G. Gordon Liddy, the campaign aide who organized the Watergate break-in team, offered to lay down his life if necessary to prevent the uncovering of the operation and the damage that it might cause to Nixon's reelection campaign.

"Mr. Liddy assured us that would prevail any information about this in the course of any investigation, even if it led to him, and if we were not satisfied with what assurance that was brought he was personally or morally opposed to suicide, that if we would instruct him to do so any street corner at any time and we could have him assassinated," LaRue said.

Liddy's offer to permit himself to be murdered was never taken seriously, LaRue testified.

However, Liddy, convicted in the Watergate trial and now in prison, has never told his Watergate investigators.

In his testimony, Mitchell said he had deliberately kept information concerning the Watergate cover-up and other activities he described as "the White House horrors" from President Nixon.

Wednesday, LaRue testified he also participated in the cover-up "to protect the election of the president."

"Was it your purpose then, to conceal that fact from the president?" asked Senator Herman Talmadge (Dem. Ga.).

"I never thought of it in terms of concealing it from the president," LaRue replied. "I thought of it in terms of concealing it, I guess, from the public."

Kingston Reeve Made Large Land Profits

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A professor of Queen's University said Wednesday that Kingston Township Reeve J. Earl McEwen made nearly $400,000 in 130-acre package of land he bought in 1966 and sold five years later.

Dr. Milligan said records in the registry office show a firm headed by Mr. McEwen purchased 130 acres of land in the township for $80,000 in 1966 and sold it for $480,000 to Gerald Splitter, a local developer.

The reeve purchased another tract of land totalling 62 acres in the same area of the township in May, 1971, Dr. Milligan said, and then sold it in April of this year for $584,000—a profit of $484,000.

Dr. Milligan also said the reeve bought 93 acres in October, 1969, for $75,000 and received an option to purchase land from Mr. Splitter for $771,800 this year.

The professor will continue testimony today.

U.S. Faces Higher Food Prices as Freeze Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are facing significantly higher food prices now that President Nixon has lifted the price freeze from the food industry as part of his Phase 4 anti-inflation program.

Only beef remains subject to strict price ceilings, and they only until Sept. 12. Lifting the freeze from the food industry was Nixon's first move into his new Phase 4 wage and price controls announced Wednesday.

Non-food items will remain under the provision of the 60-day freeze announced June 13 by Nixon, until its expiration Aug. 12. At that time non-food goods will become subject to Phase 4 regulations.

There will be price ceilings for gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel under Phase 4, and big business will be required to absorb some of its increased costs by cutting profit margins.

The president said in a statement: "There is no way, with or without controls, to prevent substantial rise of food prices."

"The reference is becoming overwhelming that only if a rise in food prices is permitted now can we avoid shortages and still higher prices later," he said.

Prices are likely to increase the most in the next few days for poultry and pork products, and fresh fruits and vegetables, all of which were supposed to be severely pinched by the price freeze.

Until Sept. 12, the food industry will only be allowed to increase prices to make up for increased costs of raw agricultural products. After Sept. 12, it will be able to increase prices to consumers of increased costs for raw agricultural products that have occurred since June 13. Raw agricultural products remain exempt from controls.

—It will be a mandatory program, requiring advance 30-day notification of price increases by businesses with annual sales of more than $500 million.

—Small businesses employing 60 persons or less will be exempt. So will the hundreds in dustry, public utilities, rents, interest rates and long-term contracts for coal deliveries.

—The guidelines for wage increases will be kept at 5.5 per cent, plus a seven-tenths of one per cent increase in fringe benefits, the same guidelines in effect during the Phase 2 and Phase 3 programs.

Nations Agree on Value Of Waterways of World

OTTAWA (CP) — When 60 countries agree on anything it's usually in a pretty general sense, but experts in all countries are agreeing on many things about navigation, says W. R. Mackay, the chief engineer of the St. Lawrence seaway.

He was commenting on the conclusions read at the final session of the Permanent International Association of Navigation Congresses, which finished its 80-day meeting Wednesday.

Throughout the nearly 100 separate conclusions read to the 700 delegates from 40 countries, there was a general theme that more attention must be paid to the quality of life involving the uses of the oceans and inland waterways.

No longer is there a belief that any country can exploit waterways just for economic gain, Mr. Mackay said in an interview.

Several conclusions stressed the increasing need for co-operation in handling vasts amounts of data now available.

Welfare Services Cut As Social Workers Strike

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Twelve striking employees of the Grey County social and family service department have forced the department to cut welfare aid to the basic necessities.

Jack Nolan, the county welfare administrator, said Wednesday food, clothing and basic shelter are the only services he can provide now.

He said people needing dental aid, glasses or money for drugs will have to wait until the end of the strike.

Mr. Nolan said people paying for their own drug costs will be reimbursed later.

The main issue in the strike is retroactive pay increases. Non-union personnel have received pay raises effective Jan. 1, 1973. The union raise was effective June 1 and its members want retroactivity.

Board Will Hear Case

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — A preliminary hearing Wednesday into an appeal by Jacques Boyer, a French-speaking teacher fired following a student strike in March, set Oct. 1 as the date for a board of referees.

Provincial Court Judge W. M. Dubeau of Brockville, who will be chairman of the board of reference, announced the names of two other members of the board which will hold a four-day hearing.

W. A. Jones of Toronto, deputy secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Teachers' Federation, was named to represent Mr. Boyer.

Executives Believe Poverty To Continue to Defy Solution

TORONTO (CP) — Despite projected growth and affluence in Canada, poverty will continue to be a serious problem, defying solution short of uprooting the present political-economic system, a group of corporation executives believes.

Income disparity, both individual and regional, will be an unsettling contradiction in a Canada whose average per capita gross national product is expected to rise to about $8,500 annually by the end of the century from $3,600 in 1969, calculated in constant 1967 dollars.

The Canadian group of futures researchers, with spokesmen from 10 corporations and two federal government departments, is part of a worldwide study of trends likely to affect the corporate environment for the remainder of this century.

Concentrating on Canada's future, the group has arrived at fairly solid agreement that a tremendously bright economic period lies ahead to the year 2000. But that won't eliminate the gap between the rich and the poor.

Chairman William E. Barratt of Imperial Oil Ltd. says group members feel that blessed with proper decision-making and intense commitment Canada will successfully overcome such negative features as regional pulls on national unity and a threat to economic independence by foreign domination.

Poverty is another matter.

"We've debated whether poverty is an issue and there has been this cleavage in the group with one of our members saying that it is," Mr. Barratt said in an interview.

The dissenter has argued that a society which denies some people equality of opportunity "because they are prisoners of an environment" should not be permitted in Canada.

WM. E. BARRATT

"We wish that there was a solution to poverty," Mr. Barratt said. "But we feel that any attempts to equalize have unintended consequences that more than offset the initial concern you are trying to correct."

He admits there is a basic injustice in some people being rich and some being poor. But he said:

"The best hope for poor people, or those at the lower end of the income scale, is to go along with the wealth of the country, because as the country gets wealthier the rich get richer but so do the poor."

Statistical projections commissioned by the group show an annual growth rate in gross national product of between 4.5 and five per cent, reaching about $300 billion in constant 1967 dollars by the end of the century.

Pockets of poverty—defined as family income of less than $3,500 in 1967 dollars—will continue to exist, especially among the native Indian and Eskimo populations. However widespread poverty by definition will be largely eliminated "even if the income distribution does not significantly change."

Mr. Barratt said the consensus in the group is that any move to correct poverty, other than the traditional process of "pulling everybody up," will inevitably lead to a change in the democratic process.

"We aren't prepared to forgo that," he said. "Despite all of its limitations, representative democracy is still the best political system that people have devised."

Mr. Barratt is manager of the corporate planning services department of Imperial Oil. He is the second chairman of the group, first set up three years ago after a Paris meeting with eight Canadian corporate executives.

Harvey Cruickshank, then a vice-president of Bell Canada, became its first chairman and it evolved from a corporate environment futures research study organized by the Hudson Institute of White Plains, N.Y. Mr. Cruickshank now is a consultant with the non-profit policy research institute.

The Canadian group's objectives include an identification and examination of alternative Canadian "futures" to develop views on policies and conditions that might lead to more optimistic and pessimistic results. It also hopes to improve government and public understanding of Canada's potential.

Preventive Dental Care Program Starts in Fall

A preventive dental health care program is to be organized in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

The counties' health board Wednesday authorized the service, which will start in elementary and secondary schools this fall.

Organizing the program for the remainder of this year became possible when Health Minister Richard Potter recently indicated provincial funds were available. The cost of the tool.

The approval for the service drew satisfaction from board member Enos David, who has been stressing the need for such a preventive program for several years.

"I'm glad to see at last that it's getting under way," said Mr. David, a former Belleville city councillor.

He had been particularly concerned to have the service available in rural areas where water supplies are not fluoridated, said Mr. David.

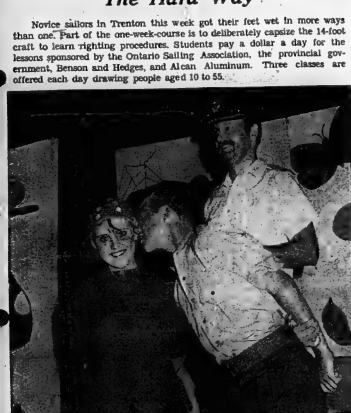
Staff for the new program eventually will include a public health dental director, retained on a half-time basis; a dental hygienist and two dental assistants, said health officer Dr. C. R. Lenk.

Present budget outlines estimate the annual cost at $46,500. Cost of operation from September to the end of the year would be about $16,000.



Dr. Lenk said details of the program have still to be organized. But it would include dental examinations, fluoride brushing of teeth and education on preventive measures.

Children of preschool age would also be included, he said.

The Hard Way

Novice sailors in Trenton this week got their feet wet in more ways than one. Part of the one-week-course is to deliberately capsize the 14-foot craft to learn righting procedures. Students pay a dollar a day for the lessons sponsored by the Ontario Sailing Association, the provincial government, Benson and Hedges, and Alcan Aluminum. Three classes are offered each day drawing people aged 10 to 55.

Charlie Brown Is Really Sharlene

A group of Pickering students staged You're a Good Man Charlie Brown for more than 200 air cadets stationed at CFB Trenton. Little did the Wednesday night audience know, Charlie was a girl. Showing appreciation is Hamilton cadet Oscar Husslage while Charlie (Brenda Allen) blushes before a full house. Neither Major Roger Julian nor Snoopy caught sight of the stolen kiss. The group from Woodlands Centennial School have toured since last December with the play and have performed as far off as Moosonee.

Health Unit Could Rent Research Building

The now vacant Dundas St. East building which once housed federal entomological research, was suggested at one office site at a board of health meeting Wednesday.

Lease on the unit's offices at Belleville Plaza — costing $6,500 a year — runs out next April and it won't be renewed the Toronto owner says.

The board doesn't find the alternative of second - storey quarters — offered by the landlord — suitable for its operation, which also includes baby clinics.

Belleville General Hospital already has offered space in the soon-to-be-evacuated Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing building. The rent is $4 a square foot — which compares with $7-$8 if similar space was sought elsewhere at current prices, said board chairman George Foster.

Board members agreed it was a bargain, but were wary of some conditions — notably parking — a persistent problem hospital authorities now are moving to solve.

There also were some objection to staff taking a lease in September - as suggested by the hospital - would mean the board would be paying two rents until its lease ran out at the east end plaza next year.

But some pressure also exists on the availability of the Edith Cavell as health offices. Physic ans already have made a bid on the space in the building which becomes empty when nursing education is transferred to Loyalist College in September.

Alderman Jean Smith suggested the board should also explore the possibility of renting the vacant federal building.

Meantime, a letter will be sent hospital authorities expressing board interest in renting - subject to negotiations.

Safety Campaign Winners

Five winners of the Belleville city police's summer safety campaign for school children met Constable Tom Burkitt and picked up the prizes donated by city businessmen. From left to right they are Paula Jane Balazs who won a case of Hawkins' Cheesies, Danny Hounslow (bicycle), Ja nine Matwyuk (tennis racquet), Cheryl Crabb (bicycle), and Scott Miller, (case of Pepsi-Cola). Other winners not present are Brad Lloyd, John Boyle, Kerry-Ann Morrison, Christine Arnott and Craig Rowe.

Cut in Citrus Juice Tariff Could Cost Jobs in Quinte

OTTAWA — Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, has told the Commons that the tariff removal on citrus juices from the United States could cost 30 jobs at a plant in his riding.

Mr. Ellis did not name the industry.

In Deseronto, a spokesman for Metcalfe Foods of Canada, said he had recently discussed the tariff removal with the MP.

Roy McDannold, plant manager saidwhile situation already is hurting Metcalfe's business and the tariff removal could result in "very serious trouble".

At present Metcalfe is in the midst of its peak work season when frozen vegetabl: processing is also under way at the plant, employing a large seasonal workforce.

The crunch could come in winter months, he indicated, when production centres on citrus juice processing.

Mr. Ellis warned the Comment the decision to remove the tariff would destroy the Canadian reconstituting industry which had been developed to provide consumers with lower-priced citrus juices.

If the government persists in the tariff removal "the jobs, not only in my riding, but in others will be greatly prejudiced ," Mr. Ellis said during the debate on customs tariff changes Tuesday.

He called for reconsideration of "this rather hasty move".

Before budget changes brought in by Finance Minister John Turner there was a five per cent import duty on ready - to - serve juices and a similar duty on concentrates imported by Canadian processors for production of juices in Canada.

At Deseronto, Mr. McDannold said the tariff removal would mean about a five-cent saving on each case of concentrate imported for processing into juice. But on imported juices the reduction equals 25 to 30 cents.

Mr. Ellis told the Commons the difference was more than the profit margin processors of reconstituted orange juice had been working on for many years.

The situation is compounded by a huge Florida surplus crop which is being marketed in Canada at low prices, said Mr. Ellis.

Even if the tariff was re introduced early next year, it would follow another citrus crop year when Candian warehouses would be filled, he said.

"Not only will there be a number of jobs lost directly in the processing industry," said Mr. Ellis. "But those jobs which affect the supply of containers, packing, labels and transportation will also be lost.

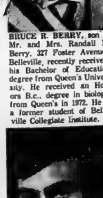
"In my riding alone one small factory would perhaps lose 30 employees in this particular line," said the MP.

Mr. McDannold said the industry is "suffering now" because of the Florida surplus which has resulted in dumping on Canadian markets.

At Metcalfe's about 100 extra seasonal workers— about the same number as last year — have reinforced the permanent workforce of 60 as processing season peaks with the packaging of frozen vegetables.

The effect of a tariff removal could come later when production — involving the permanent workers—concentrates on fruit juice processing he said.

A and P Deadline August 1



A strike deadline of August 1 has been set for over 100 Belleville employees at two A and P stores here.

Victor Pathe, president of the Ontario Retail Council of union said: "We are only trying to catch up with conditions negotiated with Steinberg's, Dominion Stores and Miracle Food Marts last year."

The Canadian Food and Allied Workers' union represents 5,000 grocery workers, butchers, and part-time employees, everyone except the manager and the assistant manager. Negotiations between the union and the company broke off at the end of June.

Wrecked cars on unfarmed land in Sidney and Thurlow Townships provide an eyesore for neighbors and passers-by. They may become a thing of the past, though, if the Ontario government's new derelict motor vehicle regulations is put to use by municipal officials. The law says persons with three or more junked cars must remove them or establish a waste management system — or they'll be liable to a fine of up to $5,000.

Auto Wreck Legislation Welcomed by Townships

A new Ontario regulation for wrecked cars could be the answer to a problem that has been bothering Sidney and Thurlow Township politicians for years.

Called the derelict motor vehicle regulation, the measure states that anyone with more than two derelict vehicles on his property must either dispose of them or establish a regulated waste management system.

The law, effective since July 7, comes under the Environmental Protection Act, and as such, carries a maximum fine of $5,000 for first offenders.

Reaction by Sidney Reeve Gordon Wilman and Clerk Casey Reeve of Thurlow Township, was enthusiastic.

Both men, along with fellow council members, have often expressed consternation in the past with property owners who litter their land with unsightly hulks of abandoned autos.

"I think it's a good thing," about passing a bylaw, especially during this past week.

Mr. Wilman said Wednesday.

He said some township residents who have cleaned up their lots for summer are complaining about wrecks still lying on neighbors' lots. Without a bylaw, however, municipal officials have been powerless to take action.

In Thurlow, where a bylaw has been in effect since 1971, Reeve Casey was anxious to study the new regulation to compare its impact with the township law.

"It could replace the current bylaw," he said.

Thurlow has never enforced its bylaw, which differs from the provincial regulation by applying to cases where one or two cars have been abandoned, compared to the minimum of three specified by the province.

"Some old cars were cleaned up immediately after the bylaw was passed," the reeve commented.

Both townships have space in their dumps where junked cars can be taken. However, only Thurlow has a disposal system.

Reeve Casey said that at periodic intervals, a dealer comes in and hauls away 15 or 20 cars. He then crushes the wrecks and sells the metal.

A spokesman for the ministry of the environment said in Toronto that the regulation, designed as a "minimum standard" for cleanup crusades across Ontario, would be enforced by the province's waste management branch. He said inspectors from the Kingston office could be called in to lay charges if they saw fit.

The spokesman said the law is also aimed at professional scrap yard men who have not been complying with provincial regulations. By forcing them to acquire certificates, he said operators would have to follow approved waste management systems in order to meet the demands of inspectors.

Along with the regulation, the province also announced it was launching an experimental program this summer to test various cleanup systems.

A recent survey concluded there are close to 500,000 abandoned cars in the province, but as environment minister James Auld noted while announcing the program, there is the "absence of an organized transport and marketing system for recycling."

Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the problem was not considered serious within city limits. This is largely due to owner co-operation but also agreement with Hillcrest Auto Wreckers to remove derelicts at the company's expense.

Nicklaus Bows Out

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Nicklaus promised his wife, Barbara, that when their fifth child was born he would be by her side.

He's going to keep his promise, but to do so he's going to miss next week's Canadian Open golf championship at St. Julie de Verchieres, Que.

In a telegram to Bruce Forbes, executive director of the Royal Canadian Golf Association (RCGA), Nicklaus said Wednesday he was withdrawing from the $175,000 event.

The telegram said:

"I sincerely regret that I will be unable to appear at next week's Open as I had hoped and was looking forward to. Barbara's physician has advised that it appears next week will be the week for our new arrival which means I must remain at home. Please extend my best wishes to the RCGA, the Peter Jackson Company and Richelieu Valley Golf and Country Club for a very successful Canadian Open."

"We are naturally disappointed Jack won't be with us," Forbes said.

"But we still have an excellent field with players like Tom Weiskopf, British Open winner, Johnny Miller, Usaked winner, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and many others."

The Canadian Open will be played July 26-29.

THOMAS RETURNS

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Duane Thomas, former backfield star of Dallas Cowboys, returned to San Diego Chargers Wednesday and was allowed to start pre-season practice. No Panic for Lockman

Cubs Are in Tailspin

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I've always believed that August and September are the crucial months of the season," says Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh Pirates. Whitey Lockman of Chicago Cubs isn't even thinking that far ahead.

"Losing six in a row is not what I consider real adversity," Lockman said Wednesday after his Cubs lost 8-5 to San Diego Padres in Chicago and nearly handed their first-place berth in the National League East to St. Louis Cardinals.

"The Cardinals are hot, but by the time we play them here the last weekend of July, we might be six or seven games ahead of them," he said.

The Cubs are still a razor-thin half-game ahead of St. Louis, thanks to Ken Frailing, who snapped the Cards' five-game winning streak with an 4-3 victory.

In the rest of the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates routed Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, New York Mets lambasted Atlanta Braves 13-3, Cincinnati Reds beat Philadelphia Phillies 7-3 and Montreal Expos edged Houston Astros 3-2 in 10 innings.

What happened to the Cubs in Wrigley Field was almost symbolic of what's been happening to them the past few weeks, mainly disaster.

They lost All-Star third baseman Ron Santo indefinitely in a baseline collision. And Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., lost the game ader a hail of home runs by the Padres.

Santo hit a grounder and stretched to reach first base just before being tagged by Nate Colbert. Santo collapsed, was carried off the field on a stretcher and received hospital treatment for a muscle injury in his lower left back.

Jenkins, meanwhile, was tagged for his 20th, 17th and 28th homers of the season. Two of them came off the bat of Dave Roberts, who record one put the Padres ahead for good in the seventh inning.

The Cards were victimized by San Francisco's 14-hit attack. Gary Matthews led it with a two-run homer and a run-scoring double and Tito Fuentes added two run-scoring singles.

Stargell had a perfect four-for-four night with two singles, a double and the home run. The homer, his 27th, gave the Pirates the win.

National League Staff

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pitchers Don Sutton, Claude Osteen and Jim Brewer of Los Angeles Dodgers were named to the National League all-star team Wednesday by manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati Reds.

Anderson also included Jack Billingham from the Reds staff among the eight pitchers for the team which will face the American League in baseball's all-star game next Tuesday in Kansas City.

Tom Seaver of New York Mets, Rick Wise of St. Louis, Wayne Twitchell of Philadelphia and Dave Giusti of Pittsburgh were the other selections.

Osteen and Sutton are the only other all star veterans of the National League staff. Seven-time all-star Bob Gibson of St. Louis, Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago Cubs and 1972 Cy Young Award winner Steve Carlton of Philadelphia were among the pitchers passed over by Anderson.

HOERNER MOVES ON

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Royals have purchased left-handed relief pitcher Joe Hoerner from Atlanta Braves, it was announced Wednesday. Hoerner, 36, returned to the mound June 10 after a two-month layoff to recover from knee surgery.

a base-loaded walk and John Milner hit a three-run homer for the Mets to back the five-hit pitchingof Tom Seaver.

Andy Kosco hit a three-run homer during a five-run sixth inning and a run-scoring double in a two-run eighth for the Reds.

Ron Hunt was hit for the 22nd time this year and the 225th in his career, and went on to score the winning run for the Expos in the 10th inning when Houston's Juan Pizarro unleashed a wild pitch.

Tonight, the Dodgers play at Pittsburgh, the Giants at St. Louis, the Mets at Atlanta and the Phillies at Cincinnati. The Padres and Cubs play an afternoon game at Chicago.

Briartic Gets Win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Canadian-owned Briartic got off to a mild closing threat from New Prospect to capture the $43,350 Lakes and Flowers Handicap Wednesday as Holly-wood Park.

Briartic, owned by Dr. Michael Bennett of Sarnia, Ont., and ridden by Bill Shoemaker, needed slight urging to stay close during the early going in the seven-furlong race.

The chestnut five-year-old rallied from the middle of the track into the stretch to take a clear lead and responded to hold the front-running spot and finish with a one-length victory.

PLANS TO RETIRE

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association for the last 10 years, announced Wednesday he will retire on June 1, 1975, when his contract expires. Kennedy told a press conference that the league's owners had offered him a multi-year contract beyond its current expiration date, but he had rejected it.

Brewers' Colborn Producing

Lee Moves Boston Up

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As American League pitchers go, Bill Lee and Jim Colborn are not exactly household names.

Both were named to the American League all-star team earlier this week, however, and Wednesday they showed why.

Lee, rumored to be on Boston's trading block this spring, pitched the Red Sox to a 6-1 victory over Chicago White Sox, scattering eight hits.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota Twins blanked New York Yankees 3-0, Detroit Tigers routed Kansas City Royals 14-4, Baltimore Orioles stopped Oakland Athletics 5-2 and Cleveland Indians beat California Angels 10-8 in 11 innings.

Both Lee and Colborn are spending their first full seasons as regular starters, and both are making the most of their opportunities.

Lee, whose victory moved the Red Sox to within 1½ games of first-place New York in the AL East, has a 12-3 record and 2.37 earned run average.

Tommy Harper provided the hitting support for Lee, belting a three-run homer—his fourth in the last week.

"Tommy does so many things to help the club, it's almost unbelievable," said Boston manager Eddie Kaka. "He certainly has caught fire at the right time."

Colborn boosted his record to 12-5 and dipped his ERA to 2.78 with his shutout over Texas. Dave May cracked a two-run homer to back him up.

Colborn said he had to flatt Brinkman all the way. "I guess I called a call in the fourth inning and he hollered out, 'Don't start it now.'

"I understand he later called me a crybaby. It's a good thing I didn't hear him say that, or I would have been kicked out of the game."

The Tigers tied their season high for runs with 14 and hit with 18. The hits included homers by Gates Brown, Dick McAuliffe, Mickey Stanley and Duke Sims. Joe Coleman picked up his 10th win.

Marv Rettenmund led off the game with a homer, then hit another with a man in the second inning for Baltimore. Mike Palmer, 10-6, fired a six-hitter.

AL Pitchers Named

BOSTON (AP) — Manager Dick Williams of Oakland Athletics picked three members of his own staff and bypassed no-hit artist Nolan Ryan while naming eight pitchers for the 1973 American League all-star team.

Williams also said that Wilbur Wood, the league's leading winner with 18 victories, was invited, but declined because his team faced minor surgery.

Williams' choices, announced by league president Joe Cronin, were Jim Hunter, Ken Holtzman and Rollie Fingers of his own club, Bill Lee of Boston Red Sox, Sparky Lyle of New York Yankees, Bert Blyleven of Minnesota Twins, Jim Colborn of Milwaukee Brewers and Bill Singer of California Angels.

Ryan was passed up despite becoming only the fifth pitcher in major league history to hurl two no-hitters in one season—against Kansas City on May 15 and Detroit July 15. He also leads the major leagues in strikeouts with 229. His record is 11-11.

Lyle has 25 saves and three victories for the Yanks. Fingers, who missed m six of use seven World Series games for Oakland aga ns: Cincinnati last year, has 10 sav.s and a 1.27 earned run average.

Sue Morton shows the style that the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund will be depending on this Friday when the Trainmen travel to Smiths Falls in the first game of the provincial playdowns. Morton has been the mainstay of the B.Y.B.F. pitching staff and has led them to first place in the local Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League.

League Leading BYBF Off and Running Early

B.Y.B.F. girls don't believe in waiting until the last moment to get things done so they picked up five runs in the first inning and then coasted to a 9-3 Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League victory over T. Bailey Roofing.

Judy Rappel was the big gun in the league leading Yardmen's win connecting for a home run and two singles. Joyce McFarlane joined in the winners' 20 hits with three safeties.

Nursing a 5-0 lead after the first Sue Morton rolled along on a nine hitter. The Roofers' only runs came in the final two frames.

Nora Barberstock took the loss for the third place Shannonville squad. Evelena Hill had a double and single and Donna Brest two singles for the Roofers.

The second game of Wednesday night's doubleheader matching Belleville Brownloom and the Coop Grill failed to materialize when the Grill couldn't field a team.

Suspension for Jim Whyte

Protest Is Upheld

A special Commercial Softball League committee formed to handle protests and make decisions concerning discipline, last night upheld a protest, handed out a three-game suspension and directed that a letter reprimanding a player be sent out.

Dewdin Motors became the first team to lodge a protest this season when club officials found fault with an umpire's decision regarding ground rules during a Tuesday league contest with Rollins Construction.

Umpire Jerry Murphy ruled a Ron Maracle blast a ground rule double late in the game. On the play, it appeared that the ball had been touched by a Rollins outfielder before bouncing over the fence on one hop.

Rollins' won the game 9-1. Proceeding on the assumption that the ball had been touched before leaving the playing area, Dewdin coach Phil Loft entered an official protest.

While the committee upheld Dewdin's claim and ordered the game replayed on a date to be announced, it was also admitted that the ground rule in questing could use some clarification.

Trenton Augers player-coach Jim Whyte was handed a three-game suspension and teammate Joe Theriault will receive a letter reprimanding him for his actions. Both players became involved, in a heated disagreement with plate umpire Mac Huddleston during a game with the Ellis Juniors on July 12.

All parties involved in these matters were in attendance at the meeting last night. And according to league president George Rutledge, everyone is satisfied with the committee's decisions.

The league, players and umpires are all well satisfied that the proper action has been taken," stated Rutledge this morning.

Meads, Brooke Bond Improve Standings

Brooke and moved into a second place tie with the Quinte Mail Leaders last night in the Industrial Softball League East as they downed the Utilities by an 18-5 score. In the other game played last night, Mead's gained a bit of breathing room in the west 19-4. By virtue of their win, Mead's moved their points up on the UIC.

Tom St. Jules pitched the win for Brooke Bond, allowing seven hits and recording nine strikeouts and not walking a man. Randy Van Norman went the distance for the Utilities, giving up 15 hits. He whiffed one man and issued eight free passes.

Lou Rivers had a triple and single for the winners, while Paul Sharpe had two doubles. For the Utilities, it was Bob Bogle with a double and Jack Bannville with two singles.

Harold Wilkinson and Sonny Holoway shared the mound duties for the Mead's allowing seven hits. Wilkinson struck out two and walked doe, while Holoway fanned eight in his three inning stint. Jim Thompson went all the way for Coleman, allowed 18 runs on 20 hits. He walked three and failed to strike out a man.

Jim Sopha had a big night at the plate, cranking two homers, a double and a single. Harold Wilkinson had a homer and single and Tim O'Connell had a home run.

Randy Carmichael and Jim Lloyd each had a double for Constellation.

Goaltenders Shine In Lacrosse Action

Belleville Lacrosse teams came up with three points out of four in SCLA action last night, with the Bantams trouncing Cobourg 15-2, and the Midgets coming up with a come from behind 5-5 tie, also with Cobourg.

Andy Hackett scored three goals for the locals in the Bantam game while Danny Duffy and Jeff Bastiman each tallied a pair. Bill Shannon scored both Cobourg goals.

Outstanding goaltending was a highlight in the midget game, with Dexter Donnelly performing well in the Belleville nets, but being outdone by Mark Varo in the Cobourg goal. Varo stopped shot after shot including many clear breakaways when his defensive work caught him alone to defend his net. Varo was clearly the star of the game, despite allowing four goals in the third period.

As well as playing outstanding defensive goal, each goalie also picked up an assist during the course of the game.

For Cobourg, it was Art Tapscott and John Chronis with two markers each. Brent Tapscott had the single tally.

Quinte Raceway Lineup

Chris Sturus has returned to the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway once again. The young driver from Picton, who now bases his operation at Kingston's Frontenac Downs, has five horses entered in Friday night's nine race card.

His entries will include Peggy Third in the third, Kiwi Blondie in the fifth, Chestnut Becky in the sixth, Arfas K. Junkin in the seventh, and his five year old mare, Philaurie, in the featured eighth race.

His opposition in the feature for $250 will include Hallie Purdue, Sandy's Caper, Rosie's Sister, Ruth's Daisy, Dorothy Rick, and Dornbien Lad.

Jethro's Joker

Ian Anderson, who heads the rock group, Jetaro Tull, as its singer-flutist, clown, wit and showman, performs at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens. The group of five talented musicians from Britain have been taking North America by storm. (CP Photo)

Crowds Like Jethro Tull

TORONTO (CP) — Can a large crowd of rock music fans be wrong? Toronto freelance writer Peter Goddard, in his review in the Toronto Star following Jethro Tull's performance at Maple Leaf Gardens, said: "Tull's act was no less exotic, lush and over-ripe than its sound . . . Tull's music was drawn out and in the last anjuyis vacuous."

The fans didn't agree. Nearly 20,000 of them rose to their feet in the hot, smoke-filled arena shouting: "More . . . More . . . More," when Jethro Tull left the stage.

Jethro Tull is a group of five talented musicians from Britain who have been taking North America by storm, almost since the band was established in 1968.

A Maple Leaf Gardens spokesman said Jethro Tull compared with the Rolling Stones and Elton John as their biggest attractions. In Britain, Melody Maker, a musical review, says its readers voted Jethro Tull England's No. 2 group to the Beatles.

Ian Anderson, who heads Jethro Tull as its singer, flautist, clown, wit and showman, and who has made the flute a standard instrument in rock music, has won numerous polls and has been featured in many of the world's top publications. Including two pages in Life Magazine and the cover story in the pop music paper, Rolling Stone.

This North American tour, if anything like previous, tours, will be successful. Jethro Tull now is almost certainly one of the biggest drawing, live attractions anywhere.

The 25 concerts on Jethro Tull's last American tour in November 1971 attracted more than 250,000 people, including a concert at New York's 23,000-capacity Madison Square Garden, which was sold out two weeks in advance.

Tull's European tour in January this year drew more than 150,000 — selling house records in the biggest halls in Europe. In the Deutschland Halle in Berlin, the Festenhalle in Frankfurt and in the Pasic des Sports in Paris, Jethro Tull broke records formerly held by Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones, and Led Zeppelin.

To coincide with this North American tour the band has a new record album scheduled for release in June. Entitled A Passion for Play, the album follows Jethro Tull's earlier albums, Thick as a Brick and Aqualung.

The Poolside Gang ... Join Them!
The fun is just the price of a day room at The Four Seasons. We have the pool . . . cool and sparkling clean, places to lounge, places to sun. We also provide a play area for the kids as well as tennis courts and other games. We give you a bright and happy room (dore or watch TV in air conditioned comfort if you want!) and we take care of everything you need — food for the meals, refreshments and what-have-you. If peace and quiet are your wish, there's plenty available around our grassy lawns and flower beds.
Join the Poolside Gang any day of the week from mid-morning to 9.00 p.m. Day room charge is $10.00 (based on four adults). Extra adults $2.50 each. Maximum of six persons to a room — children under 14 are free. Call 968-3411 in plenty of time to reserve your room.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, July 29

Aries (March 21-April 19): Contain your aggressive urges and gain favor with those who don't expect you to manage this. It's a day for trouble shooting.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Extra work is normal. Career advancement late in the day is feasible. Personal affairs are under stress.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your brightest good humor, boldest approach help save the day. Have fun pursuing personal goals, better working conditions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be early and persistent in winding up your work week. Your setting talents are above average; use them.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Attractive opportunities for investment, business activity seem to abound until you make a serious study.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Nothing is apt to go as planned, partly because of resistance from associates. You can sort out these problems if you keep things simple.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expecting no miracles, make this day as casual and uneventful as you can. Wind up your work week neatly.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It may seem to you that not enough is done. Be easy on those who try, give things a chance to be examined.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Progress comes from shrewd use of your time and resources. Get everybody talking, you may learn much.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There's a premium on thinking your way through today's problems. Old friendships, distant events return to your attention.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The less personal advice you offer, the more pleasant group work will be. Much can be accomplished in short, intense sessions.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): There's a premium on thinking your way through today's problems. Old friendships, distant events return to your attention.

Sperm Count Test For Sterility

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD.

Dear Doctor: I have an undescended testicle. I am 22 and would like to know how much effect this will have on having children. Does one undescended testicle no longer render you totally sterile?—J.S.

The fact that you have a single undescended testicle does not necessarily render you sterile.

The fact that only one testicle is undescended (has not dropped into its normal position) would tend to discount the possibility that your problem is hormonal. This would mean that the other testicle is probably functioning normally.

Just how sterile you are could readily be determined only by a sperm count. I assume you have one. That would settle the thing for good.

Your situation might be like that of a woman with but one ovary.

After all, it only takes a single sperm and a single egg for conception to occur.

If detected early, say before the eighth or ninth year, the undescended testicle can be treated either surgically or by hormones. In other cases, the testicle has been known to pop out into its proper position all on its own at puberty.

If your case is a bit late for either treatment, but I would advise you to see a doctor. The undescended testicle is probably better removed to discuss the possibility of malignancy later on.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After having had a mastectomy, I think it is my wrong. I am sorry I ever had it, no matter how many people try to paint a rosy picture. Believe me, it is anything but that! What is your opinion for the benefit of such an operation? Why must the whole breast be taken?—Mrs. R.

In most cases it is performed because cancer has started in the breast. It leaves no choice.

In fewer cases, multiple cysts in the breast can be so aggravating that surgery becomes preferable. The entire breast used to be removed because of the nature of cancer—if a few invisible cells have spread to surrounding tissue, the cancer will keep on growing.

If the surgeon finds cysts, removal of all of the cysts is necessary for complete relief. In cases of cysts that are serious enough to justify surgery they are scattered throughout the breast tissue.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 21 and an occasional drug user. I have used heroin and smoked pot, also recently tried a new drug called "Mexican mud," used in lieu with also. All unsatisfactory.

She now wants to have a baby. Is it possible for her to have a healthy, normal baby? Please help me. I don't have an addiction, but am going for a year or more.—W.G.

Your wife probably could have a normal child, but that isn't what worries me. You do. When you get to the stage of shooting junk into the veins, you may not be addicted today but might be tomorrow.

And if your wife has a baby, it shouldn't have to have a junkie for a father. So get control of yourself.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When a man has either syphilis or gonorrhea, is one of the symptoms definitely burning when he urinates? In other words, if a man doesn't burn when he urinates, he doesn't have venereal disease. Am I correct?—R.M.

No, sir, you are not correct. That symptom will escape many, although not all, cases of gonorrhea. But it will not in the least indicate the presence of syphilis.

The Legion Branch 334, held their hall-and-half draw recently in the town hall. The ticket holder was Mrs. Steven Latimer, of Arden, and she was the recipient of the amount of $150 by the Royal Canadian Legion President, Ralph Steele.

During the months of July and August, it has been the custom to open Cloyne United Church, at Cloyne for services, starting Sunday July 1st. The hour of worship is 9:45 a.m.

Reverend Colin Rudd will be the acting minister of the Cloyne — Flinton Pastoral Charge during July and August, this year, when Reverend Sidney Bates will be absent. As well as taking the Sunday services he will be available for any emergencies. He will be located in a trailer by the Manse in Flinton, Ontario.

Sunday services in the charge: 9.45 a.m. Cloyne-United Church. 11.15 a.m. Flinton United Church. 7.30 p.m. Harlowe United Church. On September 2nd, Services will resume in Northbrook United Church.

Arthur Duncan of Sirling, Ontario, was the guest speaker for the evening, at the Commencement Exercises held in North Addington Education Centre, Cloyne, Ontario.

Mrs. Clarence Lockwood, of Denbigh, left on July 8th for an extended trip to England, after she visited (previous to her trip) with friends in both Toronto and Hamilton.

Formerly JEAN York, daughter of Mrs. Herbert York, and the late Mr. York, Mrs. Jean Lanos, of West-brook, has graduated from Queen's University, Kingston, with a Bachelor of Arts degree.

At a recent meeting of the Women's Institute members and citizens of Odessa, which involved the entire community Laurie Cameron, from Loyalist College in Belleville, spoke on the second Item "Continuing education in communities". "By everyday's doing we are learning" he said. He was well received and his talk was both interesting and educational.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tryon of Kaladar, spent a few days recently in Pembroke, where they were guests at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Scobie.

Visitors at Mrs. Hulda Malcolm's, Denbigh, were Mr. and Mrs. Lila King and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davison, all of Ottawa.

Opening lead—eight of clubs.

You can't play bridges by rote. Situations occur where it is much more important to sense what's going on than to apply dry technical knowledge.

Consider this deal from the match between Terrance and the United States in the 1971 world championships. Goldman and Lawrence, of the Dallas Aces, got to four hearts and West led the eight of clubs.

Lawrence eyed the lead with deep suspicion. Ordinarily, with this club combination, a finesse would be considered obligatory, but he asked himself whether it was really likely that West would select a club as his opening salvo if he had the king.

Lawrence came to the conclusion that, in view of the bidding, any lead but a club would have appeared more attractive to West if he had the king. Accordingly, he rose with the ace.

Then he led the jack of trumps from dummy, following low, and continued with a trump, won by East with the ten. East played the king and another club, ruffed by West, but that was the end of the road for the defense, declarer discarding his spade loser on dummy's fourth club.

But declarer would have gone down two had he elected to finesse the opening club lead. East would win with the king and return a high club for West to ruff. West would exit with a spade, and the defenders would subsequently score a spade, a trump and another club ruff. Declarer would likewise have failed had East returned a low club instead of the king.

Thus it would be fair to say that the contract was made because declarer knew what was going on and the defenders didn't—which at times is the way of the world.

Tomorrow: Part - score bidding.

OMHA Teams

Shaping Up At the Top

A year's worth of grey hairs behind them, some old hands at the game of hockey will be welcoming new blood into their coaching and managerial ranks as Belleville's Ontario Minor Hockey Association all-star system shapes up for the 1973-74 season.

This year the going will be tougher. Having forestalled going Triple A for several years, Belleville will now be plunging into the fray against the representative teams of Peterborough, Oshawa and Kingston.

Five of last year's coaches will be breathing the rarified air of the new four corneted 'AA' league approved by the OHA in early May.

Although at present without managers, both Lou Smrke and Gord Bell have agreed to take the punishment of travel and defeat, and the exhilaration of victory with the juvenile and McInroy - Maines' bantam minor teams respectively.

Robb Burrowes and Jerry Murphy have teamed again to coach and manage the newly sponsored Lions midget major club.

Another returnee to the cold arenas is Dave Jones. In his third year with the BMHA, Jones has acquired a new sidekick in Glen Hamilton to aid in Kinsmen bantam major coaching duties.

Entering the lists for another year, coach Bob Cook and manager Gord Miller will be jousting with older boys this year. Moving up from Dixie Lee Fried Chicken peewee minors, the two have taken to shield Rollins Construction peewee majors with their hockey know-how.

In search of the star to make their peewee minor team click, will be coach Charles Doran and manager Glen Jaques. Doran did battle with the OHA senior A Mohawks several years back while Jaques laces his skates officially for the first time this season.

Behind the coach's whistle with the newly created midget minor division, will be coach Floyd Crawford - a senior citizen as far as hockey goes in Belleville, with McFarland experience under his skates. Doug Preston will be in the dressing room with Crawford for the midget minor team which the Yardmen have verbally agreed with the Belleville Minor Hockey Association to sponsor.

Coach Gord Green will attempt to make his atom major squad, Towers Food City, blossom with the help of manager Bill Lamble, a first year import from Peterborough.

Belleville's OMHA convener, Lee McIlrich, indicated last week that Dave Coates, with the managerial assistance of Jim Hefford, has tentatively expressed interest in providing behind-the-bench support to the atom minor team.

Although the novice team is not one of three without a formal sponsorship agreement with the BMHA, the club at present does lack two essentials — a coach and manager. Both Larry Hedge and Lee McIlrian wish it known they are receptive to interested pairs or individuals. Hedge at 968-7100 and McIlrian at 962-7182.

But before the teams jump into the fray, Vern McCallum, OMHA secretary-treasurer offered a jocular comment concerning Belleville's climb from 'AA' to Triple A calibre hockey.

"In the end it will upgrade hockey in Belleville," noted McCallum, "But in the beginning it will mean being a little frog in a big pond instead of a big frog in a little pond."

It's Read In Five

It was a short game in a Tuesday night S.H.B.L. game but it was long enough for Read to pick up a win.

Read tallied four times in each of the first and third innings to roll over the Reserve 10-1 game called after five innings of play.

Larry Coffey pitched the abreviated victory allowing seven hits and striking out five. Dan Brant and Ken Barnhardt saw mound duty for the Reserve. The pair allowed 13 hits.

Carm Milligan stroked a double and single to lead Read to their win. Bert Sherry, Pat O'Connor, Gerald Brennan and Ed Lanier each had two singles.

Too Late, Joan

Joan MacDonnell was a little behind on this play at second base during Wednesday night's Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League game between B.Y.B.F. and T. Bailey Roofing. The Roofer's Mac-Donnell swept the tag on runney Judy Rappel but the ball had squirted loose, leaving Rappel horps free on second base. B.Y.B.F. rolled to a 9-3 victory to remain atop the league standings.

Complete Rent-Alls Gets A Firmer Grip

The Belleville Plaza was hot on the trail of league leading Complete Rent-Alls in the Belleville Minor Softball Association squirt standings but after Wednesday's schedule the tracks are getting cooler.

John Muskiltrick struck out 13 on the Rent-All mound and hit for a three run homer to win his own game. Al Dery added two singles for the winners.

The Inn scored all their runs in the final inning but their rally fell short. Jeff Ricketts and Jim Nobble each had a double and single for the winners while Mike Wood stroked a double and two singles for the Inn.

O'Neill Stationery picked up only their second win of the season in the final game of the night but it came at the expense of Malcolm Brothers who have yet to win a game.

Scott Trice had a double in the Stationery's 19-13 victory with Gord Spurgeon countering for Malcolms with a double.

Connifton Strands 14 But Gets Tie

Despite being issued 11 walks by Latta pitcher John Masterson, the Connifton team could only come up with a 4-4 tie in South Hastings Baseball League action Wednesday.

Masterson, pitched the entire game for Latta, allowing six hits and fanning six to go with his 11 walks. Bernie Coughlin also lasted the distance for Carnilton, allowing seven hits while striking out seven and giving up one free pass.

Trenton Tournament Has 16 Midget Teams

TRENTON — Sixteen top notch teams will be aiming for the titles Saturday when the Fifth Annual Trenton Midget Softball Tournament gets underway on four fronts. Action will take place on two diamonds in town (Bay Shore and Centennial Park) and five playing fields in Middleton Park.

Opening games in the two-day event are scheduled to start at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. The double knockout tournament concludes Sunday at 6 p.m. when A and B series winners meet for the grand championship and the Quinte Machine Trophy.

The Trenton squad makes its first start Saturday at 11.30 a.m. with St. Catharines supplying the opposition. That game is scheduled for Bay Shore Park.

Broadloom's Late Rally

The Belleville Broadloom snatched victory from the jaws of defeat in Wednesday night's peewee Belleville Minor Baseball Association action by rallying for five runs in the final frame.

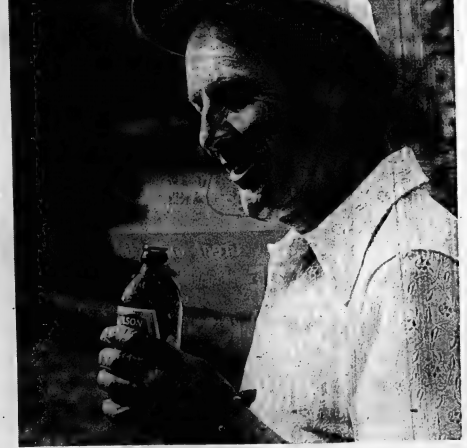
Doyle Dafoe had led the Legion to a 13-8 seventh inning lead with two doubles and three singles.

In Tuesday's peewee action the Broadloom hammered the Kinsmen 25-2 and Motorboard Chrysler stopped the Legion 20-12.

For those fans who want baseball returned to the hitters, the Kinsmen and Albanac bra 199 tykes did their best to oblige in battling to a 30-30 tie.

Peter Goulah led the Albanacbra 25 hit attack with a grand slam home run, a double and two singles. Blaine Weddell added a homer and three singles in the pitchers nightmare.



Larry Mavety had a homer and double and Lyle Kelleher a triple, double and single for the Kinsmen.

Steve Molaski had a triple, double and single for the Club to offset Steve Hay's two triples for Bob's.

Doug Harvey 'Out Fishing'

MILFORD, Mass. (AP) — Doug Harvey said Wednesday he will "be out fishing" next month when he is scheduled to be inducted into Canada's Hockey Hall of Fame.

Harvey, a coach and scout for Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association, told the Worcester Gazette in an interview at his hockey camp:

"I'm not sure when the induction ceremonies are, but whenever they are, I plan to be out fishing."

Harvey and two others are scheduled to be inducted into the hall Aug. 22 at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in Toronto. He played 14 years with Montreal Canadiens, winning the Norris Trophy as the National Hockey League's leading defenceman eight times.

Harvey said the Hall of Fame is "nothing but politics, and that's one game I've never played."

He said the Hall of Fame has "overlooked a hell of a lot of fine hockey players because those players just didn't know the right people."

Eskimos, Bombers Post Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gerry Griffin, a tough linebacker from the injury-and repressed-riddled Edmonton Eskimo defence, and quarterback Tommy Pharr, who usually charged a sputtering Winnipeg Blue Bombers offence, led their teams to home exhibition victories Wednesday night.

Pharr relieved All-Star quarterback Don Jones one minute into the second quarter and led the team to 18 points in the second quarter of the Bombers' 22-7 Western Football Conference victory over B.C. Lions.

Griffin stopped halfback Silas McKinnie cold on Calgary Stampeders' 25-yard-line, ending the Stampeders' attempt at ball control with 1½ minutes remaining in the game and setting up Dave Cutler's last-play field goal for a 17-15 victory.

It was not for lack of trying that the Lions' offence failed to score in the first half. But three times they were stopped on third and short yardage inside the Winnipeg 30.

Jones kicked a 35-yard field goal in the first minute of the second quarter and Jim Duke tackled Moorhead in the end zone to give the Bombers a 5-0 lead.

Pharr pitched to halfback Alan Thompson who struck Clay McCrory for 34 yards, then capped the drive with a six-yard touchdown pass to Tron Post.

Jones faked a field goal late in the second quarter and passed 19 yards to Paul Williams to set up Tom Walker's three-yard touchdown plunge from the three.

Winnipeg's other four points came from Walt McKee, who booted one of several long punts 62 yards for a single and his kick on a 42-yard field goal, both in the fourth quarter.

Moorhead found Lefty Hendrickson on a four-yard touchdown pass in the final quarter to put the Lions on the scoreboard. Trel Gerela converted.

In Edmonton, Griffin's key tackle forced the Stampeders to punt, giving the Eskimos the ball at centre field.

A 10-yard run by quarterback Tom Wilkinson, his pass to tight end Tyrone Walls for another 10 yards and two short-yardage plays put Cutler within field goal range.

Cutler had taken Edmonton to a 4-0 lead on a single and a field goal in the lackluster first half and had his again from 22 yards in the third to give his team a 7-0 lead.

Jim Lindsey, who replaced starter Jerry Keeling after nine minutes of the second quarter, hit John Sensi with a touchdown pass from 13 yards with Robinson converting to give the Stampeders an 8-7 lead.

Wilkinson retaliated early in the final quarter, running 17 yards for a touchdown when he found his receivers were covered to give Edmonton a 14-8 lead.

Lindsey then engineered a pair of fourth-quarter marches, the first of which failed when tight end Herman Harrison failed to squeeze a short pass after two end-zone tosses to halfback Rudy Linterman were incomplete.

The second march which started at the Calgary 43, was capped when Lindsey threw seven yards to Tom Forzani, giving Calgary a 15-14 lead.

French Delay A-test

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Winds blowing in the wrong direction have delayed the start of the controversial French nuclear tests until Sunday at least, usually well-informed sources said.

The sources said the tests were to have started Thursday at the Mururo a Atoll but were put off because there was no east-southeast wind pattern to carry fallout into uninhabited regions of the Pacific Ocean.

The New Zealand frigate Otago, cruising near the test site to protest the blast, said it sighted a large, sausage-shaped balloon above Mururoa Thursday. It is believed the first bomb to be detonated will be suspended from it.

Fraser Coleman, the New Zealand cabinet minister aboard the Otago, and the ship's 258 crew members were six hours on standby alert today. A similar alert was ordered for Saturday, with all but the captain, the navigator and the signals officer remaining below deck to minimize danger from the explosion.

Economic Slowdown Too Fast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States economic growth slowed to the second quarter but the rate of braking was a little too fast for government economists.

The administration Thursday released additional details of its Phase 4 planning, including proposed ceiling price regulations for gasoline that could force rollbacks of gasoline prices in some areas by Aug. 5.

The next big economic announcement is expected next week when the government likely will reveal a tough new program for allocation of petroleum products.

John Dunop, Cost of Living Council chairman, said the Phase 4 regulations issued Thursday still are tentative, and he invited public comment before July 31. They are to take effect Aug. 13 at the end of the current 60-day price freeze.

Lake Ontario Declines Foot

TORONTO (CP) — Lake Ontario's water level has dropped almost a foot since it reached its highest level of the year June 6, John Jursa of the Toronto Harbor Commission said Thursday.

The lake level reached 248.2 feet above sea level but "has been dropping steadily since then," he said.

"It is at 247.4 feet and with the weather we've been having there's little chance that it could start rising again this year" he said.

Officials at Environment Canada in Burlington, Ont., said that water levels are receding in some of the Great Lakes and predicted an early end to this year's flooding and erosion crises.

U.S. Turbo Train Burns At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Four U.S. railway official , passengers on a four-car turbo train undergoing tests for Amtrak, were injured today when the turbo collided with a Canadian National freight train in the west end of the city.

The turbo train was derailed and burst into flames and was almost entirely consumed in the ensuing blaze, police said.

A spokesman for United Aircraft, the company which manufactures the trains, estimated damages at $2 million, the turbo train's cost.

Extra Cent Forecast

Bread Will Go Up As Subsidy Sliced

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians will soon be paying more for bread as the result of an announcement Thursday night that the wheat board has been instructed to charge millers more for top-grade wheat.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, told the Commons Thursday night the cabinet has ordered the board to boost the price to millers Aug. 1, the start of the next crop year.

This, he said outside the House, probably will mean an increase of about one cent a loaf for bread this fall.

At the same time, by reducing subsidies to the board, the government expects to save $2.7 million.

The price hike, Mr. Lang said, is to make domestic wheat prices reflect world prices, which were an average of $3.53½ Thursday.

Since 1971, millers have been paying $1.55½ a bushel for Canada Western No. 1 one spring wheat, the top grade used in most domestic bread.

To guarantee farmers a $3 return, the government paid an extra $1.94½ to the wheat board, which passed it on to the farmers.

This $1.94½ is being trimmed to $1 and, on the 60 million bushels of wheat used by millers annually, the government should save $2.7 million.

The government's two-price wheat policy, which lets domestic consumers buy wheat at lower prices than foreign customers, includes the fixed price of $1.55½ a bushel, the world average in 1972.

Under the amended policy, said Mr. Lang, millers will pay between 45 and 55 cents more for a bushel of the best wheat.

Conservative and New Democratic spokesmen said they were confused by the announcement. Social Credit Leader Real Caouette said it was just another example of the government putting the consumer at the bottom of the priority list.

"I am surprised that at no time does the minister suggest helping the consumers to buy that . . . bread at a cheaper price than he pays today."

Conservative Jack Horner (Crowfoot) said the government appeared to be limiting the liability and telling consumers they will have to pay more for bread.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the government should have increased millers' subsidies, not decreased them, to give the consumer more protection against rising prices.

Fruit to Be Dearer

50-cent Rise In Bacon Seen

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian food prices will rise again, with bacon going up 50 cents a pound to $1.79 in the next 30 days as a result of the lifting of price controls on food in the United States, a senior officer of Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd. said Thursday.

Gus Pahnos, executive senior vice-president, predicted the rise following President Nixon's announcement Wednesday that his Phase 4 economic plan will ease limits on prices on all foodstuffs except beef.

Mr. Pahnos said a Buffalo, N.Y., packer raised his bacon price by 50 cents a pound Wednesday and he predicted the increase will hit Canadian stores in about a month.

Food industry spokesmen also predicted a sharp increase in the price of canned fruit and tomato products.

Sam Crystal, public relations director of Oshawa Group Ltd., which supply IGA stores, said, "Quite a bit of canned fruit comes from the U.S. It seems pretty evident that these prices will go up there so they will go up here."

He said western Canadians will probably pay more for canned tomatoes, tomato paste and other tomato by-products which they import from the U.S.

Ontario produces its own tomato products so prices will not likely rise, he said. But, if western buyers turn to Ontario, Ontario's prices will rise.

A spokesman for a large Toronto meat packer said the removal of the U.S. price freeze will have little effect on the price of lamb because North American ewes don't eat much lamb. But beef prices will increase when the freeze on that product is lifted in September.

Ken Counsell, a spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said: "Canadian prices will go up because we're in close tandem with the United States.

"But price increases will not be as severe here because the mistake was not made here of arbitrarily freezing prices."

Farm Union Assails Growth in Farms' Size

SASKATOON (CP) — Farming is the base of Western Canada's economy but the problems of agriculture cannot be isolated in any one region of Canada, the National Farmers Union (NFU) said Thursday in a brief prepared for the West ern economic opportunities conference.

"We are certain . . . that the cau e of national unity cannot be established through the pursuit of policies which disadvantage one region over another. . . ."

Outlining factors which have led to a declining farm population—"the most important social and economic problem faced by the West"—the NFU said the farmer's share of the retail food dollar dropped to 37 cents in 1971 from 60 cents in 1949 and governmental "pursuit" policies based on the premise that there still are too many farmers on the land."

"Farms grow larger and farmers are asking themselves over and where it will end and how much larger and more productive do they need to become before they can be assured of stability and a future."

Farmers are subject to economic forces beyond their control, concerned and bewildered by the "seemingly contradictory economic policies of government . . . which bear so heavily on their economic fortunes."

Corn Belt Hog Prices Set Record

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — The price of hogs jumped to record highs Thursday after ceilings were lifted by the United States government, but the hogs brought to market dropped to almost half the normal number as breeders apparently waited for even higher prices.

Prices vaulted as much as $8 a hundredweight as sellers reacted to President Nixon's lifting the price ceiling on all meat products but beef.

Four Western Premiers Want Rail Roadbeds Publicly Owned

EDMONTON (CP) — The four western premiers propose wholesale changes in Canada's transportation policy, including public ownership of the railway roadbeds.

The premiers give notice in a brief release today they will ask Prime Minister Trudeau next week for:

—A restatement of part of the National Transportation Act "to clearly place regional economic development as one of the basic objectives of national transportation policy."

—Establishment of a "west-ern" transportation evaluation authority" to examine costs and consider the effect of rates, regulations and facilities on the regional economy.

—A federal contribution "of comparable proportions" to the costs of all modes of transportation.

—Establishment of a new rate-setting procedure to promote the economic development of western Canada, to be worked out by the new western transportation evaluation authority.

—Acquisition by the federal government of railway roadbeds and rights-of-way.

—Establishment by the federal government of a public corporation to allow for more competition, with different railways using the same tracks.

The proposals, agreed to jointly by the four western premiers, are to be presented at the Western Economic Opportunities Conference in Calgary.

The transportation paper is the shortest and most terse of four prepared for the conference, in line with the premiers' stated intention of aiming at simplicity to avoid becoming bogged down in one of the most complicated subjects in Canadian politics.

But the paper contains none of the strong language the premiers used in the months leading up to the conference when they termed current freight rates a curse for the West. They had said the rates blocked the West's development with discriminatory terms that favored the already rich industrial triangle centred on Toronto.

WHAT IS AN ITCH ?

It may start off as just a little "tingly" sensation that a quick rub seems to take care of. But, it may end up as an almost uncontrollable urge to scrape off part of your skin. It could result from as the result of a bite — fly, mosquito, gnat, etc.; a food that doesn't agree with your body chemistry — an allergy; a poor choice of leaves — poison oak or ivy. It may also result from some organic illness, simple or serious.

Just as there are numerous causes of the itch so there are medicines that can help to relieve it. Which one? Your physician will be able to pinpoint the cause of your itching problem. Don't scratch needlessly!

Consumer Booklet To Be Expanded

A widely acclaimed resource booklet published by the Citizens Bureau of Lennox is to scope to incorporate federal legislation affecting consumers, according to Bert Gerling, a Bureau official.

In talks yesterday between the bureau and Deanna M. Burns, consultant with the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, an omission of federal legislation was noted.

However, the situation soon to be rectified, said Mr. Gerling. "Previously information in the booklet was essentially based on provincial laws. But the reprint of Dollars and Sense will include consumer protection information with regard to federal legislation."

The Citizens Bureau has received compliments as well as requests for large lots of the two - month - old booklet as far afield as British Columbia.

At present, major sections outline problems consumers encounter with financial institutions dealing with credit and insurance. The enlarged edition will provide information as to the pitfalls to be avoided and the recourse a consumer has in federal laws.

"With only two people in our regional office in Toronto, we don't have the time to get around to everyone, it's a matter of reaching people with information regarding help the federal government can provide through the department. This booklet can do that," said Miss Burns.

The Consumer and Corporate Affairs Ministry has the ammunition of about 20 federal acts to bring to the aid of the consumer, noted Mr. Burns, saying "they're all probably of greater scope than those of the province."

Striking Crane Operators Stop Trenton's Town Hall

By COLIN BRUCE
Trenton Bureau

TRENTON — Striking crane operators have put a spoke in the wheel of construction crews erecting Trenton's town hall.

The town hall, incorporating municipal offices and two level of enclosed parking, was nearing completion until earlier this week when shipments of cement girders used for flooring were halted due to a strike by members of the International Union of Operating Engineers.

The eight men erecting the concrete components in the new offices walked off the job last Monday bringing to a halt construction of the rear of the offices and shopping leaving Belleville's Stanley Structures, formerly Wilson Concrete Products.

A spokesman for Lassing Associates, consultants for municipal office construction, said this week the first two floors were all but completed and 60 per cent of the top office floor was finished. This information is included in a report to be submitted to town council at its next meeting. The report also estimates 86 percent of the exterior is complete.

David Hunnen, member of the consulting firm, could not say how long the strike would last, only construction next week could continue on the office space.

This is the second delay due to strike that has stood in the way of completion of the new municipal offices.

A spokesman for Stanley Structures could not guess when the strike would end, saying it affected approximately 500 crane operators in the southern portion of the province centred in the Toronto and Hamilton areas.

Frank Wiles, a company field superintendent, said the money was not a part of bargaining in the early stages, with more emphasis on "fringe benefits".

Currently operators are paid $8.73 an hour. Mr. Wiles claims "they want somewhere in the neighborhood of $11 an hour."

He said his company was effectively stopped as far as distribution was concerned and that 37 other companies were in the rental association along with Stanley Structures.

No bargaining has gone on this week and none is scheduled, according to Mr. Wiles. "I'll have to call Toronto to find out when the next meeting is."

The Monday-morning strike was first intended as a relaying walkout with Hamilton's boom crane and the Toronto firms of Ambrett and Superior Crane the first to be affected.

The 37 members of the Ontario Crane Rental Association have been hiring a more speedy conclusion to the strike action, closed all their doors hailing the union's rotating action.

Mr. Wiles said: "As far as we are concerned, when one member is being struck against, we are all being struck against. You are all on strike and no-one works until a new agreement is made."

He said his company is stockpiling to speed delivery of materials once men are back on the job.

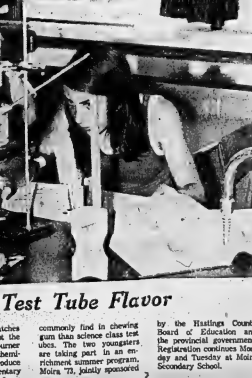
DAVID G. HORTON, Bsc., DVM., has joined the professional staff of the Belleville Animal Hospital. A former resident of Etobicoke, Dr. Horton graduated from Ontario Veterinary College at the University of Guelph in May, 1973.

Rainfall About Half

TWEED (Special) — July rainfall in the Tweed area has been about half the normal amount for this time of year. All the rain fell on July 13, when heavy winds destroyed buildings in Brighton.

The total rainfall this month has been 1.12 inches. Normal precipitation is 2.62 inches.

Tweed Police Force



Police say there is no indication of foul play in the shooting death of an 18-year-old Bancroft area youth Wednesday.

Keith Maxwell, a laborer who lived with his sister on the Potash Road, was found a short distance from the house Wednesday evening.

Police said he died of a rifle wound in the chest.

Two Boys Suspected In Rash of Break-ins

City police now suspect that two boys found inside an east end dry cleaners Wednesday morning were involved in 11 break-ins during the past few days.

The boys, aged 14 and 15, appeared in Juvenile Court Wednesday.

Windshield Scattered

Robert Mandeville had a shattering surprise when he went to drive to work Wednesday morning.

The 41 John St. S. resident found someone had tossed a rock through his car's windshield during the night. Cost of repairs is $125.

Free Shots Not Taken

It's one way to offset the rising cost of Ontario's medicare program, he told a board meeting Wednesday.

Many people going to their doctors for immunization shots could get the same service free at public health clinics without any charge on the province's medical insurance program.

"We've got to stop escalation of (medicare) costs — and this is one way of doing it," said Mr. David.

Boy Hurt On Bicycle

PICTON — A Prince Edward County boy Wednesday was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital with injuries received when his bicycle hit a truck on Talbot St. here.

Steven Aulthouse, 10, RR 8, Picton, was treated for head injuries, shoulder lacerations and possible internal injuries. Damage to the pickup truck driven by Paul McKeown of Belleville was estimated at $75.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said they are also believed responsible for breaking in seven homes this week, as well as break-ins at Lou's Transport, Belleville Plaza laundromat and the Canada Dry bottling plant. The homes and businesses are all located in the city's east end.

The boys were caught at 4 a.m. inside Woodland Cleaners at the corner of Farley and Dundas Streets Wednesday. The laundromat and bottling plant were hit the same night.

Chief Crosbie said several house owners were away when their residences were struck and loss cannot be determined until they return. In other homes, loss was mainly confined to small amounts of cash, although thieves also took two bottles of beer from one house.

The chief said the 15-year-old, a former Belleville resident, had failed to return to a provincial training school after being out on a pass last weekend. The other boy, who lives in Belleville, was a friend.

Ambulance Cutback Proposed

Alderman Stu Meek will meet with an official from the ministry of health Saturday to discuss a proposal that would cut ambulance service in the Quinte region by as much as 75 per cent.

Ald. Meeks, who first learned of the proposal in a letter he received last week, is the owner of LaSalle Ambulance which, with City Ambulance, now has four vehicles in service 24 hours a day to cover Belleville and surrounding regions.

Under the proposal, service would remain the same between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. but would be cut back to two ambulances between 4 p.m. and midnight, and one ambulance between midnight and 8 a.m.

As a result, Ald. Meeks contacted C. L. Brodeur, director - designate of the ministry's emergency health services branch, who agreed to come to Belleville Saturday to discuss the matter.

The health ministry allocates funds to maintain legal ambulance services and has proposed the cut-back as a money-saving measure.

It's An Heirloom

Amelissburgh Museum held a surprise discovery for Picton photographer Lloyd Thompson recently. Wedding dress being worn by display mannequin was handsewn in 1913 by mother, a seamstress, and is now heirloom of local family.

Finds Wedding Gown Sewn by Mother

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

AMELIASBURGH — Nationally recognized portrait photographer Lloyd E. Thompson routinely shoots dozens of weddings a year.

But he did a doubletake this week as he photographed an Ameliasburgh bride.

The young woman was a mannequin in the township museum and the gown she wore was hand sewn by Mr. Thompson's mother, the late Mrs. Richard Thompson, in 1913.

The photographer, unaware of the existence of the wedding dress, was surprised this spring when told that it was on display in the Ameliasburgh museum. He made a visit to see it and has photographed it as it is modelled by the mannequin.

The gown, a creamy batiste material trimmed with satin, features a mandarin neckline of hand-crocheted lace and is sewn with seed pearls.

Mr. Thompson's mother, the former Ada Trip, was born in Hillier township and earned a reputation as an expert seamstress and milliner.

After her marriage to Richard Thompson she lived in Belleville for several years and fashioned gowns for the belles of the era.

The wedding dress on display was made for Mrs. Harold Young, an Ameliasburgh resident and has been donated for exhibition by her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ekmer Young.

Mrs. Harold Young wore the dress at her wedding on June 4, 1913, and it was preserved carefully in the years that followed.

Mr. Thompson is pleased to have discovered the gown stashed by his mother more than a half-century ago and will send a photograph of it to his aunt in Edmonton.

Rotating Rail Strikes Appear Likely July 27

Belleville's 400 railway non-operating workers will most likely begin a series of rotating strikes Friday, July 27.

Meetings are going on today in Montreal to discuss conciliation proposals, but it seems to be a last-ditch effort.

Jack Thomas, local chairman of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway workers and general workers said today:

"We've gone through mediation, conciliation and now we have to go through the ultimate . . . strikes.

"We are prepared to be out week for similar action," he said referring to other unions considering strike action.

"We've been prepared a" for as long as it takes. We are awaiting instructions from our national head office in Ottawa and are fully prepared to take action.

A difference of about five per cent in wage increases separates the non-operating employees' union and the offer last week from board chairman Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Mr. Munroe suggested wage increases of 17 per cent over two years while John Weldon union nominee, has proposed 21.6 per cent wage increase over the same time. The rail companies' offer was 13.5 per cent.

About 56,000 employees are involved in this matter. The situation came to a head when last week, representatives of the workers said they were planning rotating or selective work stoppages against their employers — CP Rail, Canadian National Railways and smaller rail firms. They are legally entitled to strike July 31.

Although union leaders representing the non - operating employees are to meet in Montreal today to discuss conciliation proposals, the spokesmn says the assembly would just be a formality before rejection of a report submitted last week by board chairman Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Munroe's report suggested wage increases of 17 per cent in two years for the clerks, porters, maintenance, roundhouse and other employees. Average basic hourly wage for the non-operating workers is $3.54.

The union spokesman said the unions will probably set the conciliation report of their nominee, John Weldon of Montreal, as the minimum acceptable to the workers.

Mr. Weldon, who proposed 21.6 per cent wage increases over two years, and company nominee S. E. Dinsdale of Toronto, submitted reports separate from that of Mr. Justice Munroe. Mr. Dinsdale suggested wage raises totalling 13.5 per cent.

But the unions, while satisfied with Mr. Weldon's proposals on wages, Job security and pensions, are unhappy with some of the minor suggestions of his report.

The union spokesman said he felt labor nominees on board sometimes bend over backward to appear moderate.

He said that the initiative for mediation of the dispute should come from Labor Minister John Munro rather than from the parties. Mr. Munro has said government mediation services are available.

Railway union leaders have expressed fears that the government will intervene with legislation in any strike or lockout action.

They say intervention or the threat of interference by Parliament in the past has made the railway workers fall behind employees in comparable jobs in other industries, thus intensifying feelings of frustration among union members.

Underpass Now Open - - Officially

That new Frank Street railway pedestrian underpass which has been in use since early spring is now officially open for traffic.

Advisement that the pedestrian underpass is ready for use was contained in a letter from the CN Rideau Area office which was received by city council Monday.

Use of the underpass by cycles was discussed in council some weeks ago following which erection of signs banning cycles was authorized.

Council was told Monday the signs had been erected.

Probing Ocean Depths

In the battle for sufficiency to keep pace with increasing population and rising demands for more food, energy and resources of every kind the ocean depths remain probably the last great untapped sphere of exploration. It is known for instance that underwater exploration for oil is being carried out in different parts of the world, including the North Sea off the coast of Britain.

In Canada, meanwhile, federal science minister Jeanne Sauve has unveiled the basics of this country's policy in this matter, including the concept that Canada must develop and control its offshore resources and their exploration.

The technology involved is very much in its infancy and any material benefits are regarded as years away. Mrs. Sauve suggests however that operations on and below ice-covered waters may be expected within five years.

As an extension of this we may see the construction of ice-breaker oil tankers and cargo carriers, to take from ore from the Canadian north, not to mention the development of submarine oil and gas drilling platforms as well as under-ice instrumentation equipment to unlock some of the secrets of the environment in these remote places.

All this affords great new opportunities for Canadian industry in the development of the necessary equipment and of course for jobs. The Government moreover intends to upgrade its own level of knowledge and sophistication in this sphere of oceanography, for its own sakes as much as to keep it on a par with other countries and with private developers.

These initiatives are seen as providing new opportunities for Canada's universities, most likely in British Columbia, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, for there will be a need for expertise in this relatively new field. The universities in turn will have to find the necessary trained personnel to give effect to these new initiatives.

Last but not least is the question of cost. Not surprisingly, it is high . . . very high, and given the recklessness with which Government manages its books and provides funds for lesser matters it is good reason for a renewed call for thrift in some of these selfzame lesser spheres. In any event, to put a figure on this obviously major undertaking, from the $100 million that Ottawa now spends on the oceans annually we may expect to see this reach $500 million-a-year in five years.

A Lemon

Americans are buying more cars and the word from Detroit is that compacts are selling better since the industry in the United States moved to meet the competition in this sphere from overseas.

In Canada meanwhile the latest chapter in the grand Pirenza hassle has emerged with word of a $5 million damage claim against General Motors of Canada Ltd. and Vauxhall Motors Ltd. of England on behalf of the more than 4,000 Ontario owners of the British-built compact.

If we are to believe the claims of owners, the Firenza ,an otherwise natty looking little car, is a lemon that has bombed badly since its introduction here. They say they have been plagued with problems and the claim on their behalf has been filed in the Ontario Supreme Court by an organization called the Automobile Protective Association.

Consumers, rightly so, are becoming more militant where their rights are concerned, and this applies not just to automobiles but to goods of every description.

A significant factor in this claim moreover is that the Automobile Protective Association is financed with a federal grant and has offices in Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal and Quebec City. Thus the Government is giving teeth to the more stringent measures it has been taking in recent months to ensure that the consumer is not led up the garden path.

Lost in the Legislative Shuffle

What Became of Mr. Basford's Registry of Lobbyists?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Among the government's bright ideas that once streaked like a comet across the nation's front pages and then vanished into legislative outer space has been Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford's plan for a federal registry of lobbyists.

He commissioned a study of it when he was Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister, but Herb Gray, who now directs that department, says he did not inherit it when he took over the portfolio.

And it is not surfacing in Prime Minister Trudeau's conflict - of - interest bill.

When he initiated the study of the art of lobbying in Ottawa, Mr. Basford told The New York Times that he had detected a growing distrust among Canadian taxpayers of the way things are sometimes done in the National Capital, and said faith in the functions of the federal machine must be restored.

So he proposed his register of lobbyists in which lawyers, public relations specialists, retired politicians — and some not retired, and all those special pleaders trying to do business with the government — would be required to list themselves.

He further would have required them to give a full accounting of who their clients were, and how they spent the "influence money" they received.

It was no passing fancy of the ministerial moment.

For Mr. Basford set research — secret work, exploring the little - known world of lobbying — and of its darker side of influence - peddling — in Ottawa.

The study progressed for two years and a report with recommendations was delivered to Mr. Basford on which draft legislation was to be based.

At the time, a spokesman for Mr. Basford stressed that the minister was "not against lobbying because it was an essential part of the democratic process."

"Interested groups," he told The Financial Post, "need to make contact with the government and the government needs to hear from them."

What Mr. Basford wanted, according to the spokesman, was to bring the whole thing out into the open.

As an example of what was being talked about was this . . .

. . . When a prominent lawyer or accountant sits down next to a cabinet minister at dinner or over a drink before lunch at the Rideau Club and gives him a strong pitch for free trade in television sets, it is useful for the minister to be able to look up the register of lobbyists and see if his companion is representing a Japanese electronics firm.

There is nothing wrong in making the pitch but the minister is much better able to weigh the objectivity of the viewpoint that has been presented.

But much more important than — and it still is — was the sticky question of payola.

It long has been a widely held belief that Ottawa is above suspicion, and that the sort of case, such as the Rivard affair proved that crude dishonesty just does not work and that nobody can buy or sell favors.

But was — and is — this sure trust completely justified?

The Financial Post reported that amongst some of the interesting things unearthed in Mr. Basford's two-year special investigation of lobbying was the fact that some executives of firms, including companies, special interest groups and a whole collection of pleaders - for - government grants — supply funds to the lobbyists "for entertaining solicitations" as some of them prefer to call these agents, to "arrange things".

Is this money used to influence or even entertain powerful public servants?

Is it pocketed by the lobbyist as a fee plus operating expense?

Or does it exist at all except in the ever - active rumor mills of the National Capital?

If lobbyists were made to register and then report their transactions in Mr. Basford's proposed register, these questions would be answered.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Gray says he is not working on it.

It is not in the Prime Minister's conflict - of - interest legislation.

So the word is, then that the whole plan may be dead unless Government House Leader Allan MacEachen — suggested by his colleagues as one of the likeliest candidates for the assignment—takes it in hand.

Young Male Drivers May Get Premium Relief

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The cost of car insurance will soon be going up again, in most parts of Canada where it is still in the private sector.

Premiums that come due after Aug. 1 could be as much as 14 per cent higher than they were the last time around, in certain areas of the country. In Ontario, for example, the average increase in the basic premium will be about 9 per cent.

Industry spokesmen give the explanation that has become more familiar with each such price hike: Claims are on the increase, and it costs more to repair cars now than it used to.

The claims and adjusting costs on automobile insurance — liability, personal injury and other--in Canada last year rose to $980.8 million from $734.6 million in 1971.

These costs were 75.5 per cent of the net premiums of $1.37 billion that the industry earned last year, somewhat worse than the earned-claims ratio of 71.1 per cent on 1971's $1.03 billion net premiums earned.

Young male drivers, who because of their poor driving record must pay the highest premiums, may get some relief this year. Depending upon where they live, their premiums may either be reduced, hold steady, or increase less than the average.

Supporters of government-backed universal insurance coverage will make much of the private industry's latest increases, and the insurance companies will no doubt be charged with gouging the driving public.

Perhaps some companies are. Certainly there's plenty of footdragging by some insurers reluctant to pay legitimate claims.

But government-operated plans have failed to live up to their promises of big savings for all. While the under-25 male and the accident-prone driver may be granted cheaper coverage, many careful drivers complain that they are paying much more than before.

Whatever the merits of the public-vs.-private controversy, all insured car-owners can agree on one problem—the impossibility of understanding the language used in a typical insurance policy.

Endless paragraphs, full of "hereinafters" and "thereofs," with dependant clause piled upon dependant clause, are meaningless to all but lawyers and the insurance men themselves.

One jurisdiction is doing something about it. The insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania, who last year published a comparative table of premiums charged by various insurance companies, withheld approval of the company's auto-insurance plan solely because it was too complicated to read.

Then he unveiled a rewritten state medicare policy in which one typical paragraph of 34 words did the work of 84 words in the previous version.

A policy written in plain language may not necessarily be a better insurance. But it would at least let you know what you are buying, when you pay that increased premium next time.

Government Licks Wounds

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer Queen's Park Bureau

Now, as it contemplates its wounds from the hardest legislation any government has had here in many years, questions are to be asked about the political future of the Davis administration.

Has it been badly hurt?

Has it been critically hurt?

Will it be able to win another election?

Insofar as being hurt, there would seem to be little question—it has been.

To confirm this you really only need the opinion of a few people on the street.

They make it clear that their respect for the administration has dropped.

The real question would seem to be the matter of degree.

Is the government hurting badly?

And on this there are no pat answers.

Whether the governments has been hurt critically, and particularly to the degree where it has been jeopardized for the next election, is still an open question.

There are, of course, those who feel strongly that it has been.

But such people, essentially, are forming snap judgments.

There are many reasons why made this time on the potential of the government when it next faces the people.

One of these is that there probably are two years to go before there is another general election. This is a long period in which there could be important changes.

In two years, a lot repair job can be done, and critical feelings could mellow.

Then while a lot of opinion has turned against the government, it can't be said how much of it has turned to another party.

It is true the Liberals have won two byelections. But byelections as compared to general elections have a special character. And these two had very special characteristics.

Again, it appears that the Liberals and the NDP will line up in the next election much as they did at the last one. At least, it seems evident now they will be under the same leadership.

Finally, the Davis administration is at its best in fighting an election, and at its worst—to date at least—in the routine of running a government.

It undoubtedly will put on a rousing campaign in the next general vote, and one which will probably will be hard to stand up against.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The British colony of British Columbia joined Confederation 102 years ago today—in 1871—and became a self-governing province of Canada. There had been exploration and settlement in the area for less than 100 years and only in 1849 did the British government take an interest, to resist United States claims to the Hudson's Bay Company territories. The gold rushes of 1858 and 1860 brought thousands of settlers but the economy was always on the verge of bankruptcy. One of the conditions for joining Canada was the building of the Canadian Pacific railway.

1941—HMCS Huron, the third Tribal-class destroyer for the Royal Canadian Navy, was launched in Britain.

1937—Guglielmo Marconi, the inventor of radio, died.

1953—Pancho Villa was assassinated.

1961—New York reported about 200 deaths as a result of an intense heat wave in the eastern United States.

1975—Sir Francis Bond Head died.

Educational Ceilings

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing to protest the treatment of local issues by the two media sources in Belleville: your newspaper and CJBQ. Our Association sent a news release concerning the detrimental effects of the Department of Education ceilings on education in Hastings County, surely a topic of interest and importance to many. CJBQ failed to carry the news release at all, and your paper carried a precis that ignored the most important points of the news release.

One point that your article failed to mention was the fact that there will be 27 less teaching positions in Hastings County next year as a result of the budget ceilings of the Department of Education. If the ceilings are not raised, then there will be 35 less teaching positions again the next year. The effect that this will have on the Secondary schools in Hastings County is obvious — larger class sizes, teachers with more classes and therefore less preparation time.

Another point was that the Association's work against the purported philosophy of the Department of Education, in the last few years the Department has extended the course options available to students. This increased freedom necessitates good guidance counselling for these students. However, with the budget ceilings, the number of guidance counselors will have to be cut back. Does such a philosophy make sense?

A third problem is the tendency of the government to spend money in highly questionable areas while hurting Hastings County with its budget ceiling. The Ontario Government is spending millions of dollars training teachers for which there are no jobs. Only approximately 30 per cent of the graduates from McArthur College in Kingston have teaching positions. Does it make sense to apply budget ceilings that mean less teaching positions available, yet at the same time train far too many teachers?

I do not believe that my concern over the Department of Education ceilings is an entirely partisan one. I know of many Conservatives in the area who are also concerned that the Davis government has lacked common sense and fairness in its application of the budget ceiling to Hastings County.

The budget ceilings were originally intended for areas such as Toronto which spends approximately $300 more per secondary school student than does Hastings County. The taxpayers of Hastings County are being cheated out of their educational value by the Davis government.

Drainage Effluent Analysis

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

During the reading of correspondence at the Monday meeting of Council, a letter from the Ministry of the Environment was read. This reported the findings of tests taken from a storm sewer drain from the Belleville General Hospital.

Among other things were the bacteriological analysis of the sample taken. This was the most important feature of the report — what is being emptied into our bay.

Mayor Jeffrey at the previous Council meeting said that if [illegible] would be made public. Yet, when City Clerk Jack Stalker came to the all-important passage, Mrs. Jeffrey instructed him not to read the bacteriological analysis results.

The people of Belleville are being deliberately kept in the dark regarding the state of the Bay of Quinte. The results of tests were as follows:

Ecoli 12 — Total Coliform Bacteria 2500 Fecal 80
July 10 — Total Coliform Bacteria 53 Fecal 0

Phoned Offer To Yield Tapes Proves Hoax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is searching for the perpetrator of a telephone hoax that embarrassed the Senate Watergate committee chairman and dashed hopes that a possible presidential-congressional clash had been averted.

For nearly 20 minutes Thursday, the committee had reason to believe President Nixon agreed to surrender without a fight tapes of recorded conversations between Nixon and key figures in the lowest point of the Watergate scandal.

"It is just an awful thing for a very trusting soul like me to find there are human beings, if you can call them that, who would perpetrate a hoax like this," said committee chairman Sam Ervin (Dem. N.C.).

"I think it is a unanimous opinion of this committee that this was a right dirty trick" he said.

The hoax began to unfold with a noon-hour telephone call to Ervin's office.

A woman on the other end of the line identified herself as the secretary to Treasury Secretary Charles Shultz. She said Shultz needed to reach Ervin on an urgent basis.

The call was lost in an attempt to connect it with the confidential telephone number used by the committee staff.

The woman called again and the call reached Ervin and a man came on the line.

"I am not allowed to speak with the voice of the secretary to be able to identify it and so I just assumed that the person at this other end of the line was Secretary Shultz," Ervin said later.

The treasury Department is in charge of the Secret Service, which has custody of the tapes. Shultz had conferred with Ervin on the matter at the president's request early in the week.

So Ervin made his announcement, expressed his delight and commended the president.

But minutes later the White House counsel Leonard Garment was on the phone for Samuel Dash, the committee's chief counsel.

"Mr. Garment was very upset, and told me that no agreement had been made to surrender the tapes," Dash said.

An urgent call was placed to the treasury desartment. The real Secretary Shultz talked to Ervin. Shortly thereafter the chairman interrupted the hearing to announce:

"It appears that a hoax has been perpetra'ed upon this committee. At least in part."

The committee asked the FBI to investigate but found the president had made the same request to the justice department moments before.

Dash said that before the hoax, Garment had told him Nixon will have a definitive statement to make on the matter Monday.

Meanwhile, the New York Times and the Washington Post quote sources as saying Nixon has decided to turn the tapes over to the committee. The White House would not comment on the report.

The tapes have been a focus of the investigation since their existence was disclosed early this week by Alexander Butterfield, a former presidential aide and now head of the Federal Aviation Administration.

They are the products of an automatic listening system that has recorded every presidential conversation since the spring of 1971.

Their importance lies in the hope that the tapes' contents will refute or confirm allegations that the president was a party to the Watergate cover-up because he was told about it by his aides.

Mardian Disputes Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former assistant attorney general Robert Mardian disputed testimony today about his Watergate story, which conflicts with the testimony of at least five other witnesses before the Senate Watergate committee.

Mardian, who left the internal security division of the justice department as Jan. 1 to direct Nixon's re-election campaign, swore he made it clear to his associates shortly after the break-in that "I did not want to be involved in Watergate or its ramifications."

"They knew Bob Mardian wanted out," he said, and he withdrew from the cover-up activities within a month after the June 17, 1972, bugging of Democratic headquarters was discovered.

Mardian, a Phoenix lawyer and business man, testified that the first he learned of the break-in was on the morning of June 17, when he met with campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder to a political meeting in Inglewood, Calif.

Magruder told me he had a slight FR (public relations) problem which related to discuss," Mardian said.

On the same day, Mardian said, Magruder told him that campaign chief John Mitchell had approved a plan for dirty tricks. Mitchell, whose story also conflicts with other witnesses, has denied he ever approved a bugging plan.

Mardian said his involvement in the Watergate affair was to advise other campaign officials on legal problems immediately after the break-in.

Mardian said the testimony of others has placed him at meetings he can't recall, but words in his mouth and attributed actions to him which he believes he never took.

Asked by committee counsel James Hamilton to explain the discrepancies in his account with those of Mitchell, Magruder, John Dean, Maurice Stans and Frederick LaRue, Mardian said: "The only answer I can give is that I have tried to testify as to the best of my recollection and ability and belief."

After Mitchell had left the election committee and Clark Mac-Gregor took over, Mardian said he repeatedly tried to tell MacGregor that statements he was making about Watergate weren't true.

"He got very upset. He said, 'When I took the job, I was assured that nobody was involved, there was nobody involved in the Watergate still in the campaign, I am relying on that, and I do not want to hear about it.'"

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed amendments to the Motor Vehicle safety Regulations to reduce automobile exhaust emissions 70 per cent below 1966 standards were announced Thursday.

Commonwealth Heads to Trade Tips on Governing Techniques

LONDON (CP) — What can/of leaders of three military re-/gimes, six one-party states and 11 parliamentary democracies tell each other about running a country?

That is what they hope to learn Aug. 2-10 when they gather in Ottawa for the Commonwealth heads of government conference but the answer may remain their secret, say/sources within the Commonwealth secretariat here.

The conference, the idea of/Prime Minister Trudeau, will give him a chance to test his theory that the essence of good/government is efficient management and that no matter what the ideology of a leader, he can govern more effectively by looking at the technique of others.

The one new item which stands out in the conference agenda is "comparative techniques of government", It was first proposed by Trudeau at the last conference in Singapore two years ago. Although the item sounds like the description of an elementary political science course, the students will also be the teachers and what they have to say won't be based on academic speculation but on hard experience.

Any truly candid trading of advice and explanations is unlikely to echo beyond the thick walls of Ottawa's conference centre on Confederation Square because, for the first time, the leaders will have the opportunity to meet in privacy. Whenever they choose, the delegation leaders can call a restricted session, barring reporters, minute-takers and their own official advisers.

Only they and Commonwealth Secretary-General Arnold Smith of Canada may attend the restricted sessions where the generals, presidents and prime ministers can freely explain their politics without worry of repercussions back home.

Other agenda items are repeats: A review of international affairs, the sales of arms to South Africa, the effectiveness of economic sanctions against Rhodesia and the tariff squeeze on developing countries. Since conference moods are measured by statements of consensus rather than formal votes, the leaders are not expected to deliver any major new pronouncements.

It is, therefore, the Trudeau-inspired subject of comparative technique which appears to be the centre of interest and hope for more meaningful Commonwealth.

One technique comparison suggested as a possibility by a veteran Commonwealth observer would involve the Trudeau government's handling of the 1970 Quebec crisis and the victory in the same year of Nigeria's Gen. Yakubu Gowon over Biafran rebels.

Perhaps one of the best answers to criticism of the Commonwealth's usefulness is that all but seven of the 33 heads of government are expected to participate in person at the meeting.

Senior delegations have been promised to represent those who have said they cannot attend: Presidents Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya, Sir Dauda Jawara of the Gambia, Hammer De Robort of Nauru, Siaka Stevens of Sierra Leone, Kamuzu Banda of Malawi and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India.

Uganda's Gen. Idi Amin is not expected to attend but his history of unpredictability leaves open the possibility of a surprise, last-minute arrival.

Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore, the host of the last conference, may not be the stated because of concurrent independence celebrations at home.

Military rulers who have promised to go to Canada are Gen. Gowon and Col. I. K. Acheampong of Ghana.

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia is the most prominent among the leaders of one-party states to attend because of his country's current conflict with Rhodesia, a conflict which was directly involved with the death last spring of two Canadian tourists at Victoria Falls.

Other attending leaders of states where opposition parties are banned are Prime Minister Fiame Mata'a Mulinu'u II of Western Samoa and Fatafeli Tu'ipelehake of Tonga and President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania.

Military rule will also be represented by whoever Amin chooses to send, and the shooting of delegation leaders for Malawi and Sierra Leone would round out the contingent of one-party states.

The four original members of the Commonwealth will be represented by their prime ministers: Edward Heath of Britain, Gough Whitlam of Australia, Norman Kirk of New Zealand, and Trudeau.

Other prime ministers of parliamentary democracies are Lynden Pindling of the Bahamas, Shaikh Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh, Errol Barrow of Barbados, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara of Fiji, Forbes Burnham of Guyana, Michael Manley of Jamaica, Chief Leabua Jonathan of Lesotho, Tun Haji Abdul Razak of Malaysia, Ian Minoff of Malta, Sir Seewoosagur Ramgoolam of Mauritius, Sirimavo Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka, Prince Makhosini Dalmini of Swaziland and Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago.

Ottawa-bound leaders of parliamentary democracies whose head of governments carry the title of president are Sir Seretse Khama of Botswana, Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus and Sir Dawda Jawara of the Gambia.

Princess Alexandra Starts Five-day Nova Scotia Visit

HALIFAX (CP) — Visits to/two local hospitals were planned for Princess Alexandra this morning in the first full day of activities during her five-day visit to Nova Scotia.

The princess, appearing to have recovered completely from a cold that forced her to cancel engagements in London earlier the week, arrived here Thursday afternoon and, following brief welcoming ceremonies, drove to Government House for a private reception and dinner.

The tour, planned around celebrations Saturday marking the first arrival in the province of settlers from Scotland, shifts into high gear today.

The princess will lunch aboard the Canadian Forces supply ship Preserver and in the afternoon will attend a garden party at Government House, the lieutenant-governor's residence where she is staying.

Bright sunny skies greeted the princess Thursday as she stepped from a Royal Air Force jet and was welcomed by Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener, Lt.-Gov. Victor Oland and Premier Gerald Regan.

Princess Alexandra, first cousin to Queen Elizabeth, inspected a guard of honor from local Canadian Forces bases before moving to the edge of the harbor where the Preserver had gathered behind rope barriers.

A few applauded as she walked in front of them, stopping briefly to talk. A forces band played in the background, attempting to overcome the noise of a nearby Air Canada Tri-star jet taxiing for takeoff.

Before leaving by car for Halifax, about 25 miles from the airport, the princess drove a short distance across the tarmac to bid farewell to the personnel of a Canadian Forces Argus anti-submarine aircraft and his wife.

Contempt Sentence Reduced

MONTREAL (CP) — A five-year contempt of court sentence against a man who refused to testify at a murder trial has been reduced by Quebec Court of Appeal to one year.

The five-year term was imposed Feb. 28 on Gilles Lamer after he refused to testify at the trial of Jacques Desagne, a fellow member of a motorcycle gang.

Lamer, 18, and Desagne were both charged with the murder last year of a 68-year-old taxi driver. Desagne eventually pleaded guilty and was sentenced to life imprisonment while at a later trial, Lamer pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of manslaughter and received a 20-year sentence.

Mr. Justice Jules Deschenes, of Court of Appeal said in his ruling on the reduction of the contempt sentence that Judge Alphonse Barbeau of sessions court was "entirely justified" in sentencing Lamer for his refusal to testify at Desagne's trial.

"But I fear that the trial judge went too far. The judge said that he wished to set an example but I am afraid, with all due respect, that he got carried away."

Restless NDP Queries Lewis On Aid to PM

VANCOUVER (CP) — New Democrat leader David Lewis received tumultuous applause from party members at the NDP national convention Thursday as he rebuked charges that he has gone too far in supporting the minority liberal government.

But he received just as much applause when he told the 700 voting delegates that "I find it difficult to imagine being able to tolerate the Trudeau government much longer."

Signs of unrest among delegates over NDP support for the Liberals in Commons votes surfaced soon after the delegates assembled in the University of British Columbia gymnasium.

Mr. Lewis had been scheduled to deliver a keynote address on his leadership of the party, with no time allotted for questions.

But Grace Maclnnis, member of the party's British Columbia executive argued in an impassioned speech that delegates should be able to question and criticize the leadership.

Communications between the leadership and membership are inadequate, she said.

She expressed particular concern about what she saw as the possibility of new democrat MPs voting with the government "in order to rubberstamp back to work if they go on strike.

"I am a unionist to the core of my bones, delegates voted to change the agenda to provide for a question period after Mr. Lewis's speech.

Mr. Lewis said he welcomed the innovation. Several of the questions, however, were obviously out of order.

When one young Toronto delegate asked Mr. Lewis if the NDP was guilty of "shameful collusion" with old-line parties in sending the country's current conflict with Rhodesia, a conflict which was directly involved with the death last spring of two Canadian tourists at Victoria Falls.

Other attending leaders of states where opposition parties are banned are Prime Ministers Fiame Mata'a Mulinu'un II of Western Samoa and Fatafeli Tu'ipelehake of Tonga and President Julius Nyerere , of Tanzania.

Military rule will also be represented by whoever Amin chooses to send, and the shooting of delegation leaders for Malawi and Sierra Leone would round out the contingent of one-party states.

The four original members of the Commonwealth will be represented by their prime ministers: Edward Heath of Britain, Gough Whitlam of Australia, Norman Kirk of New Zealand, and Trudeau.

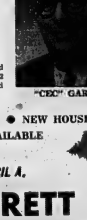
NDP Guards Against Takeovers



VANCOUVER (CP) — A constitutional amendment to prevent takeovers of what one delegate called the "absolutely illegal" takeover of a provincial party of the New Democratic Party was passed by the NDP's federal convention Thursday.

Two years ago in New Brunswick, the provincial NDP was taken over by a small group that illegally called a convention without notifying regular members, and elected a council, said Harold Thayer of Ottawa, a member of the party's federal council.

The smart group was "diabetically opposed" to longstanding party policies, he said. Faced with conflicting claims from two different factions that each claimed to represent the New Brunswick NDP, the council found that constitutionally it had no power to choose one over the other as the real NDP.

Dept. Consumer and Corporate Affairs

Consumerism: Buyers, Sellers and the Government

Consumer Consultant Deanna Burns

The assumption that because something is for sale it is good, all right — or even minimally safe — is an incorrect one according to Deanna Burns, consumer consultant with the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs.

Miss Burns said textiles must be marked with the name of the fibres, what percentage of what fibre it contains and what company is responsible for the cloth.

She said some labels will contain a code number. The name of the manufacturer can be obtained by phoning the department with the number which will in turn give the consumer the name and address.

Children's toys is one of the areas where the department has tried to work with an industry rather than pass laws.

"Laws are expensive to pass and difficult to enforce," she said relating that the department has worked with the Canadian toy industry to make sure toys are safe.

"There's no way we can catch all the imported toys and test them, but if you buy a Canadian toy you can be reasonably sure it's safe."

She stressed, however, that parents must take responsibility and not give toys designed for a different age group to their child.

Consumer responsibility, in fact, should be stressed, she said.

"It doesn't matter how much you pay for something; if you don't check it carefully, you could get bad quality merchandise.

For example an inspector once returned to the department with a bag of frozen potatoes which contained, along with potatoes, a small grey mouse.

The potatoes - and the mouse - would have been under the jurisdiction of her department only if the mouse was included in the weight of the potatoes.

"That's economic fraud because you're not getting all the potatoes you paid for," she said.

"If there were the stated amount of potatoes, plus a small grey mouse, it would have been a problem for the health ministry because it was a health hazard.

Actually, the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs looked after the small grey mouse.

"We prefer not to refer consumers with complaints to other departments. That's called passing the buck. We try to be the buck at our department."

One of the biggest areas of economic fraud has been health foods," Miss Burns said.

She said that an inspector once returned to the department's Toronto offices with 14 packages of tea each containing 30 tea bags. Retailing at $2.29 each, each package label include a one-time claim for some kind of curative powers.

"One was for backache, another for something else," Cautiously, she said, each bag of tea was exactly the same.

"If you're not a responsible consumer and don't read the labels then you're asking for trouble.

In Belleville, Miss Burns said, there are offices of the Weight and Measures Division and there are Electricity and Gas inspectors.

She told the audience that the Weights and Measures Act is one of the first ways the government protects consumers and that it was one of the oldest pieces of legislation in the country.

Gas pumps, meters, scales — even rope, in fabric form — are checked by the department.

The Hazardous Products Act, also administered by the department of consumer and corporate affairs, is a special piece of legislation, Miss Burns said.

"It's one of the few pieces of legislation that is open-ended in that if something dangerous turns up on the market tomorrow, a law against it can be tacked on the bottom."

She related the case of a certain type of sweat shirt, produced in a middle-European country, which was banned in the United States because of extreme flammability.

The importer decided, then, to ship them across the border into Canada for sale.

Alert customs officials, who had read about the sweat shirts, called on the department of consumer and corporate affairs while holding the sweat shirts at the border.

"Within 17 or 18 hours they were handled in Canada," Miss Burns said. "That's almost like a millisecond as far as government action is concerned."

"And your're supposed to know enough not to sign your name to something if you don't understand it," she said.

"We can't catch everything and we don't hand out approvals for things," she said.

"When you have a problem with a product," she said, "get in touch with the retailer. If you don't get satisfaction, contact the manufacturer. If the manufacturer won't help and you feel you have a legitimate complaint," she said, "write The Consumer, Box 99, Ottawa, Ont."

If anyone finds a product he considers dangerous or unsafe, pick up the phone and call the Belleville office of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs and tell them you want the information passed on to Ottawa," she said.

- MR. AND MRS. PAUL FINKLE

Finkle — Bradshaw

St. Joseph's Catholic Church was the setting for the marriage of Elizabeth Anne Marie Bradshaw, daughter of Mrs. Garth J. Bradshaw and the late Garth J. Bradshaw, and Paul Martin Finkle, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Finkle, Sr., of Belleville.

The ceremony was performed by Monsignor J. A. Carley and served by Joseph and Timothy Bradshaw, youngest brothers of the bride.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Jay Bradshaw, of London, the bride wore a floor length imported white organza gown accented by Venetian lace bodice. An organza rose held her chapel length veil which was trimmed with the same lace, as were the full sleeves. She carried daisies, yellow roses and miniature gladioli with white baby's breath.

Colleen Finkle, the groom's sister, was maid of honour. She wore a pale yellow gown with a roll collar and short sleeves; it featured a floor length train. She wore yellow carnations in her hair, and carried yellow pompoms, miniature gladioli and white daisies.

Bridesmaids Cathy Finkle and Marcia Wease wore identical gowns in mint green and they wore green carnations in their hair and carried bouquets similar to the maid of honour's.

Flower girls Kerry Lee Finkle, of Waterloo, and Denise Lou Finkle were attired alike in mint green floor length gowns and carried nosegays of mums and baby's breath.

Philip Hall was best man at the wedding. Ushers were Gregory Bradshaw, the bride's brother, assisted by Peter Bradshaw, London, Bill Lucas, Peterborough and David Brenner, Peterborough.

The bride and groom travelled to the wedding reception at the Four Seasons Hotel in a purple 1911 Model T Ford.

Meat Prices No Let-up

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP) — Ham, and bacon prices will reach an all-time high in the next few days following record sales at Ontario pork markets, industry spokesmen predicted Tuesday.

The price per hundredweight (cwt.) reached $62.45 at Doncaster pork producers marketing board — about a 20-per-cent increase on last year.

He said that in the last week the Ancaster yard registered a sale of $3.8c per hundredweight and he could not predict if the trend would level off.

A spokesman for Canada Packers Ltd., which supplies many large stores, said Tuesday the price of pork still is increasing although the price of beef which has shown a steady increase in recent months appears to be stabilizing.

Consumers' News and Views

Until self-cleaning and continuous-clean ovens become common in Canadian homes, strong muscle or strong medicine is what it takes to get a messy job done.

Heavy labor appeals to few homemakers; most turn to one of the specialty products on the market for cleaning ovens. However, this strong medicine route is risky. The caustic strength of today's oven cleaners makes it essential to follow manufacturers' instructions and warnings precisely. To ensure complete safety, Consumers' Association of Canada recommends supplementary protective measures.

All oven cleaners bear "corrosive" warnings in accordance with the Hazardous Products Act. They are all dangerous if they come in contact with skin or eyes.

CAC recommends that rubber gloves, safety goggles and a face mask or damp cloth covering nose and mouth be worn when using these products. Protective equipment is readily available and inexpensive. You may look as if you are dressed for chemical warfare, but safety counts.

Batule Dress: Rubber gloves: $8 to $1.49 in supermarkets, drug and department stores. Safety goggles: $1.79 to $3.10 in general hardware stores and safety supply equipment stores. Filter mask: .38 to $7.95 in general hardware, paint and safety supply equipment stores. Replacement filters: .88 for a package of four ($2.00 for a box of 5 (decahed), in same stores.

Caustic oven cleaners can damage clothing, floors and other surfaces. Most oven cleaners are safe to use on stainless steel and porcelain enamel on steel, the types of surfaces most commonly used for ovens. However, drippings are practically inevitable. And CAC advises placing newspaper on the floor under the oven door to protect linoleum, asphalt, tile, plastic surfaces, varnish or paint. Aluminum corrodes quickly if it comes in contact with caustic oven cleaners. Avoid drippings on electrical connections and temperature sensing devices. Consult individual product labels for complete information on types of surfaces to be protected.

Oven cleaners containing caustic substances give first aid measures for accidental contact with eyes and skin as required by the regulations under the Hazardous Products Act. If the product is splashed on the skin, the quickest remedy is a dousing under a tap of cool running water. The most readily available antidotes for swallowing are three or four glasses of water or milk. According to the Ottawa Poison Control Centre, diluted vinegar while acceptable as an antidote, may present problems. When a caustic substance is swallowed, it damages the oesophagus on its way to the stomach. If the victim is simultaneously drinked vinegar, he may gag and vomit, thereby damaging the oesophagus a second time. Never induce vomiting when a caustic material has been swallowed.

CAC recommends that there be standardization in the regulations under the Hazardous Products Act to include oven protectors containing methylene chloride, a chemical very dangerous to eyes. CAC further urges that as a general principle all hazardous products bear information on first aid measures and antidotes to prevent injury.

Pottery: Unique, Functional

EDMONTON (CP) — The skill of a potter is learned, not inborn, "although it helps to have a sense of design," says David Green, owner and manager of Studio West.

He recommends that beginners take an introductory course before investing in their own equipment. Studio West offers a comprehensive 24-week course for $170.

Less expensive, shorter classes are offered by the Edmonton Potter's Guild, the University of Alberta and the city parks department.

Studio West begins its instruction with lectures on basic clay chemistry, said Mr. Green. Then students are taught the process of wedging, similar to kneading bread, in which the clay is worked to uniform consistency and air bubbles are driven out.

"The pinch pot technique is the most elementary form. You take a ball of clay, put the thumb down the middle and pinch out the sides."

Next, Mr. Green shows his students—most of whom are between 25 and 40 years old—how to build with coils, or long, rounded strips of clay rolled between the fingers, a technique requiring slightly more control.

Angular forms such as boxes and square bases are made from slabs of clay rolled smooth with a rolling pin and cut with a sharp blade. Then the various building techniques are combined, coils are added to boxes and round shapes are flattened.

After the more elementary forms are mastered, said Mr. Green, students begin "throwing" on an electrically-powered potter's wheel.

"Centring," which ensures that the pot will be symmetrical by placing the clay on the centre of the wheel's surface, is accomplished by applying equal pressure in opposite directions to a spinning, rounded mass of clay.

With the thumb and fingers the clay is opened into a squat, thick-walled cylinder and pulled into shape.

Pots are fired twice in oven-like kilns. During the first or "bisque" firing, pots are made hard and porous under temperatures up to 1,700 degrees.

After cooling, the pots are glazed. Oxide glazes, made from such metals as iron, nickel and chrome, are used as color agents and may be combined. In the final firing, under temperatures up to 2,300 degrees, clay and glaze become fused into glass.

If the potter is enthusiastic enough to set up his own workshop, said Mr. Green, wheels and kilns can either be purchased locally or handmade.

An electrical potter's wheel costs about $300 commercially and a manual kick wheel about $170. An electric kiln with an inside firing chamber of 18 inches square costs about $300, and clay, which can be re-used in any time before firing, is $5 for 50 pounds.

Commercially - produced glazes can be purchased, said Mr. Green, but the colors are usually rather gaudy. "A better idea is to go to a book or a potter, pick up glaze recipes and mix your own chemicals."

A kick wheel can be made fairly easily for $20 out of concrete or wood and metal, he said. While a few library books provide blueprints, "it's probably best to visit several pottery studios, photograph and sketch their wheels, then design your own."

An electric kiln can be made of high-temperature fire brick for about $100 and will be safe if properly inspected. Gas kilns, which must be larger to be efficient, cost more. "But knowledge of heat physics is a must," said Mr. Green.

A pottery workshop in the home could pay for itself. With the increasing demand for handmade pottery in architecture and interior design and for stoneware in restaurants, the market for selling quality work is good.

Ann Landers

A Little for Yourself

Dear Ann Landers: I want to thank my secretary for the 37-year-old wife and mother of three who is trying to keep me say it.Feeling Fine

Dear F.: Now that you've said it, what am I going to say to those prune-faced, sparrow-legged size-eights who will be writing to me?

Dear Ann Landers: Our 20-year-old son tore your column out of the paper today and published it to the family bulletin board. Across the top he wrote: "See, I am right."

You talked about the importance of laughter, and I keeps people sane and said, "Life would be unbearable without it."

Our son, a college student, is a nice, clean kid who works summers to pay his own tuition. His problem is his mouth. He tears his 18-year-old brother unmercifully. He also makes caustic remarks to his eight-year-old brother who is overweight. The little guy is in tears most of the time.

Your column made him very happy. Please put your remarks in the proper context. My husband and I are sure you didn't mean what this boy seems to think you meant.—M And D

Dear M And D: You don't say what this boy resembles but his friends or if he reserves his barbs for the family. I'm betting it's a case of his total personality, and that he doesn't have many friends.

A 20-year-old knows the difference between laughter and ridicule. Laughter gives people a lift. Ridicule puts people down. I hope you will look deeper into this situation and give the older boy the emotional support he needs. He's a very unhappy kid who could use some counselling.

Dear Ann Landers: For years I've been annoyed by the flabby overweight people. We've been called "Fatty," "Tubbo," "Fat Cats," "Big Berthas" and so on.

Why is it that no one ever says a word about the 50-year-old tarter with a face like a dried prune? She wears size eight shorts and a halter top when she does her marketing. Her legs look like a sparrow's when she clomps around in those ugly platform shoes.

Yes, I'm fat, but my husband would rather have me this way than

Successful Living

More Older Children Adopted Through Child Care Agencies

By DORIS CLARK

More and more childless homes are accepting the challenge to take in the problems of the older child who is alone in the world, by adoption.

It used to be that only small babies were considered adoptable.

Many of these children - say between ages of three and 12 - have come into the care of the child care agencies as a result of a permanent family breakdown. Many of them show signs of rebellion against a world which seems to have rejected them. These are the youngsters which the courageous and childless couples gallantly take on.

Child care workers help them through the early stages; until both child and parent feel themselves to be accepted and loved by each other.

For many a child who cannot return to his own parents, adoption has proved to be the most appropriate and rewarding solution.

Dear Doris: Marions teacher is concerned because she is so very quiet with strange adults and at school. She is nine; never responds to questions in class and lacks enthusiasm.

The advice of social workers and doctors is not to pressure her, but to encourage her to do things for herself. They suggest that she be helped to overcome her fear of the world by her to deliver packages or messages to our friends.

She also has a problem of auditory perception; she is slow in understanding things which are said to her. Sometimes she gets very tired but she wakes up fast enough when she is excited or angered.

When her Dad is home they have happy hours together playing games or outdoor sports in which we all join, like canoeing and fishing. I think both my husband and I are a bit shy - and too eager. —Marion's Mother.

* * *

Dear Doris: Marion's teacher Mother: The worst thing that could happen would be for Marion to feel singled out or to get a self-image of herself which the social worker is right.

It would be a move in the right direction if you were to help her to have impromptu parties and games in her own living-room. Even if she could get to be good friends with one or two other girls, so that they would talk and play together with refreshments, this would help the auditory perception difficulty.

* * *

Do not overprotect; be sure there is no real hearing loss associated with the auditory perception; give her love and praise.

Let the games her father plays with her always include a challenge; and keep up all reasonable activities. I am sending you my 26-cent leaflet, "Children With Learning Disabilities", to help you to understand what your problem - or I might say "project" - is.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am enclosing 40 cents and a self-addressed envelope, stamped, from which I would appreciate having you send me the pamphlet on what to do about large pores.

I'd also like to know if you have any booklet on facials. I feel that I need to get to work on my face and neck. — Fiftyish.

* * *

Dear Fiftyish: If those large pores are part of a greasy complexion, and if they get plugged with blackheads and pimples, you need the acne treatment.

Meanwhile, you are concerned about your complexion; with that "full flush of youth" fading away, aren't you? You can improve your face and neck with a little regular care.

* * *

So I am sending you two leaflets for your 40 cents: "Lovelier With The Years" and "Complexion Care After 50". You will see also there are several ideas about how to give yourself a facial, how to handle make-up, how to fool the years. If you'd like the Acne leaflet too, write again enclosing 20 cents and another stamped, self-addressed envelope.

(Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Pastoral Scenes in Mink

ROME (AP) — Italian-American designer Frank Martieri opened the showings of Italian fall and winter fashions Sunday night with a revival of the 1920s' veiled faces.

Martieri had hooded dresses that made his models look like nuns and tight-fitting caps with short veils that covered the brow and the tiger face. Some dresses were sleeveless and low cut, others rose white, ranging from rabbit to high round the neck and occasionally had a short cape.

Day wear included a lot of heavy woollens in green, are not expected to show any salmon and dark blue. Knee- length, A-line skirts and tailored jackets were very much in evidence.

Most believe that knee lengths have come back to stay for awhile. Tastes differed, however, when it came to deciding whether the silhouette should be slim and fitting or flared and pleated.

Mid or maxi lengths, mink, mid or maxi lengths, even when it came to deciding whether the silhouette should be slim and fitting or flared and pleated.

Mr. Martieri's models were striped furs to protect such endangered animals as the leopard and the tiger.

The 36 fashion houses showing their full flush of youth' fading away, aren't you? You can improve your face and neck with a little regular care.

Armchair Detectives Enjoy TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With the anundance of detective shows on television, the confirmed chair spotter has ample opportunity to practise this unperfect art.

Of course, some programs show the viewer everything and expect you to sit back and watch while the hero plods toward a solution.

But the kind I like best keep you in the dark—if not about the culprit at least about how the detective will find him out.

In Columbo you always know who the killer is, but the opportunity is there to spot the clues that the raincoat-clad detective will piece together for a solution.

Last Sunday Columbo looked at photographs of a movie star's long dead husband and commented on a Shriners' ring and the husband's height. We caught a quick view of a garden fountain and there were remarks about the husband's dis appearance on a fishing trip.

So Columbo was able to determine that a current killing was to cover up the 10-year-old murder of the husband. He was actually buried under the garden fountain.

The thing about Columbo is that he notices everything and comments on everything. He babbles about shoes, rings, cigars and whatnot. The rub is separating the trival from the important.

On NBC's Cool Million, jet-set hero Jefferson Keyes collects his customary fee of a million dollars from the president of an African country for rescuing his daughter. Unfortunately, the cheque bounces and Keyes flies back in his private jet for his money.

The president tosses Keyes and his pilot out of the country. In that scene there is a seemingly purposeless shot of the presidential diamond displayed in a glass case. And deported with Keyes is a man who delivered a jet plane to the president and is not paid for it.

When Keyes vows he collects his million dollars one way or another, you think back to the diamond. Sure enough, he slips back into the country with his pilot and swipes it. And when he needs a quick exit you remember the presidential jet sitting there just waiting to be flown to safety.

Ladies of the Locks Work Well

TRENTON — Something has been added to locks along the Trent River — women.

For the first time since lock system opened more than 15 years ago, girls have been hired on for the summer as an experiment.

The federal government, administrators of the waterway number from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay, opened the doors this year to four girls, and if successful, will continue using girls next summer in an expanded program.

Jennifer Burford, a 23-year-old English major now studying at the University of Toronto for her Bachelor of Education, didn't believe Canada Manpower was serious when they accepted her application.

"They sent me up here but I wasn't optimistic," she said. "For the past two years I have worked in hospitals and this job is a terrific change."

Mrs. Burford and the other girls are paid $3.37 an hour for working three-and-a half days (40 hours) doing the same work as their male federal counterparts.

She says the hardest part of the job is cutting the expansive lawns surrounding the lock stations. Included in her duties are operating the lock, helping boaters and recording the registration numbers of more than 1,500 craft expected to use the system this summer.

Mrs. Burford, being her first day on the job, was a little reluctant and apprehensive about what would be expected of her by fellow workers.

"I didn't know if I would be able to handle the manual opening of the locks or be able to keep up with the chores."

Since her first day she has not looked back and speaks with great praise of the men work the locks on a permanent basis.

"The men are all great, and always lots of fun and willing to help," she said.

Lindsay Johnston, No. 2 lockmaster, speaks with equal praise of Mrs. Burford. She does a real good job and outworks some of the boys we've had around here."

This summer has been a record number of students hired by the Trent Canal Incorporated by a student exchange program bringing French students to the locks. Nine students have been hired by the Trent locks.

The move came from the federal government in an attempt to help bilingual service to boaters, an offshoot of winter legislation calling for all government agencies to adopt both of Canada's official languages.

Two bilingual students are working on lock No. 1, Lock north of Trenton, Martin Manse of Trenton, and Paul Landry of Chambly, Quebec.

Brighton Declared A Disaster Area

TORONTO — The Ontario Cabinet has declared the Lake Ontario village of Brighton a disaster area, Reeve Dorothy Reinhardt was informed this afternoon.

The decision by the cabinet was made Wednesday, Government officials met Thursday with a citizen's committee to begin planning a fundraising drive. The province will match dollar for dollar any money the committee raises.

Insurance adjusters are still assessing the damage caused by a severe, 20-minute storm that struck last Friday.

Officials at the disaster weather office in Trenton, nine miles northeast of Brighton, have been unable to confirm reports that the storm was accompanied by a tornado, although one conceded there is a "fair bit of evidence leaning toward a small tornado."

Destruction from the storm centred on six streets. Trees and utility poles were knocked down. Roofs were ripped open. The old town hall, about to be demolished and a church steeple were destroyed.

Mrs. Brintnell said damage was in excess of ten of thousands of dollars.

She said the public utilities commission will have to issue debentures to cover the cost of restoring hydro services and the council will have to cover the costs of new street lighting.

M.D. Thomas, director of the subsidies branch for the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs said the assistance would only go to private property owners.

He said funds are to be used only to repair houses and mobile equipment and not summer cottages, trailers and boats.

"It applies to basic shelter necessities and can help small business in a small way," he said. "It's to help people on losses over and above what insurance companies cover."

Woman Drowns In Son's Pool

STIRLING — A widow visiting her son just north of here fell into a swimming pool and drowned in eight feet of water Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Olive Irene Ward, 67, was a resident of Nob Bay. A post mortem conducted at Belleville General Hospital by Dr. P. N. Cassidy at 3:45 p.m. confirmed her death was due to drowning.

Mrs. Ward had been staying since last Friday with her son, Morley Ward, whose home on the Fifth Concession of Rawdon Township one mile west of Highway 62, also has a 16-by-35-foot swimming pool.

A neighbor walking by the pool saw Mrs. Ward's body in the deep end at about 3 p.m. She called Mr. Ward but the woman was already dead.

Mrs. Ward's body was referred to North Bay last night.

Car Crash Injures Two

PICTON — A Belleville motorist and his passenger were taken to hospital last night following a one-car collision on Highway 14.

Driver of the car, Wayne Dawkins, 21, of Belleville, received back injuries. His passenger, Ian Hall of Ottawa, was treated for a fractured spinal vertebrae. Damage to the vehicle, owned by Charles Burton of RR 2, Picton, was estimated at $2,000.

Sailing Course Attractive

Monique Poirier, 16, is one of dozens of Trenton young people to take advantages of a sailing course offered through the town's recreation department. Each day three classes learn the basics of sailing with instructors confident that students will be racing by the end of the one-week course. Students have been sailing solo since Tuesday with instructors on the dock and in a powered launch shouting advice to floundering boats.

Annexation Possible For Sewer Service

Subject to passing of a notice of motion presented this week in council by Alderman Arthur Keegan, annexation proceedings by Belleville to take in adjacent areas of Sidney and Thurlow townships could be in the offing.

The veteran Belleville Alderman, in his notice of motion, asked that the "necessary steps be taken, describing the area in Sidney and Thurlow townships to be so annexed by the city for future expansion or any other steps to be suggested before any water and sewer agreement are entered into the city and the townships."

The notice of motion will come up for discussion at the next meeting of city council on August 13.

Thurlow township is looking to the city for water service for the village of Canifton as well as for two proposed subdivisions north and east of the city. Sidney is also looking for services for a proposed housing subdivision west of the city.

The new sanitary trunk sewer, installed last year up the Moira River was put in by the the Ontario Water Resources Commission with the view of ultimately providing sewer service in the Canadian area north of the city.

The other purpose in mind for the sewer line was to provide sanitary sewer service for the city's northeast industrial park and the Hillcrest area.

Two Charged In Thefts Of Automobiles

OUTLET PARK — Two youths were arrested by Picton provincial police at Outlet Park Wednesday night and charged in connection with two reported car thefts earlier in the day.

Charged were John Armstrong, 19, Toronto, and Mansel Gray, 17, of Ottawa.

A car owned by Kenneth Taylor, RR1, Milford, and taken from the parking lot of a Picton accounting firm, was recovered, along with an automobile reported stolen by Belleville provincial police.

Police Chief George Pitt of Picton, assisted by the local OPP following disappearance of the Taylor car, said beds and cots were released on bail until Aug. 22 after they had been charged.

Experiment Turning Out Well

Jennifer Burford, 23, studying at the University of Toronto, is one of four women hired to work on Trent waterway locks this summer. Mrs. Burford didn't take Canada Manpower seriously when they accepted her application and wasn't sure if she could handle the manual opening of locks. Lindsay Johnston, a permanent employee, pitched in to help with opening the gates and later said, "She outworks some of the boys we've had around here." The hiring of women has been taken on as an experiment this summer and, if successful, will be continued in following years.

John Pringle, a Hard Man to Follow

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

A Belleville lawyer, hearing about John Pringle's appointment as a County Court judge had mixed reactions.

"It's good because he was an excellent Crown Attorney," he said, "but it could be bad because he'll be hard to replace."

The sentiment, shared by the entire Quinte legal community, reflects the high esteem in which Hastings County's Crown Attorney for the past 17 years is held.

Mr. Pringle, named last week as judge in the Lake Erie tobacco county of Norfolk, is also well known for his fair approach to the difficult job of prosecutor. As William Argue, president of the Hastings Bar Association and a friend for 20 years states:

"He has followed the line that his job as Crown Attorney was to bring out the facts — good and bad — not to convict."

Mr. Pringle says his own approach to the position was set out when, he took the oath in 1956 to uphold the "duties, powers and trusts of Crown Attorney without favor or affection to any party."

"I always considered the office a trust," he says. "It's not a case of being aloof or snobbish, but you must try to lead an exemplary life."

The hundreds of phone calls and telegrams received during his office offering congratulations would seem to be evidence that he has, as Mr. Argue says, practised his profession with "compassion and understanding". One caller, a convicted criminal now gone straight, thanked him for the compassion he showed while sending him to jail.

An example of Mr. Pringle's style, Mr. Argue recounts, was the conviction of a dangerous man but when the jury was released the jury he was not sure the man was a dangerous man he'd seen in committing the robbery; it appeared evidence was insufficient.

But Mr. Pringle, acting as Crown, recalled that during a preliminary hearing some earlier the incident, the witness had been panicked the two persons were the same. He told the witness to read his testimony from the hearing transcript and in doing so, "practically invited the judge to dismiss the charge" because of the witness' dubious credibility.

In the end, the man was convicted and sent to jail But it was the Crown Attorney's desire to see the facts emerge that corrected what might have been a fateful memory lapse, despite the fact he was placing his case in serious jeopardy.

Law has been an integral part of the Pringle family for nearly 200 years. With the admission of Mr. Pringle's niece, last year, it marked the fifth generation to enter the legal profession.

The trend began with Mr. Pringle's great - great - grandfather who was a judge in Scotland during the 1790s. He was followed by his son, first County Court Judge of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry in the 1860s.

In fact, the only, maverick was Mr. Pringle's father. He decided to join the railroad and was vice-president of Canadian National Railways when he died.

John Pringle was born in Montreal but spent most of his childhood in Toronto. One his us came during grades 10 and 11 when he attended school at Belleville's Albert College.

During the War He, too flew in the rear of Royal Canadian Air Force Wellingtons as a tail-gunner until a 1944 medical examination in France revealed he had night blindness.

"My eyes couldn't adapt to starlight conditions at 20,000 feet," he now recalls.

His misfortune, however, turned out to be one of those quirks of fate. Shortly after, the commission was cancelled and only one man survived.

After graduating from University of New Brunswick Law School, Mr. Pringle was admitted to the Bar of New Brunswick and Ontario in 1952. He articled with a Kingston lawyer, Hugh Gibson, who has since become Mr. Justice Gibson of the Federal Court of Canada.

Following his training period Mr. Pringle joined his brother, Robert, who had been a successful lawyer in Belleville since 1937. The two were active in litigation and real estate until Crown Attorney Richard Arnold went back to private practice in 1956, thereby vacant the post Mr. Pringle went on to fill until last week.

The brothers enjoyed a thriving business but the case the stands out most in Mr. Pringle's mind is one that eventually landed him in the Supreme Court of Canada.

His client wanted to sue a Deseronto - area farmer who allowed several cows to wander through a fence into the road, causing an accident that injured the client's knee.

Prior to that, English Common Law deemed that cattle had the right of way. But Mr. Pringle won decisions at every level, finally getting the law reversed in the country's highest courts.

Asked why he applied for the Crown Attorney's job, Mr. Pringle says he wanted more "positive action". At no time was he busier than during 1967 extradition hearings for Seafarer's International Union boss, Hal Banks, which he conducted in the United States on behalf of the province of Ontario — a case, incidentally, that brought him national prominence.

Mr. Pringle heard his extradition warrent on the grounds that Mr. Banks had committed perjury during a Royal Commission hering in Ottawa. At the hearing, Mr. Banks declared he never used aliases or names on a ship's captain, but shortly after at a conspiracy trial in Montreal he was convicted of sending men to beat up the captain.

Mr. Pringle was sent to Brockiyn where Mr. Banks had fled following his release in Montreal on $50,000 bail. The matter ended up in the hands of Dean Rusk, secretary of state during President Lyndon Johnson's Democratic regime, who decided that although perjury was an extradiable offence, the offence on which it was based, assault, was not.

"It came out that shortly before and after Mr. Banks' dection. The union pumped hundreds of thousands of dollars into the Democratic party. I don't know what all the controversy in the United States now is about. It's been going on for years."

Looking at chanes that have taken place during his 20 years of law in Belleville, Mr. Pringle cites two major differences.

The volume of cases has gone up as the population's increased. Just look at the number of lawyers in Belleville now. It's at least double."

Facilities for the profession have also expanded — particularly with the opening of Hastings County's new courthouse in 1968 and the Quinte Regional Detention Centre 10 years later.

"There's a lott beter accommodation not only for bearing the public but also in the way of better housing for accused persons. The Court of Norfolk "no would have felt rights at home in that old jal."

He doesn't pretend to have all the solutions to crime.

"I don't think the answer to crime is to have more police or to eliminate conditions that breed crime," he says. "Not all criminals come from the slums. In high schools, I say to the kids: 'There's a lot of ways you can beat the law but you should try ot better it'. . . You should treat each case as it comes up."

Viewing the future, Mr. Pringle says "it's a complete new legal career." The next few weeks 'will be taken up a tieh moving out of his country house near Carlying Place as he, his wife Barbara, and their two children, Beth and Fraser, prepare for a new home in Simcoe.

There will also be plenty of reading to do. Besides becoming Judge of Norfolk County, he also takes on the offices of of local judge of the high court of justice in Ontario, surrogate court judge a nd local master of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Pringle says:that as a Crown Attorney, "you've got to walk alone". He plans to apply the same principle to his new appointment.

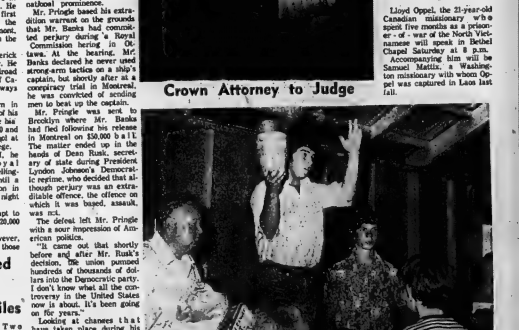
But wherever he returns to Hastings County, there will always be countless friends and acquaintances to make sure he is not wanting for company. Mr. Pringle is, indeed, a man who will be hard to replace.

Ceremony August 17

John Pringle will be sworn in as County Court Judge of Norfolk County on Aug. 17.

The ceremony will take place in the county seat of Simcoe. Mr. Pringle will also assume the offices of local judge of the high court of justice in Ontario, surrogate court judge and local master of the Supreme Court.

Crown Attorney of Hastings County for the past 17 years, Mr. Pringle learned of the appointment last Friday when it was announced in Ottawa by Justice Minister Otto Lang.



His first inkling, he says, came six weeks before when he received a phone call asking if he would be willing to go anywhere in Ontario to take a county judge post.

Meanwhile, the Hastings legal community is waiting to hear who his successor will be. An announcement is expected at Queen's Park in the near future.

Mays Late Addition

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays, a last-minute addition to the National League squad, will be captain of the team on Tuesday night's All-Star game in Kansas City.

National League president Chub Feeney announced today that he and manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati Reds have added the 42-year-old New York Mets' player to the team. It will be Mays' 24th all-star game, tying the record held by former St. Louis Cardinals' great Stan Musial.

Anderson's other selections, completing the 28-man squad, included right fielder Bobby Bonds of San Francisco Giants, but cut the starting team selected by baseball fans despite his batting average of .306, with 25 home runs and 67 runs batted in.

Willie Davis and Manny Mota of Los Angeles Dodgers, Ron Fairly of Montreal Expos and Bob Watson of Houston Astros were the other outfielders selected by Anderson.

The other all-stars named to day were catcher Ted Simmons of St. Louis and infielders Nate Colbert of San Diego Padres, Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati, Darrell Evans and Dave Johnson of Atlanta Braves, Joe Torre of St. Louis and Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Dodgers and Reds have the most All-Stars on this year's National League team, five apiece.

Anderson's coaches Tuesday night will be managers Gene Mauch of Montreal and Bill Virdon of Pittsburgh.

Dick Williams Hospitalized

OAKLAND (AP) — Dick Williams, manager of Oakland Athletics, was admitted Thursday to Merritt Hospital for an emergency appendectomy.

"It was really sudden and took everybody by surprise," Athletics' public relations director Bob Fullon said.

Williams, as manager of baseball's world champions, is scheduled to act as American League manager for next Tuesday's All-Star Game in Kansas City. The Athletics were off Thursday.

Williams, 44, is in his third season as A's manager and the team has won division titles for him in 1971 and 1972. He managed Boston Red Sox to the American League pennant in 1967.

North Stars Sign 3 More

The National Hockey League team now has signed eight of its 12 amateur picks, including its top six.

Ostlund, the No. 5 choice, scored 29 points and had 200 penalty minutes last season for Saskatoon of the Western Hockey League. Lee, the sixth pick, had 41 goals and 67 assists for Ottawa in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. Clegg, the No. 10 choice, recorded a 4.12 goals against average for Medicine Hat in the West Canada Junior League.

Thomas Traded

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — San Diego Chargers traded running back Duane Thomas to Washington Redskins Thursday night for two high future draft choices.

The Chargers announced that the Redskins gave up their No. 1 draft pick in 1975 and No. 2 choice in 1976 for Thomas, 28, who was traded from Dallas Cowboys a year ago but never played a game for San Diego.

Liske Signs

CALGARY (CP) — Peter Liske, the quarterback who won the 1967 Schenley Trophy as Canada's outstanding player, signed with Calgary Stampeders Thursday and will see action in Tuesday exhibition game here with Toronto Argonauts, general manager Robert Lebew of the Western Football Conference club announced.

Lebew said Liske, 31, "is happy to come back and said he looks forward to lots of action." Lebewe declined to disclose details of the contract.

Liske left Stampeders for the National Football League's Denver Broncos after Calgary's 1966 Grey Cup loss to Ottawa Rough Riders. He played with the Broncos for two years and was then traded to Philadelphia Eagles. He was cut by the Eagles last week.

Liske first came to the Stampeders from the Argonauts in 1966. Before that, he was with the Buffalo Bills.

It was also announced that Sept. 23 has been designated as the Wayne Harris night to make the departure of the 12-year veteran with Stampeders.

2nd Straight No-hitter Just Six Outs Away

Nolan Ryan missed his chance for two straight no-hitters with just six outs to go. But the California Angels right-hander figures he still has a chance at a record third one this season.

Ryan no-hit Kansas City Royals early in the season and did it to Detroit Tigers last Sunday. He hadn't allowed a hit by Baltimore Orioles Thursday night until Mark Belanger looped a single over the infield with two out in the eighth.

NOLAN RYAN

Baltimore won the game 3-1 in 11 innings, putting the record of Ryan at only 11-12 on the day he had been selected to the American League All-Star team.

Elsewhere in the abbreviated American League schedule, Minnesota Twins downed Boston Red Sox 6-2 and Milwaukee Brewers beat Texas Rangers 4-1.

In the National League it was Chicago Cubs 5 San Diego Padres 5; Los Angeles Dodgers 8 St. Louis Cardinals 2, and Cincinnati Reds 3 Montreal Expos 2.

Nolan wasn't in the game at the finish. Manager Bobby Winkles removed him after Tommy Davis singled with one out in the top of the 11th. Dave Sells gave up a two-run double to Terry Crowley for the winning margin.

Asked if he had gone after the second straight no-hiter, Ryan answered readily: "I went into the game to give it my best shot. What the heck, it's not too often you get a chance like that."

Ryan struck out 12, walked five, gave two wild pitches and hit a batter, all within the regulation nine innings.

He has recorded 41 strikeouts in his last three games, setting an American League record and equalling the major league one.

His 26 strikeouts in his last two games tie the American League record held by Sam McDowell of the Yankees. Ryan, who topped the league with 329 strikeouts last season, leads both leagues with 233 this year.

"It was an up and in fast ball," Belanger said of the pitch he hit. "He jammed the hell out of me but I'll take that hit and every one like it I can get."

Crowley said he had hit a slider off Sells for his two run double and indicated he thought the pitch might have had something to do with it.

"Gaylord Perry would have been proud of that pitch," Crowley said referring to the Cleveland hurler frequently accused of throwing spitters.

Although the Angels touched veteran left-hander Mike Cuellar for nine hits, the southpaw kept them well spaced in winning his seventh victory against nine defeats.

Red Carew doubled home the tie-breaking run with two out in the eighth inning and Bobby Darwin added a bases-loaded triple following an international walk to Tony Oliva, pacing the Twins over the Red Sox. Joe Decker pitched a five-hitter for Minnesota.

Milwaukee's Skip Lockwood held Texas hitless for six innings and then needed relief help from Eduardo Rodriguez in the seventh to protect the Brewers' victory over the Rangers.

Al Downing maintained his mastery over St. Louis by throttling the Cardinals on three hits in pitching the Dodgers to their victory with last-out help from Jim Brewer. The Dodgers won for the 11th time in their last 13 games.

Jose Cardenal slammed a three-run double and a solo homer, helping the Cubs erase a 4-0 deficit and snap a six-game losing streak by beating the Padres. Five unearned runs in the sixth also helped the Cubs increase their National League East lead over St. Louis to 1½ games.

Pete Rose put Cincinnati in front with a two-run single in the second inning and Dan Driessen singled home what the third and the Reds went on to defeat the Expos. Ross Grimsley survived home runs by Bob Bailey and Bob Stinson to post his fifth consecutive victory.

Ryan Joins AL Squad

BOSTON (AP) — Hard-throwing Nolan Ryan of the California Angels, who has pitched two no-hit games this season became the 25th player on the American League roster Thursday for next week's All-Star baseball classic in Kansas City.

Ryan, 11-11, who leads the league in strikeouts with 239 and has a blazing fastball, was now on Oakland Manager Dick Williams' original list of pitchers, but room for him was made when authorities was given up as a result of balloting granted to both teams 1: increase the size of the squads from 28 to 29 players.

Williams, manager of the All-Star cast because his Athletics won the American League pennant, and subsequently the World Series, last season, said Wednesday he had already picked his pitching staff before Ryan tossed his second no-hitter in Detroit Sunday.

The rest of the reserves announced by the office of Joe Cronin, American League president, were:

First base—Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox and John Mayberry of Kansas City Royals; second base—Cookie Rojas of Kansas City and Dave Nelson of Texas Rangers; third base—Sal Bando of Oakland and Buddy Bell of Cleveland Indians; shortstop—Eddie Brinkman of Detroit Tigers and catchers Thurman Munson of New York Yankees and Bill Freehan of Detroit Tigers.

Outfielders named were Paul Blair of Baltimore Orioles, Willie Horton of Detroit and Dave May of Milwaukee Brewers.

Williams also named Pat Kelly of Chicago as a replacement for White Sox' first baseman Dick Allen, who is recovering from a broken leg. Allen had been named to the starting

Rollins Again Alone in First

By AL TENHOUTE

Rollins Construction moved back into sole possession of first place in the Consecon Softball League last night as they edged the Elks Juniors 4-3. Earlier in the day, Rollins had been deaded that position by a ruling of a protest game against Dovetin Motors he replayed. In the first game of the doubleheader, Bardon Supplies had gained a tie for fifth spot with the Canners as they upset Howard and Robert Printing 6-3.

Rollins picked up their 13th win of the season by scoring a single run in the first inning and three in the third. Carl Boomhower led the game off with a walk and went to second on a bunt single by Glenn Carleton. Consecutive fly balls by Ralph Plane and Paul Goodfellow chased the run home.

In the third, Glenn Carleton got his second hit of the game with one out. Ralph Plane then stepped to the plate and crunched a home run. Paul Goodfellow followed by reaching base on an error. Wayne McTaggart ran to first base on a single and Goodfellow raced home on a passed ball by catcher Allen Rorando.

The Juniors got single tallies in the third and fifth innings. In the third Gerry Maunsell started off the rally with a single. After two outs, Ted Wallwork stepped into the batter's box and threw in the third. Carl Boomhower led the game off with a walk and went to second on a bunt single by Glenn Carleton. Consecutive fly balls by Ralph Plane and Paul Goodfellow chased the run home.

Lions Roar

The Belleville Lions' peewee lacrosse team came up with a 5-3 win over East York Peewees in SCIAA Action last night. Steve Riddell had four goals for the winners, while Jamie Forster and Kevin Gow got two apiece.

Steve Thomas and Jerry Potts shared the shutout for Belleville. The home club took 13 penalties on the game as opposed to four for the visiting Belleville team.

Expo Tryout Camp

Young Players Get A Chance

Two of the players who will take part in the Montreal Expo tryout camp in Belleville July 24 are pitchers Mike McClelland, a midget, and John Masterson, a juvenile. Masterson is also a member of the South Hastings Baseball League Eats team.

The two have received personal invitations to attend the camp. They will be under close scrutiny by the scouts activating in Expo area representative Leo Brisley.

Brisley said the two ames are on file in Montreal and the invitations have been sent out on behalf of the Expo scouting staff.

The camp, one of 21 to be held in Eastern Canada between July 7 and August 18, will be held at the Parkdale diamond. It will be conducted by Bill McKechnie, administrative assistant for Expo player development. He will be assisted by Pete Clarifone and Claude St. Vincent who are part time scouts in the Montreal team's organization.

Open to any boy 18 years of age or over, the camp will consist of a workout and a practice game. Also included in the camp will be an extra session at the end of the day for players interested in trying out for Team Canada. The team will represent Canada in the International Championships in Italy in September and in Nicaragua, November 24 to December 12.

The same type of tryout camps have been directly responsible for the signing of several players to professional contracts. Two of these players are pitchers, Bill Atkinson of Chatham is with West Palm Beach of the Florida Class A League and Joe Leeder of Brockville is with Jamestown of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

At the local level, the camp is expected to draw players from as far away as Kingston and Peterborough. The closest camps to Belleville will be held in Toronto and Brockville.

The bulk of the Belleville players expected to try out are from the midget and juvenile ranks.

night's Belleville and District Ladies Softball League - valiant but unsuccessful.

The Barn scored five times in the seventh inning but it was not enough as T. Bailey Roofing bung on for a 14-9 victory.

Donna Brant hurled the win for the third place Roofers allowing 11 hits and striking out four. She also led all hitters with a home run, double and single.

Rita Nobes and Marg Scanlon had a homer and single for the Barn. Suzanne Fobert took the loss.

WON'T BLOCK PADRES

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A state appeals court decided Thursday to move by the City of San Diego to block the shift of the San Diego Padres National League baseball team to Washington, D.C. After learning of the order, the city said it would go to the California Supreme Court.

Will Luck Change For Mark Donohue?

That answer could be this weekend. That's when Donohue heads the season's rivalry and strongest field of Can-Am cars at Watkins Glen.

With 1,300 horsepower produced by a super-sophisticated turbocharged, 4-litre, 12-cylinder engine, wrapped up in a windtunnel developed streamlined body, piloted by one of the best drivers in the world, the Porsche-Sunoco car should be a world beater. It hasn't been for only one reason. Luck.

In the season opener at Mosport, body damage in the early laps kept fastest qualifier Donohue from showing the new Luck - Porsche's potential. At Road Atlanta, a broken fuel fitting in the cockpit dampened Donohue's enthusiasm with fuel unsuccessful.

The Barn scored five times in the seventh inning but it was not enough as T. Bailey Roofing bung on for a 14-9 victory.

WON'T BLOCK PADRES

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A state appeals court decided Thursday to move by the City of San Diego to block the shift of the San Diego Padres National League baseball team to Washington, D.C. After learning of the order, the city said it would go to the California Supreme Court.

Also in the hunt for the pot of gold and championship points this weekend at Watkins Glen will be the Rinaker-Roy-al Crown Cola Porsche team of Charlie Kemp and George Follmer. Each has scored wins in the two opening races, much to the chagrin of the Penske team. Chuck Cantrell and last year's Penske team cars, purchased at the end of the season by millionaire Bob Rinaker.

Being beaten by their own cars hasn't pleased the Penske organization at all.

John Cirelli of Huntsville, Ont., driving a McLaren M8 for World Racing of California has been having considerable difficulty making the car go the distance on the fuel available in the tanks.

Twice this year, at Mosport and Road Atlanta, the Canadian driver has been running near the front of the field when a lack of fuel dropped him down the fishing order.

What it's running, Cordes manages to push the dated McLaren, built to comply with the sophistication of the later McLarens' and the new Porsche very close to the leaders.

He's hoping to have the fuel problem sorted out by this weekend.

Follmer and Kemp are tied, in the Can-Am points standings with 39 apiece. Donohue has 18 and Bob Nagel of Libwary, Pa., has 18 — very, very close to Mark's book.

Not to be counted out of the running however are brilliant newcomer Jody Schecker of South Africa, Hurley Haywood, David Hobbs, Mario Andretti and always lurking about waiting for the crash to pick up Jackie Oliver in the race's real dark horse, the TOP Racing car.

In the Shadow's case it will be two days for Oliver and Mc-Lorner isn't sure which one will be in the starting gate.

Expo Tryout Camp
Young Players Get A Chance
Two of the players who will take part in the Montreal Expo tryout camp in Belleville July 24 are pitchers Mike McClelland, a midget, and John Masterson, a juvenile. Masterson is also a member of the South Hastings Baseball League Eats team.
The two have received personal invitations to attend the camp. They will be under close scrutiny by the scouts activating in Expo area representative Leo Brisley.
Brisley said the two ames are on file in Montreal and the invitations have been sent out on behalf of the Expo scouting staff.
The camp, one of 21 to be held in Eastern Canada between July 7 and August 18, will be held at the Parkdale diamond. It will be conducted by Bill McKechnie, administrative assistant for Expo player development. He will be assisted by Pete Clarifone and Claude St. Vincent who are part time scouts in the Montreal team's organization.
Open to any boy 18 years of age or over, the camp will consist of a workout and a practice game. Also included

Martin Denyes Sparks Fitzgibbon to Title

The stage was set for Wednesday night's Thurlow Trade Boys softball play-off finals drama but when the curtain went up Fitzgibbon's Construction stole the show.

Trailing by one run going into last night's second game of the two-game total-run finals Fitzgibbon exploded for 12 runs in the third inning and rounded to a 20-13 victory over the Canniffton Garage to win the Murvey Edmond Hurd Memorial Trophy as league champions.

Fitzgibbon's had dropped a 15-14 decision to Canniffton in the first game but unleashed a 20 hit attack in the final game to leave little doubt as to their deserving the championship trophy.

Martin Denyes was the man of the hour for the Construction team hammering a home run, triple, two doubles and a single plus earning the save in his three innings of mound duty. Randy Heggie hurled the win and stroked a homer, double and two singles. Darryl Martin had a four-bagger and Tim Brown a triple and three singles to insure the Fitzgibbon win.

Jeff Nelson, Donald Wellman and Sean Kelly homered for the Garage but it was too little to stop the Construction drive. Darryn and Sean Kelly split the mound duties for the runners-up.

Minor Soccer

The Atom All-stars played the National Billard Mosquitos in Belleville Minor Soccer action Wednesday night and to make matters worse, they played the older boys with only nine men.

The full complement of Billiard players used the advantage of numbers to crush the all-stars 7-0.

Andy DiCicerova led the Billiards with five goals. Rick Cartwright and Tim Kelwey scored the other goals for the mosquitoes.

In other mosquito play Legion 99 blanked the 418 Wing 4-0 on a hat trick by Henry Dell and a single tally by Stan Wright, and Fitzgibbon Construction remained undefeated by shutting out the 211 Barber Salon 2-0.

In peewee division play the Penguins recorded their first win of the season by stopping the Moosejaws All-stars 1-0 and Picton battled Supreme Fence to a 1-1 deadlock.

Parsons Paste Quinte

In Bay of Quinte Soccer League action Wednesday, the Belleville Parsons defeated Quinte Transport 9-5 to remain as the only Belleville team in the Belleville Charity Cup.

Nick DelGreco led Parsons with three goals while Jeff Heald and Mark Metus each tallied a pair. Phil McSherry counted a single marker and Quinte goalie Eric Hunt counted the last Parsons goal when he accidentally put the ball into his own net.

SETS SPEED MARK

PASCO, Wash. (AP) — The Seattle-based Pay 'n Pak, a new unlimited hydro plane driven by Mickey Remund, set a new Gold Cup qualifying record Thursday in preparation for Sunday's regatta on the Columbia river. Remund averaged 134.332 miles an hour in two laps.

Three Teams Battle For A Playoff Spot

It's getting hard to find room at the bottom of the Industrial Softball League eastern division as three teams are trying to make their move and grab a playoff spot.

The Post Office and Stewart Warner came up with a pair of must wins in Thursday's schedule to remain in the playoff picture. Stewart Warner squelched a late inning rally by the other member of the playoff battle trio, The Intelligencer, to record a 7-6 victory. The Post Office had an easier time in disposing of Canadian Tire, 17-9.

In another contest UIC moved a step closer to the western division lead by blasting the Independents 12-1.

Stewart Warner built a 7-2 lead after five innings by scoring three in the third and four in the fifth. The Intelligencer threw in the sixth and one in the seventh but fell short in their bid to pull within one point of fourth place ACCO.

Bill Lynch led the winners, who trail The Intelligencer by a mere one point, with a double and triple. Dave Marvin pulled a home run and Fred Davis a single and double.

Marvin lurked the win allowing 10 hits. He outlasted Dave Kenney who started for Canadian Tire but left them with an outside chance to make the playoffs as they now trail ACCO by six points.

Heather Reid started the ball rolling in the winner's 23-hit slugfest with a home run and single. Gord Campbell added four singles while Tom Woods and Ed Percy added three singles each.

UIC's Jack Scanlan fired a five hitter to move the Unemployment men one point out of first place in the west. Mead Johnson leads the division.

Ron Jury led the support of Scanlan with a triple, double and single. Joe Clark and Bill Healy added a double and two singles each.

Jim Northy went the route in taking the loss for the Independents allowing 16 hits. Ken Bertrand had two singles for the losers.

A&B Precast Posts Win

A and B Precast defeated Foxboro Cheese Factory 18-9 this week in a Thurlow Boy's Tyke baseball game. Dave Leemings and Pat Uens pitched the win, striking out 11 batters. Ed Huffman and Chris Brown took the loss, whiffing 14 A and B batters.

Dave Walsh had a home run and triple for the winners and Pat Uens and Mark Cassidy each had a triple. Names of the Foxboro hitters were unavailable.

Butterfield In Semi-final

A Corbyville man will be gunning for the Queen's Prize this week in Bisley, England — but then so will 300 others.

Jack Butterfield, RR1, Corbyville is one of 300 rifle competitors who have advanced to the second round of the National Rifle Association competition for the Queen's Prize at Bisley, England.

Butterfield and 18 other Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team members made it through Wednesday's first elimination round. 1100 target-rifle shooters took part in the first round.

Competition continues until Saturday.

AL All-star Starting Lineup

Wellesley Has Ottawa TD

Theismann, Rodgers Show Worth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Rodgers last year won the Heisman Trophy as the outstanding college football player in the United States, an award that eluded Joe Theismann in 1970.

Both players showed just why they were so highly-regarded Thursday night, leading their Eastern Football Conference teams to exhibition victories.

Rodgers, used sparingly by coach Marv Levy in the pre-season games, caught a short pass from George Mira on the last play of the game to lift Montreal Alouettes to a 17-14 win over Ottawa Rough Riders.

Theismann, scrambling and passing through most of the game, was instrumental in Toronto Argonauts's 28-25 decision against the defending Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The Als showed little offensively until the final minute of their game at Montreal. A series of turnovers gave the Als possession at the Ottawa 33 and Mira put them in the goalpost shadows on a 29-yard pass play with Rodgers.

Time ran out with Ottawa ahead 14-11 on the final play. But Montreal got a reprieve when Ottawa was called for interference and penalized half the distance to the goalline, setting the stage for Rodgers' two-yard scoring play.

Prior to that sequence, the best Montreal could muster was three field goals and a single by Don Sweet and another single from Wally Buono.

Ottawa appeared to have the game in hand with quarterback Frank Dimaggio hitting touchdown passes to newcomer Lee Fobbs and Canadian Terry Wellesley. Gerry Organ converted both scores.

The Argos, playing before a sellout crowd of 32,135 at CNE stadium, avenged an earlier exhibition loss to the Ticats by putting together a balanced running and passing game.

Theisman kept Hamilton off balance with his play calling and Leon McQuay keyed on the Ticat secondary with his rushing that produced 81 yards on 12 carries.

Theismann connected with two scoring passes to flanker Mike Eben in a game that saw the lead change seven times. The final time on Zenon Andrusyshyn's field goal late in the third quarter that moved the Argos into a 27-25 lead.

It was the Big Z's second field goal of the game. Ken Matthews, on a nine-yard pass from Theismann, had the other major score for the Argos. Andrusyshyn kicked three converts and Peter Muller's punt single ended the Toronto scoring.

Home brew Alec Lockington handled the place-kicking chores, hitting on three field goals—two from 40 yards out. He also converted the two touchdowns. Hamilton's other two points came on a safety when Theismann was nailed in his own end zone.

4 Strokes Back, He's Optimistic

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Old pro Bob Goalby and longshot Bill Massengale shared the lead, but Dave Stockton had all the optimism today going into the second round of the $230,000 St. Louis Children' Hospital golf classic.

Goalby, who has had to make last-gasp rallies each of the last four years to save his status as a top exempt player on the tour, and Massengale matched five-under-par 66s in Thursday's first round.

Stockton was four strokes back at 69.

"I had to birdie the last hole to get that 69," Stockton said. "It was all I could think about.

"Remember a couple of weeks ago at Milwaukee Goalby had a 65 in the first round and I had a 69."

Stockton went on to score a one-stroke victory in that one.

About a dozen more-including J. C. Snead, Guy Brewer, Jerry Heard and Fred Marti-tied at 67 as almost half of the field matched or bettered par 70 on the 6,544-yard Norwood Hills Country Club course.

Defending champion Lee Trevino managed a 69, about six holes of which were played in a morning thunderstorm. South African Gary Player matched par 70 while Australian Bruce Crampton, the season's leading money winner, took a 71 as did Masters champ Tommy Aaron.

Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf, the American and British Open titleholders, along with Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer are not competing in this event that offers $42,000 to the winner.

OFL's First No-hitter Recorded by Lunney

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newmarket strengthened its hold on first place in the east division of the Ontario Football League Thursday with a 2-0 victory over Welland that featured the first no-hitter of the season.

Bill Lunney accomplished the feat, strikinr out 15 Welland batters. Welland's Ken Ehara recorded 12 strikeouts, giving up eight hits—two of them homers by Ron Lahay and Mike Lamney for the only runs of the contest.

In the league's other two games, St. Catharines outscored Niagara Falls 6-5 while Toronto nipped Burlington 2-1.

St. Catharines overcame a four-run deficit with five runs in the bottom of the ninth for the victory. Larry Fuxton's single scored the winning run with Bruce Orr, Pete Couturiere and Larry Hancock also providing key hits in the outburst.

Niagara Falls scored five times in the third on three hits, an error and a walk.

Dick Balint threw seven innings of two-hit relief to gain the win. Jake Neufeld took the loss.

Pete Landers notched his 11th victory of the season in the Toronto win, allowing five hits while fanning nine and walking three. Toronto touched loser Hal Kemp for eight hits.

Both Toronto runs came in the first inning on a two-run single by John Ross after singles by Bob Burke and Marty Tweyman. Burlington's only run came on Mickey Bailey's fifth inning home run.

Following Thursday's games, Toronto is in sole possession of first place in the league's west division, a half game up on Oshawa. Newmarket's victory coupled with Burlington's loss leaves Newmarket with a four game bulge atop the east division.

Hand Guns

GARSON, Ont. (CP) — Don Hadford of Calgary scored 549 out of a possible 600 points Thursday to win the free pistol event at the Canadian handgun championships.

Jules Sobrian of Orangeville, Ont., and Frank Lipk of Barrie, Ont., were tied for second with scores of 545 each.

Arthur Tomsett of Sidney, B.C., was next with 538 while Steve Kelly of Ottawa and Jules Beaupre of Ville Les Saules, Que., were tied at 536.

NAGLE TAKES LEAD

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Kel Nagle of Australia shot a course record-tying 67, five-under-par, to take the first round lead Thursday in the $60,000 Scandinavian Open golf championship.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, July 21

Aries (March 21-April 19): The needs of others tend to provoke some travel or change of arrangements. Indirect benefits come to you as a result.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It isn't so much that people are seeking to hinder, but that they are working at cross-purposes. Searches for hidden information succeed.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Sporting or speculative activities take your attention. Pay little heed to peevish friends, be your own cheerful self.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): If you must work, continue as if you hadn't done it before; with good humor. If you are free to play, do so!

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Those who are near and those who are distant are both agreeable—it's the middle distance people who offer quibbles.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): This is a prize day for practising thrift. Speculative enterprises seem irresistible, but are probably unrealistic.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Where it's mainly elders who are taking sides, avoid controversy instead of striving to settle it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Move quickly to nail down an offer, collect leverage for a financial readjustment. Re-evaluate losing ventures.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your "luck" is riding high, not just in terms of benefits, but in difficulties averted. Home life improves.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Ambition is there loud and clear, albeit counter to the logical course you've been following.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Have the patience to adequately explain your point of view—it will take plenty. Travel to reach better contacts is favored.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your ready resources come in for critical review, perhaps active criticism. Personal promotion pays good rewards.

To Your Good Health

Arthritis Type Is Important

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told four years ago that I had rheumatoid arthritis. My doctor told me about a bothered one to take aspirin and otherwise forget about it.

It doesn't bother me much, but I wonder if I should be on medication. Would you refer me one to see a rheumatologist?—Mrs. J.B.

There's something about your letter—your attitude, and your doctor's—which makes me wonder whether you have received the told arthritis or have some other form of arthritis.

There are many varieties of arthritis, and although some people almost automatically suppend the word "rheumatoid," they aren't all rheumatoid—fortunately. For true rheumatoid arthritis is the most dangerous form of arthritis.

It can exist, true, in rather mild form. It also can be so severe that without the proper useful treatment it can be devastating and crippling.

For the moment, my suggestions would include asking your doctor directly whether your arthritis is rheumatoid or not. (Have you seen your doctor since you first saw him four years ago?) If you learn that, for example, you really have osteoarthritis, not rheumatoid, that will have quite a bearing on your course of action.

In that case, aspirin to ease the aching, applications of heat if necessary, and sufficient movement to prevent stiffness from becoming excessively stiffened—these will probably be all you need in view of your remark that "it doesn't bother me much."

If your arthritis is indeed rheumatoid, you may benefit by a continuing use of aspirin (and just when it bothers you), since rheumatoid arthritis has the nasty habit of easing for a bit, then flaring up. What you must aim at doing is forestalling these flareups if you can.

Should you see a rheumatologist? It can really have rheumatoid arthritis. I think it would be well, if for no other reason than to have made contact in advance in case the disease has a dangerous flare-up.

He would be the one to advise whether you need medication other than aspirin. But in view of the way things sound now, I wouldn't think more medication is indicated. It is the future course of your condition which will dictate the answer to that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 13 years old and have not been circumcised. Off in the streets I heard that pregnancy cannot be brought about if the male is circumcised. Tell me if this is true or not, and if I can be circumcised at my age.—G.J.

No, there's absolutely no truth to what you heard. If you have any lingering doubts, then the doctor who performed your circumcision may be able to tell you. Or perhaps before there was any such thing as surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told by a friend that pneumonia is contagious. Is this true?—Mrs. M.G.M.

Usually yes. There are various types of pneumonia, but most cases are caused by a bacterium (usually pneumococcus) or a virus.

Others taking care of a pneumonia patient should be cautious and the patient should muffle hi scoughing to avoid spraying germs where others might breathe them.

Bidding Quiz

Partner bids One Spade, both sides vulnerable, and you have a part-score of 46. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠83 ♥QT852 ♦A64 ♣KQ8
2. ♠Q752 ♥AK3 ♦QJ6 ♣J4
3. ♠QJ94 ♥KQ4 ♦QJ5 ♣AJ87
4. ♠A74 ♥J73 ♦QJ73 ♣J952
5. ♠AKJ653 ♥AQJ96 ♦J8 ♣5T8

1. One notrump. Without the part-score two hearts would be perfectly normal, but with it the proper response is one notrump. This is because the partner may pass two hearts with indifferent trump support — since a part-score has been reached, and the hearts here are long but not substantial enough to risk a pass. There is no chance of partner's passing one notrump, since such a response is forced with a part-score of 46.

2. Two spades. Ordinarily, you'd respond three spades, but since a jump to three with a part-score of 46 would constitute a slam try, you bid only two. Two hearts is of course out of the question with only a four-card suit.

Change the club jack to the king and you'd have a proper three-spade bid. Such a jump would indicate interest in a slam, but would not be forcing.

3. Three notrump. This is also not forcing but is highly invitational to a slam. With indicated point count, 33 or 34. Three notrump gives more strength in the unbid suit and balanced distribution.

4. One notrump. Without a part-score you'd pass because game would be too remote to justify leaving the bidding alive. But with a 46 part-score the requirements for a response are lower than the usual 6-point minimum expected for a notrump response. Since you don't have to climb as high as usual to reach a game, you lower your sights accordingly.

5. Three spades. Here you make a slam try based on the attractive distribution. Three there are only 11 high-card points, but a slam is within reach even opposite a minimum opening bid. Thus, partner needs little more than the ace of spades, king of hearts and ace of diamonds to be a favorite for twelve tricks.

It would be unwise to respond two hearts for the reasons previously given, or to respond three hearts which would be a jump - shift and 100 per cent forcing. You have values that entitle you to suggest a slam but not the values to insist upon one.

Tomorrow: Potpourri.

Mailman Charged

LIGHTCLIFFE, England (CP) — Mailman Bernard Cotton was fined £25 (about $62.50) when Mrs. Olive Saxby charged him with indecent assault after he delivered a passionate kiss along with a posted parcel. The surprised postman had told police this was the first time any woman had complained about his services.

Hit Police Car

LONDON (CP) — Patrick Hoare was fined £60 (about $225) after admitting he had taken over a parked double-decker bus while drunk and driven several miles through the city. His ride came to an end when he smashed into a police car.

Music Breaks Records

NEWPORT, England (CP) — A clothing factory here hired three disc jockeys to entertain 600 female workers with a continuous request program blared throughout the building. The innovation resulted in a 15-per-cent jump in production.

CP News Roundup

College Teachers Seek Hike

TORONTO (CP) — Ross Recher, chairman of the negotiating team for 4,000 community college teachers, said Thursday his group will ask for mediation in an attempt to win a 15-per-cent salary raise over 16 months.

Mr. Recher said in an interview the teachers have been unable to get more than minor concessions from provincial government negotiators.

He said the teachers will seek mediation by a new provincial tribunal established under the Crown Employees' Collective Bargaining Act.

Other items sought include job security with the right to "bump" part-time or probationary teachers in any of the 23 colleges if they are faced with firing.

Teachers also want a standardized year of 200 days, full OHIP premiums, more sabbatical leaves and the right to know of and challenge the accuracy of material about them in college files.

Denticare Program Asked

TORONTO (CP) — The 3,300-member Ontario Dental Association (ODA) Thursday asked Health Minister Richard Potter to set up a government-sponsored dental-care program in the province.

ODA President Dr. R. L. Moran said in a news release that the proposal called for immediate dental care for children under six years of age and persons over 65.

Within 10 years, the program would be expanded to provide basic dental care coverage to everyone in the province.

Bribe Alleged

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police were asked Thursday to investigate an alleged case of bribery involving an official of the ministry of the environment's air management branch.

Deputy Minister Everett Biggs made the request at the direction of Minister James Auld, saying that the allegation that a branch official asked for and was given $2,500 by a mining company he investigated.

Study Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer protection officials are studying proposed regulations to automobile insurance rates to determine whether the insurance companies have violated the Combines Investigation Act, Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray said Thursday.

Bomb Found

LACOLLE, Que. (CP) — A rusty 2,000-pound bomb was removed from the bottom of the nearby Richelieu River Thursday after being discovered by Canadian Armed Forces personnel from the St. Hubert, Que., base. About 1,000 people living within a three-quarter mile radius of the site were evacuated during the operations. A spokesman said origin of the bomb may never be known.

Car Safe

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-month investigation has not revealed any defect in design or construction of the Pinto automobile that would affect its safe operation, the transport department said Thursday.

Its study of the General Motors' car showed that while no safety-related defects were revealed in the problem-plagued auto, the quality of workmanship at the production level "appeared to be inferior to that to which Canadian motorists have become accustomed."

Open Centre

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — A $625,000 addition to the training centre for Ontario civil servants will open Friday on a resort-like estate, five miles from here.

James Snow, minister of government services and Eric Winkler, chairman of management board of cabinet, will open the year-round lodge on a 110-acre secluded site.

Officially designated the Ontario Public Service Staff Development Centre, it houses civil servants taking government courses. Since it was completed last January, cabinet ministers and judges have also used the centre for policy meetings and as a retreat from busy offices.

Burns Fatal

TORONTO (CP) — Donald John Anderson, 32, of Oshawa, burned last Friday when he tipped over a 1-gallon bucket of asphalt, died in hospital here Thursday.

Canada-U.S. Group Meeting on Pipeline Sought

WASHINGTON (CP) — The American co-chairman for the Canada - U.S. inter - parliamentary group were arranging a meeting at the Capitol later Thursday to discuss a Commons vote urging negotiations by the group to hear Canada's position on the trans-Alaska pipeline controversy.

To make sure that the Americans are fully aware of Canadian opposition to the Alaska line based on fears of oil spills from tankers operating along the Pacific Coast, the Commons voted unanimously Thursday to seek an immediate meeting of the Canada-U.S. interparliamentary group. The group is composed of members from Parliament and Congress.

On Wednesday government supporters rejected a motion by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield asking the government to strike an all-party committee to visit Washington for the same purpose.

A spokesman for Senator McGee chairman of the Senate section, quoted McGee as saying he is delighted that the Canadians was such a meeting and "feels it is important, since it is a matter of mutual concern."

McGee was planning to meet with Representative Thomas E. Morgan (Dem., Pa.), chairman of the House section, in order the request relayed by the Commons Speaker's office.

McGee's spokesman said the two congressmen would probably canvass their fellow group members and make a joint announcement about the Commons request t.

He said he could not predict when the announcement would be made.

Art Cook, press officer for the Senate foreign relations committee, said "there is a precedent" for such a request.

"When President Nixon put the 18-per-cent surtax on a worldwide basis in August, 1971, we had a request from the Canada - U.S. interparliamentary group. They came down here in November. We had a free-flowing and candid discussion."

State Department Is Blamed For Confusion Over Pipeline

OTTAWA (CP) — The U.S. state department, not the Canadian government, is responsible for any lack of information that might have influenced the United States Senate to vote in favor of an oil pipeline through Alaska, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

He told the Commons he isn't to blame if it took the state department 10 days to give the Senate additional information Canadian policy toward northern oil pipelines.

He was responding for the second straight day to criticism that the Senate was unaware of ownership requirements that Canada would demand for an Mackenzie pipeline route through the Mackenzie district of the Northwest Territories.

Canada favors the Mackenzie route to avoid potential pollution hazards from tankers that would carry oil from an Alaska pipeline down the west coast to the United States market.

By a one-vote margin, the U.S. Senate voted earlier this week to approve the Alaska route. Reports since have indicated the outcome might have been different had more information been available.

The contentious point is the ownership requirements Canada would demand for an overland, Mackenzie route.

Congress asked the state department in June to seek out Canadian opinion and the U.S. embassy in Ottawa subsequently passed on a series of questions to the energy department.

The list was answered June 17 but, because of an ambiguous reply on the ownership requirements, an answer was made known to the state department July 8.

It said Canada would insist on 51 per cent ownership for any natural gas pipeline, but not in the case of oil.

The clarification wasn't passed to Congress until Tuesday of this week, the day before the Senate vote was taken. Since then, a number of U.S. senators have accused the department of "misleading" the true Canadian position.

Under questioning, the Conservatives were quick to blame Mr. Macdonald for at least a share of the confusion.

Criticizing the use of embassies to transmit the information between the two governments, John Fraser (PC—Vancouver South) said Canada should go directly to the U.S. government in an attempt to correct "this incredibly inept piece of 18th-century, quill-pen diplomacy."

Why didn't the external affairs department communicate the information directly in the first place, asked Opposition leader Stanfield.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said there was nothing unusual about the situation. Embassies were often used for such purposes.

Elsewhere Thursday, the Commons gave final reading to legislation that will delay the thorny problem of electors redistribution until Jan. 1, 1976.

Between now and then, MPs will have an opportunity to devise a replacement for the formula that now places heavy emphasis on representation by population.

The legislation suspends the almost-completed work of 10 independent electoral boundaries commissions, one for each province. They had been charged with revising the 264 Commons ridings on the basis of 1971 census figures.

Fluctuating Reports From Canada Blamed

WASHINGTON (CP) — The state department, denying it has misled the Congress of the United States on the official Canadian pipeline policy, said Thursday its role was that of a go-between caught in the middle by fluctuating reports from Canada.

The assessment was made by a state department spokesman shortly after a news conference in which press officer Paul Hare said:

"We believe that we have accurately and objectively conveyed to Congress all information supplied to us by the Canadian government."

The charge that state had misled Congress was made earlier in the week by Senator Walter Mondale (Dem.-Minn.) and has led to a high state department official being called before the Senate foreign relations committee to explain. The meeting is set for Monday.

Mondale had been champion of an amendment in the Senate which called for delay in the approval of an 800-mile $3.5-billion trans - Alaska oil re to allow time for study of a Canadian alternative. The amendment lost.

The senator charged the state department with "a series of intentional attempts to mislead the Senate" and quoted from a departmental letter of June 22 which was written by the U.S. of a pipeline agreement with Canada does not appear possible at this time."

Mondale said the letter "misrepresented the Canadian position."

A spokesman for the Canadian embassy here said he was convinced there "may have been some problem in transmission" of Canadian government requests by the U.S. embassy n Ottawa to the state department in Washington.

"Certainly, no one in Canada thinks the state department deliberately tried to distort the Canadian positon," the spokesman said.

He said the Canadian government had made prompt responses to the state department call for information, "then later attempted to clarify some point on which it was felt there might be confusion.

"A disappointing and unfortunate amount of time elapsed between the time the clarifications were communicated to the U.S. embassy in Ottawa and the time they got in ... the Senate," the Canadian spokesman said.

"It could appear that if the Canadian clarification had been transmitted immediately, the senators might have been satisfied."

The state department spokesman said the Canadians modified their position during an exchange of correspondence between the department and the embassy in Ottawa. One example, he said, was a change in 51-per-cent ownership requirements, later dropped so far as an oil line was concerned.

The state department spokesman said "there is a problem of timing involved" and said complete disclosure will be made on Monday when Rufus Z. Smith, deputy assistant secretary of state for Canadian affairs, testifies before the Senate committee.

Unofficial estimates are that between six and 10 days elapsed between the handing of the clarification to the U.S. embassy in Ottawa and the arrival of the clarifying material on the floor of the Senate.

Smith, a former counsellor in the United States embassy in Ottawa, has said "I think there has been a misunderstanding somewhere."

Both Smith on Wednesday and the state department spokesman on Thursday said that departmental assessments of the Canadian position were based primarily on the reports from Ottawa.

Smith said "a question of interpretation" could have been involved.

Africans Study Beekeeping

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—Three students from Africa are currently enrolled at the University of Guelph in an eight-month course in apiculture or, as it is more commonly known, beekeeping.

Despite the highly aggressive and vicious nature of the African bee, beekeeping is an important industry in Africa. For people living in "rural areas where the soil is unsuitable for agriculture, the production of honey and beeswax sometimes is the only source of income.

When the students return to Africa, they will hold senior posts with the ministry of agriculture in their respective countries and will engage in field work in order to aid these smaller honey producers.

As well as classroom work and practical instruction in agriculture at Guelph the students will be introduced to modern beekeeping in Canada, work with apiary officials and visit honey-packing plants in Toronto.

Foreign Investment Bill Passed by House Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons finance committee passed the foreign investment review bill Thursday night, sending it back to the House for third-reading consideration in an atmosphere of self-congratulation.

The bill, introduced Jan. 24, has been before the committee since May. The bill was passed in a final burst of amendments that ended 44 separate meetings by the committee on the legislation.

It provides for creation of a Foreign investment review agency to screen investments and takeovers of Canadian companies "by certain persons."

The committee members adjourned for a small celebration after being thanked by Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie for their "heavy investment in time" on the bill. Committee vice-chairman Harold Herbert (L—Vaudreuil) said he was pleased the committee had finally completed its work.

The committee was in an accommodating mood as it resumed discussions from a meeting earlier in the day when Conservative members accused Mr. Gillespie of bureaucratic snoopiness.

The bill's provisions permit the government to seize company books and records of suspected of proposing illegal action.

Mr. Gillespie and trade department officials said orders for searches would be obtained from judges in extreme cases.

Tahd Hellyer (PC—Trinity) sponsored a successful motion that decreased the length of time seized documents could be kept by the government to 14 days from 21.

The bill is unlikely to get third reading until fall as the Commons hopes to adjourn for the summer next week.

Captives Swelter in Desert

Seized at Amsterdam, Jet Flown to Dubai

DUBAI (AP) — A squad of terrorists in a sweltering Japan Air Lines jumbo jet threatened today to blow up the plane at Dubai's desert airstrip if anyone approached the aircraft, police said.

One of the hijackers, a woman, was killed Friday when a hand grenade she was holding exploded accidentally shortly after takeoff from Amsterdam, said the airline.

The hijackers radioed to officials in the Dubai control tower that "We are awaiting instructions," but they did not say from whom or where the instructions were supposed to come.

The officials thought the hijackers were isolated from their command after cruising around the Middle East before landing Friday night at Dubai, an Arab sheikdom on the Persian Gulf.

There was no immediate request for refuelling or ransom for the plane and its occupants. An official said the terrorists' first demand was for "250 sandwiches and ice."

The Boeing 747 was ringed by armed police as it sat in the hot sun near the cargo section of the airport.

The terrorists refused to see anyone, but they told officials in the control tower that they were holding Japanese, German, Dutch, Peruvian, French and Arab passengers along with the crew.

The airport was closed to all flights and no vehicles were allowed within two miles of the airstrip. Ground crews hooked a small generator to the plane, but officials doubted it would be sufficient to cool the huge craft.

"They must really be cooking out there now," one police officer said as the fierce desert sun climbed higher in the sky and sent the temperature to 102 degrees with 95 per cent humidity.

Sheik Mohamed bin Rashid, defence minister of the United Arab Emirates, went on board to negotiate shortly after the plane arrived. But there were no apparent results and the terrorists refused to allow the women and children to deplane.

However, food and water for all the plane's occupants was also aboard.

The body of a woman hijacker, apparently killed by her own hand grenade, was carried off the plane shortly after it arrived with 123 passengers and a crew of 32 after a 2,000-mile nine-hour flight from Amsterdam beginning Friday.

An official of the airline in London said the grenade went off as the terrorists took over the plane 30 minutes after takeoff on a flight for Tokyo.

JAL's London office said one of the three male terrorists "might be a Japanese, but we're not sure." Earlier reports indicated that they were members of the 'Sekigun' or 'Red Army', a fanatical Japanese leftist organization.

Dubai police reported that the hijackers claimed to be Ecuadorian nationals, but officers said all negotiations were conducted in Arabic. During the flight over Europe, the hijackers indicated that they were fighting for the Palestinian cause.

They first tried to have the big jet land at Beirut, but permission was refused. Then they flew to Basra, in southeast Iraq, but the runway was too short. Al Bahrain on the Persian Gulf, they again were refused landing permission and flew to Dubai.

Makes Hostage of Son

A man police have identified as Fred Sims, 27, holds a knife to the chest of his son Tony, 4, keeping police at bay after an auto chase in Memphis. Officers later jumped the man as he backed down a street with the knife held on the boy. Tony was rescued unharmed except for lacerations on one hand. Police said the chase had begun after the child's mother reported that her son had been removed from her home. (AP Photo)

Libyans Turn Back

However, the resignation was not accepted and the fiery Libyan leader was still in power today.

A car equipped with a loud speaker threaded through the 20,000 camped marchers today ordering them to return to Libya and meet in Benghazi.

As they headed home, a delegation of Libyan officials left Mersa Matruh for Cairo to deliver a message saying President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to proceed with the scheduled Sept. 1 merger of the two countries.

The marchers had planned to stage a sit-in in Cairo until unity was declared, but they were stopped Friday about 50 miles east of Mersa Matruh when Egyptians dynamited part of the road.

Today's Chuckle

Mothers who are a little sad as they send their small boys off to camp can look at it this way: They're not losing a son — they're gaining two turtles, a frog and a garter snake.

Cambodia Wants ICC

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada, India and Poland are being pressed to reactivate the International Control Commission ICC in Cambodia, diplomatic sources revealed Friday. The three members of the Cambodia ICC, indefinitely adjourned Dec. 31, 1969, have been asked to reconvene by the Cambodian government, which has been virtually under siege by Communist Cambodia and North Vietnamese forces for months.

Enforcement Uneven

TORONTO (CP) — The Criminal Code must be enforced during picketing and police have the major responsibility to see the law is obeyed, the Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said Friday in a brief to the provincial government study group into policing. "Law enforcement in Ontario during labor disputes is very uneven and varies substantially from locale to locale," the brief said. "Many police forces . . . adopt a policy of so-called neutrality which in effect means that they will not enforce the law during a labor dispute."

Reward Posted

TORONTO (CP) — Police in suburban Mississauga have posted a $3,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of former European fashion model Christina Demeter. Mrs. Demeter, 33, was found beaten to death Wednesday night at the door of her husband's car in the garage of their home in the exclusive Erindale area of Mississauga.

Rough Ride

BLENHEIM, Ont., (CP) — A 61-year-old Blenheim man escaped with scrapes, bruises and broken fingers on one hand Thursday after he fell 90 feet down a cliff on his riding lawnmower. Jiri Hutchinson was cutting his lawn near the cliff on the Lake Erie shoreline.

Troops Push Huge Security Operation

BELFAST (Reuter) — British troops, fearing an intensification of Roman Catholic and Protestant violence, mounted a huge security operation across Belfast today.

The clampdown follows the arrest of 18 members of the Catholic-based Provisional Irish Republican Army and the blowing up of three Catholic bars in the Northern Ireland capital Friday night.

British troops manned roadblocks across the city and huge armlin jams built up as cars were thoroughly searched.

Nixon Likely to Veto Curb on War Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — An almost certain presidential veto awaits the compromise version of Senate and House bills on Representative bills to limit the war-making powers of a president.

The Senate measure passed Friday would allow a president to commit U.S. troops for 30 days without congressional approval in case of attack or to forestall one.

Before going to the White House it must be reconciled with the House version, which would make that period 60 days and would narrow conditions under which the president can act.

The outcome of the long battle to enact such legislation appears now to depend on whether Congress, particularly the House, can muster the two-thirds vote to override the expected veto by President Nixon.

Nixon threatened earlier in the week to veto the bill.

The Senate passage of the measure was 71 to 18, or 11 votes more than two-thirds. Senate leaders are confident they will be able to muster the needed two-thirds vote to override a veto.

First however, if the bill is vetoed, it will go to the House. Its margin on passage Wednesday was 244 to 170, or 32 short of two-thirds.

Cambodia Asks For Continuing Bombing Raids

PHNOM PENH (Reuter) — Cambodia will ask for United States bombing to continue after Aug. 15, the deadline set by Congress for an end of funds to support U.S. air activity over Cambodia, it was announced today.

The commander-in-chief of the Cambodian army, Gen. Sosthene Fernandez, said today Cambodia believes the request will be granted if all North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are not withdrawn by that date.

Bread Price Increase To Be at Least 3 Cents

TORONTO (CP) — The price of bread will rise by at least three cents a loaf this fall, not one cent as forecast by the federal government, Peter Wygard, chief executive officer of General Bakeries Ltd., said Friday.

Otto Lang, minister in charge of the Canadian wheat board, announced Thursday the wheat board will charge millers between 45 and 55 cents more for a bushel of flour. He predicted that this action would cause a one-cent increase in the price of a loaf of bread.

Mr. Wygard said the announcement of the price increase "came like a bolt from the blue."

"Without a shadow of doubt, the price of bread will go up three cents a loaf this fall, and four cents in some cases," he said.

Mr. Wygard said both bakers and millers will have to lay out extra money to get their supplies "and it costs money to get money."

"By the time the loaf of bread reaches the consumer, the store will have to pay 2½ cents extra just to break even and they'll sell it for an extra three cents," he said.

Nuclear Test Balloon Flying Over Mururoa

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter) — A pale balloon, indicating that a nuclear test is imminent, was still flying over the French testing site at Mururoa Atoll today, the New Zealand Press Association's correspondent on board the frigate Otago reported.

The balloon was sighted by lookouts on the Otago as it patrolled outside the French 12-mile limit, correspondent David Barber said.

He said a square metallic object, which could be the French bomb or its container, could be seen suspended beneath the balloon.

It was believed by those on board the Otago, New Zealand's "silent witness" to the tests, that the balloon would not have been in position if there was still a technical hitch which caused the postponement of Friday's scheduled test at the last minute, Barber said.

Parliamentarians to Meet Tuesday On Canada's Attitude on Pipeline

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada - United States interparliamentary group will meet in Washington Tuesday so Canada can put forward its views against the proposed Alaska pipeline, Speaker Lucien Lamoureaux told the Commons Friday.

The meeting was approved unanimously Thursday by the Commons after being proposed by Stanley Knowles NDP—Winnipeg North Centre. The U.S. Senate has voted in favor of an oil pipeline across Alaska but it still must be approved by the House of Representatives.

Mr. Lamoureux said contact had been made with the interparliamentary group's U.S. members and a meeting has been set for 12.30 p.m. EDT Tuesday in the U.S. capital.

Opposition parties in the Commons have urged that Canadian opposition to the Alaska route was not properly conveyed to the U.S. Congress.

PM Has Concrete Proposals For Solving West's Problems

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and the four western premiers will sit down together next week in Calgary — they all agree it could be one of the most significant federal-provincial meetings ever held — and try to solve the problems contributing to "western alienation."

"We are determined to find answers to the legitimate grievances," Mr. Trudeau has said. Not since wartime, he adds, has the federal administration put so much effort into solving a single problem.

But he says that apart from the legitimate grievances that can be dealt with, there are also geographic and psychological factors contributing to the alienation, and these will take longer to overcome.

The prime minister will come to the Calgary conference, which opens Tuesday, with a series of "concrete proposals" to meet some of the grievances. Sources say he will propose a number of joint ventures in transportation policy, including rail, highway and air, and this will be coupled with plans to push northward with major developments at the ports of Churchill, Man., and Prince Rupert, B.C.

There will also be federal initiatives to decentralize financial institutions — a long-standing western request — and the prime minister has said there will be new measures to encourage industrial development in the West.

The western premiers — three New Democrats and a Conservative — have all said they hope to see decisive action flow from the meeting.

The four premiers have called for the establishment of a federal-provincial task force on western transportation, and another authority to evaluate existing freight rates. There is a request for the establishment of provincial banks, for more flexibility and spending on the part of the industrial development bank, and for tariff changes that would assist the industrial development of the West.

City Court Officer Dressed in Civies

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

The Ontario government has agreed to pay for a full-time court officer in Belleville Provincial Court, thereby saving city taxpayers several thousand dollars.

The decision is effective immediately and will mean a return to work for Doug Ellis, the cocky police sergeant whose retirement job seemed in jeopardy after an inspector from the attorney-general's department recommended last month that the position be paid for out of municipal funds.

During the past month, persons entering the courtroom have been greeted by members of the Belleville Police Department and the Ontario Provincial Police, they were called on despite protests by Alderman Paul Russell that their salaries, in excess of $31,000 for first class constables, would be put to better use in other capacities.

Judge J. L. Clendenning, himself a former member of the OPP, took a different position when he approached the attorney - general's department about having Mr. Ellis reinstated.

"It's my opinion that court officers should be civilians," he said. "There's already enough of an association between Provincial Court and the police."

The move is in accordance with a recent trend toward more civilians in Ontario courtrooms. Two weeks ago, police prosecutors in traffic courts were ordered to dress in civilian clothes and officers assisting Crown Attorneys in criminal matters have been out of uniform for some time.

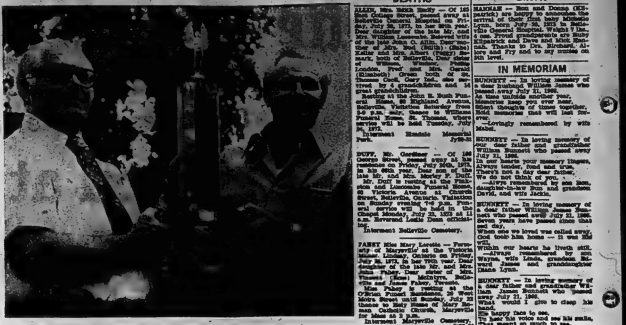
Napanee Man Dies in Car

NAPANEE — A Napanee man was killed and two persons injured in a two-car collision half-way between Napanee and Deseronto on Highway 2 early this morning.

Dead is Donald Rampel, 35, of R.R. 6, Napanee, who was in one of the cars that collided on the Sand Hill Road at about 1:45 a.m.



Another man, James De-Mille of Napanee, is in Lennox and Addington County Hospital with a head injury and lacerations. The third person involved, Robert LaFrance, suffered lacerations but was treated and released.

Bed Smoking Blamed for Fire

TRENTON — Smoking in bed has been named the cause of an early morning blaze here.

For more than an hour 14 Trenton firemen fought the blaze, located in the bedroom of a frame house at 254 King St. Only the upstairs apartment was damaged, with only units on the lower floor left intact.

The apartment was occupied by Miss and Patti McAdams, Guy Chouinard and John Aziz. No injuries were reported.

A spokesman for the fire department could not give an estimate of damage caused by the 4.30 a.m. fire, but said the bedroom was gutted and the rest of the apartment was extensively damaged by smoke and water.

This marked the second apartment fire in as many days for Trenton. Thursday morning at 2 a.m. the 118 Division St. apartment of R. J. Wheeler was gutted and $18,000 damage done to the building containing eight units. Fire Chief Cecil Ellis termed the blaze a major one, saying unextinguished cigarettes in garbage was the cause. There were no injuries.

Mill Restoration Big SWEEP Job

SWEEP staff have turned their attention to restoring O'Hara's Mill on Moira River Conservation Authority grounds to a semblance of what it was in the early 1800s.

After guiding approximately 1800 elementary school students through the old saw mill during May and June, the full-time staff of Student Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program turn their labors to further restoration.

Nancy Gulliver draws on her experience in museum work in Woodstock in undertaking a full cataloguing of artifacts in the house and surrounding buildings.

Stream cleanup, fence clearing and building repairs are left to Tom Kuglin and Rod McNeill. The students made and unsuccessful attempt to plant a garden using plant which would have been available to the early settlers, but the wildlife, more than the labor, defeated them.

Low water levels in the mill pond have hampered attempts to guarantee the turning of he mill wheel, but other buildings will be open to the public Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. On weekends, the hours will be 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. during the summer months.

Bicyclist Hits Car

A 14-year-old girl speeding over the Moira River footbridge Friday afternoon was unable to stop her bicycle at Coleman Street and ran into the side of a passing car.

Deborah Anne Holohan of 27 Murray Street was taken to Belleville General Hospital with a leg injury. She was treated and released.

Driver of the car, Christopher Williams of 45 Auburn St., could not avoid the cyclist as she flew off the curb into his vehicle. He was going through a green light when the accident took place.

Students Build Parade Floats

MADOC (Special) — Four parade floats have been constructed this summer by Madoc students in an Opportunities for Youth project. The students have been approached by the Marmora Lions Club to construct a major float to be used here and vocations others will be ordered.

The float - building project has been organized by Maurice Tredenick, Grade 9 boy and Patsy Ash under the name, "an innovative idea in development."

James Watson, teacher at the Centre Hastings Secondary School, is assisting the students. He says they are gaining experience in managed a project, dealing with the public, businessmen and the government and in general public relations.

The students work on their floats on the south side of his school. They could use the services of a mechanic and donations of materials, such as old vehicles in running condition, and old toys.

They are also looking for a building in which to store their floats between local parades. They will be lent to communities and organizations in the Centre Hastings area for special events.

Township Reports Incomplete

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Kingston Township officials were accused at a provincial inquiry Friday of manipulating development of a portion of the township where a local resort is held major land holdings.

The inquiry is studying alleged breaches of the Municipal Act and the Municipal Conflict of Interest Act stemming from a proposed $4.6 millio water and sewer expansion program in the township.

James Bennett, a leading figure in bringing about the inquiry, told Judge Edward Short that reports on which the township based its official development plan dealt only with the southern and western parts of the township.

He said the effect was to direct development to that area of the township where Reeve J. Earl Baldwin held substantial land interests.

The plan, however, was rejected by the provincial government in late 1970 because it did not deal with the township as a whole.

"I feel that getting services in one area has ground up land values and has not allowed development in other areas of the township," Mr. Bennett said.

Mr. McEwen testified earlier that he stands to make $1 million on the sale of three properties, two of which have been sold.

Rochdale Closing Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A five-man coroner's jury investigating the death of a 24-year-old man recommended Friday immediate closure of Rochdale College, a non-profit student residence which police have described as a haven for drug users.

Dr. Alex Jones, coroner, said: "It's time to question the mental and psychological state of those in government who conceived Rochdale and who maintain it in its present form."

He said there is "something wrong that leads kids on the path to mental institutions and death."

"I can give only one recommendation, even though I know my pleas fall on deaf ears of the politicians in Ottawa. Close down Rochdale and close it now."

The jury could not determine whether the death of Philip Nunter, who fell from the roof of the 18-storey building May 21, was caused by suicide, accident or murder.

Bail Granted

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyer Robert Lemieux was granted bail Friday pending his appeal against nine contempt-of-court citations.

Amendments Delay Vote On Capital Punishment

OTTAWA (CP) — A string of amendments choked off a re-in newal of debate on the government's long-delayed capital punishment bill Friday and forced its postponement until Monday.

The bill had just returned to the Commons from the House justice committee for final disposition more than six months after it was introduced last Jan. 14, a week after this session of Parliament opened.

In the committee Solicitor-General Warren Allmand lost an attempt to have it remedied, to abolish the death penalty completely when an amendment to this effect was ruled out of order.

The argument Friday revolved around a series of further amendments ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux and two that were left standing for possible debate.

One by Albanie Morin (D., Kent-Gloucester) would provide the death penalty in rape or kidnap cases where the victim dies.

An amendment by Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham) would provide the death penalty for those convicted of murder a second time or for air piracy that results in a death.

Mrs. Morin was not in the Commons Friday and Mr. Lawrence refused to continue with his amendment until the Liberal member's amendment is considered. A party spokesman said Mrs. Morin was in Quebec City and had not expected the amendment to come up so soon.

Mr. Lawrence said outside the Commons "there are tactics involved" in wanting Mrs. Morin's amendment to go first. It approved it would set a precedent and there would be more chance of getting his adopted.

Another amendment by Mr. Lawrence, ruled out of order, would have changed the method of execution to a "more humane, sensible, sane and less cruel" one.

The former attorney-general and justice minister for Ontario said outside the Commons that judges injected or administered orally would be a good alternative to hanging. He said hanging is "an extremely archaic and medieval way of inflicting capital punishment."

The government's bill limits execution to the killers of policemen or prison guards. The bill extends a five-year moratorium on hanging for all other murders.

Earlier, changes in immigration legislation received third reading in the Commons despite Conservative objections that Parliament had not had a chance to approve regulation changes made last November.

The legislation clarified the legality of the regulations, whose validity had been questioned by recent decisions of the immigration appeals board and the Federal Court of Appeals.

The decisions nullified changes intended to prohibit a visitor from applying for landed-immigrant status while in the country.

Turbo Failed to Slow Down

MONTREAL (CP) — The flagman on a turbo train which collided with a CN freight in a west-end railway yard here Friday said the turbo failed to slow down before the crossing where the accident occurred.

"We were supposed to stop," Roland Hilaregay said after the accident. "He was all lined up as the crossover and expected he should have had the right of way."

The train, Mr. Hilaregay said, was travelling "at least 60 mph" before the collision.

Eleven of the 36 people on the train received minor injuries in the collision. No one on the freight was hurt.

Sam Armand, the CN engineer who was operating the turbo at the time of the accident, has been ordered by railway officials not to speak to reporters.

A CN public relations spokesman said "we don't want him being harassed."

Emery LeBlanc, public relations director for CN, declined to substantiate suggestion by the flagman that the turbo's hydraulic brakes may have failed before the accident.

"I haven't heard anything about a brake failure," he said. "Our investigation will be forwarded to the CTC (Canadian Transport Commission) and they will make it public. We have nothing further to add."

The turbo was on a test run for Amtrak at the time of the accident. Those on board, except for a CN operating crew, were officials of the company, the Illinois Central Gulf and Milwaukee Railroads, and the U.S. Federal Railways Safety Board.

An Amtrak spokesman said the company would wait for the outcome of the accident investigation before deciding whether or not to proceed with its plans to buy turbos.

The trains become our property only after test have been completed and we have signed an acceptance form," he said.

Firemen took 90 minutes to extinguish the fire which resulted from the explosion of the turbo's fuel tanks in the collision.

The turbo, first introduced in 1969, is capable of speeds up to 194 mph, but it has been plagued by problems since its first tests.

Chamber of Commerce For One Police Force

TORONTO (CP) — Replacement of municipal and other local police forces in Ontario by a single force for all of the province was urged Friday in two submissions to a government group studying policing in Ontario.

In a brief calling for one police force, the Ontario Chamber of Commerce said such a move would help standardize recruitment, administrative procedures and training. It also would reduce duplication of activities by the various existing police forces and help cut costs.

Malcolm Cairncluff, a 16-year-old Toronto salesman, made similar points in his private submission to the study group.

Mr. Cairncluff said constables on normal duty should not be armed. At the same time he failed for an "all-out war" against crime, beginning at the neighborhood level.

Mr. Cairncluff expressed a recurring theme at the hearings—the growing isolation of policemen from citizens and the community.

Another private brief presented by Martin Landsman of Toronto and his wife, Margaret, said relations between the public and police show signs of deterioration.

Mr. Landsman, a 49-year-old former owner of a bookstore in Kitchener, Ont., said police too often are suspected of favoring middle-class citizens and giving the young, the poor and the foreign-born a hard time.

To end infringements on civil liberties, changes in police physiognomies and patterns must be gin at the top, he said.

White House Aide Strachan Admits Destroying Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Gordon Strachan admits destroying documents about political intelligence, but denies knowing about the Watergate wiretapping in advance or participating in a cover-up.

His testimony, already in conflict with that of former campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder and ousted White House counsel John Dean, will face stiff testing by the Senate Watergate committee when the televised hearings resume Monday.

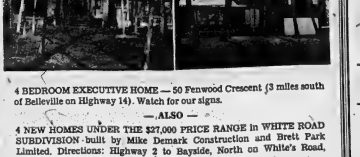
Strachan read a 15-page statement at the end of Friday's session but answered no questions. He attacked Magruder's testimony on several counts and denied ever telling Dean that he had destroyed wiretap logs.

Besides his denials of personal involvement, Strachan offered some new evidence implicating H. R. Haldeman in the cover-up. He said he told Haldeman, then presidential chief of staff, long before the wiretapping that the Nixon campaign committee was running a $300,000 "sophisticated political intelligence gathering system," and that two or three days after the break-in he showed Haldeman an old memorandum dealing with the operation.

"After speaking to him, I destroyed that memo," Strachan said.

Committee sources say Strachan is prepared to say, when questioned, that he destroyed the document on Haldeman's orders.

In the Senate hearings, Strachan's media headed denials were aimed at Magruder, who had been his boss when Magruder served at the White House. During the campaign, the roles were nearly reversed, with Magruder reporting to his old subordinate.



"As a result, Mr. Magruder actually tried to avoid the reporting system," Strachan said. Magruder filled in Haldeman directly on projects that were going well, but tossed off the bad ones with a sketchy account to Strachan, he said.

Strachan denied that Magruder told him about Liddy's $1-million proposal to use bugging, burglary, prostitution and kidnapping in the Nixon re-election campaign.

"I certainly would not forget it," Strachan said. "Mr. Magruder certainly did not give me that information, and certainly not those details."

NDPers May Battle Over Price Controls

VANCOUVER (CP) — Battle lines appeared to be forming among New Democratic Party delegates being prepared for today's debate on price and wage controls. The ultimate debate is one which could reverberate through the minority Liberal government.

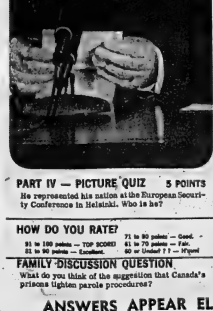
So far the NDP, which holds the balance of power in the minority Parliament, has said little about possible controls. And the government has had little trouble fending off Conservative demands for a temporary freeze on prices and incomes. But it would be a different matter if the NDP, through convention resolution, were to support the Conservative demands.

The broadly-based cost-of-living resolution before the NDP convention today said only that "across-the-board wages and profits controls are not the answer to the present rise in living costs." Many senior party officials had hoped to avoid saddling the 36-member party caucus with any firm policy instructions on the issue.

But by Friday there appeared to be a growing number of delegates favoring some form of control, and there was support for "selective controls" from two premiers: Allan Blakney of Saskatchewan and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba. Mr. Blakney said his province would likely put down on the question of price-control initiated by Ottawa.

Mr. Schreyer said that "once there is consensus that inflationary pressures are no longer tolerable, the next logical step is one of temporary limitations of income policy — a temporary restraint."

He said that inflationary pressures now were closely approaching the intolerable level.



Some delegates said there is a growing feeling among the 1,500 attending this NDP federal convention that it's time for some type of price and wage controls, but it was not known how the resolution would finally emerge. It was considered almost certain that amendments calling for controls would be introduced from the floor.

Meanwhile, as the delegates plowed through their hefty list of resolutions, many of them involving procedural arguments, they put off until Sunday another key battle area: the question of energy. A split developed over the resolution on the issue, described by party leader David Lewis as the most important to face the convention.

The disagreement was over how comprehensive the solution should be. Max Saltzman, MP for Waterloo and chairman of the NDP caucus on energy, said there were also differences over the resolution and an energy sub-committee was hopeful its position would likely get down on the question of public ownership.

Government Flounders Over Living Costs

A Good Day for The Opposition—But for How Long?

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — For one of the very few times this session, the Conservatives came out fighting the other day on the latest backsetting of the cost of living.

They lampooned Prime Minister Trudeau, Finance Minister Turner, Energy Minister Macdonald, and Consumer Affairs Minister Gray with questions which, for the first time since just after the election, almost seemed to beat the Liberals back down onto their perch.

The cabinet was clearly flounderling without answers to the questions on the crisis of inflation.

Their helplessness to rally under this kind of a sustained attack in turn appeared to infuriate and frighten them.

"Sure," admitted Ralph Stewart, plain-spoken Liberal MP for Cochrane and chairman of the Commons Broadcasting Committee, "we looked a fool. We can't stand many days like that.

"The feeling that the government suddenly is unsure of itself gets through to the people.

"But not to worry, the Conservatives do not know how to maintain the momentum. It's all alone increase the pressure.

"It's just a flash in the Tory pan," he said, reassuringly.

But worried as the Liberals kicked it around at their next day caucus, and a couple of the cabinet came under rank and file criticism for (to roast-) they had taken when the Conservatives turned up that heat.

The same day, in the Opposition lobby, Tory (Prince Tom Bell was not so stimulated by the excitement of the Conservative successful assaults on the Liberals that he did not pause, to wonder if they could keep up the pressure.

"I hope," he muttered, "that we don't fall back tomorrow."

But if they do not fall back sooner or later, and likely sooner, it will surprise a combative Conservative party active almost all his life in politics, and recently bemoaning the lack of any real will to stand against far too many of the party's parliamentary troops.

He recalls the high hopes last January when Conservative Leader Stanfield, with no seats than the Liberals in every province but Quebec — in New Brunswick they broke even — led his forces into the Commons.

The Conservatives were only two seats short of the shaken Liberals and hopes were high that in the first or second crisis to confront the government in the Commons, it might be topsiced.

The senator, who has been around Parliament Hill even longer than John Diefenbaker dean of the Commons, knows it was not so much the propping up by the New Democrats of the Liberals that blighted Tory hopes of power.

It was more that the Conservatives were out-psyched by the Liberal flacks.

The government's publicity guru — and these include some Grit MPs skilled in the manipulation of news — put it around that the Conservatives were too busy fighting among themselves to have time to fight the Liberals.

Even more damaging, they got the propaganda across to the Conservatives that the Opposition would look too "greedy for power" if it seriously attempted to unseat the uncertain government when the voters were supposed to be cool to the prospect of another election this soon.

But the other day, on the cost of living crisis, the Conservatives forgot all about the Liberal political propaganda ploys and came out swinging.

Some of the older Conservative hands remembered the days and weeks back in the late 1962 and '63 when the Liberals had done the same.

They mounted an attack and sustained it.

"Pick, Paul and Chev," as the then Prime Minister Diefenbaker called Liberal cabinet ministers Pickersgill, Paul Martin and Lionel Chevrier, kept the Commons in an uproar.

Paul Martin especially, ignoring first Mr. Speaker Roland Michener and then Mr. Speaker Marcel Lambert, persisted day after day with a calculated provocation of Tory dignity.

He simply turned his back on Mr. Speaker and engaged the Conservative cabinet while the Liberal backbenchers kept up a happy tumult throwing the Commons into disorderly turmoil.

The Government appeared to be losing control and finally did.

The Conservatives, 10 years later, in the cost of living upyear, showed they might do it too — if only they could keep up the pressure.

Mortgage Interest Rates on Upward Spiral

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service.

If you're buying a house—despite the staggering prices—you can expect to be staggered again by the cost of a mortgage.

But, high as they are, today's interest rates on mortgage loans are lower than they will be a few months from now, according to experienced brokers.

The going rate on prime conventional and National Housing Act residential mortgages is 9¾ per cent in most parts of Canada. But a 10-per-cent rate is ready in effect in some places, and could well become general, trust companies say.

To obtain money themselves, the trust companies are paying 8½ per cent interest to clients who invest in five-year certificates—and the companies don't consider a return of 1¼ percentage points to be adequate compensation for their efforts.

What determines the cost of mortgage credit?

The simple answer is the law of supply and demand. Currently, the supply of money available for loans doesn't meet the demand.

A more detailed answer, from the economic text books, might emphasize three main determinants of interest levels:

—Liquidity. The Bank of Canada may decide that there is too much money in circulation (liquidity) for orderly economic growth. So it sells government bonds and other securities to banks and others, to sop up their excess cash.

Businesses who need more cash are then forced to sell securities they had been holding. Prospective buyers of those securities have the advantage, and demand lower prices and higher yields.

—Business activity. When the economy is booming, as it is today, businesses need more money to work with, and can afford to pay higher interest to get it.

When the economy slows down, businesses may have more cash than they need, and will invest the excess in securities. That sends prices of securities up and interest, and yields, down.

—Inflation. If the purchasing power of the dollar is dropping steadily, and the lender knows that he will be repaid in dollars that are worth less than those he is lending out, he will demand an inflation premium as part of the interest rate.

Put these all together, they spell still-higher interest rates in the foreseeable future. Mortgage rates are almost sure to go up again.

Over the life of a mortgage, the interest cost becomes by far the biggest item in the cost of purchasing a house.

Let's say you are buying a $53,000 house with a $10,000 down payment and a 40-year mortgage loan for $25,600. At 8½-per-cent interest, the total interest on the loan will be about $73,000—three times the amount borrowed. And more than twice the price of the house itself.

And if the home buyer has to borrow from a second-mortgage specialist to make up the down payment, at rates ranging up to 20 per cent, the borrowing costs become far worse.

With borrowing costs approaching the level of usury, it's time that Ottawa's economic experts lifted their eyes from the textbooks and looked around for a better way to finance housing.

At the very least, the federal government should reconsider its refusal to permit home owners to deduct mortgage interest and property taxes from their taxable income.

The Balance of Nature

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The spraying program carried out by Forest Protection Limited, jointly owned by the New Brunswick provincial government and the Province's Pulp and Paper Companies, seems to have created more problems than it has solved in their effort to control the spruce budworm in the forest of New Brunswick.

There seems to be a difference of opinion as to the value of spraying large areas of forest to control the spruce budworm. Article in The Intelligencer June 27, 1973. Sadworms Wipe Out Evergreens. Montague Reeve S. J. Carr told Hastings County Council that there was nothing that could be done by way of general spray programs to control timber-destroying pests. He also said that spraying usually does more harm than good and the poison used can kill fish when it falls into streams and other bodies of water.

The Bridges Brothers Limited of St. Stephen, N.B. one of the largest lumberby companies in New Brunswick, are claiming damages of more than $1.5 million against Forest Protection Ltd. saying they were forced to cut down 30,000 acres mainly robins, in areas where the spray program was to be carried out and the bees that helped pollinate their fields disappeared. (Toronto Star, June 19, 1973.)

Provincial and federal governments have sanctioned the massive spray program (Intelligencer June 30, 1972) It looks as if once again government will be forced to spend money to protect the environment have failed to take into consideration the effects of this spray program on nature and what the ultimate damage could be.

The time is long past when we can continue with such a haphazard approach to a problem that could have disastrous consequences. It is possible that spray programs such as this could be balanced by nature for many years.

The federal and provincial governments must realize that it is not good enough to only set in a time limit for the study, have a definite program conducted by competent biocides and pesticides so that all aspects concerning the environment are considered before any spraying is carried out. It is better to err on the side of caution, than to continue on in the hope that the mistakes made can be corrected some time in the future.

Also the future of Canada and the health of its people could be jeopardized if steps are not taken now. If we continue interfering with the balance of nature no one can tell what the ultimate consequences will be. History will judge us by what we do now in preserving the environment, and not our good intentions.

KENNETH B. PEOPLES

Afghans, In Coup

By DAVE THOMAS

LONDON (CP) — The military coup which kicked over the throne of Afghanistan's King Mohammed Zahir Shah was essentially a family affair.

But the takeover by General Sada Mohammed Daud, prime who is also the cousin and brother-in-law of the deposed monarch, means more than a neighbor's family dispute to Pakistan, already troubled along its southern border by its dispute with India.

Daud's early-morning proclamation of a republic included an ominous reference to Afghanistan's historic desire for a northern border area of Pakistan.

The border splits a sizeable concentration of Pashtan tribesmen and there have been intermittent cries from the Kabul government for a separate Pashtan state carved out of Pakistan bolded for its independence from British colonialism in 1919.

The glory of the 18th-century Afghan empire, which extended over most of what now is Pakistan, has been overshadowed in the past by the 64-year-old general who commands an army of 90,000 men and is well-armed, force equipped with Soviet jet fighters and tanks.

Pakistan has already felt the hostility of Afghanistan's new leader, who was prime minister during 1953-63 and who ordered the closing of the border between the two countries in 1955.

Daud, who lost political office after the introduction of constitutional monarchy, was also accused of actively encouraging the Pathan guerrillas in their fight against Pakistan.

Daud's takeover of the Soviet arms may be a severe crimp on any expansionist plans that Pakistan's leader might have been nothing but a "pseudo-democracy" run by cronyism.

One of the rules established in the 1963 constitution prohibited members of the royal family from holding elected office and was specifically inserted to force Daud out.

Observers of Afghan politics have theorized that Daud either wants to or would be able to create a true parliamentary democracy. Political parties have never been permitted in Afghanistan and the country's life is rooted in the incestuous bureaucracy of the country's tribal ruling class without which Daud would lose his own power base.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
July 21, 1973 —

Pope Clement XIII decreed the abolition of the Jesuit order—200 years ago today—in 1773—under years of pressure from political leaders in France, Spain and Portugal. Historians now think the campaign united religious and conservatives who hoped suppressing the Jesuits would appease the mood for reform. Russia refused to put down the order, but the next Pope, Pius VII, reestablished it in 1783. The order was formally re-established in 1814 as a scholarly and missionary body.

1833—British newspapers established a Press Council for self-discipline.

1964—The United States occupied Guam during the Second World War.

1836—Mount Waddington in British Columbia, 13,208 feet high, was climbed for the first time by F. H. Wiestaner and party.

No Parade

We suspect there are quite a few Bellevillians who lament the decision of the Quinte Exhibition directors to dispense with the usual parade prior to the four-day fair in August and instead use a mobile public address unit to help advertise it.

It may be trite to say that "everybody loves a parade," but it is true for the most part. Certainly it affords a great deal more excitement and color and, shall we say, "pzazz" than the public address method.

The latter comes across all too often as an irritant, almost an invasion of privacy whereas with a parade you can take it or leave it. We recall the time the Christmas parade was in jeopardy but not thanks to the enthusiasm and hard work of Don Foster and his supporters the show went on.

It will be rather a sorry day if the Fair parade falls by the wayside.

Tennis Boom

If tennis is only now beginning to gain in popularity in the smaller centres of Ontario, the membership and enthusiasm for the game of Peterborough's Quaker Club put most communities to shame.

The club has existed since the mid-thirties and has more than 200 members competing for time on only two courts. They include more than a hundred seniors, some 30 students and 75 to 90 juniors. The club plays in the five-team Kawartha league and there is an afternoon league for women players numbering about 35.

The Quaker Oats Ltd., which provided the courts in the beginning, turned over control of the courts to a club executive three years ago.

It is good to see senior citizens keeping their hand in, as well as the growing enthusiasm of the young people for the sport.

No Answer

Accidents on the highways seem almost to be getting out of hand these days, often involving multiple injuries and deaths. A Quinte area woman and two of her children were recent victims of a one-car accident and from Hamilton the other day came word of the death of a 39-year-old woman, her 17-year-old daughter and ten-year-old son on Highway 60 north of Orillia. Three other members of the family were hospitalized. Such tragedy . . . such waste of lives . . . and no end in sight to what is virtually an unstoppable trend.

Transportation Issue Looms Large

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Our next Ontario general election probably won't be until 1975.

But already it is becoming apparent that one of the big pitches of the government will be its transportation policy—and particularly the demonstration project it is starting to build the Spadina Expressway and Bloor-Danforth subway.

This project will have a passenger capacity mid-way between a subway and a conventional expressway.

It will use vehicles which are supposed to be cheaper to buy and run and will be fully automatic. Very little manpower will be needed in the line-haul operation.

Premier Davis hopes that this system will give a lead not only in Canada but in the U.S., and he hasn't been reluctant to say so.

His vision is not only of Ontario having the most advanced public transportation in its cities, but also of being the centre of planning and manufacturing of public transit systems on the continent.

In line with this, a major transportation research organization is being developed by the government.

And a government corporation, the Ontario Transportation Development Corp., which will hold licences for manufacture and sale of equipment, has been established.

It's a program that lends itself to showmanship, which is getting to be a Davis political specialty.

What's more, though one can't say what attitude may be in its way, it appears to have a good chance of being a successful one.

The CNR project is scheduled to be in full operation by 1976, presumably before the election. And providing 'everything has gone all right, will present a considerable boost to the government's fortunes.

There are those who will immediately say that this will be of interest only to the people for only they would be able to make use of this new transportation approach.

But half of the province's population today lives in the big cities.

And then, this pilot project is only part of the government's new transportation policy.

For the immediate future cities are dial-a-bus projects and large assistance grants, for the subway in Toronto's Spadina and by 1975 we can expect there will be something and something visible and valuable, for everybody.

Jehovah Witnesses Are Facing Showdowns With Nationalists

LAGOS, Nigria (AP) — African patriots seem headed for a showdown with Jehovah's Witnesses who don't believe in saluting flags or singing national anthems.

While the sect's small size has angered politicians from Malawi to Nigeria and Ethiopia to Cameroon where its members have been banned, persecuted or publicly vilified.

It is mainly the refusal of the Witnesses to become involved in national political life that has provoked trouble.

The sect, whose belief centres on the doctrine of the second coming of Christ, regards governments as the work of Satan and refuses to salute flags or sing national anthems.

Founded in the United States in 1878, the Jehovah's Witnesses were banned before 1931 as Russellites, after Charles Taze Russell, who organized them.

A few months ago in Nigeria's Mid-West State, some 30 children were expelled from school for refusing to sing the national anthem and salute the flag.

The church-state conflict has been considerably sharper in other African nations.

Late last year about 10,000 Jehovah's Witnesses were deported to have fled into Zambia, from Malawi.

The flood of refugees, according to published reports, followed attacks mounted against the sect by the Young Pioneers, the young wing of the Malawi Congress party.

Some reports, denied by Malawi, said about 60 Witnesses were killed.

The group was repatriated later amid a flurry of denials by Malawi's president, Kamuzu Banda, that any persecution had taken place.

Banda said they fled "because they had been misled by their fanatical and ignorant leaders who had told their followers that God was about to destroy Malawi—at Armageddon—and that to escape His wrath they must flee the country."

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, was reported to have used the country's security powers to stop the sect's house-to-house appeals for funds.

In Cameroon, the Witnesses were banned after thousands abstained in presidential elections in 1970.

But despite the opposition of President Ahmadu Ahidjo, Moslem, the sect continues to operate underground in that country.

In April, they were banned in Kenya where they were branded "dangerous" to good government.

In June, Gen. Idi Amin's government in Uganda banned the Jehovah's Witnesses and 18 other religious sects which were described as being dangerous to peace and order.

President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire also has effectively banned the Jehovah's Witnesses, insisting that all Protestant churches and sects wishly under the umbrella of the Church of Christ in Zaire, formerly The Congo.

One published report puts the total figure in black Africa at 200,000, with about 10,000 in Cameroon, 14,000 in Zaire, 15,000 in Ghana, 12,000 in Malawi, 80,000 in Nigeria, 12,000 in Rhodesia, 36,000 in South Africa, 16,000 in Zambia and several other thousands in Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania.

The sect's adherents maintain a rigid discipline and the current appears to be gaining increasing popularity, especially in West Africa.

"You cannot find a Jehovah's Witness in the prisons," says one member of the sect in Lagos. "We are never arrested for stealing or for armed robbery or for any other social vices that are nowadays with the world.

But continued conflict with Africa's governments seems inevitable since, as one Jehovah's Witness put it, "I will not betray my loyalty and respect on this earth."

Asa's Cure for Anxiety Can Work for Us Today

By REV. GORDON C. SMYTH

Asa was born in 913 BC. He ruled Judah for 41 years. He insisted a series of unpopular reforms to rid the land of heathen deities and practices. He removed the Queen Mother from public life because she had made an image of Asherah, the Canaanite goddess of fertility, and worshipped it.

As if King Asa did not have enough to cause anxiety at home, more came from abroad. For instance, he was confronted by an attack by Zerah, Ethiopian commander of an Egyptian frontier city. On the outcome might hinge Pharaoh's decision for an all-out invasion of Judah.

The battle would be the next day. The hours of night dragged slowly past. At day break the soldiers of Judah got ready. They wondered, "Where is the King? Why is he not among us?" Where indeed was Asa? There in his tent, on his knees. He had been prevailed half the night. But as day dawned a strange thing happened. A fearful peace came stealing into the King's heart.

In quiet confidence Asa now prayed, "O Lord, there is none like Thee to help, between the naughty and the weak. Help us, O Lord our God, for we rely on Thee, and in Thy name we have come against this multitude."

King Asa rose from his knees, put on his armour, rode out and down in front of his men to rally their spirits. Now the signal to attack, and won a resounding victory.

It takes little imagination to see how this account from 2 Chronicles, chapter 14, has a bearing on our times and lives.

"We have come against this multitude." What a host of problems beset us! In reaction to inflation, pollution, poverty, a sick technology, people are confused, discouraged and no longer find meaning in life. How does he shall we explain the growing phenomenon of the drug culture, the alarming increase in total sexual permissiveness, the number of experiments in communal living, the hordes of uninvolved and unconcerned young Canadians swarming across the land, or the drop-outs from our pews over the last few years?

People are suffering from pre-battle jitters or post-battle fatigue. They are confronted by a multitude of stern realities that overwhelm them. It is really no escaping them. You can run away from most everybody and everything except yourself.

Here, inside you, is the field of defeat or victory. Learning from King Asa's reliance on God can make all the difference.

To increase that reliance the Bible prescribes three basic facts to which many readers of this column may need to return as quickly as possible.

The first fact is the sovereignty of Almighty God. You studied that every time you say, in the Lord's Prayer "Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory." You say it, but do you acknowledge it in your thinking and encounters?

Otto Dibelius, late Bishop of the Evangelical Church in Germany, wrecked international prominence for his heroic struggle against Nazism and Communism. He rose above everything in which he could consider a multitude against him. It became obvious that he feared God and no other power. This was his creed, "One can do his duty, but very rarely does." Dibelius did one has to leave to the providence of God." Many need your prayers.

The second fact is the presence of Jesus Christ. "Lo, I am with you always, to the close of the age." He said it, meant it, and has kept His word. Augustine, John Wesley, David Livingstone, Albert Schweitzer, Martin Luther King, and Malcolm Muggeridge could testify to that fact. No sane person would call such people religious crackpots. You too can have the thrilling assurance of the companionship of Christ to rely on in time of need.

The third fact to which the Bible would recall us is the power of the Holy Spirit. For example, addressing students of Yale University, the late Sir William Osler said, "Do you remember that most touching of all incidents in Christ's ministry, when the anxious ruler Nicodemus came by night, worried lest the things that pertained to the everlasting peace were not a part of his busy and successful life? Christ's message to him is His message to the world: 'Ye must be born of the Spirit'."

Fertility Fandango Fails to Fill Cradles

OBANDO, Philippines (AP) — Now that the people of Obando have overcome the Roman Catholic hierarchy's disapproval of their dancing a fertility fandango around the altar of the parish church, it may be too late to do them any good.

Birth control has set in. *

More enthusiastically than at any time in the past 20 years, townsfolk and childless couples from all over the Philippines swayed through Obando to a fandango payed by a bamboo version of a brass band, complete with bamboo tuba.

The procession was part of a rite the Catholic Church judiciously has adapted from a custom rooted in pre-Spanish pagan days in this community old town of 30,000. Once a fishing village, Obando is becoming a bedroom suburb for Manila 30 miles away.

The fandango ended this year at the altar of the San Pascual parish church. The bamboo band blared, and couples sang a traditional Tagalog song, which, roughly translated, goes like this:

"Santa Clare, so pure,
"This is my pledge.
"When I reach Obando,
"I will dance the fandango."

So, when the procession this year moved past the Obando family planning center, the moment represented a clash of interests. But the centre staff turned out, nevertheless, to cheer on the dancers following the statues of Santa Clara and San Pascual carried by parishioners.

According to Dr. Bautista, the third statistics indicate a drop in Obando's birth rate since 1967 when it was 38 per 1,000. Now it is 21 per 1,000, based on his figures. He credited the decline to birth control.

The faithful still are betting on the fandango which only last year spawned its dramatic finish before the altar. The dancer around the altar hailed in 1948 when the bishop of Manila then, Michael J. O'Doherty, decided it was too pagan.

Father Rome Fernandez, the parish priest, said the church now no longer has an objection.

Then the famous Canadian-born doctor gave those young married couples advice on what they would do well to accept. He said, "Begin the day with Christ and His prayer . . . you need no other. Learn to know your Bible, though not promising or fanciful ones. In forming character, its touch has still its ancient power. Fifteen or 20 minutes day by day will give you fellowship with the noblest of the race, and little by little as the years pass you extend your friendship with the immortal dead."

Sir William continued, "They will give you faith in your own day. Life is a straight, plain business, and the way is clearblazed for you by generations of strong men, into whose labors you enter and whose dangers must be your inspiration."

Accept the facts of the sovereignty of God, the availability of Christ, and the power of the Holy Spirit. Build on these facts and live by them. This includes getting off your knees from regular prayer, putting on your armour like King Asa long ago, and fighting a good fight with all your might. It includes at length facing death with a steady eye, ready to storm the very gates of heaven.

Recent Weddings

DR. AND MRS. RUSSEL L. THOMPSON

Thompson — Clelland

St. Thomas' Anglican Church recently was the scene when Sharon Marie Clelland married Dr. Russel Lorne Thompson.

Sharyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen J. Clelland, Belleville. Russel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Thompson, of Ottawa.

The Rev. Peter M. Tett officiated the afternoon wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white swiss organza silk dress with high neckline trimmed with lace. Long sleeves and a short train were features of the gown. A crown of seed pearl held her shoulder length veil. She carried red roses.

Mrs. Clark Webster, matron of honor, wore an A-line dress in pink cotton batiste. She wore a white picture hat with ribbons and carried a single pink rose.

Dr. Ilmar Kent, Ottawa, was best man. Ushers were Dr. Clark Webster, of Russel, Ont. Cliff Thompson, brother of the groom and Wayne Clelland, brother of the bride.

After a wedding trip to St. Louis Island, the couple will reside in Petawawa.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS J. COUTURE

Couture — Monteith

Sheila Isabel Monteith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Monteith, of Markham, Ont., and Douglas John Couture, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard G Couture, Belleville, were married in a candlelight ceremony in St. Andrew's Church, Markham.

Rev. Fred Craney officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white eyelet gown with high neckline and short puffed sleeves. A lemon yellow sash and a cap of white daisies completed the ensemble. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, yellow snapdouds and baby's breath.

Kathy Noble, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. She wore a lemon yellow sheer gown embroidered with white daisies. She carried cornflowers, baby's breath and daisies.

Beverly Rickard, Suzanne Couture, the groom's sister, were bridesmaids and wore gowns the same as the matron of honor's.

The couple will reside in Oakville.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID R. BONSOR

Bonsor - Ruckstuhl

Mary Diane Ruckstuhl and David Ronald Bonsor were married July 7 by Rev. John Grainger in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Trenton.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ruckstuhl, of Trenton. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Bonsor, Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sheath styled gown of imported Swiss soie. A train of crystal peau de soie fell from her shoulders and organza roses held her silk illusion veil. She carried a white Bible with a corsage of red roses.

Judy Ruckstuhl, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sally Ruckstuhl and Suzanne Ruckstuhl were dressed in red and pink organza gowns and white picture hats. They carried parasols filled with roums and baby's breath.

The groom's brother Brian Bonsor was best man assisted by ushers Edgar Willson Lindsay and Mark Ruckstuhl, the bride's brother.

They will reside in Pembroke.

RETAIL SALES

From 1966 to 1971, retail sales in Canada rose by 35.1 per cent to a total of $30,648.4 million.

MR. AND MRS. GARRY RIVERS

Rivers — Foley

Barbara Jean Foley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Foley, RR 1, Madoc, wed Garry Joseph Rivers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rivers, of Tweed, on Saturday, June 30, at 3:30 p.m. in a double ring ceremony at Sacred Heart of Mary Church, Madoc.

Reverend Father Peter Murphy officiated.

Maid of honor was Brenda Foley, twin sister of the bride. She wore a floor-length gown of floral design over blue taffeta-tied at the back with ribbons of the same fabric. The gown featured a stand-up collar and short sleeves with tucks at the shoulders.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Joanne Ketler, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Marie Whiteman, sister of the bride, and Lorraine Rivers sister of the bridegroom. All wore gowns fashioned identically to that of the maid of honor, but of taffeta in pastel shades of pink, mauve, and yellow, respectively. Each carried a single long-stemmed rose with gowns and jeans to the bridesmaids hats in the same pastel shades.

Two cousins of the bride, Susan Ketcheson and Kimberley Holmes were flower girls. They wore floor-length gowns of white crimpline with pink velvet bows tied at the back of the empire waist. The short puff sleeves were trimmed in the same dainty pink trim as was on the bride's gown. They wore pink bows in their hair and carried cascade bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Bestman was Gary Beakley, of Stoco, and ushers were Dorane Foley, brother of the bride, Ron Whiteman, brother-in-law of the bride, and Percil Rivers, brother of the groom.

Beef Boycott: A Non-Event

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

The beef boycott in Canada appears to have been a non-event. Not many people were even involved in it, and the few who were say it had little or no effect except, perhaps, to heighten people's awareness of rising food prices.

In a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, people who led the boycott two months ago said they hoped the awareness might translate into public pressure that would have an effect on food prices, but they weren't optimistic.

Peter Warren, a Winnipeg bricklayer who was among the first off the mark in organizing a boycott, says it was a failure.

He says he went to Ottawa afterwards to present a petition with 30,000 signatures asking for government price controls on meat. He says he met with New Democrat and Conservative agriculture leaders but was turned down by the Liberals.

Mr. Warren says what other boycott leaders maintain, that the Price Review Board is ineffective because it has no power.

Blanche Jullinot of La Ligue des Femmes de Quebec in Montreal agrees. She says her group wants a new board with representation from consumers, farmers and processors to reflect general opinion.

The group sent a delegation to Ottawa to lobby for a new boardand is planning to circulate a petition this summer.

Kelby Olliyff says petitions are still "floating around" in Vancouver and will be sent to Ottawa to protest meat prices.

Margaret Rouble of the Toronto-based Women Against Soaring Prices says she believes the boycott helped by alerting consumers to rising prices, but she says she isn't involved in it anothen another.

Neither is Joanne Fisher of Courtright, Ont. She now says education is needed to teach homemakers about buying and preparing food.

Bob Roberts, an Ottawa broadcaster, says he doesn't believe another boycott is possible.

"I think you would have to find some entirely different method. I don't think people would support it."

"It's difficult to bring prices down for any length of time, considering the lack of controls available to aid consumers," said Mrs. Murray, president of the Halifax County branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada.

The CAC's national president, Mavyne Brechin of Toronto, recently reiterated the group's stand that boycotts are little use and may even serve to drive prices up.

It is the opinion expressed by some government officials.

But people who eat meat and even by some producers.

Diana Haverstock, chairman of Edmonton's Protest Outrageous Rising Costs, says her group sent a petition to the Alberta consumer affairs minister.

She says she finds the price of meat "ridiculous" and buys little, but she did not think a boycott would accomplish anything.

"It would have stopped production of beef at the farm-duction of beef at the farm-gate level. Then when people did go back to buying beef, prices would have gone higher."

Three independent butchers in St. John's all say their sales volume hasn't changed, in spite of complaints about prices. They have regular customers who continue to buy about what they have always bought.

There were no boycott organizers in Newfoundland or P.E.I.

B.C. Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich says he was pleased that Canadian consumers largely ignored the boycott. He says prices might be briefly reduced by a boycott but in the long would go higher.

His opinion was shared by an official at Swift's Meat Packing in Montreal who preferred to remain anonymous. He said with it as demand, the farmer would produce less, and prices would rise.

There seem to have been a few side-effects from the boycott. Both horse meat and the new part-soybean hamburger were given a good deal of publicity, and many have attracted some customers.

And several of the boycotters said people learned to use cheaper cuts of meat, to eat more fish, to experiment with some meatless dishes.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Alton L. Whitney, of Barker's Point, N.B., are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Marlene Rose, to Douglas Earl Spearman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira D. Spearman, of Belleville. The marriage will take place August 25 at Wesleyan Church, Barker's Point.

Burglar Protection

Consumers' Association of Canada reminds home and apartment dwellers that night chains should not be relied upon for burglar protection. The non-locking type can be removed by a simple method from outside, and all types will give way to a heavy blow from a shoulder or foot. Furthermore, they can be stripped easily with hacksaws. Disreputable locksmith. CAC national headquarters is located at 109 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Ann Landers

'Beautiful Person' Divorced

Dear Ann Landers: I am in love with Todd and he is in love with me. He's a beautiful person and I know we could have a wonderful life together. My parents hate this man because he is several years my senior and has been divorced three times. I admit he has got a lousy rap when it comes to his previous wives were selfish and stupid. No woman has ever loved him or understood him as I do.

Next to Todd, the boys in school seem like infants. They bore me silly. I am willing to face the wrath of my family and go away with this man. Please tell me this marriage has a chance.—Difference Drummer

Dear Different: You don't want advice. You want approval, and I'm not about to give it.

When I learn more the facts crowded from a letter that the facts stated. You avoided telling me Todd's age, or yours. This leads me to believe you are at least a generation apart. You failed to mention whether Todd has children. I'll bet he has several living somewhere, too, if you run off with this aging Lothario. within two years you'll be looking for a younger and he'll be looking for his fifth.

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then you print a letter about problems that come up because people didn't make the proper plans in regard to their burial. Here is what happened to our family and I hope something will learn from it.

Our beloved mother passed on in 1967. Dad married again in 1981. His second wife started in with that double plot talk immediately after they were married. She nagged him incessantly. Dad agreed to a double plot for him and his second wife so he could get a night's sleep.

Last year our beloved wife suffered a stroke and died two weeks later. His wife was married within five months. Yesterday we learned from a reliable source that now she is nagging her new husband for a double plot. Our beloved dad is alone in his half of a double plot and Mom is alone in her half of a double plot. They are on opposite sides of the cemetery and for us children it is the longest walk in the world. What should we do?—Grieving in El Paso

Dear E.P.: Have your father or your mother moved so they are side by side.

From Tragedy to Success—Hilly Raises Her Family With Catering Business

We always caller her Hilly (no reference to baked-on and sort of pet name derivative from her surname.) When her husband, a travelling salesman, first took up with another women and left her on her own she had two small children to feed. Her whole world tumbled about her, but she picked up the pieces.

After the first shock, she was looking for things to do to support her threesome. A friend had the inspiration to ask her if she would help with a party by making up fancy sandwiches, preparing coffee and putting it all on a hostess trolley.

On the appointed evening Hilly sneaked in the back door of her friend's home, quietly and efficiently prepared delicious snacks, set it all out on a trolley, picked up an envelope with some money in it admired to her, left by the back door as her hostess stepped into the kitchen and ordered her thanks.

Hilly didn't know it then, but this was the beginning of a catering business. Next, a friend of hers had a husband with a taste for pickles; yet said friend hated the aroma of vinegar which would pervade the household if she were to make the kinds of pickles he wanted. Would Hilly like to make up a batch for her? Hilly would!

While she was working on this assorted batch, other friends saw the assembled filled jars. She sold every jar to these new customers before delivering what had been ordered in the first place. She had to make up the batch all over again!

By this time Hilly was silently thanking those blessed parents who had put her through a course in home economics before she was married. She knew how to handle food and she knew a good deal about nutrition.

Hilly was and is the kind of person who loves a joke, good humor, a happy evening with friends. She never refused an invitation. have thought her to arrive home at night after a bridge game and begin cooking up an order for lemon meringue pies before falling into bed; and never saw anyone make a lemon pie more efficiently.

But she had two small mouths to feed and a house to keep, because her husband never came back, never sent money; and a divorce went through. She recalls times when she was down to a quarter. Once, she says, she was down to 10 cents, and with it she purchased a pound of icing sugar, made up and delivered a cake which had been ordered and received the money — 25 cents.

It didn't take long for her business to grow. She reminds us now of how my sister helped her make up a price list (her ubusiness sense didn't go that far). From then on her complete list of confections went out with every item her young son delivered. —All that was 40 years ago. Hilly is 79 now, living with her unmarried daughter, both in the best of health and enjoying each other.

I saw Hilly a few days ago. Healthy, happy, glad to be alive. And looking as if she might well make it to a hundred. She does the shopping, prepares the dinner, keeps the house for her highly paid executive type daughter. I think their genius for laughter keeps them both young in spirit.

Wouldn't you call that a healing success out of tragedy? I would.

HAMILTON (CP) — Singer Tony Bennett and the Woody Herman orchestra, comedian Victor Borge, and country and western stars Ferlin Husky and Jeanne Pruett are included in the lineup for September's opening celebrations of the city's new theatre centre, Hamilton Place.

The centre cost $25.5 million, of which $7½ million of which was raised by public and private subscription with the remainder provided by the city.

Details of the opening celebrations, which will run for one month from Sept. 30, were announced by centre officials Wednesday.

The first night will feature a fanfare, played by Hamilton Philharmonic, commissioned specially for the festival from Canadian classical composer Louis Applebaum. Another original work will follow, with the orchestra, a 50-voice choir, three soloists and a rock band. The work was composed by Canadian Gail MacDermot, who composed the roadway hit Hair.

Shows booked for after the month-long festival include country and western singer Johnny Cash; Sammy Davis Jr., Liberace, Harry Belafonte, the Vienna Boys Choir, the Vienna Philharmonic, French soloist Marcel Marceau, Guy Lombardo, Andre Previn and the Detroit Symphony and Gordon Lightfoot.

4 ♦	Pass	Pass	Dbld.

Opening lead — four of hearts.

This deal occurred in a four-table team - of - four match in England. At the first table the bidding went as shown and East wound up at 4 diamonds doubled, making five against a heart lead and continuation.

East's three - club bid was rather imaginative, its purpose being to get partner to bid 3 notrump with adequate values in the major suits. Undoubtedly North should have passed four diamonds—he had already bid the value of his hand — but equally at fault was South, who should have doubled three clubs instead of passing. He had all the values he needed to justify a double.

Actually, South can make six clubs, assuming a normal diamond lead. Declarer ruffs in dummy, plays a spade to the king, ruffs another diamond high, plays a heart to the queen, ruffs his last diamond high, and leads a low club from dummy. The only trick he loses is the ace of clubs.

At the second table, East got to four diamonds, making five, and at the third table East got to five diamonds doubled, as a making seven tricks.

It was at the fourth table that the most stirring result was achieved. Here East also got to five diamonds doubled but wound up going down one when North-South co-operated magnificently to hold him to 10 tricks.

South led a low heart, the same opening lead that had been made at the other three tables, but North, upon winning the king, put on his thinking cap, screwed up his courage, and returned a low spade!

South won with the kingand rose to the occasion by returning a trump. East could now ruff only one of his club losers in dummy and eventually finished down one.

Zwick's Island Lease Doesn't Suit Mayor

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

The federal government has offered Belleville a 20-year hold on East Zwick's Island but Mayor Robin Jeffrey says it's not long enough.

She called the news "a disappointment" and said she would bring the matter before city council at its next meeting Aug. 13.

The mayor was reacting to a letter received Friday from the ministry of transport outlining the government's answer to Belleville proposals that included city purchase of the one-time marshland — now owned by Ottawa.

"Twenty years from now, the government might decide to take over the park," said Mayor Jeffrey, noting the city has spent over $150,000 preparing the 35-acre site for future development.

According to the letter, the ministry is offering the city four terms of five years each with no mention of cost. The lease would replace the current agreement which expires in 12 years and costs the city $180 per year.

"Our concern is that a large sum of money has been set aside each year to develop a park on that site," the mayor said. "The city would be loath to spend a lot of money when it doesn't have a long lease."

Mayor Jeffrey led a five-member delegation to Ottawa last May carrying four proposals about the park's future. Its first desire was to purchase the park either for a nominal sum or for $10,000 (a value before landfill) began to change the swamp's nature eight years ago.

Neither of those suggestions was approved, the delegation wanted a 99-year renewable lease. And lastly, they proposed that the federal government itself develop the park.

Mayor Jeffrey said that at one point in the talks, the delegation agreed to a 20-year lease with another two renewable term of 20 years.

"But that was a minimum," she stressed.

Next step, after consultations with city parks board members and the city solicitor, will be to take the issue before city council, the mayor said. She gave no indication of what steps would be taken.

She added that a department official, whom she contacted to clarify a point in the letter, told her it was government policy to restrict leases on federally - owned land to 20-year terms when it was being rented to municipalities.

"I think we're a special case because of the expenditures we've made," she said.

Cooking School on the Street

Ed Gould, teacher of hotel management at Loyalist College gathered a crowd around the Loyalist booth in the downtown mall yesterday with his cooking demonstrations. Operating on an alcohol stove and a habachi he turned out French omelets and shishkabobs, offering samples to bystanders to taste. Watching proceedings are Mrs. Patsy Trudeau and Mrs. Monica Paterson.

Business Sold, Going Cruising

MARMORA (Special) — The welding and small motor repair business at 19 Burnside St., Marmora, owned by John White, has been sold to Brayton Business of Newmarket. The new owner will take over the business Aug. 1.

Mr. White has operated the business in the village for nine years and beer and Mrs. White are making preparations to leave for the south in their 34-foot cruiser. He has installed in his 40-horsepower diesel engines in the cruiser, moored at Deseronto, and is renovating the living quarters for year-round use.

Mr. White raised in his youth, and in 1967 took a navigation course. The couple plans to head for Florida and the Gulf of Mexico, and hopes eventually to see more of the world.

Mr. Cousineau has resumed the business D.J.'s Small Motors. He is a fully licensed mechanic and was in the service station business in Newmarket following his retirement from the Canadian Forces three years ago. During his 22 years in the forces he served in Egypt, Germany and the Yukon.

Mrs. Newmarket. Mr. Cousineau was active in youth work and was a member of the Optimist Club. He was director of Minor Hockey and started lacrosse for youths.

Mr. and Mrs. Cousineau have two sons, Medric, 13 and Glenn, 6, who will be attending Sacred Heart School.

Railway Workers Offer to Meet With Munro

MONTREAL (CP) — Non-operating railway workers have offered to meet federal Labor Minister John Munro or his representative to discuss contentious issues in contract talks.

Richard Smith, chairman of the union negotiating committee, said Friday at a news conference a letter offering to meet the minister has been sent.

He also said the unions, who have vowed to strike, if necessary, to back their contract demands, will give 12 to 14 hours notice before beginning strike action but the date of the first strike has not yet been set.

A strike is legal as of today.

Mr. Smith said "only the report of the union conciliator, John Weldon, would be totally acceptable as a basis for discussion."

Mr. Weldon, who proposed 21.6 per cent wage increases over two years, and company nominee S. E. Dinsdale of Toronto, submitted reports separate from that of Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court, the board chairman. Mr. Dinsdale suggested wage increases totaling 13.3 per cent.

But the unions, while satisfied with Mr. Weldon's proposals on wages, job security and pensions, are unhappy with some of the minor suggestions of his report.

Mr. Justice Munroe suggested wage increases of 11 per cent for clerks, porters, maintenance and roundhouse people, and other employees involved.

Eight unions involved announced Thursday night that selective strike action will start as soon as strike co-ordinators can set up offices in 14 municipal cities across the country.

Selective strikes, with only a single region of the country hit for a few days at one time, were decided upon by the unions in talks here this week.

British Columbia, the Prairies, Ontario and Quebec, and the Maritimes are rail regions common to the CNR and the CPR, Newfoundland is serviced only by CN.

A general strike was rejected for fear parliament might force the 58,000 porters, clerks, maintenance men, and other non-operating employees back to work, as was done with two previous railway strikes in 1966 and 1950.

Unions representing train operators and shopcraft people began negotiations to reassess their contracts next week.

"We have spoken to some of the other unions, also considering strike at this time, and they have given us their moral support," Smith said.

Marmora Gets Grant

MARMORA (Special) — The village of Marmora has received a provincial grant of $3,000 for further development of Marmora Park. The 22 - acre park lies on the east side of the Crowe River within the municipality will contribute an amount equal to the grant.

Marmora Area Reconstruction Committee is continuing its drive to raise funds to pay for the arena's new artificial ice plant.

Events planned for the summer include dances at the Retro Club in July and on Aug. 17, the second annual family chicken barbecue at Legion Park Aug. 5 and a fish fry and dance at Marble Point Lodge Sept. 1.

'Arts Degree at 65 Worthwhile Experience

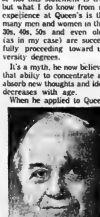
By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Education's oldest student Hastings county board of has just finished his courses and says his academic career is over.

Donald Thrush will concentrate on the policy making side of education from now on, as a trustee with the board of education. Queen's University recently notified him that he has earned the bachelor of arts degree he began studying for when he was 62 years old.

But he confesses he is having trouble turning off the study habits he cultivated for three years.

Mr. Thrush returned to university to "clean an unfinished chapter of my life".



He put in five years in medicine at the University of Toronto in the 1930's, and left before getting his degree to join the armed forces. After the war he didn't return to university but entered an entirely different field, retiring recently from the retail sales tax division of the provincial government.

His five years in medicine cost "a lot of money that was wasted" and Mr. Thrush wanted to retrieve some of the value. And a period of disciplined study would help him to retain his mental agility, he believed.

"Some psychologists tell us that after the age of 25 our brain cells stop regenerating and our learning processes start to decline," Mr Thrush says. "I don't know whether or not this statement is true, but what I do know from my experience at Queen's is that many men and women in their 30s, 40s, 50s and even older (as in my case) are successfully proceeding toward university degrees.

It's a myth, he now believes, that ability to concentrate and absorb new thoughts and ideas decreases with age.

When he applied to Queen's

to complete his degree, the university counted his five years in medicine as the equivalent of eight credits in arts. To earn the remaining seven credits he needed for a degree, Mr. Thrush took two courses a year, one in the summer and one in the winter, driving to Kingston for the lectures. This May and June he completed his final two courses at a special session at the university. His concentration in psychology and sociology was chosen from him by the university on the basis of his fundamental grounding in medical subjects.

Universities have changed since his student days, Mr. Thrush found. His initial reaction was surprise at the number of cars on campus. In the lecture hall he found participation was demanded of students. The lecture is cut and the emphasis is on dialogue between professor and students. Students are judged on their degree of participation and expected to do individual studies on their own initiative.

The cost of a university education has changed too. In the 1930s Mr. Thrush paid $150 annual tuition fee in the faculty of medicine in Toronto. By the time he finished his Queen's courses he was paying almost as much ($135) for one credi course.

Mr. Thrush drew several conclusions from his degree.

"I know what teachers go through when they get a degree extraordinarily. There's a lot of mental discipline involved that will be reflected in the classroom."

Mr. Thrush was impressed with the young people he met on campus, but "they weren't impressed with us," he says ruefully.

He finds himself in agreement with the Wright Commission report on post-secondary education. Not everyone, he feels, should go to university after high school - post-secondary education can be more vital and relevant for some people if it follows a period in the working world.

Finally, Mr. Thrush is a booster of university education, even though it may have no relevance to the grade nine finally settles into.

"Any student who has been able to subject himself to the mental discipline required to obtain a university degree will not only be a better employee but can also make a more meaningful contribution to our society."

Tweed Shows Off Art

TWEED — More than one hundred paintings will be on display at the art show to be held Saturday, July 28, in the Hungerford Township Hall, in the midst of Tweed Village.

The show will be officially opened at ten o'clock by representatives of Loyalist College and it will be covered by the news media of Belleville and area.

The students have "Karroll" an artist of Bauk as their guest, showing some small hangings and pictures. Karroll has shown her work in Toronto and other centres and those who visit the show will be greatly impressed by her creations.

Local artists are working hard to make this one of the biggest shows in the area for the painters alone, and hope that the public will support all effort and talent that went into this endeavour.

Sewer Tenders Called

PICTON — Tenders are now being called for road and sewer improvements in the Craig Barracks area of Prince Edward Heights, Picton. The cost is estimated at $186,000.

The work is part of a renovation program to convert the former Canadian Armed Forces Camp Picton into the Prince Edward Heights centre for the mentally retarded.

Renovations covered by the most of the storm sewers and reconstruction of road and parking lots. Target date for completion is October, 1973.

Contract Ratified

MONTREAL (CP) — Northern Electric installers in eastern Canada ratified a three-year contract Friday by a majority of 83 percent, a union spokesman said. They had been on strike for five weeks.

The 450 workers, members of the Canadian Union of Communications Workers, begin holidays today and will return to work at the end of their two and three-week holiday periods.

The new contract includes wage increases of 40 cents an hour the first year, 26 cents the second and 13 cents in the third year with a guarantee of 13 cents per hour cost of living allowance in the second and third years.

The contract brings the average hourly wage to $4.90 from $4.50. Top rate for installers now is $5.32 an hour.

The company has also agreed to pay full costs of employees' share of provincial health care plans.

The installers are based in Montreal but work across eastern Canada from Trenton, Ont., to Labrador.

Other improvements included vacations, working and out-of-town living conditions and a new plant holiday, Jan. 2.

Girl Struck By Car

Elizabeth Quinn, 8, of 11 Prince of Wales Dr., suffered a broken leg Friday when she darted from between two parked cars into the path of a vehicle on Front Street.

She was treated overnight in Belleville General Hospital.

Driver of the vehicle was David Desrochers of 261 Foster Ave. The incident took place just north of Victoria Avenue at about 5:30 p.m.

Retired Druggist Dies In Fire

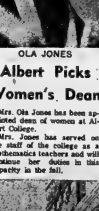
Firemen were called to the scene at 8.22 p.m. by Mrs. Robson, a tenant in the apartment building who saw flames licking up the wall of the building after windows in the Duff apartment had smashed.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane said the fire had been smoldering "for some time." Mr. Duff was found sitting on a chesterfield in the living room of the apartment after firemen entered by a window. Chief Culhane said the fire appeared to have started in the chesterfield.

Damage was confined to the apartment, said to be severely damaged by heat and smoke. Owner Ed McKinney said no estimate of the damage has been made, pending inspection by adjusters.

Mr. Duff, who lived alone in the apartment, owned Duff Drugs on Front St. for many years. Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott pronounced him dead at the scene. An autopsy was to be held at Belleville General Hospital this morning.

Mr. Duff was a registered pharmacist with Pauley's Drug Store, formerly Cotton's, and on the retirement of George Pauley, took over the business. He operated it successfully until it became Mc-Coy's Drugs on Mr. Duff's retirement.



When active in business, Mr. Duff was an enthusiastic golfer, a charter member of the Quinte Curling Club, an early president of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, a member of the Belleville Club, a president of the Belleville Druggists' Association and an active member of the now-defunct Ontario Pharmaceutical Association.

He was active in Tabernacle United Church and was once a member of the choir.

He was a member of Eureka Lodge 283, AF and AM.

He was born in Barrie, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Morley F. Duff, but had lived in Belleville most of his life. He was in his 80th year.

The funeral will be held at Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home at 11 a.m. July 21 with Rev. Leslie Dean officiating. Visitation at the funeral home from 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday.

Albert Picks Women's Dean

Mrs. Ola Jones has been appointed dean of women at Albert College.

Mrs. Jones has served on the staff of the college as a mathematics teachers and will continue her duties in this capacity in the fall.

Twins Trek Mall

Busy downtown Front Street without traffic was just too good to pass up Friday morning for Frankford twins Roxanne and Rexanne Collins. The six-year-olds, along with their mother, Mrs. Leon Collins, were among thousands of shoppers who thronged the street for the city's first mall. Balloons, music, and soft drink stands all added to the festive sidewalk sale atmosphere. The sale ends today.

No. 699 for Aaron

Others Share The Pressure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Everyone knows there's plenty of pressure on Henry Aaron as the Atlanta Braves' slugger continues his challenge of Babe Ruth's home run record.

But the pressure also is starting to extend to players on the other National League teams—like Philadelphia's Bill Robinson.

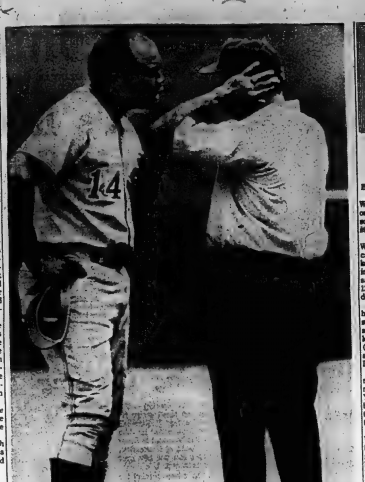
Robinson heaped over Atlanta Stadium's seven-foot high fence to rob Dusty Baker of a game-tying home run and preserve the Phillies' 6-4 victory over the Braves Friday night.

"Gosh, the fans might have killed me if Henry Aaron had hit that ball," Robinson said.

Aaron did hit one that no one could catch, a drive into the left-field seats for his 20th home run of the season and the 699th of his career, leaving him 15 behind Ruth's career high of 714.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates swept San Diego Padres 5-4 in 10 innings and 7-0 in a two-night doubleheader; San Francisco Giants defeated Chicago Cubs 3-4, Cincinnati Reds blanked Montreal Expos 4-0, Houston Astros defeated New York Mets 4-2, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in 15 innings.

Robinson's catch stopped a late rally by the Braves, who had been held to six hits by Wayne Twitchell until the seventh, when Marty Perez and Darrell Evans singled to set the scene for Aaron's blast.



Number 699 was "just another number," as Aaron put it, but to Robinson it was more than that.

Rennie Stennett hit two home runs and five singles in 10 trips to the plate in leading the Pirates to their sweep. His 10th-inning homer decided the first game, handing Mike Caldwell the loss, and his seventh homer of the season in the second game backed the six-hit pitching of Jim Rooker.

Bobby Bonds doubled twice and scored each time on singles by Garry Maddox to help the Giants make Juan Marichal the winningest active pitcher in baseball. Marichal's eighth victory in 13 decisions was the 200th of his major league career, one more than Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Doug Rader hit two home runs and Cesar Cedeno hit one to power the Astros over the Mets and John Matlack.

Hear No Evil

Umpires won't listen when they can hear. So it's doubtful if Montreal Expos coach Larry Doby was making any headway in this discussion with umpire Augie Donatelli. The first base umpire adopts a "hear no evil" stance to combat Doby's argument. (AP Photo)

Gene Littler Battles Back

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Gene Littler bogeyed the 11th hole to go two over par for the day, his reaction to adversity was typical of the plucky little man.

"All you can do in that situation is grit your teeth and keep going," Littler said.

The result was five birdies in a row—matching the best on the pro golf tour this year—and sub-par figures on six of his last seven holes.

It was good for a 66 and gave Littler a 132 total, eight under par on the 6,544-yard Norwood Hills Country Club course, and a one-stroke lead going into today's third round in the $210,000 St. Louis Children's-Hospital golf classic.

His lead was far from secure, however, with defending champion Lee Trevino, veteran Bob Goalby and John Schroeder threatening just one stroke behind at 133.

Trevino, the defending champion in this tournament that offers $42,000 to the winner, charged into position with a sparkling, six-under-par 64 that included two bogeys, while Goalby had a 68 and Schroeder 67.

Tied at 134, just two behind, were Rik Massengale, 68, and Jim Ferriell, 67. Tom Shaw, who had a 63, headed a large group at 136 while South Africa's Gary Player and leading money winner Bruce Crampton of Australia improved to 137. Crampton had a 68, Player 67.

Transfer is Blocked

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court late Friday blocked any transfer of San Diego Padres National League baseball team to Washington, D.C., pending its decision on whether it will hear the case later.

The city of San Diego had asked a writ to suspend a July 10 order by San Diego Superior Court Judge Eli Levenson which denied a request for preliminary injunction. The city's petition said if Levenson's order stands, the city will be denied maintenance of the status quo until the case can be determined on its merits.

There was no indication when the Supreme Court would decide whether to hear the case.

The city has an agreement with the Padres that the baseball franchise would be retained in San Diego through the 1988 season. But, the court was told, San Diego Padres' president E. J. Bavasi and club stockholder C. Arnholt Smith indicated May 28 they intended to transfer all Padre assets to Joseph Danzansky of Washington, D.C. The 12 National League clubs must approve the transfer, a $12 million deal.

Argos Cut And Trade

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts trimmed their roster Friday by releasing five players and trading two.

The Canadian Football League club cut Canadians Ed Marra Sprogis, a defensive halfback, kicker Ivan MacMillan and lineman Doug Dersch. Import tackles Bob Houmard and Jim Talbot also were released.

The Argos traded linebacker Pete Wysocki to Edmonton Eskimos and defensive back Jimmy Dye to Winnipeg Blue Bombers, both for "future considerations."

FOOT BONE BROKEN

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Rico Carty of Texas Rangers of the American League will be out for approximately one week with a small broken bone in his right foot. Carty, Rangers' left fielder, suffered the injury Thursday night while sliding into second base against Milwaukee Brewers. The extent of the injury was not determined until Friday.

Yankees Chase Wood

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chuck Tanner didn't want Wilbur Wood to pitch with only one day's rest between starts, so he gave him 364 hours to stead.

The manager of Chicago White Sox donned his thinking cap when New York Yankees lavyed his knuckleballing ace on an eight-run first inning assault that highlighted a 20-hit, 12-3 romp in the opener of Friday's twi-night doubleheader.

"As soon as I took him out, he asked me if I wanted him to start the second game," Tanner said. "I told him I'd decide later. Then I talked to Johnny (pitching coach Johnny Sain) and he said it's a good idea and I agreed."

Roy White's grand slam home run chased Wood in the fifth inning of the nightcap as the Yanks completed a 7-0 sweep behind Sam McDowell's two-hit-ter in a game that was rained in the bottom of the sixth.

The double-dose lowered Wood's once-glamorous record to 18-14 and made him the big gest loser in the major leagues—he's tied with Cleveland Indians' Gaylord Perry, who lost to Oakland his 6-5 Friday night—as well as the big gest winner.

Elsewhere in the American League, California Angels whipped Baltimore Orioles 8-3, Boston Red Sox blanked Minnesota Twins 5-0, Kansas City Royals trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 6-1 and Texas Rangers held off Detroit Tigers 8-6.

A full slate of single games is set for Sunday with Cleveland and Oakland, Milwaukee at Kansas City, Chicago at New York, Boston entertaining Minnesota, Baltimore at California and Detroit at Texas.

Tanner had to make a decision when Wood was routed in the opener before he could re-tire a batter.

"I didn't want him to come back Sunday with only one day's rest," Tanner explained. "We had a chance to go with our best, and if you don't use that, you're crazy. We gave the Yankees extra opportunities.

"He could have won the second game. He was pitching real well. In the first game he just didn't have it.

"Wood who had beaten the Yankees eight straight times since July 18, 1971, struck out leadoff man Horace Clarke in the first inning of the opener, then a passed ball followed Clarke to reach base. After a steal and a walk, White hit a two-run—double, Bobby Murcer added an RBI single, Thurman Munson doubled and Craig Nettles' two-run single closed Clarke opened the fourth inning of the second game with a single and third baseman Bill Melton threw White's one-out double play grounder into right field. One out later, right fielder John Jeter dropped Celerino Sanchez' liner as two runs scored.

Stephenson's two-run single and a two-run double by Alan Gallagher highlighted a six-run third inning that powered the Angels and Bill Singer past the Orioles.

Home runs by Tommy Harper in the first inning and Carlton Fisk and Jim Rice in the seventh helped the five-hit pitching of John Curtis and led the Red Sox over the Twins.

Ray Fosse singled home Joe Rudi with the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning and then scored what proved to be the winning run on a double by Bert Campaneris as the A's nipped the Royals. The r aight was Catfish Hunter's 10th in a row and gave him a 15-3 mark.

Panasiuk Leads Field

Assault is Launched

KINGSTON (CP) — A host of the sub-par effort. "Al spent course records were shot down in the first round of the $10,000 Kingston Invitational golf tournament Friday, but tour co-ordinator George Clifton promised a tougher layout for the next two rounds today and Sunday.

Leader Bob Panasiuk's 64 shattered by one the 15-year-old competitive standard at Cataraqui's 6,144-yard par-70 course. Two others equalled the mark set by Kitchener's Gerry Kesseiring in the 1958 Ontario Open.

Winnipeg's Will Homemuk and John Kindree of Sarasota, Fla., were a shot off the leader's while veteran Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., and Bob Breen of Oakville posted 66s.

"Now we started early (a day," Clifton admitted after 22 in the field of 123 of Canada's top pros and a handfull of challengers from the United States, Ireland and the Bahamas had teered par.

"Now we start to separate the men from the boys," Clifton added.

For Saturday's round, the tees will all go back and we'll change the pin placements.

"We'll add 20 yards to every hole. A good score Saturday will probably be 67 and Sunday a 69 and there'll be a lot more 72s Sunday."

Panasiuk, the 1972 Canadian Professional Golfers' Association champion from Windsor, Ont., credited several hours on the practice tee with veteran Al Balding earlier in the week with straightening out his game.

"It was all a matter of clearing my left side," Panasiuk said of the tutoring after he had loose with his irons down the treed fairways that challenge the pros at Cataraqui.

"I haven't shot a round in the 60s this year," Panasiuk said of that became available for Canadians when Ron Wilkey and Vaughan Trapp, both of Vancouver, elected not to play.

Kindree had brought four players with me. I haven't got a big enough wardrobe to play in Montreal," Norman said while rejecting the offer from Dave Zink, CPGA executive director.

It will mark the first time in 21 years that Norman has passed up the Canadian Open.

The winner here Sunday will not only pocket the $2,000 first prize in his national, but will take Lakatt's Cup, he will be one of two exemptions given tournament entries who have not previously qualified for the Open.

The runner-up will also earn an exemption. A third exemption for the Kingston Invitational has been given to Montreal's Phil Giroux, a member of the Canadian Curtis Cup team at the World Cup.

Short Summer ....Wasn't It?

You say your son is bugging you to extricate his hockey equipment from its summer place . . . somewhere.

It's only a few short weeks ago that you stored those skates, pants, pads, gloves and all the rest. And already, it's registration time, perhaps a full scale search may be in order to turn up the gear.

Well, for many of you in the Quinte area, the chore can't be put off any longer. It may be 80 in the shade but once again, it's back-to-school time in this part of the land.

Quinte youngsters will be joining hundreds of other hockey buffs from as far away as Fairbanks, Alaska at the annual Tyke Hockey Tournament School. And, believe it or not, the boys will be hitting the ice of Trenton's Community Gardens as early as this Sunday night.

The school's on ice sessions won't start officially until Monday, Mr. Gardens promises us "to let the boys get the feel of their equipment" and explained school director Larry Hughes from his office at Albert College.

This is Tam O'Shanter's second year at the rink. Boys are housed and fed at Albert College where much of their off ice schedule is scheduled. The practical portion of their hockey instruction will be out at the Gardens in Trenton.

Hughes emphasizes that the stress is on skating. He points out that no big league players have ever been used as instructors. And that's the way it has always been during the school's seven year full history.

Before the operation moved, to our neck of the woods, the school was held annually in Toronto. A disastrous fire in 1971 destroyed the Tam O'Shanter arena and the city. Officials are satisfied they made an excellent choice when they decided on Belleville - Trenton for their new headquarters.

Last year, the school ran four weeks and attracted a registration of 700 youngsters to Hughes. Th director reports registrations for this year's six week program has jumped to 1,100.

Boys in the Quinte area who do not need to take up instruction at the college while participating in the hockey instruction get a reduced rate of $45 per week.

Says Hughes: "The last two weeks are filled up and we can consider the first week closed, too. But there are still a few openings for the second, third and fourth weeks."

It's a shame the school for hockey players has something, like size does one certain registrations from Alaska, Miami, Denver, British Columbia and so on.

"While some of the other hockey camps are suffering from a lack of registrations, ours has been by 400," Hughes points out.

"We discouraged a fellow in his 30's who wanted to attend. We felt he might feel out of place," Hughes confided.

Because school officials refuse to hire pro players as instructors does not mean the big leaguers are not welcome to come and meet the boys and have a look at how things are run. Special visitors, or dates yet to be announced, will be Frank Mahovlich, Marcel Dionne and Dale Tallon, all members of the CCM sports advisory board.

The players will find much of their time taken up signing autographs. They might also join the boys in play. After all, one of the school's principals is Bert Olmstead from Brantford. You remember him. He's the young preddy who scored 100 goals before he moved from novice to peewee ranks. Bert's now 47 and said is back for another go.

Ice making operations began about one week ago and the Gardens has a solid sheet ready and waiting for the eager pack chasers.

Says Gatsis: "Everything's going very well. Our plant is holding its own and before booking its own and before booking its own and before booking

What the Stars Say

By JEAN DIXON
Sunday, July 23

Aries (March 21-April 19): Group activities are up for review. Everybody has a different theory as to what is to be done and how.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Take your share of your community's Sunday activities. A minimum of responsibility for anything else.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Get to the point simply so the message sinks in from one clear statement. Let people be on their own—if they fret, let them.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Bright ideas are done a dozen. few are useful. Avoid overplanning, as interruptions are common today.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Passing incidents act as irritants, may provide impetus for something to be done about an old nuisance.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your figures may look great on paper, but in reality there are factors working the other way. Take conservative approaches.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Today brings an abrupt end to something old and irksome, leaving light and fresh air in. You move upward.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Prudence is insurance against present and future troubles; hold your temper no matter what.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Restless talkative types annoy. Be reluctant to contribute to tall tales; pay no attention to teasing.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may find those who feel the most over your schedules are the least punctual. Forgive vexing behavior.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Expect no special favors or advantage. The simplest, most direct course of action is preferable.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Now you are tested for adaptability, willingness to readjust, and your ability to withstand appeals for unnecessary involvements.

Monday, July 23

Aries (March 21-April 19): Money escapes all too readily, but for little gain or for less quality than expected. Wait, and till you are getting what is needed.

Taurus (April 20-May 21): Luxury items are tempting but miss the mark by enough to mar your enjoyment. Romantic appeal surrounds you, could get serious.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Stick to the sensible way of organizing things. There are resources available you have scarcely touched.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Review your possessions, wardrobe; plan replacement of those items which have had their use or appeal. Avoid financial deals not cash.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): This should be a sustained period of investment, with a challenge: is your judgment keen enough to keep you from overdoing?

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pay more attention to doing the job right than making a fuss; you're having to do it. Wait out misunderstandings—others will come around.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Use great care in any action on behalf of others: better still, mind your own business for the coming week.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The practical approach attracts support from those who have had experience with similar problems.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep purchases tentative. Social competition escalates—there's no real need to keep up with a neighbor.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Big ideas for future shouldn't be allowed to get in the way of today's proficient handling of routine. Be ready to help older relatives.

SOGGY AFFAIR

TORONTO (CP) — The nine participants in what was called the Great Balloon Race found the event to be a rather soggy affair. Most of the balloonists, who lifted off into the clear blue skies above Toronto's High Park, drifted down ignominiously into the 50-degree waters of Lake Ontario.

MIXED CELEBRATION

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — This southwestern Ontario town, famous for its Shakespearean festival, missed Canada Week. Someone forgot to inform city official Stratford Mayor Cullton said he didn't know anything about it. "I was not contacted," he said.

Pitcher's Tendon Requires Rest

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Doctor: In the last year and a half I have had five or six cortisone injections for tendonitis in my right elbow. Being a pitcher on a ball club, when my arm, bothers me when I pitch.

Are these injections harmful to my arm if, taken every two weeks over a period of two or three months? If so, is there any other pain remedy that would be sufficient to ease the pain? My physician seems hesitant to give me any more information.—R.S.

Small correction—it's "tendinitis," with an "I" after the "D."A inflammation of a tendon.

Doctors like the injections as a hydrocortisone, but the harm would not come from the injections so much as from the lack of the rest of the treatment that is essential.

Inflamed tendons can be helped with rest, heat and perhaps rest and heat for proper healing. If you've been having pitching trouble for a year and a half, I would have to suspect that something along the line has given you that arm the rest it needed.

Yes, there are other medications that will lessen pain—aspirin and aspirin substitutes, phenylbutazone, etc. How much relief is gained as strenuous as pitching is problematical, though.

While professional athletes, usually under orders about carrying on for such injuries between games, sometimes get through relatively brief stages of such troubles, in a case like yours, I'd be concerned over some permanent injury. Tendinitis can lapse into a chronic stage; repairing more radical treatment.

So my advice is not to take chances. If your doctor thinks it is safe for you to go on pitching, that's one thing. If he thinks you ought to rest that arm until it is properly recovered, then do it.

Dear Dr. Thostleson: I am 5 and five feet four. Between the ages of 10 and 15 I weighed 110 pounds. However, since the age of 18 I have maintained 135 pounds.

My problem is my breasts which, although very small, are extremely stretched and wrinkled. I would like to know the feasibility of correcting it through plastic surgery.

But no implants, please, even though they might take up the slack. Would the results be relatively permanent or would the skin stretch again in a few years even though I gained no weight?—P.M.F.

Congratulations, not only for taking off the weight but keeping it off, a secret that too many dieters haven't learned.

Undoubtedly your breasts could be helped by plastic surgery. Have your doctor refer you to a reliable plastic surgeon, who would know implants is the most promising method though.

If you maintain your present weight I see no reason why the skin should stretch any more.

Dear Dr. Thostleson: Is there any danger to the baby if I become pregnant a shot from the doctor to start her menstruation? I don't know how much she is already a month or two pregnant.—M.C.

It would depend on the "shot" that was used. Certain hormones can affect the fetus, some may cause masculinization of a female fetus.

Since a missed menstrual cycle is the first sign of pregnancy, I don't know any kind of "shot" is given—hormones, vaccines or whatever—that should be determined whether the patient is pregnant.

Dear Dr. Thostleson: Will removal of the prostate gland in a 60-year-old man cause sterility?—M.S.

Not necessarily.

Karachi Expects Jet

Hijackers in Dubai Get Coded Message

DUBAI (AP) — A coded message originating in West Germany told the hijackers of Japan Air Lines jumbo jet today to kill the passengers immediately or let them go without delay.

In Karachi, airport authorities said they had "positive indications" the hijacked jet was to come to the Pakistani capital. Security arrangements were made at the Karachi airport, which was cordoned off by police.

The message was relayed to the hijackers by the control tower after the hijackers warned the tower not to "miss one word."

The message, signed off in code numbers, apparently was a cable sent from West Germany.

The message said: "If you intend to kill the passengers on board Jumbo 444 do it at once, otherwise be human enough to release them.

"It sounds ridiculous if you persist those whom you obviously want to kill to receive refreshments and meals.

"Please give up your intentions. There are other means of unbloody possibilities to reach your political aims."

The message was signed off "17069, inhabitants of Federal Republic of Germany."

Palestinian guerrilla organizations frequently send coded messages including long series of numbers on radio broadcasts in the Mideast.

The coded signoff could mean the message was transmitted by sympathizers or allies in West Germany.

Four hijackers are holding 139 passengers in 100-degree-plus heat here, and the air pirates announced earlier that they had expected instructions soon from their headquarters.

"We are soldiers and we have to wait for orders," said a radio message from the terrorists aboard the plane.

Early reports said the terrorists who took over the big plane Friday shortly after it left Amsterdam were demanding that Israel free Kozo Okamoto, the Japanese terrorist serving a life sentence for the Tel Aviv airport massacre in 1972. But today an official of Japan Air Lines said, "We still don't know what they want; in fact, some of us are beginning to think the hijackers themselves don't know what they want."

The Israeli government so far had made no response to the reported demand for Okamoto's freedom. The Israelis have refused all such demands in the past and were expected to reject this one.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government was discussing the possibility of offering some of its officials as hostages in place of the passengers aboard the plane. Meanwhile, it sent Vice-Transport Minister Bunsei Sato to Dubai to do what he could.

The hijackers identified themselves as members of the Sons of Occupied Territory of Jerusalem, an organization not heard of previously.

The hijackers were told by the Dubai government that all known Palestinian organizations have denied links with their operation.

French Explode A-bomb

PAPEETE, Tahiti (Reuter) — A senior French government official confirmed Sunday that France exploded a nuclear device Saturday at its testing site on Mururoa Atoll.

Speaking at a news conference here, Aymard Achille-Fould, secretary of state for the armed forces, gave the first official indication by France that the blast took place.

The explosion was witnessed by the crew of the New Zealand protest frigate Otago off Mururoa Atoll, but French officials had refused comment.

Fould told the news conference that "the experiment was satisfactorily carried out and may be even better than expected."

Meanwhile, the Otago reported that bad weather prevented a second blast.

The 2,450-ton frigate moved in close to the atoll early today for the second expected explosion following Saturday's detonation of a small nuclear device, believed to have involved a trigger for a hydrogen bomb.

The ship has been at sea on a protest mission with a cabinet ministers aboard for 25 days in an attempt to get France to call off the tests.

The Otago swung her bows west later today and sailed from the atoll, to rendezvous with her sister ship, the frigate Canterbury which is awaiting final orders to take over the New Zealand navy's nuclear vigil.

Airliner Crashes

First reports said six bodies and one survivor were found after the crash, which occurred at 10:10 p.m. local time Sunday (4:10 a.m. EDT today).

The fate of the others on board was not immediately known.

The airliner was flying from Auckland, New Zealand, via Papeete to Los Angeles.

A Pan American spokesman in Paris said the plane was forced to try an emergency landing after developing windscreen trouble. It hit the sea about one mile offshore.

At the crash scene, bodies floated on the sea among debris and empty liferafts.

Police, sailors and local inhabitants rushed out to the scene and pulled bodies from the water under the glare of spotlights.

News Briefs

Big Blast

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — The Soviet Union apparently has set off one of the largest underground blasts in its history. The Uppsala Seismological Institute said the underground explosion had a magnitude of 7.1 on the open-ended Richter Scale. The director of the institute, Prof. Marcus Bath, said there have been only five explosions in the last 10 years with a Richter magnitude of seven or more.

Prisoners Freed

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong resumed the exchange of civilian prisoners today after a two-month delay. The first 197 men, women and children released by the government were flown from the Bien Hoa Air Base to Viet Cong headquarters at Loc Ninh, 75 miles northwest of Saigon.

Dollar Weakens Again

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar and the British pound weakened again in European money markets today, and gold inched upward in early trading.

Five Die in Ulster

BELFAST (CP) — Five persons died in Northern Ireland during the weekend, but largescale attacks expected from Protestant and Roman Catholic extremists did not take place. The weekend was the first anniversary of "Bloody Friday," when the IRA set off 19 bombs in Belfast and killed nine persons.

Alone in Yukon Wilderness

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A 14-year-old Minnesota boy survived by "staying cool and using his head" after his 34-hear-old father collapsed and died, apparently of a heart attack, during a Yukon fishing trip, an RCMP constable says.

Guy Michael Newman of Eveleth, Minn., was rescued on Thursday from an isolated island in the middle of a Yukon lake by Constable Scott Wentzell. He had been alone for almost 32 hours after his father, Kenneth, died on the island 75 miles south of Whitehorse.

RCMP said Guy and his father set out Wednesday morning in an outboard motor-driven aluminum dinghy, leaving Mrs. Newman at a campsite.

About an hour later, Mr. Newman decided to climb a hill to survey the terrain. He collapsed on the way down.

'No Tapes' Nixon Word To Probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Word has been sent to the Senate Watergate committee that President Nixon will not permit the committee access to White House documents and tapes of presidential conversations, The Associated Press has learned.

Details of the president's position were not revealed, but all indications are that the seven-man committee will meet in executive session today and, will unanimously to issue a subpoena for the White House-related materials.

A subpoena could, but probably would not, name the president, one source close to White House and Senate negotiators said.

Davis Denies Any Plea By Him Favoring Moog

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said that Gerhard Moog, head of the company building the new $44-million headquarters for Ontario Hydro, mentioned the subject to him during a social occasion in 1971.

Testifying under oath before the select legislature committee investigating the Hydro contract, the premier said he did not issue instructions to anyone at Hydro that could be construed as favoritism to any one person.

However, Mr. Davis said he has learned by talking to committee counsel Richard Shibley, that when Mr. Davis and Mr. Moog vacationed together in Europe in 1971, Mr. Moog had occasion to make an enquiry in connection with some potential financing for a new Ontario Hydro headquarters.

In a prepared statement read to the committee, Mr. Davis said: "This happened during the course of a conversation which did not take place in my immediate presence and I was not aware that Mr. Moog had made this inquiry until the information was given to me by committee counsel last week."

"Later that summer on a social occasion and in casual conversation, Mr. Moog referred to the fact that he had been approached by Ontario Hydro in connection with their new headquarters building.

"I declined to discuss the matter with him and at no time from that day until after the signing of the contract on Nov. 1, 1972, did Mr. Moog ever speak to me about his dealings with Ontario Hydro," said the premier.

Premier Davis told the committee that he has never sought to diminish or deny the fact that Mr. Moog is his friend.

He explained that the friendship began before he entered public life.

In concluding his brief opening statement, the premier said:

"I want to say . . . categorically that at no time have I, nor to my knowledge has anyone on my behalf, made any representation, issued any instruction, or given any direction to Mr. Galbercik, Mr. Candy, anyone at Ontario Hydro or anyone else that could in any way be construed to favor any person in their dealings with Ontario Hydro in connection with this matter."

Radicals Rebuffed

NDP Favors Public 'Control', Not Ownership, of Resources

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Lewis's hand remained firmly on the helm Sunday as the New Democratic Party ended its four-day national convention.

He and other members of the NDP parliamentary caucus successfully rebuffed several scattered attempts to radicalize NDP policy and—perhaps more important—they overwhelmed critics of their support of the minority Liberal government.

"There is no change in direction," Lewis said as the convention ended.

He took pains, however, to declare that his party's backing of the Liberals in most Commons votes is not permanent: "There is a limit to our support of the federal government."

The biggest weekend debates were on resolutions dealing with energy and the cost of living.

In the energy debate Sunday, top policymakers successfully fought against a motion that would have committed the party to complete public ownership of all resource industries.

The convention overwhelmingly passed a resolution in favor of public control—as opposed to ownership—of resource industries.

The resolution also recommended a government-owned Canadian Petroleum Corp. to compete with the privately-owned oil and natural gas industry.

The cost-of-living debate Saturday ended with approval of a resolution which stated that "the answer to rising food prices lies primarily in increasing food production in Canada."

That statement—virtually identical to ones made by the Liberal government—was absorbed by several delegates who wanted to blame corporate profiteering for high food prices.

There was little opposition, however, to the resolution's call for a prices review board with power to roll back selected price increases.

Before the debate, some party officials had nervously anticipated a strong campaign to commit the party to a general freeze on prices.

That would have run counter to Mr. Lewis's position and his view of Conservative calls for a temporary price and wage freeze might have resulted in the Liberal government's overthrow if Mr. Lewis had felt constrained to accept such a policy.

PoWs Recount Ordeals

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Forty days on the Ho Chi Minh trail, and four more months in Hanoi prisons are bound to make you appreciate the small comforts of life.

But it was with amusement that a Belleville audience listened to Lloyd Oppel and Sam Mattix, two of the young missionaries captured by the North Vietnamese, as they joked about Communist capitalism and other uplifting distractions of Salvation Army Bethel Chapel.

Not that either men could diminish his ordeal. The smiles with which they punctuated their story were filled with allusions to malaria, sleepless nights, interrogation and that long walk north.

What emerged, however, was not bitterness or vengeance. Instead, Oppel and Mattix betrayed a love for their captors - a love that seemed to divert them from the brink of despair and turned the memory into an emotional reacquaintance with life's earthly essentials.

Oppel, 21, is from Courtenay, B.C., the only Canadian PoW still in captivity when the Vietnam war reached its informal conclusion last winter. His friend, a year younger, hails from Port Washington, Wisc.

Both were captured last October, shortly after arriving in the west Laotian village of Kengkok to join a Christian mission. They were not released until March 28 of this year. With eight Americans, the last PoWs to reach freedom.

Singing Laotian songs along the trail, taking time to preach among persons they met, Oppel and Mattix brought what little joy they could into their hostile surroundings. In fact, how they kept up their spirits was a testimony to their faith and new-found maturity.

An example was when the head guard on their march, as status-motivated as any western, took the men's watches off their wrists and placed them on his arm for all to see as he swaggered by jungle peasants, glistening under the steamy sun.

Or there was the time when Oppel, his nine nine feet battered from walking, was handcuffed since too small. Just ed a pair of sneakers ervone relief appeared to be fleeing, a North Vietnamese soldier whipped out his machete and cut off the toes, creating a truncated barrier between the sharp rocks and Oppel's throbbing feet.

Even the journey's end had its hope as Mattix recalled, looking back to their first impression of Hanoi.

"It was nice to be there with a roof over our heads," he said in sincerity.

The men told their audience they would be disappointed if they had come to the chapel for a sensational tale of eastern torture. Their mission, and the reason for the current three-week tour across Canada and the United States, was to illustrate how their captivity reaffirmed Christian ideals at a time when heaven seemed to be hidden by the war-torn hell all around.

Even when the opportunity for escape presented itself, the men looked elsewhere for help.

"Several times," said Oppel, "we were left alone with high powered rifles while the guards were outside eating. I certainly thought about liquidating them. But I couldn't take their lives."

Politics, too, could not bring them to fight their assailants.

"Both sides are doing bad things," was Mattix' comment.

The reality of southeast Asia was brought home to the men n the day of their release. That was when they learned that two American girls with whom they had been working in Kenkok were shot and their bodies burned two days after North Vietnamese soldiers overran the village.

"I think at that time my perspectives were re-aligned," Mattix said.

Woman Killed As Car Flips

An Ottawa woman was killed instantly Saturday when her imported sports car flipped in the median of Highway 401 and pinned her underneath.

Marilyn Mohns, 22, was driving the vehicle. The accident took place at 5:30 p.m. between Deseronto and Marysville Roads.

Another driver who witnessed the accident told Belleville Provincial Police her car appeared to go out of control after he passed it. However, he could not pinpoint the cause.

Passenger in the Mohns' vehicle was Gib Hagerman of Ottawa, also told police he did not know what led to the accident. Mr. Hagerman was treated for cuts and bruises at Lennox and Addington County General Hospital and released.

Obituary

MRS. HARRY R. "Barney" PARSONS
Carbyville

Mrs. Anna Beatrice Parsons, wife of Harry R. "Barney" Parsons, 5th concession Tyrone, died Saturday as the result of a drowning accident. She was in her 54th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Phillip Ray, she was born in Thurlow and was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

A hairdresser by trade Mrs. Parsons was a member of the Sales and Ad Club, was a past president of the Downtown Business Association and a member of the Ontario Hairdressers' Association.

Aside from her husband, she is survived by a son Barry W. Parsons of Belleville, a daughter Mrs. Donald (Mary Ann) Webb of Pickering and Ann) Webb of Pickering and four grandchildren. A brother, Phillip Ray, lives in the 9th of Thurlow while a sister, Mrs. Eidwood (Helen) Free, lives at Cameron, Ont.

Dr. Harry M. Davis will conduct the funeral on Wednesday with service at 11 am. at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Interment Elmwood Cemetery.

Fashion - - PoW Style

Lloyd Oppel, left, and Sam Mattix, young missionaries who spent five months as prisoners of the North Vietnamese, show some of the clothing and utensils they were allowed to bring home from Hanoi. Simple, Vietnamese pants and shirt are made of cotton while the sandals, Oppel found, have rubber-tire soles and inner-tube straps. Bowl and spoon are made of aluminium. Both men plan to return in October to Laos, country in which they were captured last October.

Missionaries Will Return

The tortured land of Laos is "like a powerful magnet to Lloyd Oppel and Sam Mattix.

The two young missionaries plan to return there in October despite five months imprisonment following their arrest by North Vietnamese soldiers last fall and the violent death of two female colleagues shortly after the men's capture.

"The people out there are just as needy of physical and spiritual help," says Oppel. "You don't stick your head in the sand because something happened once."

The country to which they'll be renewing their dedication was vividly depicted in a slide show Oppel presented Saturday at Bethel Chapel.

Called Time for Laos, the 20-minute feature contained both the beauty and the sorrow of this country of contrasts.

On one hand were peasant fishermen knee-deep in streams while rainbow-hued sunsets cast magical shadows over their homeland.

In the next scene was Oppel's home for half a year, barely above flood waters of its stilts as rice crops rested submerged and ruined for the second time in a row.

Oppel related the telling statistics. Infant mortalities total 70 per cent of the new-born and two-thirds of the population suffers some form of tuberculosis.

He and Mattix were helping construct a school - first in the village — when they were halted by a gunshot while attempting to escape their North Vietnamese captors.

Date of the men's return ill depend, to a large extent, on the political situation in southeast Asia. Both are watching developments of the Canadian delegation in the International Commission for Control and Supervision in Vietnam.

Oppel said he has gained 50 pounds since Christmas, putting on weight lost while fighting an attack of malaria that left him near death in a Hanoi prison.

The men's command of the language, which both said was improving, was demonstrated when they ran a boo hymn to the accompaniment of guitars.

Neither man knew how long he would stay in Laos. But both vowed to continue the work that each claimed made their last visit "the happiest days of my life".

Dry Grass In Flames

PICTON — Picton firefighters this weekend were called to three grass fires that burned an approximate total of six acres of land in Prince Edward County.

Saturday evening a blaze broke out at a former army gunnery range at Point Petre, burning about four acres of grass. Firemen remained on the scene for almost two hours.

Sunday morning 1½ acres of land burned at Cherry Valley and on Sunday afternoon a grass fire on East Lake burned an acre of land owned by Athol reeve Keith Perry. A spokesman for the Picton fire department said it is believed the grass fires were caused by cigarette butts tossed from passing cars.

Car, Truck Collide

TWEED (Special) — Damage totalling $600 resulted from a truck - car collision on the Stirling - Campbellford county road a half mile from Stirling at 12:53 a.m. today.

A half ton pick-up truck driven by Danny Reid, 24, Campbellford, was pulling a trailer with a dock car when it came into collision on a sharp curve with a car driven by Doreen Maybee, 21, of RR 2, Stirling. The truck and trailer received $400 damage and the Maybee car $200. Miss Maybee and a passenger were treated for cuts and bruises at Belleville General Hospital and released.

Hay Burned

TWEED (Special) — A fire that destroyed a farm wagon and load of bailed hay on the farm of Don Carpenter, RR1, Tweed, Saturday afternoon.

Tweed volunteer firefighters were called to extinguish the blaze that was spreading to nearby bush. A tractor was hauling the wagon when it ignited. The tractor was unhitched and saved, but the large load of hay and the wagon were a total loss.

Alice Dykstra Wins Miss Downtown Title

Miss Downtown Belleville 1973 is a tall blue-eyed blonde who wants to be a social worker with handicapped children.

Alice Catherine Dykstra was chosen best among a field of eight in the Downtown Association's first bathing beauty contest. Miss Dykstra, 17, is entering grade 13 at Quinte Secondary School in September and is working this summer at W. T. Hawkins Ltd.

Averil Linstrom, 20, an employee of the Unemployment Insurance Commission was first runner-up and Beverly Pen, 21, a Trent University student, was second runner-up.

The contest was staged in the commercial parking lot entrance beside White's Hardware on Saturday afternoon. Judges were Mayor Robin Jeffrey, Mrs. Joy Wannacott, Mrs. Carol Emerson, Robert Temple and David Harris, manager of the Bahamian Tourist Bureau in Toronto.

Prizes were donated by downtown businesses and the winner was crowned with a tiara donated by Joel H. Mazer Jewellery Ltd.

European Cadets Here Next Week

By HOWARD KOKESH

The members of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit ANAF and their ladies auxiliary will be hosts for 22 European Air Cadets Aug.2 to 5 in conjunction with the international air cadet exchange visits. The program started in 1947 with an exchange of 46 cadets between Canada and the United Kingdom, it has grown steadily and now includes countries in all parts of the free world.

In 1973, Canada will send 63 cadets on visits to 13 countries and return parties from each of these countries will be entertained in Canada. The program promotes international good will and provides a means of rewarding Air Cadets who have rendered outstanding service to their squadron over a period of years.

The party of 22 cadets from the United Kingdom, 4 cadets from Germany, 3 cadets from Israel and 2 cadets from Austria with their accompanying officials arrived in Ottawa July 16 and are now visiting eastern Canada.

Arriving by air at CFB Trenton on July 17 they will spend a day in Toronto as guests of the Provincial Commander, Air Cadet League of Canada and arrive in Belleville on August 2.

The unit youth development chairman, Stan McBourne, and the ladies auxiliary president Alice Storms Jr. and their committees have spent many hours arranging billets and entertainment for the cadets during their 4 day visit to the friendly city.

A civic reception at noon Thursday will be a highlight of the visit to be followed by tours of the Quinte District, a boat trip on the Bay of Quinte and a tour of the Hastings County Museum.

On Friday, ANAF Unit Padre, Rev. Cyril J. Betts, has arranged a tour of the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve museum and a visit to the council house Indian dances as performed for the Queen on her recent visit.

Saturday evening a giant barbecue at the 418 Wing RCAF Association c.o. will bring their visit to a climax with a departure scheduled on Sunday from CFB Trenton for Gatwick, England.

On the ANAF unit sport scene: due to popular demand an open golf tournament has been arranged for July 28 at Marysville with tee-off time 8-9 a.m. Members are asked to enter their names on the list attached to the sports bulletin board or contact Dave Feeney, prior to the tournament.

Sick comrades in Belleville General Hospital are: Sandy Blackburn, room 638; J. B. Boyle room 702, and Dave Kyd in room 726.

Sam's Sermon: It used to be that a fool and his money were soon parted. Now it happens to everybody.

Ambulance Cutback Is Likely

Implementation date for a cut-back in ambulance service in the Quinte region has been pushed back one week following a meeting Saturday between Alderman Stu Meeks and a representative of the ministry of health.

It appears, however, that a new plan will go into effect Aug. 7 reducing the number of ambulances on active duty to two between 4 p.m. and midnight, and one between midnight and 8 a.m. At present, four ambulances are available during those hours.

The number in service between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. will remain the same, at four.

Ald. Meeks said the cutback would not mean a difference in service. The reason is an expanded call-back system whereby attendants are notified by phone in the event of emergencies, rather than having them at the depot.

The alderman said he was told by D. L. Brubacher of the ministry's emergency health services branch that the new system would cut 16 man-hours a day in Belleville alone.

The changes will not affect the size of his staff, said Ald. Meeks, who owns LeSalle Ambulance.

Final Acre Completes Property

The Moira River Conservation Authority has purchased a one - acre plot of riverfront property in the Plainfield area to round out the 230-acre H. R. Frisk Conservation area in Thurlow township.

When the authority purchased the property it was found that the previous owner a number of years ago had sold a one-acre riverfront lot situated in the middle of the property.

However, there was no access to the property except up the river and the Toronto owners has now sold the lot to the authority.

"We were happy to get the lot — it rounds out our property," said the authority official in charge of the 230-acre property.

Bullfighting in la Belleville

Red cape swirling matador Luis Rafe guides a charging bull by him in a perfect pass while an audience of international onlookers watches intently. The Spaniard and his fiancee duelled for 20 minutes Saturday in Belleville's first bull ring, the Duke of Edinburgh Unit of the Army, Navy and Air Force Luis, who hails from Barcelona, was host at a citizenship party for 100 friends and acquaintances of various nationalities. The "bull" is being steered by Bill Sills.

Bulldozer Leaves Trail of Damage

A runaway bulldozer uprooted 40 trees, damaged a long strip of asphalt and ruined a lawn this weekend near the Brooke Bond factory on University Avenue.

Along the way, 20 trees belonging to the city and 20 of Brooke B nd's were pulled out of the ground by a combination of the bulldozer's rear hook and front blade.

The incident was reported to city police this morning. An investigation is under way.

Examination Passed

Belleville candidates were successful in the recent examinations of the Canadian Accordion Teachers' Association held in Kitchener.

Those who passed were: Grade II, Rick Folwarczny, Janis Chisholm, Doug Vader; grade III, Joyce Kugel, Bruce Wright, Esther Schad, Paul Somers; grade IV, Carl Huffman, Louise Beninger, Nancy Post, Valerie Sprachuck, Tom Forester, Mark Grieve, Hugh Sully; Grade VI, Lee Prentice; Grade VII, Grant Elliott, Jim D'Amico and Grade VIII Dale Elliott.

CATHERINE WHALEN

Donald J. Whalen, President, D. J. Whalen Real Estate Limited, takes pleasure in announcing the appointment of Miss Catherine Whalen to his staff. Civilian Role

Now that the United States has largely shed itself of an active military role overseas the future role of the army is being questioned. Just as schools increasingly are being regarded as something more than just educational emporiums, so too it is felt that the army, while maintaining its military readiness, should serve society in peaceful and constructive roles as well.

A U.S. Army officer, Major Don Gordon, discusses this theme in an article in The Christian Science Monitor. Suggesting the idea is gaining army acceptance, he goes on to say that the integration of military skills with public service in time of peace may develop a better - trained, more proficient army sensitive to its citizenry.

Fundamentally is has to do with the military playing a larger role in community life.

Says Major Gordon: "It may be, in its simplest form, a soldier teaching topographic map reading to disadvantaged youngsters. It may be the construction of a small rural bridge in an isolated area as a subject for a training requirement on a military reservation . . ."

A wide range of constructive community and rehabilitation activity by the military in a civilian setting is cited. Since their return from Vietnam the Special Forces (Green Berets), for instance, have been very active — including their establishment of an "outward bound" program among young inmates of a correctional centre and among retarded youngsters in Morganton, N.C.

In poor and isolated areas of the Carolinas and Kentucky they have provided medical services, while in Montana they provided engineering, teaching and medical skills to residents of an Indian reservation. Surplus army buildings at Fort Devens, Mass., are used in a recreation program for urban youngsters while army training teams have been bringing youngsters at an elementary school in Barnstead, N.H. up to date on a variety of skills, from map reading to winter survival.

The U.S. army may not exactly be turning its swords into plowshares — a nation which still bears the main defence burden of the free world must keep up its guard — but it is doing a lot to help out in areas where there is need.

Indian Lands

The situation in which the Mohawk Indians of Tyendinaga and other bands find themselves as the result of a Supreme Court decision ruling in effect that Indian reserves are not reserves is a complex one. The Mohawks do not accept the ruling and Chief Hill says it will be appealed. From the Indians' standpoint the decision is clearly unsatisfactory and we may expect further litigation and negotiation between Indians, the judiciary and government before this difficult problem is resolved.

Med' Polluted

An indication of how widespread and international is the problem of pollution has been described by a young Trenton physiotherapist, Maureen Coker, who is home again after working for a year in Beirut. Miss Coker swam at a private beach of the American university hospital where she worked rather than in the Mediterranean which in that area is locally polluted. Visions of a sparkling or blue Mediterranean somehow fade in the face of information such as this!

Weaker Sex?

Maurice Bailey, a 41-year-old Briton who with his 32-year-old wife Marilyn spent 117 days in a rubber raft in the Pacific attributed their survival to Mrs. Bailey. "I think my wife and I drew closer because of this experience," he said. "Her spirit shamed me into trying to stay alive. I think she was fitter than me and certainly very strong." The Baileys took to the raft after their sloop was hit and sunk by a whale and in the months following they killed sharks, turtles and seagulls and caught rainwater to stay alive. Finally they were picked up by a Korean trawler.

Ottawa Parley Commences Shortly

The Commonwealth: A Unique Association of States

John W. Harbron
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Ottawa is preparing to be the next host for the Commonwealth heads of government conference and the onslaught of an expected 94 prime ministers and their staffs between July 31 and August 8.

Glamor may be downgraded against this year's meeting. Prime Minister Gandhi of India will not be there and that General Idi Amin of Uganda might not come.

The department of external affairs in charge of the massive arrangements, would never say so, but in terms of sobriety, sanity and a consistent press, the absence of Mr. Gandhi and Amin might be an unexpectedly blessed relief.

Ottawa is undoubtedly in for a heavy bout of conference and the onslaught of an expected 94 prime ministers and their staffs between July 31 and August 8.

Glamor may be downgraded against this year's meeting. Prime Minister Gandhi of India will not be there and that General Idi Amin of Uganda might not come.

The department of external affairs in charge of the massive arrangements, would never say so, but in terms of sobriety, sanity and a consistent press, the absence of Mr. Gandhi and Amin might be an unexpectedly blessed relief.

There are finding firm ground for their principle of agricultural exports, curbing the population explosion, modernizing their countries, educating their peoples.

Now a single developing country has yet solved any one of these on its own. Nor has any single developed country in the Commonwealth found a solution which works for their emerging fellow nations.

This is why Canada will be able to talk rationally, say to Gambia or Zambia, Australia in the same way to say, Western Samoa or Kenya, New Zealand in exactly the same way with Malaysia or Singapore or Sri Lanka (Ceylon).

If so, this would fit nicely into the declaration of principles from the 1971 Commonwealth heads of government conference issued at Singapore and which describes this unique structure as follows:

"A voluntary association of independent sovereign states, each responsible for its own policies, consulting and co-operating in the common interests of their peoples and in the promotion of international understanding and world peace."

The present Commonwealth took shape after Britain's withdrawal from the empire of India broke into two new sovereign states, Pakistan and India. As the pre-1939 British Empire dissolved further with large and small former British colonies seeking independence, the present association of nations evolved.

It has been written explaining why such diverse nations continue to meet under the Commonwealth umbrella. The constitutional relationship of the monarchy has been given as a main factor, inspite of the several Commonwealth nations, India, Pakistan, Guyana have chosen to become republics within the Commonwealth and Burma and South Africa also became republics, but left it.

More realistic it would seem, are such common legacies as the British systems of public administration, economic planning, police and law which are still shared to more or lesser degrees by the various nations members, but above all, the use of English in common.

Quebec Bankruptcies Increase Alarmingly

Quebec Le Soleil: Since the beginning of the year, Quebec bankruptcies have increased at an alarming rate. . . In Montreal, there are an average of 38 a day. In Quebec City, 166 bankruptcies have been registered in five months.

Fraudulent bankruptcies still play a large part in the increase of this plague which has considerable social effects on Quebec life.

The discovery in 1964 of a series of illegal practices involving deliberately-set fires contributed to lowering the total of Quebec bankruptcies from 1111 million in 1964 to 1109 million in 1965.

But in the following years, bankruptcies in the province reached the $200 million mark in 1969 and $267 million in 1971. And nobody denies that organized crime is still very much involved.

The proof of this is that the Inquiry commission into crime created six months ago in collaboration with the Quebec Provincial Police has been carrying out a considerable amount of work involving searches, seizures and investigations, not to mention the considerable number of pending cases which have to be untangled and taken care of.

However, this preventive action cannot, in itself, be sufficient. Changes are necessary in the law of bankruptcies and its administration.

For example, distinction must be drawn between federal and provincial matters so that the provincial police forces can concern themselves primarily with what happened before the bankruptcy and the federal forces with events following it.

On the administration level of the bankruptcy law, there must be more personnel to serve judicial districts and legal formulas should be applied more rigorously concerning, for example, the questioning of the person who has declared bankruptcy.

To this must be added increased surveillance, stricter control of the incorporation of companies, more rigid requirements for annual company statements and drastic modifications of the tax laws to prevent tax evasion. . . .

Investment Clubs' Popularity Declines

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Remember when investment clubs were flourishing, as a sort of popular movement in the investment community?

They began to take off about 15 years ago. Groups of 10 or 12 persons would get together once a month, throw in perhaps $20 each, and dream of stock-market killings to come.

Something seems to have happened to the dream. At first, some stockbrokers encouraged the investment clubs with a missionary zeal. Now, one of the brokerage houses can't be bothered with small - time investors and prefer to concentrate their sales efforts on insurance companies, a pension fund or other big spenders.

National Revenue will consider the club, to be a partnership that owns its assets in its own right.

For tax purposes, each member will own an interest in the partnership, rather than an individual interest in each individual asset of the club.

That means that "capital gains and losses (and ordinary income) will be computed at the partnership level, and the members will be taxed only upon their share of such gains and income as is allocated to them at the end of the year," says Donald R. Haggett, C. A., editor of Carswell Canadian Tax News.

All taxpayers—investment clubs, mutual fund partnerships, individuals—must choose whether the capital assets they hold at Dec. 31, 1971, will be valued on the simple Valuation Day basis or the much more complicated "tax-free zone" basis.

The circular recommends the Valuation Day basis, because of its simplicity. But whatever the "modified partnership" clubs may choose, individual members are still free to make their own choice in establishing the value of their other assets.

Almost all investment clubs will find it worthwhile to become modified partnerships. But a few types of clubs don't qualify for this special treatment—if, for example, one or more members are corporations, trusts or partnerships, or if more than half the units are owned by members of the same family.

U.S. Church Schools in Bind

By GEORGE KITCHEN

NEW YORK (CP) — For years, Americans have tried to find some way to provide public help for financially pressed church schools without running afoul of the constitutional requirement that church and state be separate.

Nine states have laws that either provide tax relief for the parents of non-public school children or permit the parents to receive from the state reimbursement for school tuition. The states include New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Connecticut, Minnesota, Ohio, California, Louisiana and Hawaii.

Over the years, similar state laws have faced a variety of challenges in various courts. This week the U.S. Supreme Court struck a telling blow when it declared that the New York State law violated the strict constitutional requirement for separation of church and state.

Constitutional authorities said the ruling also voided the other state laws.

The court struck down four New York State statutes, passed last year, to provide public grants to such schools for repair and maintenance, for testing programs and to allow tax relief or tuition reimbursement to parents of children attending the schools.

The private schools involved—known in the U.S. as parochial schools—are principally those of the Roman Catholic church which educates about one pupil in 12,000 schools in New York State. That total makes up about 70 per cent of the children attending grade schools in the state.

The constitutional barrier involved is a section of the U.S. constitution which says simply that the Congress "shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion . . . This section was inserted in the constitution in 1791 to prohibit the setting up of an official or "established" church. Such church structures were deeply rooted in European life and the newly-independent American state wanted no part of them.

Through the years, the constitutional prohibition has been stretched to bar public financial help for church schools.

The court's ruling killed any hopes for enactment of proposed federal legislation to provide federal tax credits to parents of separate school children. A bill to provide such credits has been before Congress with the support of many in both the Democratic and Republican parties and President Nixon has declared himself in favor of tax relief.

The court acted at a time when Roman Catholic schools, which educate about 90 per cent of the non-public pupils in the country, face a continued decline in both enrolment and the number of schools operating. Rising costs and changing family attitudes on—church school attendance have forced many to close.

Some 2,300 separate schools have been closed in the last five years, dropping the total in the country to 10,514 in the school year that ended June 30, 1972, 1907-08. Enrolment has fallen to 3.3 million from 5.5 million in 1965.

Tourist Pitch By Minister

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — What reporters have called Bob Welch's Caravan or the Bennett House Buggy is on the road.

Industry and Tourism Minister Claude Bennett announced a while ago that he was going on a seven-week trip through the province this summer on which he intended to visit more than 100 municipalities.

Late last week he showed off the travelling publicity show in which he will greet the natives. And now he is wending his way through the hinterlands.

For his tour the minister has leased a specially-prepared bus (ready for delivery) which he has named OMNIBUS Presumably for some association with ombudsmanship and not a pre-Nimrod ministerial omnibus.

The 22-foot vehicle is equipped with a lounge, a panty and a bar, sound system and colored television.

It will lead the way, followed by the minister in his limousine.

It will arrive in a town, park in front of city hall, and the minister will greet the locals, spread the gospel and presumably pour a drink. (Bennett himself doesn't drink).

This is a new approach to politics which at first invites laughs.

However Bennett is not all that dumb.

Juvenile as it might seem, this is an exercise in grass roots politics.

And though the caravan approach may seem flamboyant and grass roots politics in itself perhaps old-fashioned, it quite probably will pay off.

And both for Bennett and for the government.

Out-moded as it may seem in this electronic age personal contact is still good politics.

Bennett will get plenty of publicity while meeting a lot of people, and by the end of his caravan swing he will have established his name throughout the province.

And in visiting many communities which practically never see a cabinet member he won't do the government any harm.

The adventure is another episode in the colorful political career of young Claude Bennett. It portends to be eventually perhaps a long saga.

Though in the government for less than a year we know by now that he is a man of some flair and considerable ambition.

As yet he hasn't shown too much in the thinking league.

If he develops that he does have mental capacity he could have quite a future.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Many cheese factory salesmen in the Bay of Quinte district are showing preference for the 30 cent end price for cheese guaranteed next October through the cheesemarketing board, rather than accept the current price offered by cheese buyers.

The record number of candidates for a Canadian general election was set in 1945 with 854. The hot weather campaign of 1953 likely will not produce that many aspirants for a seat in the House of Commons but 1949's total is almost certain to be exceeded.

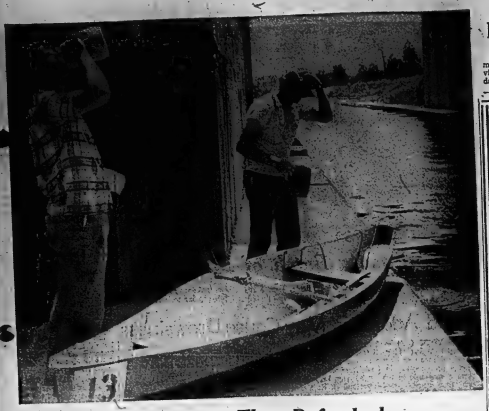
Driver Hurt In Collision

Wesley Griffith of 234 Coleman St. was taken to Belleville General Hospital Sunday night with cuts and bruises after his car collided with another vehicle at the intersection of North Front and College Streets.



Mr. Griffith, 58, was treated and released. Damage to his car totalled $800.

He was southbound on North Front when a car driven by Richard Wong, Hamilton, pulled onto the road from College Street. Damage to the Wong vehicle was $300.

Mr. Wong was charged with failing to yield.

The Pause That Refreshed

Before making final dash in Trent canoe race during weekend, two paddlers pause for cooling drinks of water as they portage at canal lock at Trenton. Main race, 60 miles down the Trent waterway, was won by a Toronto team. Event this year drew biggest number of participants.

Trent Dash

Toronto Canoe Race Winners

TRENTON — Paddlers came from all over southern Ontario this weekend to compete in the annual dash down the Trent River.

The competition, a gruelling one, courses over 60 miles of unfamiliar water for outsiders, who dominated the year's event.

Organizers were pleased with the race, saying its popularity was growing and this year had drawn more than twice the number of paddlers who competed last year.

In the professional category the West Hill (Toronto) team of Fred Heese and Stan Mackacek topped the field with a total time paddled of 10 hours and 49 minutes.

The professional category races were from Serpent Mounds near Peterborough to Cambellford in the first day - Saturday - and down to Trenton on the second day.

The Lindsay team of Ken Reeves and Ray Healey placed second followed by Bob Vincent and Rick Evans of Thamesford.

In the nonprofessional or pleasure class the Belleville crew of Terry Ireland and Dave Rhode won the event in a time of 11 hours, 57 minutes. Pleasure paddlers followed the same course.

The Carrying Place team of Christopher and Phillip Spencer placed second followed by another Belleville team of Malcolm Howie and Charles Rowbotham.

A third class, paddling one day only, was won by Peter Evegren and Alvin Fetherick of Campbellford.

This third class paddled the second, 30-mile leg from Campbellford to Trenton.

John Hallett and James Steevie of Trenton placed second followed by J. Hobbs and Stanley Smug.

Following the race, paddlers were entertained at Trenton's Community Gardens at a meal followed by presentation of trophies.

"We might make a few changes for next year's race," said David Camp, chairman of the event.

Mr. Camp declined to specify what these changes might be but said there would be a meeting soon to formaly discuss the race and make any necessary modification.

More than 30 paddlers competed this year and the committee is hopeful for a similar doubling increase next year.

One of the committe's priorities is to involve more young people in the future. A junior category for this year had to be canceled through lack of registration.

Charges Follow Accidents

TWEED (Special) — A Union, Ont., man injured in an accident on Highway 7, July 21, has been charged with careless driving in connection with the incident.

Charles Roy Johnston, 47, of RR 1, Union, was in collision with a car driven by Miss Lucy Anne James, 18, of RR3, Tweed, three miles east of the junction of Highways 37 and 7. Miss James was stopped, preparing to make a left hand turn into the Flinton Rd. Her car received $700 damage to the rear, but Miss James was uninjured.

Mr. Johnston's 1973 station wagon received $1,000 damage to the front. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital and admitted for treatment of a compound fracture of the left arm.

A Marmora youth was charged with careless driving and driving under the age of 16 following an accident at 8:20 a.m. July 22 on the Cordova Road, three miles north of Marmora.

Carey James Johnson, 15, was driving his father's half ton pick-up truck when he lost control, struck a tree and rolled the truck. The 1973 truck, valued at $3,600, received $3,500 damage. The Johnson youth was taken to Belleville General Hospital with a broken right shoulder and head injuries.

A rear-end collision with a parked car damaged the car driven by Mrs. Rose Marie Garvey of RR4, Campbellford to the extent of $250. Mrs. Garvey was driving in Marmora when she swerved to avoid an oncoming vehicle and hit a parked car belonging to Allan Carl Fluke of Marmora. The Fluke car received $200 damage. The accident occurred late Sunday night.

OPP Press Search For Hit-run Driver

BANCROFT — Provincial Police are searching for the driver of a car that struck and killed a Maple Leaf man sometime Saturday morning.

The body of Emerson Dorval Kellar, 21, was found at 5 a.m. beside Highway 62 on the outskirts of the town, 20 miles north of Bancroft. A post mortem was conducted Sunday at Belleville General Hospital.

An OPP spokesman said it appeared Mr. Kellar was walking in the westbound lane and was struck from behind. His body was spotted by a passing motorist at sunrise.

The spokesman did not speculate as to how long the body might have been lying beside the road. However, he said the highway was fairly busy with a stream of cottage traffic passing all night, indicating the collision may have taken place only a short time before the body was discovered.

A search is now under way for a dark-colored Ford, believed to be a 1967 or 1968 model, with damage to the radiator. Fluid and a clean wheel disc were found near the scene of the accident.

Quick Transformation

Fashionable Cut

NORWICH, England (CP) — Surgeons here are refusing to perform vasectomies except for sound medical reasons. Explained consultant Michael Ashley: "It has become fashionable now to have the operation."

Beer--You Can Make Your Own

Beer may not be the quick-and-summer drink to make but it reaches its popularity peak during the hot months and may be worth the effort.

A Belleville breweries spokesman said there are no statistics on how much beer sales go up during summer but, there is a definite increase in popularity. If you're one of the summer beer buyers, why not make your own?

Beer making takes about two weeks Gert Richards, Wedge and Bottle Shop, Quinte Mall, says.

There he sells canned malts ranging in price from $1.89 to $3.39. These pure malt mixtures yield five, four and one-half gallons of brew.

Making beer involves cleaning barley, then grading, soaking and roasting it. This is then mashed to extract a liquid called "wort".

Wort is filtered, then hops are added and removed. Special yeasts are added according to the type of beer you wish. This mixture "ferments" for several days, the time depending on the recipe you use.

For beermakers wanting an easier way out, buy malt extract or even buy a starter kit where all ingredients and instructions are included and make enough beer to fill one ordinary kitchen pail.

There are sophisticated ways of making beer.

But basic equipment required for anyone making five gallons or 60 bottles would be:

—a boiler in which to prepare wort.

—primary fermenting vessel (can be stone crock, small plastic tub, plastic garbage can, or large heavy-duty plastic bag).

—cheesecloth for straining.

—five or six feet of rubber hose for siphoning.

—funnel.

Following are Reese homemade brew has successfully been made without: but you may still use them:

—narrow necked carboys for use as secondary fermentor.

—thermometer.

—fermentation lock

—campden tablets for fermentation locks

This equipment, bought new costs less than $20.

Ingredients:

Yeast is the most delicate and important ingredient in homemade brews. Two kinds are sold: liquid in a vial or dry in a package. Both kinds keep in good condition for 6 months - years, if kept at 40 degrees in a refrigerator.

This used as a yeast starter which is added to the wort mixture during fermentation. Don't skimp on yeast.

Another important ingredient in making good beer is licorice. One third a stick of licorice in a six-gallon batch will help give your produce a good "head". Special brewing ingredients may be bought that do the same thing.

If by chance, you follow your beer recipe exactly and your beer doesn't turn out, it could be either wrong yeast used or you may have opened your beer too soon.

Hops shouldn't be neglected. They help beer keep longer, give the beery aroma and ensure a good "head".

Only fresh hops produce these characteristics.

Alcoholic content of beer is derived from malt. Sometimes for very pale lagers, sugar can better achieve this. Corn sugar is used.

But one important ingredient necessary for all good beer is "cleanliness".

Every piece of equipment including bottles should be sterilized.

If you have tasted European beers, you may want to expand your homebrewing hobby. These beers will cost a small fraction of the imported cost and taste just as good.

Following is a European beer recipe:

Suggestion: One homebrewer keeps notes of each of his batches. This made it easier for him to duplicate a good batch.

Dark English Type Ale

4 lbs. Edme S.F.K.

½ lb. Crystal Malt

3 tsp. or 6 U.S. gals. water

2 oz. Boiling Hops

½ oz. Kent Finishing Hops

1 lbs. Corn Sugar

1 teaspoon Wine-Vin or 2 teaspoons Brewing Salts

½ teaspoon Gelatin Finings

1 teaspoon Heading Liquid

1 teaspoon Ascorbic Acid

Ale Yeast

NOTE: If water is soft, add 1 tsp. Gypsum when boiling water. Starting S.G. 1035-40 — Terminal S.G.1009

Method:

Crystal Malt should be crushed with a rolling pin, but not to a fine powder, tie malt in a fine nylon bag. In a saucepan bring to the boil about ½ gallon of water, stir in Malt Extract, plus 2 oz. Boiling Hops (tied in nylon bag) and Crystal Malt Simmer 30 minutes.

Put corn sugar (5 cups) in primary fermenter.

Remove Malt and Hops from hot wort, and pour over sugar stirring to dissolve. Add balance of water; Kent finishing hops (tied in nylon bag). When temperature is 65 degrees F., add active yeast and cover with plastic sheet. Fermentation should start in 12-24 hours.

Skim foam off every other 24 hours.

In 5 days, or when S.G. is 1.010, syphon beer into a second fermenting vessel, leaving behind sediment. Dissolve 1½ cups of corn sugar into pint of wort of the Ale and stir syrup into Ale thoroughly. Syphon into clean beer bottles and screw on caps. Age two to four weeks before serving.

Booth Young

A wedding took place at St. James' Anglican Church, when Miss Joyce Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Young of Corbyville, married William Gerald Booth, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Booth, of Frankford, Tweed, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white floor-length gown with white daisy trim at the neck, bell-line and bodice. A long flowing train and a white daisy crown headdress with shoulder length veil completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of red carnations.

The maid-of-honour was Diane Young, sister of the bride. She selected a pink floor-length gown and a pink satin pillbox headdress. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and white daisies.

The groomsman was Leonard Kehoe, a friend of the groom. The ushers were Tom Young, brother of the bride and Dennis Holmes a friend of the bridegroom.

The reception was followed by a dance also held in the Shoco Parish Hall. Music was provided by the Western Hayriders Orchestra.

Following their return from a wedding trip to Wasaga Canada and parts of the United States, the young couple took up residence at RR 2, Tweed.

Curried Fruit

peach halves
pear halves
pineapple slices
maraschino cherries
Drain canned fruit well and arrange in a shallow baking dish, placing a cherry in the middle of each piece of fruit. Heat together, until melted, one cup brown sugar, ½ cup butter, and curry powder to taste. Spoon evenly over fruit. Bake at 200 degrees for 20 minutes.

May-December Romances Can't Woman Be Older?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Why can't a mature woman have a romance with a younger man and have it accepted for what it should be: a natural experience? Actress Merle Oberon has brought such a film to the screen as producer of Interval, in which she plays the leading role.

"As the woman says in the picture—we are all born and we all will die—we live in between."

In a real-life parable to the movie Miss Oberon, who says she is 56, has been romantically linked with the leading man, Robert Wolders, 37. Now that she is separated from her husband of 16 years, Bruno Paglia of Mexico City, she has confirmed the rumors: She and Wolders intend to marry.

Her age invites speculation everywhere, she says.

"People make me feel like I am 100 years old because they are talking and writing about my age all the time. I think it could be aging to talk about age. I never do on my own.

It is silly to concentrate on age that way, she says. She doesn't consider 56 old. Her mother, for instance, proved that she was born Estelle Merle O'Brien-Thompson, 1876, on the Island of Tasmania.

It isn't necessary "to show ugly and private things on the screen," she insists. "It is hard too, that the world of America is filmed and sent to other countries and naturally they are pleased to show that kind of thing. Producers are scared. Nothing is making money and they are going further out in trying to disheading a committee to get the uniform restyled along curvy, feminine lines. And to emphasize the point, and keep down the cussing, she had a tieback made bearing the word "Girl."

came from Noel Coward advising her not to change a word of the script, which he had read.

After two years in production she plans to take a long rest—a three-month cruise maybe.

"If the film makes money—how much money does one need to be happy—I'd like to use it to do something for older people, to take away from their loneliness."

In Acapulco she built a five-acre park for underprivileged children with pool, rink, theatre, library, but many children have too much in her opinion.

"There is the instant car, the instant anything—children should need to forage for their food."

She hopes to put her own children—Bruno, 13, and Francesca, 14—in schools in the United States.

"With 14 servants around how can you bring up children for the kind of world we live in?" she remarked.

Her house on the beach in Malibu will provide her with opportunities for interests she has developed heavily swimming.

One must care for one's body as one would care for a favorite plant. I feel sorry for people who cannot get outdoors and who have never enjoyed the pleasures of working in a garden and the exhaustion that can make going to bed so marvelous. If more people could do that there would be less meanness in the world, I am convinced."

Food Additives May Cause Drowsiness

NEW YORK (CP) — Three scientists report they have found evidence that nitrate and nitrite preservatives in food can form a substance in the stomach that causes convulsions when mixed into rats.

Dr. Adam W. Lis of the University of Rochester Medical School's nucleic acid laboratory says in a report to the American Chemical Society that under conditions found in the stomach, nitrites react with a natural component of meat, creatinine, to form n-nitrosamine that causes neuromuscular disorders if rats.

Creatinine has been described as a natural chemical associated with the onset of sleep.

Drs. Lis and D. I. McLaughlin and R. E. McLaughlin say the the disorders in rats are caused by the compound creatinine-3-nitrosamine, and range from loss of alertness, muscular weakness and pelvic droop to twitches, tremors and convulsions.

The amount needed to cause these disorders was not specified in the summary of Dr. Lis' work.

"Due to the abundance of nitrate and nitrite in the food and water supplies of man, the possible formation of reaction products with creatinine is an important consideration in the effort to determine the clinical significance of their increasing role in our environment," Dr. Lis says.

Pastoral Scenes in Mink

ROME (Reuter) — The "picture mink" made wide war debuted to be its first appearance on an Italian high fashion catwalk recently.

Furrier Nicholas "painted" a flight of seagulls against a turquoise sky and amber fields, all in painstakingly sewn fur skins, on a blouson (short smock) worn atop trousers.

In a showing by half a dozen high-fashion fur designers, the only thing missing was the classic fur coat.

There were fur sweaters, fur blousons, fur shirts under fur capes, hats with fur brims and, for the models in walk down the runway on, a striped fur carpet.

"The Italian fashion industry appears to be counting heavily on such flashy tricks with furs to keep up the prestige of the made-in-Italy label.

Almost a third of the high-fashion designers presented collections in Rome this week use furriers.

MR. AND MRS. ERIC BELFRY HAMILTON

Hamilton - Carey

Anne Marie Carey and Eric Belfry Hamilton exchanged wedding vows in July in an afternoon ceremony performed by Father Stitt at St. Michael's Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carey, of Belleville.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Belfry Hamilton, of Stouffville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a chiffon over taffeta gown with floor length veil caught in a tiara headpiece. She carried white carnations and red roses.

After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the couple will reside in Belleville.

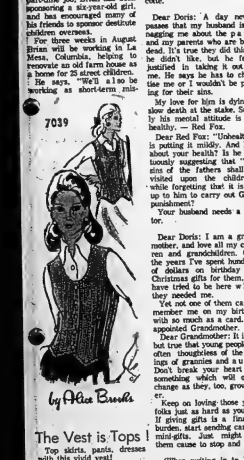
Grimsby Youth Chosen For World Project



One teen-ager who considers himself to be extremely lucky is 19-year-old Brian Prince of Grimsby. Brian is one of 15 Canadian young people chosen to go to Columbia, South America this summer with World Vision's "Operation Impact".

With his earnings from a part-time job, Brian has been sponsoring a six-year-old girl, and has encouraged many of his friends to sponsor destitute children overseas.

For three weeks in August Brian will be working in La Mesa, Columbia, helping to renovate an old farm house as a home for 25 street children.

He says, "We'll also be working as short-term missionaries, teaching the basics of Christianity to these children. We'll be acting as sort of big brothers, trying to motivate them to go to school; to become better people."

Ann Landers

Talks to Himself, Ann Says He's OK

Dear Ann Landers: I have always heard that the person who is sick in the head is the last to recognize it. He thinks everyone else is crazy. Please tell me if I'm getting a little cuckoo.

Last week I started to introduce my sister-in-law (whom I have known for 30 years) to a neighbor. Suddenly I forgot her name. I was horrified and embarrassed.

This morning I was rushing to make an early-morning appointment and I began to talk to myself. I spoke in full sentences, as if I were addressing a second person. I said, "Don't rush. Take your time. A few minutes won't make that much difference. Haste makes waste . . ." and on like that.

My wife heard me in the next room and shouted, "Who in the world are you talking to?" I was ashamed to tell her the truth so I replied, "It's the radio." She yelled back, "I know your voice—and you're talking to yourself. First sign of insanity."

How about this, Ann? Level with me, please.—Topeka

Dear Top: Don't worry about it. Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who hasn't at some time or another said, "I never forgot a good of What's-his-name!" As for the soliloquy, that's normal, too, as long as you don't address yourself as "Your Majesty" or "Your Holiness."

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who doesn't know whether shh has a problem or just a complex. I'm sure you can help.

Lately a lot of people have said to me, "You are getting more like your mother every day." When my boyfriend made the remark last night P. bobbed me. I don't know whether it was supposed to be an insult or a compliment.

Please give me your opinion. I need to get this settled in my mind.—American Reader in Bangkok

Dear Reader: What's your mother like? Do you want to be like her? Do people feel warmly about her? Does your boyfriend admire her?

I don't know the answers to these questions, but you do. Think them over and you'll come up with the answer to the question you asked me.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a hard-working girl with an interesting job for an investment firm. I live in a luxury high-rise and know very few neighbors.

The woman next door is an attractive redhead but we'd never said more than "good morning," until two months ago when her husband was sent to Iran for an oil company. I saw them say goodbye and I nearly wept.

A week after the farewell scene I was invited to a party. The host asked me if I knew of an interesting date for his friend. On an impulse I asked the redhead if she'd like an evening out. She replied, "You're a life-saver. I'm dying of loneliness!"

To make a long story short, the redhead and her blind date got along so well that he has been over there every night since.

Am I to blame? I feel guilty. Or would a married gal who plays around have found a playmate on her own? Absolve me, please.—Gitiel

Dear Gil: Sorry, you're guilty. She might have found a playmate on her own, but the fact remains that you found this one for her. What's the matter with you? Don't you know any single girls?

Paris: Still the Centre of Fashion

PARIS (AP) — "Paris is still the centre of fashion. Greenwich Village shops may look exciting, but if Paris doesn't crystallize the look, it's nipped in the bud. Paris says 'out' or 'non.'"

The speaker was Angelo Tarlazzis 32-year-old Italian who is finishing up his first couture collection for the venerable French house of Jean Patou.

The designer came to Paris in 1966. After three years as assistant to Michael Goma, then Patou's designer, he went to New York. Since then he has designed American ready-to-wear, Italian couture, furs and a ready-to-wear collection for Patou that was greeted last April with a storm of applause mixed with some criticism.

"Couture and ready-to-wear are the same," said Tarlazzi. "I don't see any difference. What is the haute couture? Only made-to-order clothes."

His new collection is sporty the hat, but the intelligent ones with what some people refer to as class.

His raincoats are huge, long and belted, with deep cuffs and collars. In the same rubberized cotton as a riding raincoat, they come with long mufflers. little velvet men's hats perched over the back of the head and high-heeled boots piped in gold.

Other evening coats are in knitted mohair or lined with fur. Sometimes they come with a bell.

"I believe in classic and precious fabrics like tweed and cashmere," he said. "They are real to the touch."

Another of his favorites is the "real suit," with short jackets and slightly flaring skirts that cover the knee.

With flat pumps and high heels and little straps.

"Shoes should never be seen," Tarlazzi says.

For women addicted to gallery openings, he has created the Vernissage Dress, mid-calf length and appropriate neither for cocktails nor for dinner.

One black dress comes with a demure white collar and cuffs, a gold chain belt and a tiny fedora that the designer also likes with sequinned dresses.

"Our clients may not wear the hat, but on intelligent ones it will be charming."

Formal dresses are in chiffon or soft crepe georgette, polka-dotted or embroidered all over in steel and copper. They exist only in such difficult colors as grey, mauve or beige.

"Who needs a more embroidered dress than dress?" Tarlazzi asks.

Aside from the odd mauve feather boa or green cog-feather collar, the Patou look is gag-less.

"The couture cannot permit itself to show straight skirts, face veils and wasp waists," the designer said.

"Fashion revivals are only for young girls who have never worn the clothes. I like a straight skirt. A woman who already has walks in it just as she did in her Dior 20 years ago."

Window Shopping on Paris Street

By MARGARET NESS

PARIS (CP) — Shopping here is two-fold—window and boutique—along the Rue du Faubourg St. Honore is probably mostly window shopping except for those with unlimited money or those wanting to splurge, say on name scarves as special gifts. Surely his mental attitude is not healthy. — Red Fox.

Dear Red Fox: "Unhealthy" is putting it mildly. And how about your health? It is unseemly suggesting that "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children", while forgetting that it is not up to him to carry out God's punishment?

Your husband needs a doctor.

Dear Doris: I am a grandmother, and love all my children and grandchildren. Over the years I've spent hundreds of dollars on birthday and Christmas gifts for them, and have tried to be here when they needed me.

Yet not one of them can remember me on my birthday with so much as a card. Disappointed Grandmother.

Dear Grandmother: It is sad but true that young people are often thoughtless of the feelings of grandmothers and aunts. Don't break your heart over something which will only change as they, too, grow older.

Keep on loving those young folks just as hard as you can. If giving gifts is a financial burden, start sending cards or mini-gifts. Just might give them cause to stop and think.

recognizable with the large portrait stamp of Saint Laurent that dominates his boutiques in several Canadian and European cities. Inside has a circular stairwell to a fashion floor known as Rive Gauche where cotton skirt and big-sleeved top was priced at about $38. Silk printed scarves are about $28. Further along the street Yves Saint Laurent has a shoe boutique for both men and women. Interesting footwear-rounded-straw espadrilles were priced about $30.

The Lanvin shop for men was featuring gay patterned ties, as contrast to blue or brown ground. There were also sets of ties and breast handkerchiefs. One set at about $32 combined black, red and white in varied width stripes on a grey ground. Hats were also prominently displayed. The Lanvin women's boutique is carpeted in red with the letter L of Lanvin arranged hack to back as the carpet pattern. New were the semi-circular shawls in fuzzy chenille with patterned border and twisted fringe.

Guy Laroche's windows were featuring the butterfly bows for men, with colorful shirts in stripes of yellow and grey on a pink ground. Hermes had most interesting All the print scarves, the turbaned men on horseback, priced about $30. Another design, called Jardin de route, featured old carriage lamps, gold on a white ground with navy border. Here, too, were signature handbags, with an H-clasp for Hermes. The other famous designers and their salons and boutiques are scattered around the district.

For shoppers looking for cheaper clothes and souvenirs to take home, there are a number of discount stores nearby. Nearest to Laroche, along the Avenue de l'Opera, running down from the opera house to the corner with the Rue Faubourg St. Honore, into which it runs at the Place de la Concorde. The Rue de Rivoli, that arcaded street stretch facing the Tuileries gardens and buildings, is also a favorite shopping centre but inclined to be a bit more expensive since it is haunted by the tourists.

Then, too, there are two large department stores with everything you could need, at a wide range of prices, both are on Boulevard Haussman. Printemps is especially good with a wide choice of dresses and coats at reasonable prices. Head for the new boutique section where clothes for 12 designers are grouped together. Galeries Lafayette's balconied interior is interesting in itself. The store carries good quality merchandise.

Premiers Forget June Bitterness

CALGARY (CP) — Federal and provincial government leaders appear to have forgotten the bitterness of June—at least publicly—as they arrive for a conference designed to change the West.

A month ago, politicians preparing for the conference on western economic opportunities adopted the sort of adversary position familiar at previous federal-provincial meetings.

But with the three-day conference opening Tuesday, statements from both sides have become friendlier.

Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta says he detects an "encouraging" tone from Prime Minister Trudeau towards the conference, which both sides regard as historic for the West.

Justice Minister Otto Lang—who had been regarded by the western premiers as the villain of the June bitterness—has also dropped his criticism of the conference places by British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

"I can assure you no effort is being spared to make this conference produce constructive results in terms of a new set of policies and programs for the West that in a very practical, immediate and fundamental way will satisfy the aspirations of our region," the minister said.

Mr. Lang, chief western spokesman in the cabinet, and Finance Minister John Turner travelled across the West in June with the message that the provinces should forget specific proposals and concentrate on general solutions for the future.

Mr. Turner had warned the West not to expect instant handouts.

Mr. Lang had complained about Western politicians' "instant vision" in seeking quick solutions to major, long-standing problems.

The four Western provinces, who are approaching the conference with a united front, replied that if the federal government arrived in Calgary unprepared to act, "it would be a very sorry thing for Canada and for the federal party in the West."

The four premiers have called for the establishment of a federal-provincial authority on western transportation and another authority to evaluate freight rates, which they regard as "discriminatory," holding back development of the West.

They seek authority to set up their own banks to encourage regional development, and want a greater share in the federal government's $1 billion annual purchasing. They also seek tariff changes that would assist industrial development of the West.

The premiers' basic criticism of federal policies is that Ottawa has increased the economic gap between East and West through an overwhelming concentration of spending in central Canada.

Ten to 12 federal cabinet ministers are expected to accompany Prime Minister Trudeau to the conference.

Observers from every provincial government are expected to attend by invitation although they will not be allowed to participate in the direct discussions.

The conference will be held in southwest Calgary at the new Mount Royal College, several miles from downtown.

Two sessions of 2½ hours each are planned each day with the opening Tuesday scheduled for preliminary statements and discussion of conference objectives.

The afternoon session is devoted to what the West considers to be its prime topic—transportation.

Wednesday, the government leaders are to discuss industrial and commercial development and capital financing and financial institutions.

The final day's agenda tentatively calls for discussions on agriculture followed by the concluding session.

Capital Punishment Bill Before MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament begins its fourth week of the summer today with the government determined, outwardly at least, to resolve the long-debated question of capital punishment.

"We either pass it or hang in for a time deal," one government spokesman said Friday as MPs returned to the issue for yet another round of debate.

The government offered once already to put the issue off until fall if the three opposition parties would agree to a time limit on the two remaining stages of passage. But neither the Conservatives or Social Credit MPs would consent.

"So they either change their mind or we stay here until it is settled," the spokesman said.

The legislation, which would restore the five-year partial ban that expired last December, is at report stage—the last step before third and final reading, and the last stage where amendments can be attempted.

Two proposed amendments have been ruled in order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux. The bill now calls for the Criminal Code penalty only for murderers of policemen or prison guards.

One amendment would extend capital punishment to those who commit rape and kill their victims in the process. The second would apply the death penalty to second-time murderers and those convicted of aircraft hijacking causing death.

Without a time limit, predicts Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin, it could take up to 12 sitting days to complete work on the bill and bring it to a final vote.

But this doesn't necessarily mean the House will sit far into August, he says. Everything is subject to change, including the government's mind, if the debate gets too protracted, it might give up and leave the issue to fall without a time limit.

Beside capital punishment, there is one other priority bill—a stamp-and-coin legislation to help finance the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

Indians Celebrate Treaty

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — About 5,000 Indians from Canada and the United States met Saturday in a small park to sing, dance and celebrate the 179th signing of the Jay Treaty between Britain and the U.S.

Upstate New York tribes paraded across the Whirlpool Rapids Bridge to meet fellow tribes from Canada.

The celebration commemorates the treaty which allows free border crossing for native peoples of both countries.

Tolls on the four international bridges along the Niagara River range from 25 cents to 40 cents.

Canadians Begin Closing Their Bases in Vietnam

CAMAU, South Vietnam (CP) — Maj. Ed Lewis and Capt. Joe Paton turned out the lights and locked the door today and shut down the Canadian section of the two-member teamsite of the International Commission of Control and Supervision in South Vietnam.

On Tuesday, Capts. Duncan Wain and Guy Leprohon were to do the same thing at Quang Tri, the northernmost site for the international commission that Canada is leaving at the end of the month.

"All four men are joining other men throughout Vietnam as Canada slowly withdraws from the ICCS. All four will stop at the headquarters of their respective ICCS regions and then move to Saigon for the final days before departure on two armed forces Boeing 707s July 31.

Men will drift in from bases few in Canada have heard of: Kontum, for instance, where one captain described the nightly artillery barrages in the surrounding area as "sounds of peace" as well as Xuan Loc, well known as the site from where two officers drove into Viet Cong captivity.

By midweek there will be no Canadians in the 26 team sites and 14 ports of entry throughout the country and Canadians in regional headquarters will be preparing to pull back into Saigon.

The withdrawal started last week when Canadians pulled out of potentially dangerous areas: Ben Het in Viet Kong territory in the central highlands and An Loc, a South Vietnamese provincial capital 80 miles north of Saigon surrounded by the Viet Cong.

In teamsites from north to south fires have been burning as every evidence of the Canadian presence is burned or shipped away.

"We burned everything that moved," said Capt. Wain, from Victoria, talking of the fires he and Capt. Leprohon, of Montreal, had at Quang Tri.

"We burned everything," said Maj. Lewis, of Base Borden, Ont., as he walked over to tap pictures on the wall of room he and Capt. Paton, from Cold Lake, Alta., shared at Camau for 5½ months.

"I guess it is time to take this down," he said, ripping the picture from the wall.

The fires that burned and will be burning throughout the country will destroy the last trace of Canadian participation in the ICCS. The name Canada will disappear completely July 31.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JULY 23, 1973

Jim Farwell's Homer Wins It

TRENTON — Scarborough Pillington Glass catcher Jim Farwell lived up to his name at Bayshore Park here last night. First man to the plate in the bottom of the 10th frame of the regulation seven inning contest, he hit the ball far and well e n o u g h for a home run to the left f i e l d trees.

It was the only run of the Trenton Midget Softball Tournament's grand championship game and made a winner out of Scarborough lefty. S t e v e Crummey who scattered five base hits.

Before Farwell connected, Scarborough was having very little luck against Willowdale Jim Cowdrey. Author of a no-hitter during his team's 3-0 opening game win over Stirling Saturday, Cowdrey had allowed only two bunt singles until serving up the home run ball to Farwell.

Sixteen teams saw action in the fifth annual tournament. Willowdale surprised everyone but themselves by getting by Golden B e a r s' right-hander favored North York Nationals 4-3 in the A final. That game went two extra innings before Golden Bears pulled it out.

To accomplish the feat, Bears had to do what no other team had managed in earlier tournament games. They shelled six-foot-four Barry Crawford from the mound early.

All Crawford had done in two previous starts was record a pair of no-hitters. And both came Saturday. He slammed the door on Grimsby 8-4 in his team's first start and t h e n held Cannibelford hitless in a 3-0 win in the A semi-final.

Willowdale's other wins came over Cobourg, 4-3 and West Hill, 10-3.

After dropping their first start to Sarnia 6 - 3, Scarborough fought back to chalk up wins over Grimsby 11-4, Trenton 10-0 and Kitchener 7-6. The defeat of Kitchener came in the B final.

Kitchener advanced to the B title game by logging Don Victoria 10-3 and Richmond Hill 2-2 after an opening game 8-4 by North Bendale.

Prior to the Trenton tournament, North York had been unbeatable in tourney action. It was the first time this season the Nationals had not gone all the way.

Some excellent softball action was served up for the fans during the two day event. Unfortunately, only a handful of spectators bothered to take in the entertaining show.

Willowdale won home the Ethier's Billiards Trophy, while Scarborough was presented with the grand championship Quaite Machine Trophy after receiving the Trenton Sports Development Trophy for their B section win.

. . . . And the Loser

Willowdale's Jim Cowdrey allowed only three base hits in championship game but one of those was the home run that decided things.

The Winner . . . .

Endurance Race Speedway Feature

By CECIL S. PAUL

BRIGHTON — Ron Herrington of Brighton, the first man to break the old track record of 1972, took the 30 lap 5 cylinder run-off after tossing Bob Gibson for 15 gruelling laps at Brighton Speedway Saturday.

Ron took over on the half-way mark to come in for the win for the Speedway Annual Award and was totalling nearly $100. He also was the recipient of a Hooker Auto Jacket compliments of Charlie Saylor who is the area representative for the Hooker tires. Ron turned one lap in 19.6 seconds while he was running in front. Sam Dingman of Warkworth ran a close second but it was Herrington all the way for the last half with no real threat from any of the field.

Sam Dingman, the driver who looked like he would walk away with the top points was allowed in a crowd on Saturday night when he failed to qualify for the feature after two chances. Bob looked like the man from Warkworth had had Shedd in the working order after his troubles of a week ago he he demonstrated out of the qualifier with problems. He came back for the consolation race, took over the lead, was running well in front and then dropped out and handed the win pits. Bob Allen of Warkworth was the man in the right spot at the right time and he came in for he checkered flag.

Max Fleming of Trenton gave the crowd its money's worth in the feature trying to be the cement wall during the first heat for sixes and came back in the consolation heat and had the misfortune to roll over up the back stretch. Both Max and his car escaped unhurt, showing the importance of holding them down to size with. Max, a rookie driver, is always in it and shouldn't be a rookie and seems to be having a bit of bad luck these last couple of weeks but with half the season still to go, maybe Max will get in the groove and catch that other flying rookie, Ross O'Hara of Trenton.

Ross earned another win in Saturday night to give him a total of four for the season and 195 points, to put him in 6th place in the air of close point standing, not bad for his first season. It looks like Ross is going to try and keep all four of those Hoosiers on the track from now on.

Bob Gibson, l a s t year's rookie driver is not offering like me this season, as he picked up his first win of the season. Bob managed a fifth place finish in his qualifier but took over the lead in the 7th lap of the game and he is in with the big one of the night.

Bob also led the Super for 10 laps when he spun out and lost to the big eight of Earl Gregory but managed to come back in and finish in second place, a good night for the man at the wheel of ICL.

Bob has only missed one night in getting points but it took him 10 race meets to be in the winner's circle.

Dale Marois, the fastest man at Brighton Speedway, the holder of the track record of 19.5 seconds for the one-third mile oval, took three-quarters of a second off his own speed during his qualifier to the main and showed it in the 2 second. It was a good thing that he did for he lost Gregory's oval in 19.4 during the running of the Super.

Carl Kleinstuber of Picton and Isaac Oosting of Cobourg took the other two qualifying events. A mistake in the points in the program l a s t week showed Carl in 3rd place. He was down for 270 but it should have been 320 and with last week's win he now has a total of 345 points. Carl apparently has been sitting back not going too much the last couple of weeks but he came through like a rocket on the weekend to get a second in his qualifier. Behind Carl Kleinstuber. Earl had the eight Fenders all to himself as he came in for a total of 70 points and $150 in cash, missing a triple in the 3 races.

Bob Gibson led the Super for 10 laps, with Earl playing "follow the leader". Gibson was leading in the third turn wide and it was Gregory all the way for his third Super-Win of the season and the leader in this category for the season award sponsored by the Brighton Fire Department. Earl now has a total of five checkered flags as well, and 300 points, only 85 in back of Norm Moore, the leader.

Parsons Upset Cobourg

Bellesville Parsons pulled off an upset as they defeated Troy's Soccer Club 4-1 Saturday night. Troy's, previously unbiaten in regular season and cup play, were simply outplayed by the Parsons Club to go down to defeat in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association match.

Troy's opened the scoring when they went ahead on a penalty shot by John Van Bierzen. Parsons took the lead before the end of the half as Peter Hillier scored on a direct kick, and Jeff Hockley scored on a combination with Phil McSherry and Nick Del Grosso.

The third Parson goal came when Nick Del Grosso led to Hillier a shot which deflected into the visitors' net.

Continuing mid field pressure led to the fourth Parsons goal. Brian Preston beat two defenders before passing off to Nick Del Grosso who beat yet another defenceman and banged in his second goal of the game. The win moved Parsons into the first position with 14 points.

Belleville Golfers At Napanee

Second Flight; second low gross, Fran Bannon, third low gross, Betty Weymark; low's low gross Betty Kelsey.

Third Flight; second low gross, Hettie Dybble, fourth low net Loyola Rorebeck.

Fourth Flight; low putts, Marylea Burt.

BYBF Bows Out To Teddy Bears

The Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund forced a third and decisive game in their first round Ladies Provincial playdowns with Smith's Falls Sunday afternoon but in doing so they spent too much of their strength.

The Belleville girls stormed back after a Friday night 5-3 loss in Smith's Falls to hammer the Teddy Bears 13-3 at the Alemite Sunday afternoon to tie the wind drained game for the second half of the doubleheader and they led 5 to 4-1 for defeat, knocking them out of the Intermediate B playdowns.

The Belleville girls now outhit Smith Falls 9-8 in the decided game of the best of three series but couldn't score a run until the ninth inning.

Donna Preston, Joyce McFarlane, J u d y Rappel, and Wendy Corbay had two hits apiece for BYBF but couldn't put them together for a big inning. Sue Morton pitched her third game of the series and second of the day in taking the loss.

Deb. Matheson stroked four hits for the Teddy Bears.

The Yardmen girls came out running in the second game of the series and sprang to a 7-0 lead before the visitors tallied.

Sheila Smith had a triple and two singles, and Donna Preston a double and two singles in the BYBF's 14 hit production.

Sue Morton fired the win burning a six hitter and striking out seven.

The Yardmen had outhit the Teddy Bears in the first game but. still wound up on the short end of the score.

Sheila Smith punched a triple and single and Joyce McFarlane a double and single. Morton allowed nine hits and fanned six in taking the loss. Mara Tyler had a homer and two singles for the winners.

Belleville now enters the Provincial Intermediate C playdowns with first, round opposition yet to be named.

B Title for Bantams In Scarborough Event

The Belleville Bantam All-Stars captured the first large crosse trophy ever won in a tournament by a local team as they seen the Consolation Trophy Saturday at the Scarborough tourney. The Belleville entry defeated O r i l l i a and Scarboro 3-1 to c a p t u r e the trophy. They had been r e g a t e d to be consolation entrants by virtue of their first game loss to the Scarborough A team.

In the first game Scarb rough jumped on the Belleville squad for four goals in the first 15 minutes. Settling down to play solid lacrosse for the rest of the game, the l o c a l s outscored the home team 4-2 during the next two periods, but fell short as they lost 6-4.

In their second game, Belleville came up with a better performance, scoring after only three seconds of play and going on to defeat Orillia 21-1. Wally Howard had five goals for the winners with hat tricks by Andy Hackett, Danny Duffy, and Jeff Gow. Goalie Joey Bourette had two assists.

In the final game, the Belleville entry played their strongest game of the day. They came up with a 10-4 victory over a strong Scarborough B entry. Leading by one goal after one period and three after the second, Belleville outscored the losers 4-1 in the third period to gain the 10-4 win. Wally Howard and Doug Rainbolt came up with hat tricks for Belleville.

First Loss For Rovers

The Quinte Help Fund Rovers lost their first game of the season Saturday as they went down to defeat at the hands of the Italo Canadians in Kingston and District Soccer action by a 2-0 score.

Brian Berg and Ten Harmsen scored for the winners. Gary Donovan played very well in the nets for Belleville, stopping many shots, including one penalty kick.

The loss put the Rovers into second place in the league standings.

Read Still Driving

The South Hastings Baseball League has been known as a hitters' league on occasion and one of those occasions was at Shannonville Saturday afternoon.

Shannonville and Read combined for 27 hits a Read continued to drive for a playoff berth with a 16-8 win over the Hawks.

Pete Enright led the winners' 17 hit attack with two doubles and a pair of singles. Carm Milligan added three singles and Larry Coffey a pair of doubles.

Bill Barberstock contested for Shannonville with a triple and two singles and Jason Moore added a double and single.

Harold Pascoe picked up the win allowing seven runs and 10 hits in his four innings of pitching duty. Larry Coffey relieved in the fifth.

The Barberstock boys g a together on the Shannonville mound but couldn't cool the Read rally. Glenn Bill and Ron Barberstock all saw action for the Hawks, who held third spot in the league standings.

Kinsmen Golf

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville will hold a Kin Kup Golf Challenge this Saturday.

The day-long event will take place at CFB Trenton starting at 11:30 a.m. Following the day on the course will be a swim at the Kinsmen Pool and a steak barbecue.

Paul Lebeau will be defending his title this year.

Waite's Effort Stops ISL Stars

Rollins Construction could muster only four players for Sunday night's double header with the Industrial Softball League All-stars but one of those players proved to be more than the all-stars could handle.

Relying on players f r o m other Commercial League teams, Rollins fielded a team but with their own Ted Waite on the rubber. The All-stars met more than their match.

Waite pitched both halves of the double header and won both by blanking the first all-star team 1-0 and shutting out the second team 9-0.

Waite blazed strikes past 25 batters in the two games including 13 in the first. He allowed four hits in the opener and stopped the All-stars second team on three hits in the nightcap.

Rollins' Dave Akey scored the only run in the opening game reaching base on a fielder and scoring on Ellis Junior Ron Hill's fielder's choice.

The Lender's Mark Sheridan held the Commercial League scorekeen the rest of the game limiting them to only five hits over the seven innings. He struck out six and walked three.

The Civ's Barry Tamlin missed the opportunity to tie the score when he failed to get third base on a sure bouse run forcing the Trailmen third sacker to return to third and settle for a triple. Bob Lloyd had two singles and Garnet Bird one to round out the Industrial hitters.

Scorer Campbell, Larry Potter, Ken Genereaux and Waite singled for the winners.

The Commercial League found the going easier against the second team jamming on the Lenders Terry Murphy for nine runs in the first five innings. The Civs' Wayne Lamson threw shutout relief over the final two innings.

The winners pounded 13 hits off the Industrial pitchers to walk away with the victory.

Deane's Six Goals Lead Belleville Club

The Port Hope novice lacrosse team didn't know when they were well off in Saturday's Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association game with the Belleville MacDonalds, or they would have called it quits after one period.

Playground Track Meet

OSD will entertain the track stars of the city Saturday morning in the annual Belleville Recreation Department Playground track and field meet.

Over 300 participants from 21 playgrounds are expected at the festivities at the OSD oval beginning Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Ribbons will be awaiting the winners of the scheduled events in the boys' and girls' division for the eight to 12 years old and for the field day events for the five to seven year olds.

43-year-old Littler In Great Comeback

ST.LOUI (AP) — Gene Littler looked as if he didn't know whether to laugh or cry. He settled for a big sigh of relief as a broad smile spread across his pals, usually expression i e a face.

"When you do something you believed you could never do again, it's got to be a great thrill," the 43-year-old veteran said after his one-stroke victory in the St. Louis Children's Hospital Golf Classic Sunday.

His final-round 68, two under par on the 6,544-yard Norwood Hills Country Club course, nailed down his first triumph since cancer threatened a career only he cancer but his life 16 months ago.

"A year ago I didn't know if I'd ever again be a tour player, let alone win a tournament," Littler said.

Sets Record

LONDON (AP) — Sweden's Inger Knutsson set a world junior indoor mark of nine minutes, eight seconds for the 3,000-metre race Saturday at the British National Championships at the Crystal Palace.

He had to make an eight-foot par putt on the final hole to edge Australian Graham Crampton, the season's leading money-winner who boosted his total to more than $240,000 with a second-place finish.

Crampton had a final 67 for 269, one back of Littler's total.

Bert Yancey, Bob Goalby and Lee Trevino were next at 271. Yancey had a 66, Goalby a 71 and Trevino blew in a fifth after running afoul of a photographer.

Goalby, a former Masters champion, crept to within a couple strokes before making what he called "a couple of stupid bogeys" on the 16th and 17th holes.

Trevino had a one-stroke lead when the day's play started but bogeyed the third while Littler birdied the hole with a 15-foot putt. It was a two-stroke swing in Littler's favor and put him in the lead to stay.

Trevino, declining to discuss the incident with newsmen, obviously was bothered by a photographer who surried across the fairway in front of him after dressing the ball on the tee. He missed the ball by his drive on the next 3 tee to the right, had to play the next one lefthanded and put it in a trap.

He also bogeyed he seventh and Littler birdied it, hitting an iron within two yards of the cup. It was another two-stroke swing and Trevino was out of it.

The highly popular Littler, now 43, scored his best previous tour victory in the 1971 Colonial National Invitation. That was the 20th of a career that also includes a U.S. Open triumph.

But many thought it was his last when he was diagnosed as having cancer of the lymph nodes last year. He underwent surgery under his left arm, the operation damaging muscles and nerves needed in his swing.

But Littler started on a grueling swing-training, weightlifting and exercises, eventually swinging a club.

He rejoined the tour late last year and got into full stride again this season. He's played a full schedule of 16 tournaments. He missed the cut twice, had some low finishes, but has a played well in recent events with a fourth in Memphis and seventh at Akron.

"I'd got a big ambition to win a couple of times, which made me think I could do it, but you never know until you win," Littler said.

Wins Battle Against Cancer

Riva Ridge Is Withdrawn Key to the Mint First

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Key To The Mint led all the way Saturday and won the $3,500 Suburban Handicap as rival Riva Ridge remained in his barn because of a midafternoon shower that turned New York's Aqueduct track sloppy.

Key To The Mint, which became the odds-on favorite after Riva Ridge's withdrawal, covered the 1¼ miles in 2:00 4-5 for the 1¼-length victory over True Knight. Cloudy Dawn was third, at 12-1.

Key To The Mint, carrying weight of 126 pounds including Braulio Baeza paid $2.40, 2.40 and 2.10. True Knight, 118, returned $2.60 and $2.20 and Cloudy Dawn, 112, paid $2.40 to show.

Trainer Lucien Laurin had said Riva Ridge would not run unless the track was fast.

The victory for Key To The Mint was his third in five 1974 races and his 14th in 27 career starts. First money of $85,700 boosted the lifetime earnings of the son of Greustark to $576,616. Owned by Inglewood, Calif., under Century's banner, the colt smashed the record for the Hollywood Park course Saturday in addition to his two-year-old record at Hollywood Park in one mile and nine seconds.

Ridden by Jerry Lambert, the odds-on favorite in the field of eight led most of the way and from the turn for home was pulling away from Such a Rush, his closest rival.

Winning the $136,050 Juvenile made Ft five in a row for Century's Envoy, which returned $3.60, $2.80 and $2.10. Such a Rush paid $4.00 and $2.40 with Dooley's Image returning $3.00.

It was a stiff, overnight trouble on the last turn, charged on the outside to win the $117,759 Arlington Handicap at Arlington Park, Chicago.

Phillip Wise's Jogging tried to match strides with the winner in the final furlong, but had to settle for second, 1½ lengths behind in the 13-16 miles feet race. Craigwood Stable's Red Reality finished third in the field of 14.

Dubassoff, weighted at 117 pounds including Jacinto Vasquez, was timed in 1:38 3-5 over the soft course. He earned $72,750 while scoring his fourth victory in nine starts and his first in a stakes race this season.

In Philadelphia Annihilate 'em did just that to 10 rivals in the $58,750 Mitateman Handicap, winning the feature at Keystone Race Track by 5¼ lengths.

The three-year-old son of Hempen-Spots to Sapre, ridden by veteran jockey Jimmy Combest, paid $5.20, $3.80 and $3.20. Jaggy 1 1-16th mile in 1:41 to easily outdistance Josie Ekage to the wire. Royal Glint was third, 6½ lengths off the pace.

Newmarket On Top Both of Leaders

Divisional leaders met in Ontario Fastball League action Sunday, and it was Newmarket that emerged with its position unchanged.

Tornos ran into Bill Lunney's hot pitching and dropped a 4-2 victory to Newmarket Sunday after losing to Burlington 5-3 the previous night.

The double loss, combined with Oshawa's 4-3 victory over London, dropped Toronto a full game behind Oshawa in the league's west division. Newmarket's win maintained its 3½ game margin over Burlington in the east division. In the only other game Sunday, St. Catharines blasted London 9-0.

Lunney recorded 15 strikeouts in notching his 10th victory of the season against seven losers. Les Downing and Newmarket offensively with two home runs. Gary Weston also homered for the winners, who collected eight hits off loser Pete Landers and reliever Dwight Vandervoort.

Third baseman Jim Rokeden led Oshawa with a home run, double and single. Pat Wilkinson, the starter and winner for Oshawa, was relieved in the ninth by Barry Tibbets and the two allowed only three hits. Dave Cox struck out seven and walked two in taking the loss, his second in seven decisions.

Catcher Gary Bick Balint hurled a two-hitter at London, striking out seven and walking three. London starter Ivan Herrington took the loss.

Al Beckman led the 11-hit attack for St. Catharines with a

Homenuik Put Advice to Good Use

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Bob Panasiuk has only his father to blame for winding up an also-ran in the annual $10,000 Labatt's Invitational golf tournament here during the weekend.

While the 30-year-old from Windsor, Ont., was away playing host to Terrible Will Homenuik invited on Panasiuk's Hydes-way club with a number up some crucial putting strategy from Nick Panasiuk, Bob's father.

As a result of the lessons, Homenuik put together three sub-par rounds for a winning 54-hole 4,206-yard layout, including a one-under par 69 Sunday, to capture the 54-hole tournament with a total of 210.

Two shots back was Panasiuk who ripped the course apart Friday with a competitive course record 64 that had stood since Kitchener's Gerry Kesslering fired a 65 in the 1968 Ontario Open.

"I stopped in Windsor on my way to Kingston and got a putting lesson from Bob's father and believe me that one shot I'll be receiving winning and losing," said Homenuik.

"He showed me the ball path well this year but haven't been putting worth a darn." Another veteran of the United States PGA tour, Homenuik, 37, of Toronto, blew into a tie for the lead) marked the first time since the 1972 Dallas Open the Winnipeg veteran had been able to put together four scores on three successive days.

The victory was worth $2,000 to Homenuik and Panasiuk, who took some lessons earlier in the week from veteran Al Balding picked up $1,500. It pushed Homenuik's earnings for the year to $4,700 and marked the fourth time this year Panasiuk, the 1973 Canadian Professional Golfers' Association champion, has fallen just short of winning.

Russ Fisher of Mexico City finished third at 212 with a 70-71-71 effort while Ken Venning of Toronto was another stroke back, followed by Ben Kern of London, Ont., at 213, Ken Fulton, Toronto, and John -Kindred of Sarasota, Fla., at 216.

Rounding out the top 10 and ties were Frank Whibley, Toronto, with 211 followed by three players—John Elliot, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Gary Hamilton, Toronto and Bill Tape, Kitchener.

Mike Norman of Gilford, Ont., who turned down an exemption the $175,000 Canadian Open at Montreal next week, faded to a 77 Sunday and finished at 213 with Dan Cameron, Detroit, and two Toronto golfers—Trowbridge and Garry Prichford.

Fulton's closing 69 earned him an exemption into the Canadian championship. Venning won the other exemption. The Canadians who finished ahead of them had already earned exemptions.

The blistering sun Sunday dried the course and three-putt greens were the rule rather than the exception as tour co-r d i s tor George Clifton stretched the tee shots and tucked the pins into some early spots on the greens.

Homenuik "lost my concentration" on the back nine and made three straight bogeys, knocking him back into a tie with Panasiuk, but "those two 70-footers on 16 and 17 came in real handy."

He birdied the 16th and 17th holes to restore his two-stroke margin on Panasiuk.

The key hole for Panasiuk in the final round was No. 2, a 210-yard par three, where he cracked his tee shot into a man-made hazard high and to the right of the hole.

He got his free lift, but wound up with a double-bogey five.

"I had too much club off the tee, a four wood, and I got in trouble right off the bat. After that, I was scrambling all day," he said after winding up with a 71.

How did he feel about coming so close without leaving with the winner's share?

"I don't feel badly this time — I didn't really lose it. Wife beat me," Panasiuk said.

Junior Tennis Title for Genois

WINNIPEG (CP) — "With my serve working so well today, I could have defeated almost anybody," said top-seeded Rejean Genois of Lorettville, Que., moments after capturing the Canadian Junior Davis Cup tennis championships Sunday.

Genois downed fourth-seeded Louis Deamerteau of Toronto 6-2, 6-3 in the championship final of the three-day double-knockout tournament with his boom-ing serve and savage baseline pressure shots.

"I've been playing on hard surface all the time except for the last month," said Genois, "and on this type of surface, the big serve is the winning edge."

Barb Brankovsky of Toronto downed fourth - seeded Vera Kolodzie of Kitchener, Ont., 6-2, 6-2 to take the Canadian Junior Federation Cup title but said later she didn't like the hard courts of the Winnipeg Lawn Tennis Club.

Just back from touring Europe, Brankovsky said she preferred to play on clay and the hard surface played her confidence in flushing the net.

"I'm a natural on clay while," she said. "I went from clay to grass in Europe and now to the hard courts. It's a big change."

Both Genois and Brankovsky received $500 travel grants.

In the consolation finals, Deamarteau played to flawless first set, faded slightly, then pulled out the match in third-set. Dave Johnstone of Vancouver 6-3, 7-6 in a 12-point tie-breaker, while Guy Savard of Nelson couver downed Komar 6-4, 7-5.

Deamarteau and Savard received $250 travel grants.

The big match of the day, and the tournament, was Deamarteau's encounter with Genois.

Deamarteau earned his spot in the final, upsetting defending champion Richard Legendre of Quebec City 6-4, 6-2 Saturday in a semi-final round. Deamarteau showed control from the positional play.

With Genois, Deamarteau was unable to set himself for the powerful strokes of his opponent.

"He's so hard, I was a little over-anxious before I got into it and Genois' pressure playing was all it took," said Deamarteau. "I was too busy trying to handle his hard shots to do anything."

In the women's championship final, Brankovsky played consistently, almost effortlessly, and forced Komar into mistakes.

"I had trouble with my serve and let up," said Komar. "When I got my first and second service, I had trouble moving and was caught up behind the court often."

Brankovsky, playing her last year in Junior 21-and-under Federation Cup ranks, said she was pleased with her play so far this year and did not have to work hard to take the title.

Ranked fourth in Canada over-all, Brankovsky has yet to lose this year to a Canadian Junior.

Savard, seeded second for the tournament, played below form and said she was not mentally prepared.

"Maybe I'm keying too much on the Canadian closed championships which begin here Monday," she added. "But I'm more erratic and just not playing well."

Most of the participants in the junior trials are entered in the national closed.

Savard said she was lucky to win the last consolation final set from Komar. Savard was tired to play a third set. I probably would have passed out."

Jim Elder Continues Victory Sweep

QUEBEC (CP) — Jim Elder of Aurora, Ont., was the winner Sunday of the Grand Prix of Quebec, continuing his victory sweep in the Canadian equestrian jumping series.

Riding Silver Dollar, Elder finished in 1 minute with two Quebec girls, producing a perfect round in 43.4 seconds.

Mrs. Johanned Hathers, 18, of Ste. Adele, was second and Moira McCaffery, 20, of Brossard was third.

The victory was Elder's third Grand Prix this summer.

Vancouver Dominates Championships

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Vancouver players dominated the final day of the Ontario Open tennis championships here Sunday.

Vicki Berner of Vancouver won the ladies' singles 6-2, 6-1 over Inge Weber of Toronto and then combined with Miss Weber to take the doubles 6-2, 6-2 against Stephanie Bardaley and Ilona Jones, both of Vancouver.

Don McCormick, who also plays out of Vancouver, won the men's singles 6-2, 3-6, 6-2 over Toronto's Butch Seewagen of Bayside, N. Y. Seewagen joined with Keith Carpenter of Toronto to win the men's doubles 6-2, 6-3 against the team of Peter Burwash of Toronto and Rudy Hernando of Detroit.

Only 47 Will Make It

MONTREAL (CP) — About 186 golfers were entered for the day's qualifying round, but only 47 will make it to the $175,000 Canadian Open golf classic Thursday at nearby Richelieu Valley.

Another 106 top-rated players such as Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer are exempt from the qualifying round.

Among the better-known names reduced to qualifying are Pete Brown, R. H. Sikes, Bob Shaw, Allan Wilcox, Marty Fleckman, Cesar Sauzdo and Steve Melnyk.

Melnyk almost didn't make it to the preliminaries after being knocked unconscious for a half-hour Saturday in a two-car collision downtown. After an examination in hospital he was declared fit to play and re-

STEELERS GET KEATING

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League acquired former All Pro defensive tackle Tom Keating from Oakland Raiders Sunday for an undisclosed 1974 draft pick. The 6-foot-2, 250-pound Keating, who saw only spot duty last season, played eight seasons with Oakland after spending his rookie year with the Buffalo Bills.

MOTORCYCLE CHAMP

ANDERSTORP, Sweden (AP) — Kent Andersson of Sweden, racing with a broken right foot, finished second Sunday in the Swedish Motorcycling Grand Prix and clinched the world 125 cc class championship. Andersson, the first Swede to win a motorcycling world title, finished second to the Grand Prix to Borje Jansson, also of Sweden. Jansson rode a Maico and Andersson a Yamaha.

All-star Players Produce in AL

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kansas City, site of Tuesday's All-star game, had its 23-million scoreboard out of whack during the weekend, as a trio of American League all-stars took dramatic cuts to bring attention to themselves Sunday.

—Aston Oda belted a two-out, three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning, rallying Kansas City Royals to a 7-5 victory over Milwaukee Brewers.

—Reggie Jackson slugged two homers in Oakland A's 5-3 triumph over Cleveland Indians.

—Brooks Robinson drove in five runs with a homer and two singles in Baltimore Orioles 8-3 victory over California Angels.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins battered Boston Red Sox 10-7, Texas Rangers edged Detroit Tigers 4-3 and New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox split a pair of games, Chicago taking the first 4-3 and New York the second 3-0.

In Saturday's action, Oakland beat Cleveland 5-2, Boston edged Minnesota 3-2, Texas nipped Detroit 4-3, Kansas City downed Milwaukee 5-4, Baltimore defeated California 5-3, and the Chicago-New York game was rained out.

The teams are idle until Thursday with the exception of the all-star game at Kansas City.

"I got a good pitch and I hit it," said Oda. "It was a high fastball. It wasn't a strike."

But there's more to Oda's increased home run production. A look at the Kansas City lineup reveals that John Mayberry, who also has 19 homers, bats fourth, one spot behind Oda.

"They want to get Aston out so they pitch to him," said manager Jack McKeon. "They don't want to pitch to May berry."

The only American Leaguer with more homers than Oda and Mayberry is Jackson.

Jackson lost out on a chance for a three-day vacation because he has 23 homers and 81 RBI.

"I could use the rest, but I want to play in the game," said Jackson, whose two homers and four RBI provided Ken Holtzman with his 11th victory.

For most of this season, Baltimore's Robinson has been a walking advertisement for pleasant baseball. But the no-hit part of the formula good-old no-hit-combination may no longer apply to Robinson.

He hammered a two-run homer, his seventh, in the second inning, later added a two-run single in the fourth that chased Angel's starter Rudy May, and an RBI single in the fifth.

Tony Oliva, who has made the all-star team six times, is playing exclusively as a designated hitter this year.

Against the Red Sox, he drove in four runs in the Twins' 10-7 win.

Southpaw Jim Kaat, backed by a 15-hit attack featuring George Mitterwald's three-run homer, earned his 16th victory in 20 decisions.

Stan Bahnsen beat the Sox, his former team-mates, for the fourth time this year in the opener. Then Boston came back to take the second game behind Fritz Peterson's pitching and Ron Blomberg's two-run double in the first.

In Texas, Bill Sudakis hit a two-out single in the bottom of the 10th to score Jim Fregosi with the winning run.

Aaron at No. 700

ATLANTA (AP) — With career home run No. 700 tucked safely away in the record books, Atlanta Braves slugger Henry Aaron now begins the countdown "toward that other magic number—714.

"I think maybe I can do it this year," the 39-year-old Aaron said when asked if he could break Babe Ruth's all-time record of 714.

"I wanted to have 700 before the all-star break. I feel that 14 more this season isn't impossible."

Aaron connected for No. 700 Saturday night against Philadelphia Phillies left-hander Ken Brett, depositing a 400-foot drive 10 rows deep into the left-centre field stands at Atlanta Stadium.

"You can tell the commissioner that he didn't groove it," said a smiling Aaron.

"That's the first one he hit off me and it'll be the last," said the 24-year-old Brett, who captured his ninth victory of the season in the Phillies' 6-4 comeback behind victory.

"I wouldn't care if he hit four more runs off me," said Brett. "As long as I go in the record book as winning."

Mark Donohue Wins Easily

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Mark Donohue, mostly and apparently uptight from numerous frustrations this year, overwhelmed a select field Sunday to win the $75,000 Can-Am 200-miler at Watkins Glen.

The 36-year-old Donohue, showing only one major triumph on his record after putting together a $200,000 season last year, so dominated the third outing of the rich road racing series that he led flag-to-flag in both 100-mile segments of the race.

Setting speed mark as he stormed around the tough 6.6-turn circuit in a Sunoco turbo-charged Porsche, Donohue broke in front of the other starters in he firs 10-mile segment and won it with ease. His 30-plus speed was 119.095 miles an hour.

Cardinals Take Over From Slumping Cubs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

That thing about the leader at the all-star break? Forget it.

The whole National League East Division is one big mess of teams to beat, and no two teams know it better than the high-flying St. Louis Cardinals and unsettling Chicago Cubs.

New York Mets are dead last, but just 7½ games out of first.

The Cards, who started the season at though they'd spend it in the be earest, have won seven of their last 10 games. And the Cubs, who a few weeks ago seemed to have the flag wrapped up, have dropped nine of their last 10.

St. Louis took possession of first place Sunday with a three run rally in an eighth inning victory over the West Division leader, Los Angeles Dodgers, while the Cubs fell victim to a three-run rally in the 13th inning that gave San Francisco Giants a 4-1 triumph in the rest of the National League Sunday. Pittsburgh Pirates swept a doubleheader from San Diego Padres 3-1 and 13-7, Philadelphia Phillies took two from Atlanta Braves, 6-5 and 5-1, Cincinnati Reds blanked Montreal Expos 6-0 and the Mets downed Houston Astros 3-2.

The Cards ran up an 8-5 score over Los Angeles Saturday while the Cubs were dropping a 4-1 game to the Giants. Elsewhere, Philadelphia overpowered Atlanta 8-4 despite the Braves' longest home run by Braves slugger Hank Aaron, New York downed Houston 3-2, Cincinnati stopped Montreal 6-4 and the San Diego-Pittsburgh game was rained out.

With the teams taking a break for Tuesday night's all-star game at Kansas City, the schedule doesn't resume until Thursday.

"The axiom says the team in front at the all-star break is the one to beat, but that hardly means anything where there are 86 games left to play," said Cardinals' general manager Bing Devine. Field manager Red Schoendienst added: "When you get 36 games over .500 that's when you start thinking pennant."

The Dodgers scored twice in the top of the eighth inning. But Ted Simmons singled for two runs in the bottom of the eighth, then scored on Bernie Carbo's double that provided the margin of victory.

Like Devine and Schoendienst, Chicago Manager Whitey Lockman and pitching ace Ferguson Jenkins were cool to the whole "all-star break leader" business.

"Losing that game and dropping out of first place won't make or break us, in my opinion," said Lockman. And Jenkins, of Chatham, Ont., added: "There are a lot of games left to play. The season runs 162 games, not 81."

Jenkins pitched 10 innings of four-hit ball, one of which Dave Dowling homer that tied the game in the eighth inning.

Willie Stargell and Dave Parker keyed Pittsburgh's 2-1, 13-7 sweep of the Padres. Stargell decided the opener with a two-run double, then belted his 20th and 30th homers of the season, tops in the majors, in the nightcap. Parker slammed a solo homer in the opener and kicked in with two doubles and a single in the finale.

The Phillies took advantage of Atlanta's club-record seven errors to down the Braves 5-1 after unleashing a 6-run assault headed by Bill Robinson and Willie Montanez to take the first game 6-5.

Jack Billingham's 8-0 six-hit victory over the Expos, his sixth shutout, was dimmed by the loss of the Reds' all-star shortstop, Dave Concepcion, who suffered a dislocated ankle in the seventh inning. Concepcion Bench hit a home run to start a four-run fourth inning.

Tom Seaver dumped a perfect suicide squeeze bunt that gave New York the winning run in the 3-2 squeaker over the As-

Provincial Auditor Killed

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Police have identified the third victim of a two-car crash that killed a provincial auditor, William Stewart Cressey, 41, and his wife Mary Lee, 36, Friday.

Rene Grandmont, 22, of Kitchener, Ont., was identified Sunday through fingerprints, police said.

His car was destroyed by an explosion following the collision on Highway 400, about six miles south of here.

Police said Mr. Grandmont's car was travelling north when it crashed head-on into the Groom car in a southbound lane.

A third car, also travelling south, crashed into the wreckage. The driver, Harry Douglas Randle, of Toronto, and his daughter, Joanne, 8, were taken to hospital where Mr. Randle was in satisfactory condition late Sunday. Joanne was released Saturday without treatment.

POSTAL WORKERS

The Canada post office employs about 48,000 people.

Reward for Killer Raised

TORONTO (CP) — Rewards for information leading to the capture of the killer of former fashion model Christina Demeter, 33, have been increased to $13,000.

Peter Demeter, her husband, said Sunday he would pay $5,000 for information leading to the arrest of the person or persons responsible for the beating death of his wife. She was struck several times on the head with a blunt instrument.

The Mississauga Police Commission Friday offered an initial $3,000 reward.

Superintendent William Taggart, head of the murder investigation team, said police have been given a plenty of information in the investigation but denied earlier reports of an imminent arrest and said a lengthy investigation is expected.

Mrs. Demeter's body was found by her husband in the garage of their suburban Mississauga home Wednesday night.

Ten Pickets Arrested

The strike by the 600 glass workers, members of Local 200, United Glass and Ceramic Workers of North America, enters its fourth week today.

Trouble occurred late Friday night and Saturday when the men tried to prevent trucks from entering the gates at the glass company.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — All sectors of the Toronto stock market were higher in moderate mid-morning trading today.

The industrial index, considered the major indicator of market trend, rose .51 to 217.63, golds .42 to 207.16, base metals .19 to 140.31.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 501,000 shares compared with 538,000 at the same time Friday.

Advances were well ahead of declines, 205 to 58, with 169 issues unchanged.

Industrial mining, bank, oil refining and paper and forest stocks were among gaining market sectors while steel, food processing, general manufacturing and chemical issues were lower.

Trading in shares of Quinte Canada common and class A shares remained at the opening. The common was off 75 cents to 75 cents and class A 70 cents to 75 cents.

Toronto Livestock

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were steady for light receipts on all classes and grades of slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Regular veal calf prices were barely steady, however, fancy while veal calf prices were higher. Hog prices were higher and there were no sales on sheep and lambs due to the special sale today.

Slaughter cattle 686: Steers A1, A2 and A3 $48-$49, common 40-47; heifers A1, A2 and A3 45-46, common 39-44; cows D1-D2 36-37, D3 34-35, canners 32-34, good heavy bologna bulls 38-41 with sales to 43, common and medium bulls 33-38.

Replacement cattle 286: Good light stockers and feeders $49-50, good heavy short-keep feeders 44-48, good stock steer calves 53-58, good stock heifer calves 48-53, common and medium stockers and feeders 38-43.

Midnight Specials Draw Big Audience

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Today, Tonight and Tomorrow, in almost sounds like the title of a movie on the late, late show.

It's NBC's new lineup of odd-hour information and entertainment shows, "Tomorrow?" Because by the time it comes on after the "Tonight" show it will be tomorrow. It will be on from 1-2 a.m. Monday through Thursday.

I think it's going to lead to all-night television," said Tom Snyder, who will be in t.

"Let's face it. If we're successful at 1 a.m. everybody will be doing it. To imitate what we're doing or to improve upon it a whole new area of revenue for the network and there just aren't that many left."

Unless you're a confirmed insomniac, the thought of all-night network television does stagger the mind and send you reeling for the cot. But NBC's all-night Midnight Special—which will remain—has been attracting bags audiences of young people.

Snyder figures that a lot of college-age viewers will tune in. Maybe he's right.

"Tomorrow" is billed as a one-hour discussion program with overtones of entertainment. But what direction it will take may have to wait for the shakedown cruise.

Snyder, 37, who is anchorman of the evening news program on KNBC-TV, said the show would stick closely to the current news.

"But we won't have any politicians on," he said. "They never say anything they haven't said before."

Who will the show have on?

"You people always ask that," he said. "I don't know who's going to be in the news three months from now."

Snyder said: "We're not going to have any mock trials of the president. We're not going to touch on those things. Why don't people get alarmed when they're lied to by the government? Just because the Pentagon says something doesn't make it true. Why were we lied to about the bombing in Cambodia? Why are we told that the Vietnam War is over?"

If Snyder is awed by the task ahead he did not show it during an interview. He is one of the leading practitioners of the so-called "happy news" concept, which he calls a refreshing change.

"I think the days of anchormen acting as though they received the news carved on tablets of stone are over."

Successful Groups Big Money Makers

NEW YORK (AP) — From the stagy glitter of Alice Cooper to the down-home grits-and-gravel of the Allman Brothers, the groups of big-time rock music have at least one thing in common: profits.

The Alice Cooper band dropped in on more than 20 American cities this spring. The band grossed approximately $4.7 million, said manager Shep Gordon.

Not bad for a group unheard of three years ago, for a bunch that chose a woman's name and began an assault on young audiences with fake bangings, live boa constrictors and seemingly endless supply of gimmicks.

Alice Cooper probably spends more on eye-liner than Gregg Allman spends on clothes, but the boys from Macon, Ga., are doing too badly either.

In 1971, the Allman Brothers took in $900,000. This year, says manager Phil Walden, they'll make $2.5 million.

"It's more or less the decade of the star again," says Alice Cooper. "The old Hollywood stunts work."

Away from the lights, however, is another Alice. An Alice who drinks beer, watches old movies on the late, warm hours of ball jackets and has gone with the same girl for five years.

Offstage, he is, by his own description, more Fred MacMurray than satanic superstar.

The Allman boys, too, despite their earlier motorcycle-gang image and brushes with the law, have settled down.

Band members and their entourage recently bought 450 acres of land outside Macon and plan to build homes there. They have 10 horses among them.

The path has been rocky for both the Allmans and Alice.

The first Allman concert took in $3l. They trekked to Florida, doing $130-a-night gigs, and finally were invited to play in San Francisco at Fillmore West.

Then in 1971, Duane Allman was killed in a motorcycle accident in Macon. He was 25. Barely a year later, bass player Berry Oakley, 24, was fatally injured in a motorcycle accident three blocks from where Duane died.

Now they're back on the road and can get $500,000 for a single concert, Walden says.

Alice Cooper's low point came in 1969 as the group headed for Los Angeles and the big time. Their van, packed with eight people and all their equipment, was in a bad accident.

Today it takes two trucks to haul the stage, sets and 45 tons of equipment for an Alice Cooper performance. The baggage includes four whips, six hatchets, 25,000 sparklers, 24 mannequins, 14 bubble machines and 36 gallons of bubble juice. The plane that carried the band across the country also carried a blackjack table, several hundred comic books, huge amounts of beer, 14 cases of whisky and 3,000 pounds of cold cereal.

LONDON (Reuter) — London's Shaftesbury Theatre was closed Friday night due to the 2,00 0performance there of the hit musical Hair—after part of the ceiling collapsed.

The theatre was empty when plaster crashed onto the stage and the first rows of seats.

A building inspector ordered it closed indefinitely.

The Shaftesbury, built in 1911 with 1,300 seats, was to have been demolished in September to any event.

The show's executive producer, Bob Walsh, decided Friday night that Hair will not reopen.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, July 24

Aries (March 21-April 19): Pitch in to bring plans into reality. Try—just be sure you keep your lines of personal communication open.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Avoid rush, even though everything seems behind schedule. You tend to be overly cautious; strive for deeper understanding.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Endless conversation rounds diminish allowing an opportunity for sentimental catch-ups. Share something of beauty.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be willing to let go. What is lasting, find deeper freedom. Old friends offer pleasant surprises in subtle ways.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Forcing issues creates confusion, may keep a friendship from developing. You expect too much of people.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The pursuit of wisdom comes on strongly, is affected by local circumstances. Consider others' feelings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Improve your dietary habits without fuss. Cheerful company solves some awkward problem or long-term inconvenience.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): The lighter side of living should prevail today. Go along with good friends and neighbors enjoying available leisure.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New ideas become routine or more serious—think before you plunge into experiment.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Concentrate on projects that are most important to you, follow up on useful contacts, recent turns of circumstances.

MANY BIKES

CALGARY (CP) — The Calgary Safety Council says the awakened interest in ecology has contributed to the increase in the number of bicycles in the city. In Calgary 27,000 multi-speed bicycles were purchased in 1970 and the bicycle population of the city now is estimated at more than 100,000.

Women's Rights Split NDP

VANCOUVER (CP) — The issue of women's rights generated lively debate and revealed a split of sorts among delegates to the national convention of the New Democratic Party Saturday.

The meeting approved a resolution calling for a party-organized and financed conference on women within a year and another telling the NDP executive to uphold a 1971 resolution which instructed it to hire a full-time women's organizer.

But bogged down on a third, apparently uncontentious, resolution recommending that the organizer give top priority to preparing a policy paper on the federal government's royal commission report on the status of women.

It also demanded that the 1975 party convention—the next full meeting of the party—devote at least half a day to discussion of women's issues.

The resolution was on three votes—a show of hands that was too close to tell, a standing vote which convention chairman Gordon Wright said defeated the motion and a formal count which passed the resolution by a margin of 466 to 345.

Loud boos and hisses from opponents of the resolution—a large number of trade unionists among them—greeted the announcement of the tally.

Toll Heavy

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Five Detroit men were killed in a two-car crash just south of here early Saturday, and two other men remained in hospital Sunday.

Mr. Justice Donald Keith said in his judgment that Gordon Duncan Wallace, 62, was either dead or near death from a heart attack when his car struck a woman in a crosswalk May 9, 1969.

He awarded Patricia Gordon, 30, a total of $6,500 and her husband Robert $3,102 in their suit against June Wallace, executrix of the Wallace estate.

Miss Universe

ATHENS (AP) — Margarita Moran, grand-daughter of a Philippine president and "pushed" into a beauty contest by her friends, began reigning Sunday as Miss Universe 1973.

The 19-year-old Philippine beauty was crowned Saturday in an ancient open-air theatre at the foot of the Acropolis.

Miss Moran edged out contestants from 69 other countries.

"I really did not want to enter any beauty competition," said Miss Universe, whose grandfather was Manuel Roxas, the first president of the Philippines. "My friends pushed me into it and here I am."

Beating Fatal

BUFFALO (AP) — A four-year-old girl police said was beaten by her stepfather a week ago died Saturday in hospital.

Homicide detectives said Paul Aula Jr., 24, beat Sophie Green-shaw in their Buffalo home because he "didn't like the way she looked at him."

Aula was charged with first-degree assault, but investigators said other charges will be filed now the child has died.

Two Killed

MONTREAL (CP) — Two men were killed and a woman injured early Sunday in a cafe shooting. The two dead men are Richard Desormiers, 26, of suburban Longueuil and Jacques Andre Bourassa, 23, of Montreal. Police said the shooting appeared to be the "settling of an account" and Mr. Bourassa apparently was an innocent bystander.

Dies in Arizona

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Emerson Reid, former vice-chairman of the Canadian Board of Immigration Appeals, died Sunday in a Mesa hospital after undergoing surgery. He was 71.

Reid, of Toronto and Ottawa, had been public relations director for the department of veterans affairs and helped draft veterans legislation that was the model for the so-called GI bill in the United States.

Reid was a former city editor of the Toronto Star and once served as business manager for the Dionne Quintuplets.

RICHARD NIXON

At Low Ebb

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — President Nixon's popularity with the American public has fallen to the lowest point in his presidency, according to the latest Gallup Poll.

In a study published Sunday, 49 per cent of those polled expressed disapproval with Nixon's handling of the job, while only 40 per cent said they approved.

This represents a 28-point drop from his high ranking of 68 per cent approval in January. The sharpest decline ever recorded for a six-month period in Gallup polls on presidential popularity since the mid-1930s.

Five Killed

WAINWRIGHT, Alta. (CP) — Five members of a Lloydminster, Alta., family were among six persons who died Saturday in a head-on collision 36 miles east of here.

Dead are John Gerling, 43, his wife Margaret, 41, and their daughters Karen, 21, Carol, 20 and Brenda, 15.

Albert Smith, 69, of Edmonton, an occupant of the second vehicle also was killed in the accident.

46 Ill

HAMILTON (CP) — Forty-six players of the 180-member Pembroke Imperials drum corps from Pembroke, Mass., were treated in hospital for possible food poisoning Saturday, but later all were released.

They were taken to Hamilton General Hospital when they complained of nausea and stomach pains.

The corps was competing in a Canada-United States international drum championship. It played at Toronto Friday and went from here to Brantford, Ont., for another segment of the competition today.

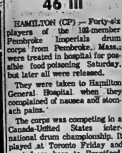
Dr. E. S. Pentland, chief medical officer for this area, said samples of food eaten by the corps were taken for analysis by the Ontario provincial laboratory here.

Heart Problem

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Former Argentine president Juan Peron, who is expected to return to the presidency in September's elections, is suffering from a heart and circulatory problem, it was reported Sunday.

A specialist who has been attending the 77-year-old ex-president disclosed his condition, but said he could live for many more years, the Peronist newspaper Mayoria reported.

Miss Nude



LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Wearing nothing but a smile, a pair of shoes and a gorgeous tan all over her body, Nadia Bottai, a 25-year-old Collingwood, Ont., hair dresser was chosen the first-ever Miss Nude Ontario.

She won out over six other contestants at the Sommerset Nature Park near here.

Beulah Hermann of Melville, Sask., was second and Sylvia Bouchard of Montreal was third.

The winner receives a trip to the Bahamas for her victory. But before she can collect the prize, she will compete at the Miss Nude World (Canada) pageant to be held near Hamilton in about two weeks.

Some 1,500 spectators gathered to watch the outdoor event.

MITCHELL SHARP

Sharp Critical

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has strongly reproached the French government for setting off a nuclear bomb in the south-ern Pacific.

He told reporters he was not surprised the French went ahead with the blast; but that the Canadian government regrets this very much indeed.

"We don't think it is of any benefit to France and certainly it's of no benefit to the rest of the world," he said Saturday.

Car Bombed

SUDBURY (CP) — A bomb exploded early Saturday on a car lot damaging a vehicle slated to become a police cruiser, gasoline pumps and breaking several windows. No one was injured.

It was planted under the new car which bore the insignia of Sudbury Regional Police.

20 Homeless

OTTAWA (CP) — Three city businesses were destroyed by fire Sunday that also left about 20 persons homeless and four firemen in hospital.

The Bank Street fire broke out in Electronic Wholesalers Co. of Canada Ltd. and spread to an adjacent restaurant and a second electronics firm, Arcnel Electronics Services Ltd.

Nixon May Seek to Continue As Ontario's Liberal Leader

FLORENCE, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon in Belleville Saturday said he may seek to continue as party leader through another provincial election.

Attending a party dinner in this small Lambton County community, Mr. Nixon told reporters he has been giving the party leadership a lot of thought.

He said he would "not commit himself other than to say that there would be a contest for the leadership in October, and that he might possibly be one of the candidates.

He said he would really like the challenge of going into the next provincial election against Premier William Davis.

Mr. Nixon questioned the return of Chatham MPP Darcy McKeough to the provincial cabinet.

"I respect Darcy's abilities. He was a tough cabinet minister and is a tough politician.

"However, . . . a cabinet minister that has resigned under conflict-of-interest charges as Mr. McKeough did usually would not return to the cabinet unless either a by-election or a general election had been held and the candidate had been returned to office by the constituents of his riding," Mr. Nixon said.

"But that's a matter between McKeough and Davis. It does indicate though, that Davis doesn't have much talent on his backbench," Mr. Nixon charged.

Ace Dies

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, a grade-school dropout who survived dogfights with the Red Baron to become a First World War flying ace and the guiding genius behind Eastern Airlines, died today in Zurich, Switzerland, Eastern officials said. He was 83.

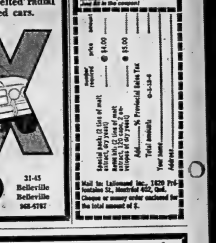
In my 11 years in the legislature I haven't seen a more incompetent group of cabinet ministers. I'd have to think of it as a falling away of competence and confidence. This should be an important election issue two years from now.

"We feel that the people want and need smaller units and a local government that is truly local. This is where we think the election can be won."

The Liberal leader called on the provincial government to step in and halt the announced increase in automobile insurance rates scheduled to take effect Aug. 1.

"They shouldn't have the right to increase rates from three to 15 per cent across the province without some prior consultation with the government."

Mr. Nixon suggested the government should establish a review committee to hear all sides of the issue and that the increase should be held up for three months to allow the review committee to hear the proposals by the industry and report back to the legislature.



Mr. Nixon said he would be in the audience today when Premier Davis appears before the select committee studying the awarding of a $46 million contract to Canada Square, headed by Gerhardt Moog, a personal friend of Mr. Davis's.

"After 20 years in power, this government is faced daily with the problem of having to deal with the threats of undue corporate influence.

"They've got commitments to party members in every community and can't make proper, objective, tough decisions themselves. They have to respond too much to the political pressures of being in office over a 30-year span."

Mr. Nixon suggested that agencies of the government should be required as the government is to use the tendering system and not be allowed to continue with the proposal system as was used in the case of the awarding of the Hydro head office contract.

Nixon Gets Two Subpoenas

Senate Watergate Probers and Prosecutor Both Want Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon battled today in a legal no-man's-land to withhold Watergate evidence he admits can't prove his innocence.

He refused Monday to produce the Watergate-related tape recordings and documents voluntarily, and was served with subpoenas from the Senate Watergate committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The next step in the unfolding constitutional confrontation was scheduled for today, when Cox has promised to make public the wording of his subpoena by filing it in court.

Nixon has until Thursday to respond to the subpoenas, which he appears determined not to answer. Deputy press secretary Gerald Warren said the president has taken "a very firm position" against release of the material, either publicly or to a grand jury.

Nixon might ignore the subpoenas, risking moves that could find him in contempt of Congress or the courts. Or he might file them directly with legal motions asking a judge to quash them. Either way, the fight appears destined for ultimate resolution in the Supreme Court, which has never ruled clearly on whether a president may withhold evidence in a criminal case.

The White House refused to give the material either to the committee or to Cox, who are seeking it for different purposes.

Nixon wrote a personal letter to committee chairman Sam Ervin (Dem., N.C.), Consulting White House lawyer Charles Alan Wright wrote Cox.

Both letters said the constitutional separation of powers would be violated unless the tapes and documents were kept secret.

Nixon said he has listened to some of the tapes, and stated that they would not settle whether ousted White House counsel John Dean was telling the truth when he accused Nixon of participating in the Watergate cover-up plot. Nixon said Nixon discussed hush money and clemency offers in the Oval Office.

"The tapes are entirely consistent with what I know to be the truth and what I have stated to be the truth," Nixon said.

"However, as in any verbatim recording of informal conversations, they contain comments that persons with different perspectives would inevitably interpret in different ways."

Ervin scoffed at Nixon's claim that the doctrine of separation of powers gives him power to withhold the material.

"I am certain that the doctrine of separation of powers does not impose upon any president either the duty or the power to undertake to separate a congressional committee from access to the truth," he said.

Ervin accused Nixon of failing in his duty to provide "a high standard of moral leadership," and said he believes the scandal has surpassed the

Jet Blasted
All Safe In Libya

BENGHAZI, Libya (AP) — The hijackers of a Japanese jumbo jetliner blew up the Boeing 747 today at the Benghazi airport a few minutes after they and their 157 hostages slid down an emergency chute. The hijackers were arrested.

Passengers and crew members who had been held hostage since Friday had run about a quarter of a mile from the plane when explosive charges set by the four hijackers went off in the cockpit.

Libyan troops armed with sub-machine-guns arrested the four hijackers.

The hijackers, who seized the plane shortly after it took off from Amsterdam Friday, kept it on the ground with 130 other persons aboard for nearly three days at Dubai, a Persian Gulf sheikdom.

Monday, they released an elderly Japanese couple from among the passengers, had the plane flown to Damascus and, after three hours there, ordered it on to Libya.

Everybody aboard slid down the emergency chute after the plane came to a stop at Benghazi, on the Mediterranean coast.

Members of the crew said no one was hurt during the evacuation, but blood was spurting from a cut above the eye of one old Japanese woman and her glasses were broken.

All the hostages looked worn out by their 30-day ordeal, and some appeared on the verge of collapse.

One young Japanese hostess kept telling Libyans trying to help her: "I'm all right, I'm all right." Then her knees buckled and a policeman carried her away.

Security men kept reporters and photographers away from the wreckage of the plane while the passengers were loaded into small buses and taken to the terminal.

Benghazi airport was closed to civilian traffic after the blast.

While in Dubai, the hijackers identified themselves variously as Sons of the Occupied Territory, Mount Carmel Martyrs Sada and the Japanese Red Army but never made clear whether they were affiliated with any known Arab guerrilla group.

Nor were their demands ever made public. There were unconfirmed reports that they demanded freedom for a Japanese terrorist serving a life term in Israel for the Tel Aviv airport massacre and that they also were seeking $5-million ransom.

36 Killed
Tornado Blamed For Ozark Crash

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The pilot of an Ozark Air Lines plane that crashed in a St. Louis suburb thinks he flew through a tornado and is sure the plane was hit by lightning. Authorities say at least 36 persons died.

Authorities said today they had reports of eight survivors in several area hospitals.

Ozark Flight 809, which originated in Nashville, Tenn., and was carrying 41 passengers and a crew of three, crashed into a wooded ravine Monday night during a violent thunderstorm.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) said Arvid Linke, pilot of the turbo-prop Fairchild 227, radioed shortly before the crash that he believed he was in a tornado and that he had been hit by lightning.

Authorities recovered tapes of conversations between Linke and the control tower at Lambert Airport and began today to attempt to determine the cause of the crash that "lit up the sky."

U.S. Official Says Canada Shunned Talks

WASHINGTON (CP) — Julius Katz, a deputy assistant state secretary, said Monday Canada had repeatedly rebuffed United States efforts to negotiate a joint pipeline policy.

The official made the statement under questioning before the Senate foreign relations committee, a one-day session called to investigate charges that his department had misled Congress on issues swirling around the $3.5-billion trans-Alaska pipeline.

Specifically, the state department was accused of disliking the Canadian government's stand on a proposed alternate route for the Alaska oil, south through Canada.

Canada Stepping Out
Prisoner Exchange May Be Affected

SAIGON (CP) — Canada's withdrawal from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) in South Vietnam at the end of this month has thrown the commission's role in the release program involving Vietnamese prisoners into question.

It is understood that the three other (ICCS) members — Indonesia, Hungary and Poland — have been told privately that Canadians are committed to the exchange program only until Wednesday.

Vernon Turner, top-ranking Canadian in the ICCS Hanoi Ambassador Michel Gauvin returned to Canada Saturday, told the commission Canada has an interest in continuing the release program.

Release Halted

SAIGON ((Reuter) — Large-scale releases of Communist civilian prisoners were halted today when Communists personnel at Communist-controlled Loc Ninh tried forcefully to deter prisoners from asking to stay with the Saigon government side.

South Vietnamese officers supervising the release protested to the Viet Cong and to the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

But he gave no undertaking of continued Canadian participation.

Meanwhile, a scheduled return of 537 prisoners by South Vietnam to the Viet Cong was carried out Monday. The release of the prisoners, about 40 of them disabled, was carried out at Loc Ninh, the Viet Cong headquarters town 75 miles north of Saigon, with the four ICCS countries supervising.

This was only a small part of a swap in which Saigon is to free 4,391 civilians and 32 military men in exchange for 252 civilians and 418 Saigon government soldiers held by the Viet Cong.

Hydro Facts Sought
Moog May Refuse File

TORONTO (CP) — Developer Gerhard Moog and the legislative committee investigating his $66 million deal to build a new Hydro headquarters may be on a collision course today.

Despite a speaker's warrant demanding the release of a file concerning discussions about financing for the Hydro building with a Swiss bank, Mr. Moog's lawyer indicated the file would not be made available to the committee.

Lawyer G. D. Finlayson said the file would be withheld after testimony Monday by Premier William Davis that he and Mr. Moog visited a Swiss bank while on a European holiday in August, 1971.

The warrant was served outside the committee room while Premier William Davis was still testifying in an unprecedented appearance before a select legislative committee. He said the friendship with Moog went back almost 15 years.

Committee counsel Richard Shibley, Chairman John MacBeth and Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, an interested spectator during Monday's hearings, said if the file is not produced, the legislature may have to be recalled to deal with the matter. It adjourned in June and was not scheduled to sit again until October 2.

Moog Denies Saying He Was Advising Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Developer Gerhard Moog denied today telling an Ontario Hydro official that he would be acting as a financial adviser to Premier William Davis when the two took a European holiday in 1971.

Mr. Moog took the witness stand today before the government's select committee that is investigating allegations of patronage in the Moog company.

Mr. Moog opened his testimony by reading a lengthy prepared statement detailing his business history and outlining the proposed Hydro project.

Later, under questioning by committee counsel, Mr. Moog said he didn't tell Hydro architect Kenneth Candy that he would be an adviser to the premier.

He said he just told the Hydro official that he would be going to Europe with the premier.

The furore was caused when Mr. Davis testified of a meeting he and Mr. Moog had with Swiss financial experts in Zurich in August, 1971.

Mr. Davis testified that at his request, Mr. Moog set up a meeting with Swiss financial experts in Zurich because the premier was concerned with backgrounding himself on the international monetary situation.

But, he said, the meeting was

Ehrlichman Says John Dean Lied

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman today told the Senate Watergate committee that John W. Dean lied.

Ehrlichman, once the chief domestic adviser to President Nixon, said he and others in the White House relied on Dean for information about the Watergate wiretapping affair.

Ehrlichman said in prepared testimony that ousted White House counsel Dean's story that the Watergate affair was the centre of attention at the White House is "false; that all the facts falsehoods" Dean gave the Senate committee.

"I do not suggest that we were all just too busy to have noticed," Ehrlichman said. "We did notice, and we kept informed through John Dean on the assumption that he was giving us complete and accurate information."

For Earlier Story See Page 5

For his own part, Ehrlichman said, "I sincerely do not believe I am guilty of any wrongdoing."

In a 30-page statement prepared for his appearance as 3 witness before the committee, Ehrlichman defended the Nixon administration against Dean. He accused Dean of a "gallery-pleasing repetition of the old story about fear and paranoia in the White House."

Ehrlichman's opening statement continued no response to the specific allegations against him. Dean says Ehrlichman ordered him to destroy material from wiretapper E. Howard Hunt's White House safe shortly after the Watergate break-in June 17, 1972, and said Ehrlichman authorized use of hush money to buy silence from the original Watergate defendants, among other things.

Ehrlichman insisted that Dean rarely informed him about Watergate despite Dean's testimony that the cover-up was a major concern of Ehrlichman and White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman. Ehrlichman said his log shows 32 meetings with Dean, eight of them on non-Watergate subjects.

Handcuffed Boy Killed

DALLAS, Tex. (Reuter) — A 13-year-old burglary suspect handcuffed and sitting in the front seat of a police patrol car was shot through the head and killed by a police officer early today. The boy, a Mexican American, had been taken from his home by officers along with his 13-year-old brother only minutes earlier as suspects in a service station burglary. The officer, Darryl Cain, 36, a five-year veteran of the force, has been charged with murder.

Still in Control

PORT AU PRINCE (AP) — President Jean-Claude Duvalier of Haiti assured his countrymen Monday that he remains in "full command" following a series of explosions that damaged the presidential palace here. In a taped broadcast repeated every half-hour, Duvalier said the explosions originated in a munitions depot near the palace.

Queen Alex to Become Hastings Board Offices

Queen Alexandra School on the corner of Ann and Dundas St. East will become the administrative centre of education in Hastings county.

The school, closed in June because of decreasing enrolments in the east Belleville area, will be renovated at a cost of almost a half million dollars, the board decided last night.

Money for the renovations will not come in the regular board budget. It will be obtained from last year's surplus and the sale of the present buildings used for administrative purposes.

Administrative staff, now accommodated in four buildings, will be consolidated under one roof by Christmas.

Basic renovations, costing $11.87 a square foot for the 42,000 - square - foot building, will include replacement of the heating, plumbing and electrical systems, replacement of some flooring and construction to two stairwells required under fire marshall's regulations.

Further work may be undertaken later under winter works and similar programs.

The board expects to save $42,600 a year by consolidating its four offices. It will realize that number of employees by six and release three rented portables at the Bridge St. East and College St. offices.

The office at 208 Bridge St. East will be sold. The fate of the College St. office beside Quinte Secondary School is uncertain. The Avondale office of the plant department will be kept for warehouse purposes and the Trenton instructional media centre will also be kept and used for other purposes.

The important thing for people of the area is that we have retained the school and site for the future," director of education Eric Runacres said of Queen Alex.

Industrial arts and home economics will be taught in the basement until new facilities are incorporated into Queen Elizabeth School. The school grounds will continue to be used as park and playground.

Nixon

At least there were heroes and a spirit of sacrifice in the Civil War, he said. "I see no redeeming features in Watergate."

Each of the three subpoenaed seek not testimony, but evidence in the possession of someone, in this case the president. However, the similarities end there.

The papers served on Nixon by the prosecutor and the committee are different in what they seek, the authority on which they are based, and the ends to which the subpoenaed material is to be put.

As a result, the fights over them might well take divergent courses in the courts.

The Committee's chief counsel Samuel Dash said only four tapes are being sought in the four conversations Nixon was on and Dean.

The second committee subpoena seeks a number of White House documents bearing on the case.

By contrast, Cox has been seeking tapes of eight conversations involving not only Nixon and Dean but former White House aides Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman and former attorney-general John Mitchell.

The Senate committee seeks the tapes to settle publicly whether Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover - up. Cox wants the tapes to use in court while evidence in secret grand jury proceedings.

Ervin has said repeatedly the president invites the public to conclude he is guilty if he declines to furnish evidence that could shed light on the accusations against him. Cox said the public should make no assumptions about what is on the tapes.

"They may tend to show a there was criminal activity, or that there was none," he said.

Property Owner May Get A Break

West Moira Street property owner Frank W. Bedell may after all be saved the investigative expense of paying local improvement charges for a new water main across the rear of his property.

The city intends to construct a water main on Pepper Ave. on which Mr. Bedell has close to 500 feet frontage, but he is being advised that to help develop the land because of local improvement charges lack of a sanitary sewer.

And the city engineering department says because of the necessity of a pumping station, sewers are not likely to be installed in the manner of years.

In view of this, Mr. Bedell is objecting to payment of unless he can develop his land.

Mr. Bedell has been offered on several occasions seeking a solution to the problem and at the last meeting, Mayor Robin Jeffrey said there might be a way to help him.

The suggestion was that a one - foot reserve be established along Mr. Bedell's frontage with the city paying for the water main installation and then recovering frontage costs when the land was sold.

Council moved that an agreement be negotiated between Mr. Bedell and the city.

Renovations Cost More

Proposed additions and renovations to Moira Secondary School, originally estimated at about $3 million, have climbed by another $200,000.

Architect Thomas Hovitch explained the increased cost Monday night for trustees of the Hastings county board of education.

Because of "very poor soil" in the area, special footings are required. The $30,000 are required. The irregular design of the school dictates another $26,000 for additions.

Extra parking spaces will cost another $10,000 and furniture and equipment, will cost an additional $29,250.

Inflation, contingencies and professional fees account for the rest.

Final approval for the additions will not be requested by the board until about November, 1974, Monday night's agenda says, but another $10,000 and costs a detailed engineering study had revealed.

Board Approves BCI Renovations

Belleville's oldest high school, BCI, is good for another five to 10 years.

Despite lowered enrolments, the school built in the late 1920s, will maintain its student population at about 950. Students will be kept in the area necessary to keep the school alive.

Director of education Eric Runacres made the decision as trustees at Monday night's board meeting, when they approved renovations to the school costing about $45,000.

Chambers Hold Joint Meeting

TWEED (Special) — Tweed and Madoc Chambers of Commerce held a joint meeting at the Tweedsmuir Hotel Aug. 13 to discuss projects of interest to the two communities.

Also in attendance was Don Sutton, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Increasing numbers of tourists are registering at the Tweed information booth, reported Clyde Hall and the number of American cars parked on Tweed streets were larger than usual for this time of year. The number of requests for information about camp sites and land for sale has increased this year.

The Tweed brochure is completed and ready for distribution and a new brochure showing maps of the Trent-Rideau Trail is being printed. Two signs will be erected advertising the Trent-Rideau Trail. One at the brochure and signs will be met from the donation of the Highlands of Hastings and the Land O' Lakes Tourist Associations. The annual grant was unanimously applied to the cost of operating the Tweed information booth. It is self-supporting this year because of a special grant received by the booth.

The girls, Cheryl Rashotte, Sally Courneya and Margaret Woodfrey will conduct the annual Chamber of Commerce membership campaign.

Bahamian Holiday Coming Up

Milford Walker, owner of Radio Shack on the Front of St. and trustee with the Hastings county board of education; was the winner of the draw for a holiday in the Bahamas, drawn by Mayor Robin Jeffrey Saturday afternoon. The screwdriver - a night vacation on Paradise Island was the grand prize in Fiesta Days, sponsored by the Downtown Association. Association president Al Trotter assists Mayor Jeffrey with the draw.

Moog

only to background himself, not to discuss provincial government financing.

Mr. Davis told Mr. Shirley the meeting was attended by himself, Mr. Moog and two financiers. At the end of the half hour meeting Mr. Davis said Mr. Moog advised him the financiers in a language other than English, but he didn't know what the discussion was about.

The premier told the committee, investigating allegations of political patronage and favoritism to the Moog company, that he did not know if the developer was discussing possible financing of the Hydro project with Swiss bankers.

When brought up about the confrontation with the committee was the counsel of Mr. Moog's lawyer, G. D. Finlayson, to produce the file of correspondence on possible financing between Mr. Moog's company and Swiss bankers after the Davis and Moog families returned from their vacation.

Mr. Finlayson said publication of the file would be "ruinous" as the Swiss banking since Swiss - banks are notoriously sensitive about correspondence that they have with regard to loans, and if the bank's name is identified or the name identified with whom he spoke are identified, then there is very little likelihood at all that Mr. Moog will get any source of funds available in the future, and Mr. Moog is unlikely to receive any comfort from any Swiss source."

The lawyer for Canada Square remained adamant despite assurances from committee chairman John MacBeth that the committee would blank out the names of the banks and individuals before tabling the document.

Premier Davis sat quietly in the witness chair while the legal discussions were going on.

Under questioning from James Renwick, Mr. Davis said he is financing a new Hydro building.

He also told Mr. Shirley that he had no knowledge of what campaign contributions, if any, Mr. Moog had made to the Tories and emphasized his friendship with Mr. Moog had absolutely no bearing on the awarding of the Hydro contract from his department.

"I assure you that whatever contribution, if any, (Mr. Moog) may have made has no relevance to the awarding of the contract," the premier testified.

Industry Refuses

It could cost the town's Public Utilities Commission $50,000 if it had to install a services main across land owned by Belleville Industries.

Town council recently granted Belleville Industries Ltd. permission for service at a cost of nearly $100,000 to be borne by the latter.

The PUC asked the company to be examined the land granted across the property to house water mains to service the industry.

The company said no, and this would force the PUC to skirt the property with an additional 1,700 feet of line, Dana Hooker PUC manager said.

The refusal was a verbal one and the PUC was decided to wait until the decision comes in writing. A company official said his firm did not want the land split.

Charles Hilton, a commissioner and the strongest opponent of the free service policy in the first place, said "we're doing all these nice things for nothing."

Andrew Bennie

Leading Community Musician Is Dead

PICTON — Funeral services will be held here on Wednesday afternoon for Andrew A. Bennie, organist and choirmaster for 25 years at Picton United Church.

Mr. Bennie died at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital on Sunday following a brief illness. He had been active until shortly before his death and conducted the United Church choir last month during the annual service at the Old White Chapel.

Mr. Bennie, who was 62, first mastered the organ as a youth of 18 in Winnipeg. In 1942 he moved to Arnprior and in 1947 settled with his family in Picton.

His knowledge of music spread through the community when he became music supervisor of Picton, Wellington and Bloomfield public schools as well as St. Barbara's school at Camp Picton. Mr. Bennie held this job until 1958 when his work load was cut to lessons at Queen Elizabeth school in Picton. He organized a school band and choirs and introduced a handbell choir.

The handbell choir included 10 musicians and it performed at Belleville Collegiate and many local churches.

In 1962 Mr. Bennie grouped 14 choirs from community churches to present the Kiwanis Carol Festival that became an annual event in Prince Edward.

Last October the congregation of Picton United Church organized "Andy Bennie Sunday" to honor its organist of 25 years.

Mr. Bennie was president of the Canadian College of organists (Bay of Quinte Centre) an organization for musicians wishing to improve their professional standings. He was also a member of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers and the Ontario Music Educators (school music) and the Canadian Handbell Association.

Funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Picton United Church with Rev. Robert Sherwin and Rev. Stephen Spurrell officiating. Prince Edward Lodge AF and AM no. 18 will hold services tonight at 7.30 at the Whattam Funeral Home.

Mr. Bennie is survived by his wife, the former Julia Pitt, son, James, of Picton, a sister Mrs. E. (Nancy) Fawcett and a brother Robert, both of Winnipeg. He was predeceased by his parents the late Mr. and Mrs. George Bennie and by brothers Wallace and James.

Ready to Go Soaring

Air cadets watch glider being towed down runway at Mountain View Monday.

When aloft, light aircraft towline is release permitting glider crew to go soaring over Bay of Quinte countryside. Stationed at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, for six weeks of summer vacation, 30 Ontario cadets are learning to fly gliders out of airfield south of Belleville.

Storm Relief Fund Opens in Brighton

BRIGHTON — Reeve Dorothy Brintnell has donated a years' municipal salary of $1,-000 to start a relief fund in this storm-struck community.

The fund opened Monday through a local bank.

The provincial government declared this village of 3,000 a disaster area following the July 13 storm which uprooted trees, damaged homes and property and wrecked the 90-year-old town hall. A church was also badly damaged.

The government will match every private dollar donated to the relief fund for rebuilding houses and public buildings.

A special committee has been set up to organize a fund drive. Municipal councils and industry in the area will be asked for donations.

Contributions can be sent to Village of Brighton Disaster Relief at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce here.

Two Escape Injuries

QUEENSBORO — Two young women escaped injury when their car rolled on the Queensboro Road, north of Highway 7, Monday night.

Provincial police said Katherine Villneff, Spring St., Tweed, lost control of her car as an oncoming vehicle approached. Miss Villneff and a passenger, Connie Gordon, RR3, Madoc, escaped with a shaking up.

Damage to the 1971 car was estimated at $1,500.

High Water Cleans Beach

PRESQU'ILE — This year's high water in Lake Ontario has had its benefits at Presqu'ile Provincial park.

The park's beaches — some of the widest, longest stretches of white sand on Lake Ontario — have always been plagued with dead alewives.

The small fish become trapped in pools when the high waters of spring recede. The result, in places, has been to tinge the air with distinct aromas.

This year's high water may have flooded campsites and beaches. But alewives, for once, escaped being trapped, and the flooding left a clean, dry beach about 50 feet wide in spots, reports the ministry of Natural Resources.

Although the beach is narrower than in other years, parks workers have been grooming it since the park opened for another season.

The park — a 2,000-acre isthmus jutting into Lake Ontario — has 520 sites for campers.

Airmen Home After Sahara Relief Missions

TRENTON — The first of Canada's air relief personnel returns from Ghana today after nearly three weeks flying supplies to drought-stricken sub-Saharan countries.

The 31 airmen are expected at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, aboard a Hercules aircraft which was scheduled to touch down at 4.40 p.m. at the base.

A total of 26 are based at Trenton and the remainder at Ottawa and Edmonton.

Over Quinte Country

Aloft over Bay of Quinte countryside, glider is hauled through air before release of aircraft towline. After that, there's only the sound of the wind rushing by as aircadets manipulate gliders on air currents.

Union Officers Suspended at Distillery

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The international headquarters of the Distillery Workers Union has suspended the entire executive of Local 81 employed at Hiram Walker and Sons here, it was learned today.

Local 81 has been feuding with the international for some time, saying it is not giving Canadian locals enough autonomy or properly representing them in labor disputes.

At Mountain View

They're Gliding Through the Air

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Only the whisper of wind betrays motion in the tranquility of gliding for air cadets training at the airport here.

For a select group of air cadets from across the province this summer means a once-in-a-lifetime experience of flying.

The 30 cadets, chosen on a scholarship basis and screened by provincial cadet organization, began solo flights Monday and will continue for the next four weeks developing skills which will hopefully be rewarded by the Department of Transportation. The end of the summer could mean permanent licences for pilots.

The gliding school has been held at Mountainview for the past two years and recipients of the glider scholarship held high in esteem by cadets attending two-week camp at CFB Trenton.

"It's special to be a part of the program and a lot of personal discipline must be learned," said one cadet.

Instructors here agree. They say that the atmosphere is relaxed in comparison to other training courses. "We expect 100 percent from cadets when they are in the plane. They work very hard for the relaxation on the ground."

Because of the increased use of Mountainview as a glider training station, more equipment is on hand plus two Cessna aircraft for power towing.

In the past gliders were catapulted into the air using winches.

Cadets during their first flights are accompanied by instructors. The Cessna pulls the craft to about 1,200 feet and from then on the glider pilot searches for the air currents that will take it up.

Gliding is the sport that can make five minutes feel interminable when nothing keeps the craft aloft but the elements and the skill with which air currents are sought out by the pilot.

More than 50 flights a day lift off the runways. Many of these flights are familiarization runs to give all the cadets a chance to see what flying is all about.

All cadets from CFB Trenton have the opportunity to glide, though only the selected 30 can work towards obtaining licences.

Apart from extensive practical training in the glider, cadets attend intensive courses in all areas related to flying. These include the study of thermals (air currents which keep gliders aloft).

The program, instructed by men who give their holidays to come to the airport, is completely subsidized with no cost to students. All costs are absorbed by the Air Cadet League and the Ministry of National Defence.

Most of the cadets, in describing the flights, talk of the silence and the feeling of motionless.

I wanted the course because it is a challenge," is another popular respond.

Hydro Meetings Begin

HAMPTON — The first of a series of public meetings to discuss the route of a proposed Ontario Hydro power line from the new Lennox generating station, was held in this Ontario-area community Monday night.

Similar meetings are scheduled this week and next week in the Quinte area, as Hydro officials discuss three alternative routes for the 100-mile, 500,000-volt power grid between Bath and Oshawa.

More than 300 rural residents attended the meeting here and came up with another alternative.

Hydro officers said they have data about the fourth alternative favored by local residents.

"We will take a look at their proposals," said Art Maser, senior planning engineer for Hydro.

Meetings will be held for residents of Brighton, Cramahe and Seymour townships July 27 and July 30 at Northumberland Secondary School in Brighton.

Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Huntingdon, Hungerford and Richmond townships will meet Aug. 2 and 3 at Holy Name of Mary School, Marysville. All meetings begin at 8 p.m.

Motorcyclist Is Charged

PICTON (Special) — a young Milford area motorcyclist, Danny Webster Greene, has been charged with careless driving and driving without a licence as the result of a rear-end crash involving two motorcycles in Picton Sunday night.

Police said the motorcycle being ridden by Mr. Green struck another ridden by Ron Klaver, 18, of RR8, Picton as the Klaver machine slowed to make a turn at the corner of Paul and Main Streets.

Both riders were taken to Prince Edward county hospital. Damage to the Green machine totalled $700 and to the Klaver motorcycle $300.

In another accident on the Black Creek Road Monday afternoon, eight-year-old William Nye, RR 6, Picton, sustained cuts and bruises when the bicycle he was riding was in collision with a small truck driven by Ray Cutler, 45, of Picton.

The young cyclist was treated at Prince Edward Hospital and released.

A Modern Classic

One of the most talked about pieces of contemporary fiction is Jonathon Livingston Seagull, a bird in search of perfection, in whose primitive endeavors a host of readers see themselves and in the writing of which creator Richard Bach has made himself a fortune.

A recent article from The National Observer reprinted on this page, described the making of the film of this latter-day fable, with a similar striving for perfection of the artist, in this case producer Hall Bartlett. Filmed off the California coast, some of the scenes, in the words of the chief photographer, "are so beautiful . . . they almost blow your mind."

The same article mentioned that the music and dialogue, if any, would be dubbed in later, after filming. Now we see that Neil Diamond, one of the most sensitive of the modern crop of young singer-composers, is Bartlett's choice to write the music.

Diamond's own life story is a familiar one — the search for identity in the big city (New York), failure as a writer of songs for other performers and, ultimately, success and fame doing his own thing.

In an article in the youth magazine, Seventeen, Diamond comes through as a man of many parts — a former biology major at New York University and something of an introvert who subsequently found himself in music.

He says: "I love the sensuality of Latin music. I love gospel music, and rhythm and blues because of its primitive quality . . ."

Diamond, whose name belies his eastern European — Scottish and Russian background — speaks of his preparation for the legendary seagull work: "I'm starting from zero, studying film scoring, rereading Gibran's The Prophet and books on philosophy to build up my vocabulary. I'm trying to formulate my approach, decide on the best lyrical approach . . ." And so on.

Jonathan Livingston Seagull is due for release in October. By all accounts it is a film for all ages. The Rev. Horatio Todd, the Ulster-born former naval chaplain, mentioned the book in his address at the Mariners' service in South Bay recently. "He was put into the world to learn to fly . . . as with the sea, first it tries you, then it gives you some pleasant experiences and it invites you to behave like a man."

New Quarters

Remember the National Arts Centre in Ottawa, which started out as an approximately $9 million concept and ended up as something much more extravagant. Now we have another elaborate establishment in the Lester B. Pearson building on Sussex Drive, the new home of the External Affairs department.

According to The Ottawa Journal there had been rumors of the building's "magnificence and grandeur," so on inspection even External Affairs Minister Sharp's office, while comfortable, was found to be "starkly furnished," with no hint of its reputed luxury.

For all that, the L. B. Pearson building — and admittedly it is named after a man who served Canada and the international diplomatic scene well — is costing $30 million. It will house 3,000 civil servants.

From whatever angle—and incidentally the minister's picture-window provides a sweeping view of the Ottawa River and the Gatineau Hills—the atmosphere is not unelegant and there comes to mind the stark picture Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson painted recently of Canada House in London. Grubby by comparison to say the least. But then we cannot win them all as they say, although we would hope that something in fact will be done to upgrade our image in London and anywhere else that our representation overseas is less than adequate.

Those Rebates

It is a month or so now since we read that citizens still due income-tax rebates would receive them within a couple of weeks. So what is a couple of weeks? Well, we slave to get the accursed form up to Ottawa by the end of April each year, on pain of some penalty or other if we fail to do so — but there we are almost into August and the computers have not completed the job yet. There seems to be some kind of double-standard at work in this matter.

With Watergate Et Al in Mind

Politics: Who or What Can We Believe in the Seventies?

By JOHN HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Who are we to believe? Diplomacy has always been a game of perpetuating half truths or no truth at all, a holding operation against press and politicians until a government could privately resolve an issue, a crisis or its future policy.

There is nothing new in this. And there are occasions in diplomacy, especially where lives are at stake, or a nation's security, when silence is essential.

But Watergate, the Pentagon Papers, planned leaks by government in democratic societies all have raised the question as never before— who are we to believe.

Currently, Watergate has reached the public ear through the Senate Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities has openly requested documents from the White House to corroborate or not the explosive testimony of John Dean. He is President Nixon's former special counsel whom the president fired last May and who made the cool, week-long presentation to the Senate Committee two weeks ago.

Constitutionally, it would appear such internal documentation in White House properties and cannot properly be used by such a committee of Congress. It could be a violation of the separation of powers in the American scheme of things between the legislative branch (Congress) and the executive branch (the White House).

But even after Dean and former attorney-general John Mitchell had been on the stand, the full truth about Watergate is far from revealed. Senator Ervin of the Senate Committee's chairman, admits he is treading on unknown waters— in making what is now an essential request.

Then there are the motives of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg who went to the incredible degree of copying the secret Pentagon Papers for government papers, but 47 of them!

With the general assumption around that Dr. Ellesberg was guiltless and the White House all wrong in raiding his psychiatrist's office, how in mind the intent and amount of personal subterfuge it must have taken to reproduce such a vast bulk of state papers?

Now are we in Canada removed from a now - global concern about where truth lies. The interesting statements by our elected leaders in the early 1960s supporting a Canadian advisory role for the U.S. in the Vietnam war.

Their publication has brought detailed and sharp response from Paul Martin, external affairs minister and now senator, that they do not tell the whole story.

Senator Martin has been planning to write his memoirs for some years. This is no secret. He now has indicated he will be able to say things which will deny Pentagon Papers allegations in part because these documents were not written by Canadians, and he will in turn reveal new information.

How can he do this while still a member of a federal cabinet and when many of the personal papers have gone into the Public Archives of Canada, some of them no doubt closed for 30 years, government ban of no disclosure? How much "truth" can the well - meaning senator tell us?

Finally, there is the curious capture of the two ICCS Canadian army captains who now are released. The mystery surrounding their original intrusion into Viet Cong territory deep in when we learn they had been issued with ICCS identity cards and the suspicious Viet Cong alleged they appeared to be U.S. intelligence officers.

Will anyone in Ottawa tell us what really happened to them?

In these games of hide and seek, Prime Minister Edward Heath wins all the prizes because he neither hid the facts in the cabinet sex scandal or resought out subterfuges.

He admitted to all, quickly called an investigating commission, cleared his government's name, got rid of the offending aristocrats. And that was only about ten!

Is French in Decline?

Sherbrooke La Tribune: There is no need for a long speech to prove that there is native tongue, although not a dead language, is in an advanced state of decomposition among the majority of students in primary and secondary schools.

Reading texts written by students who have finished their secondary schooling is enough to discourage the most optimistic.

Is this the fault of a banal and mediocre teaching system, is it attributable to laziness on the part of the students or to this progressive poisoning by Jouai which it rapidly reaching all levels of society?

It doesn't matter who is really responsible, one thing is certain and that is that: children do not know how to speak or write French which means that they also read with great difficulty.

We are astonished that parents should still be hesitant about the priority of French in the curriculum and that, while recognizing that French is becoming decrepit, they have the nerve to oppose improvement of the teaching of French instruction in English-language schools.

This does not mean that English, mathematics, physical education or arts should be ignored. All these subjects have their place but we feel French must have priority if we hope to prevent Quebec from becoming just another English province within a few years, having lost its own identity and allowed its culture and heritage to decline.

A dead language never comes to life again. Once a culture has disappeared from the daily life of a people, it only exists in museums.

If we hesitate too long about what emphasis to place on the teaching of our own language, we will condemn it to a death anticipated by the scribblings of our students. French must have priority and nothing less.

Rationing Could Be One Answer to Inflation!

VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Today's inflation, our prime minister recently told us, is largely the result of world shortages of food.

Therefore, price controls — which the two biggest opposition parties are demanding — won't help, Mr. Trudeau contends. They won't put groceries on the shelf.

Is the government's case valid, or is it just an excuse for doing nothing? And if there is a genuine food shortage, why?

All indications are that the supply of farm commodities in the world marketplace is wet; below the demand. Soil prices have been rising sharply, in response to the most elementary principle of economics.

Why is the supply of agricultural products falling short of demand? Largely because of one of the most elementary factors in farming — the weather. Droughts have seriously reduced farm output in a significant number of overseas producing areas.

All of this led to some big-league wheeling and dealing in international commodity markets. The biggest such transaction was the mid-1972 sale by the United States of nearly 12 million tons of grains to the Soviet Union, to offset a crop failure there.

To meet the commitment for deliveries to the Soviets last year and this, many U.S. farmers cleaned out the grain supplies that they had placed in their government's loan program.

There's another elementary principle in economics—whenever commodity prices jump and shortages develop, then speculators and hoarders become active. Many overseas countries have substantially increased their forward sales commitments to buy from North American suppliers. Buyers in Italy are said to be acquiring much larger tonnages this year than in the past.

As a direct result of the giant U.S.-Soviet sale and the ensuing speculation, the grain trade in world markets has doubled and the price of soybeans has quadrupled. In turn, this has made sharply increased the costs of meat, poultry and other products that depend on feed grains in the production process.

Subject to no time, the price hikes filtered down to your neighborhood food market, and shoppers demanded that somebody do something.

All of this led to some big-league wheeling and dealing in international commodity markets. The biggest such transaction was the mid-1972 sale by the United States of nearly 12 million tons of grains to the Soviet Union, to offset a crop failure there.

Japanese diet is heavily dependent on the various derivatives of soybeans—and about nine-tenths of the country's requirements come from the United States. Japan is scrambling to find substitute supplies where ever it can, including in Canada.

Prime Minister Trudeau has shown no apparent interest in stopping Nixon-type price ceilings on selected items. Instead, he casually tossed out the suggestion that food rationing may be a more suitable answer to the problem of food prices.

Most Canadians probably rejected in horror to the thought of the bureaucracy that would be required to enforce it. But rationing may, after all, be one of the very few ways in which our government can respond to public demands to "do something" about worldwide shortages and inflation.

A Peaceful Visit to Ulster

Letter to Globe and Mail article columns:

Dear Mrs. Thompson:

If any of your readers are hesitant to visit Ireland because of the war going on there, they should banish their fears and go ahead. I wrote to you a few weeks ago full of anxiety about my journey going there and I must tell you, you were right. They were met at Aldergrove Airport outside of Belfast by relatives who wished them safely to their town in County Tyrone and they saw nary a bomb nor a bullet the whole time they were in Ireland.

Atmosphere in the small towns and villages is serene, although they did mention that cars are not allowed into the main streets of the larger cities to avoid bomb planting.

The people were marvellous to my parents, desperately eager to talk with them about Canada and deeply touched that they felt safe to visit their native land.

The Northern Irish are inclined to run down their country as do a lot of Canadians, and they are so pleased to hear a good word about things there.

Still, they say the farmers in Ireland are prospering and growing rich with the help of fat government subsidies for growing grain, farming cattle and building large structures like silos. My father, who was a retired farmer, says his brothers are living as well or better than a comparable farmer in Canada.

The relatives took my parents on lovely drives without incident and, apart from the general feeling that the thing is insoluble, no one seemed to be worrying about the political situation in the least. The weather could not even laugh about it, although some travel was interfered with.

I just wanted to let your readers know how it all turned out. The Emerald Isle is still green and beautiful, and the people full of good humor, though somewhat concerned about what people think of them.

Paddy's Daughter

Those visiting kin in Belfast are not as happy about their stay as your parents. Thanks for letting us know what happened.

McKeough Back in Cabinet

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

As of now, Ontario has a stronger government than a few weeks ago.

Darcy McKeough is back in the administration with full cabinet rank.

And while there are those who will take issue, from a strictly objective viewpoint this has to mean a better cabinet.

McKeough probably will always be controversial. He has been since the day he entered politics in 1963. And from what one knows of him, there is little chance this will change.

He has been controversial because he has been the little rich boy.

Because he has had strong opinions on many things, and at times has presented them in a lets not suffer fools attitude.

And also because he has a minister before he had some of the dirtiest jobs in government to do and he tackled them forthrightly.

Politically this perhaps can mean he is a somewhat doubtful asset.

But from the executive end he has much to contribute to a government.

First of all there is his past record.

He is one of the few elected people around here who are more than just good looking boys.

He is one of the few elected people around here who are capable of handling intricate questions and go to the root of them.

This is particularly important in a cabinet that has been not only in the basic background complex but where also there are many economic and political shadings.

Then there is his extraordinary capacity for work.

This allowed up even as a private member, when he was one of the few back-benchers at that time (this has since changed) who did solid home-work.

Then finally, there is that same quality of forthrightness which, though it can mean political liabilities, also is assured in an administration if it is to be effective.

Today In History

1812—The bloodiest battle of the War of 1812 was fought, 100 years ago today—in 1814—at Lundy's Lane, Ont. Although neither side was able to claim victory, the battle clouded the advance of the invading American forces into Canada and forced their withdrawal to Fort Erie. Out of fewer than 3,000 men, the defenders suffered 878 casualties with 84 killed, while the American loss was 853 with 171 killed.

1936—The OCF national convention in Montreal accepted a Canadian Labor Congress proposal for the development of a people's political movement.

1936—Floods killed 300 in Iran.

1925—The League of Nations approved the British mandate for Palestine.

1915—The excursion steamship Eastland sank in the Chicago River, with 812 dead.

1534—Jacques Cartier landed at the site of Gaspe, Que., and took possession of Canada for France.

The present boom on piano sales now being enjoyed by piano merchants in the U.S. has reached out across the border to Canada and right into Belleville. An Associated Press story from New York appearing in the Ottawa Intelligencer quoted a piano manufacturer of the instruments as saying sales had not been so good in 30 years.

Michael and Stephen Kimball, sons of Mr. and Mrs. George Kimball, of Oakville, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kimball at their summer home at Lake Consecon.

When the public citizen thinks of the Canadian Red Cross Society he envisions nurses, ambulances and stretcher bearers carrying on with their merciful work under a barrage of heavy gun fire and aerial bombardment. But there is another aspect; one which is often overlooked. From the borders of Quebec to Alberta and the cities of the province of Manitoba, 28 Red Cross Hospitals are placed wherever the need is felt to be greatest. They range from the impressive Military Convalescent Hospital at Kirkland Lake to the small one-room hospital at Cabbagetown Falls. A completely equipped Red Cross Hospital car, donated by the Canadian National Railways travels up and down the province carrying such medical attention is needed for those Ontarians who live beyond the reach of the city hospital. "Outposts of Mercy" is a fitting name for these isolated hospitals.

Women Smokers Increase

Vancouver Province

Women's liberationists would know what to make of reports that more women than men are smoking cigarets at a time when awareness of the habit's hazards is growing rapidly.

The rate for Canadian tobacco industry found 45 per cent of girls in the 15-19 age bracket smoked, compared with 28 per cent in 1968.

Does this mean the demands of being liberated have made some girls as nervous they're using cigarettes to calm themselves and provide that veneer of sophistication that confers solecism of conventional pauses filled with smoke?

Is that what it's all about girls? Sure, everyone want you to be recognized as equal. But aren't there already enough equal people who smoke?

CP News Roundup

Western Summit Talks Open

CALGARY (CP) — The western summit began today with Prime Minister Trudeau and the four regional premiers sitting around a horseshoe-shaped table to swap ideas and prospects on how to end the area's alienation from the rest of Canada.

There could be some tough talk over the next three days as the four premiers, none of them Liberals, confront Mr. Trudeau with challenges to put an end to long-standing western grievances.

They have all said they want action, not merely general solutions for the distant future. There will be concrete proposals, replied Mr. Trudeau, but the conference should not become bogged down in a series of unrelated complaints.

"We're not there to solve everything with one meeting," he has said. "It's going to involve moving in new directions, creating new long-term policies, and gradually eliminating the psychological aspects of this alienation."

If the federal government enters the conference unprepared to act, said the four premiers in a united statement, "it would be a very sorry thing for Canada."

Ottawa has given every indication it is prepared to act. Mr. Trudeau has said that not since wartime has the federal government devoted so much of its energies to a single problem.

Maritime Code To Be Set Up

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill designed to bring more coherence out of this country's shipping laws would extend federal power over marine pollution problems to the high seas.

The bill, introduced in the Commons Monday, would set up a maritime code aimed eventually at replacing the Canada Shipping Act and related navigation and shipping laws.

The transport department announced that the 97-page bill is only the first step in tightening federal shipping legislation.

It includes the first two books of what is intended to be a five-book maritime code. The remaining sections will be introduced later.

The first book deals with the application of Canadian law to Canadian and foreign ships and will enable better federal control over pollution problems, a government source said.

The bill would allow the federal government to extend its authority to shipping accidents on the high seas where such accident may lead to damage of the environment within Canadian waters.

Safer Ports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration proposed supertports would be less of an environmental hazard than conventional harbors, the chairman of the council on environmental quality says.

Russell Train told a special Senate subcommittee Monday that oil spills around an offshore platform would not have nearly as disastrous an effect as an oil spill inside a conventional harbor.

Drury Prepared To Change

OTTAWA (CP) — The present system of grading federal government secretaries will be changed "if it is unfair and discriminatory" the treasury board president, C. M. Drury, said Monday.

Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) had asked in the Commons if the existing system does not "treat secretaries as clerks" and "provide them with office equipment when they are assigned new jobs.

Secretaries, by treasury board directive, are tied to the job classification of their immediate superior. Hence, the higher their boss is, the lower the pay that goes with the job.

Their pay scales now range from less than $6,000, a year to more than $12,000, depending which of nine secretarial classes they belong.

Pipeline Meet

OTTAWA (CP) — Did the federal energy department bungle its job of telling the United States about this country's opposition to the Alaska oil pipeline route or were its efforts thwarted by Interior Secretary Rogers Morton and other U.S. supporters of the Alaska line?

That's one of the mysteries that may be cleared up today at a special meeting of the Canada-U.S. interparliamentary group in Washington.

Opposition parties in the Commons sought the meeting, saying the U.S. Senate was not fully aware of Canada's fears about oil spills from resulting tanker traffic along the Pacific Coast, nor of Canada's willingness, if not eagerness, to entertain an application for an alternate oil pipeline through the Mackenzie district of the Northwest Territories.

Union Must Pay

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America local at Port Alberni, on Vancouver Island, was ordered in B.C. Supreme Court Monday to pay $7,000 damages to six independent logging contractors as a result of illegal walkout at MacMillan Bloedel operations in February aimed at forcing independents to sign up with the union.

Deplore Tests

OTTAWA (CP) — Unanimous approval was given Monday in the House of Commons to a resolution deploring the French atmospheric nuclear tests in the South Pacific.

Proposed by Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party House leader, the motion was approved by all parties without debate after receiving necessary unanimous consent to come to a vote.

Canadian Lives

PAPEETE, Tahiti (CP-Reuter) — A 29-year-old Canadian who was the sole survivor of a Pan American Airways jet which crashed into the sea near here with 79 persons aboard was reported to be in good condition today and recovering from his ordeal.

The survivor was identified as James Neil Campbell of Amprior, Ont., 45 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Meanwhile, rescue workers, who have so far found 16 bodies, continued their search today. There was little hope for finding more survivors.

ROBERT STANFIELD

Concrete Plans Seen Essential

REGINA (CP) — The western economic opportunities conference will be a "sheer d.t.s appointment" unless it leads to some concrete proposals, Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Monday.

Mr. Stanfield said that if the three-day meeting between Prime Minister Trudeau and the four western premiers that begins today in Calgary is not productive "in terms of Canadian unity, it would have been better if the conference was never called."

Ready to Mint

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentary approval has not yet been given, but the mint already is preparing to manufacture Canada's coins to commemorate the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal, Secretary of State (PC—York-Simcoe) said Monday.

Preparations started as early as March, he told the Commons, and coin dies have been made or designs for the commemorative coins.

Air Fare Cut

LONDON (Reuter) — A British charter company opened up the 1974 Atlantic air-fares war Monday with an offer of a round-trip ticket between London and Los Angeles for less than $150.

The price list from a company called CPS Travel was one of the first entries in the scramble to get customers for the newly devised concept of advanced booking charters (ABC).

Child Burned

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — An 18-year-old youth and the woman with whom he has been living have been charged in an incident in which the woman's two-year-old son suffered second-degree burns to about 15 per cent of his body.

James Warner of Waterloo was charged with assault causing bodily harm and Alvira Spackman, also of Waterloo, was charged with child neglect.

The boy was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Released

CALGARY (CP) — A Calgary man and his four American friends were released by the Cuban government Monday, his mother reported.

Betty Chappell of Calgary said she received a telephone call from her son, Michael, 21, Monday morning, informing her of their release.

Michael and his friends had been held in Havana since June when his boat struck a reef off the Cuban coast.

ALASTAIR GILLESPIE

Raw Materials Will Be Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — A national policy embracing agriculture, fisheries, forestry and mineral resources development could be the key to more employment and higher wages in this country, Industry Ministry Alastair Gillespie said Monday.

He announced that a year-long interdepartmental study has shown major industrial nations will require larger quantities of raw materials and Canada's exports of these will double during the 1980s.

Canada should also increase the extent to which these raw materials are processed before export.

Mr. Gillespie said processing facilities for exports should be an important, perhaps essential issue between labor, government and industrial structure.

Government Files Appeal

EDMONTON (CP) — The federal government has filed an appeal against the judgment of Mr. Justice William Morrow of the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories in a case involving Indian land claims.

The federal government, specifically the minister responsible, appealing Mr. Justice Morrow's June 22 ruling that he must hear arguments in a land application by 7,000 treaty Indians to file a caveat on 400,000 square miles of the north.

The caveat, a declaration and legal warning of an interest in the lands, is a major step in the Indians' claim that the land actually belongs to them.

In the appeal, Ottawa says Mr. Justice Morrow did not have jurisdiction in the case, and the federal Land Titles Act does not apply in the case because the lands in question are Crown lands.

A remarkable healing substance has been found in a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported very striking improvement. Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction of bulging took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over periods of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished

"Magruder has told various versions of the Watergate story, many of them believed, to the FBI, three grand juries, the original trial jury, the original prosecutors, attorneys and other officials," Strachan said.

"Apparently the story he told was false all along, yet they believed it."

In his testimony to the committee Magruder confessed he committed perjury before the grand jury and at the Watergate trial.

Strachan confirmed Dean's testimony that the president wanted the Internal Revenue Service made more responsive to the political needs of his administration.

He said the name of former defence secretary Clark Clifford, a Democrat, "was mentioned to me as a person who, when a more politically responsive commissioner had been placed in the Internal Revenue Service, would be subject to a full field audit."

Strachan testified he had passed to Haldeman, in a memo, word from Magruder that Attorney-General John Mitchell, the Nixon campaign director, and budgeted at $300,000.

When the burglars were arrested in the Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate, Strachan said, Haldeman ordered him to clean that memo from Haldeman's files.

Strachan said a number of White House aides had the capability of recording conversations on their office telephones.

He said these phones were in his office and in those of Charles Colson and Lawrence Higby. Haldeman's administrative assistant, and possibly in other offices.

Late last month, Ehrlichman, who was the president's chief domestic advisor and the No. 2 White House staff member, gave his own estimate of Dean's credibility.

He told reporters he believes the former White House counsel was attempting to implicate the president to save himself from criminal prosecution.

"Dean will be tripped up by the logs I kept of all meetings," Ehrlichman said. "Literally months went by during the time Dean was taking about that I had no contact with him at all. "To hear his testimony he was in and out of me and out every 10 minutes."

He said the White House had no interest in covering up Watergate because, "it had no exposure."

Watergate Probe to Hear Ehrlichman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secrete Watergate investigators had their chance today to test John Ehrlichman's statement he can "rip up" sworn testimony implicating himself and President Nixon in the Watergate cover-up.

Today, former White House aide testified he believes H. R. Haldeman, former chief of staff, knew last year that secret, intelligence was being gathered on Democratic candidates.

Gordon Strachan, Haldeman's liaison with the Committee for the Re-election of the President, told the Senate committee he placed greater weight on the testimony of former White House counsel John Dean than that of campaign aide Jeb Stuart Magruder because Magruder has proven himself a liar.

The credibility of Dean, the admissions of involvement by Nixon, Ehrlichman and others in the cover-up has become a central issue in the hearings.

However, Ehrlichman told Dean "never lied to me."

Strachan said he refused to brief Magruder with a false story and Magruder lied to the committee about Strachan's role in the cover-up because of this.

Sessions Secret

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Fifty per cent of Kingston township council meetings, at which major issues were decided, were secret because of a motion neither the public nor the news media were invited, a provincial inquiry was told Monday.

Fred Hewitt, one of four persons who asked for the inquiry into alleged breaches of the Municipal Act and the Municipal Conflict of Interest Act, testified that half the meetings excluded reporters and media.

He said he could not find a single vote recorded against any issue dealt with by council. He said he found it odd that there was never in constant agreement and questioned the necessity for such a large proportion of special meetings not generally known to the public.

Nine Die

OBAN, Scotland (Reuter) — Nine persons died and 40 were injured when fire swept through a packed hotel in this western Highlands town early today, police said.

Socreds Plan Stiff Fight To Retain Death Penalties

OTTAWA (CP) — Words flowed in the Commons like water over a falls Monday as a new channel for debate was opened on the capital punishment issue.

Washed away were predictions on when the summer recess, three weeks overdue, will be called.

Centre of the debate now is a suggestion to hang rapists and kidnappers who murder their victims. Still to come is a proposal to apply the rope to second-time murderers and aircraft hijackers who kill.

These have been proposed as amendments to the government's hanging bill—before the House for final approval—which proposes another five-year ban on capital punishment, except in the cases of killers of on-duty policemen and prison guards. The first five-year moratorium expired at the end of 1972.

One indication of how long the debate could continue was delivered to the House Monday by Social Credit Leader Real Caouette. He promised to do everything in his power to delay passage of the bill.

A referendum, Mr. Caouette said he and his 14 fellow Social Creditors will speak "as long as possible" every amendment proposed by other parties and will attempt a series of their own amendments as delaying tactics.

The government had asked members to set a time limit on the debate in exchange for putting off the final decision until fall. However, there has been no agreement on this and Mr. Caouette said the party "won't agree . . . under any circumstances."

Besides the capital punishment bill, the government wants passage before the House adjourns for the summer of a bill to help finance the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal. The bill, to authorize sale of commemorative stamps and coins as a national lottery, saw long, hot debate during committee study.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over periods of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is the ingredient used in suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes eliminating easier. It also relieves pain and infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoid attacks.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Economy, Enjoyment A Bonus When You Sew

Enjoyment and economy. They're the reasons Elaine Struthers sews most of her own wardrobe and the rest, she thinks, more women are sewing every day.

"You're not lied to the whims of clothing manufacturers and designers if you sew," she says.

Elaine, former Hastings County Home Economist and currently with Consumer Education, Citizens Bureau, estimates that the material cost of a home-sewn garment can be multiplied by three to get the ready-made cost.

"If I make a dress for $20, what I have is a $60 dress," she says.

Elaine, who made her wedding gown, bridesmaids' dresses and flower girl's dress all for about $125, says that more formal wear is an even greater bargain for the home sewer.

Ambitious home sewers are beginning to make men's clothes, too, and Elaine made a shirt, pants and vest for her husband for $14.

There are, she points out, however, exceptions to the home-sewing-is-cheaper rule. For her own wardrobe of shorts and tank-tops, Elaine finds it just as cheap to buy inexpensive sports wear.

"Where you really save is on dressy things - the more complex the article, the more you save."

A tailored suit, for example, may cost $60 to make and be worth from $300 to $700 she says.

For the beginner, though, Elaine recommends a pattern be selected with few and simple lines and few details.

Then you must choose fabric and color.

"You've got to be able to visualize the ensemble," she says. "You must be more analytical when you sew than when you buy clothes. When you go to a dress-shop, you can try on a dress and look in the mirror."

In fact Elaine says, the three - way combination of style, fabric and color is most often the cause for unsuitable home-sewn garments.

"If there's something wrong with the way a dress looks it's usually the wrong fabric with the wrong pattern."

Elaine recommends the beginner choose fabrics that are easy to work with like polyester knits or "crimplene".

"You can't beat good old crimplene for easy sewing," she says.

Equipment for sewing can run from relatively inexpensive to very expensive for a fancy sewing machine. But Elaine believes all you need to begin sewing is a zig-zag model machine, retailing from $79 to $100, a good pair of scissors, sewing machine needles, good dressmakers pins, a seam gauge, pressing mitt, tape measure, tracing wheel and paper and a yardstick for hems.

"You don't need all the extras," she says.

The whole investment would be under $125.

"It doesn't take very long for it to pay for itself, if you make five dresses, it paid for itself," Elaine says.

A bonus is that home-sewn clothes are more likely to hold up than ready-made dresses.

"There's just not the quality in ready-made unless you can afford to really pay for it."

Inexperienced sewers make a few common errors in their sewing, Elaine says.

They use inappropriate trims on their garments, they don't mark them carefully, and they don't understand facings to make them lie flat.

"You want people to say 'where did you get it' not 'oh, did you make it'," she says.

At Her Machine

Elaine Strothers at her sewing machine where she constructs fashions not only for herself but for her husband. Currently she's making a uniform for her transport-driving spouse at just a small percentage of its retail cost. She says sewing at home is economy and lets you choose style and color.

Some Sewing Tips

Some sewing tips from Elaine Struthers:

—Beginners should stay away from difficult-to-work-with fabrics like acrylics and cotton knits - not to mention sheers.

—Use polyester thread, ball point needles and ball point pins with polyester knits and crimplene.

—Throw out your sewing machine needle quite frequently (Elaine changes needles with every other garment) if you're sewing a lot of polyesters. The fabric is hard on needles.

—Use a single hole throat plate and a narrow pressure foot with polyesters.

—Keep good sharp shears and don't let anybody cut paper with them.

—Press as you sew (Elaine says this is the big difference between a well-made and badly-made looking garment.)

—Always use a piece of cloth between polyesters and your iron. It's a warm setting.

—Don't turn hems under on polyesters - it's unnecessary and makes for unattractive bulk.

—Be sure your trims and lining require the same care as your fabric.

—Build in stretch when you sew by using a smaller stitch length, by using a very "straight" zig - zag and by stretching the fabric very slightly as you sew.

—Have your machine cleaned yearly; oil it according to your manual between cleanings.

Successful Living

Helen Keller 'Sees' by Touch

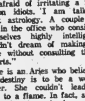
By DORIS CLARK

There are red letter days in our lives when we meet people who thrill us like a fine path, people whose handshake is brimful of unspoken sympathy, and whose sweet, rich natures impart to our eager, impatient spirits a wonderful restfulness which, in its essence, is divine.

Perhaps we never saw them before, and they may never cross our life's path again; but the influence of their calm, mellow natures is a libation poured upon our discontent, and we feel its healing touch, as the sea feels the mountain stream freshening its brine. — from "The Faith of Helen Keller".

Note how Helen Keller, deaf and blind, uses the word "saw"; shows appreciation of a fine poem; speaks of messages received through touch - "handshake", "healing touch". And also senses "unspoken sympathy".

Dear Doris: This year, we purchased a portable swimming pool, and although it isn't even up yet, we're already bothered by neighbors who seem to feel they'll be getting in their fair share of swimming in it!



We value some privacy, and we've never even suggested it! How do you stay on good terms with neighbors while retaining a private backyard for our personal use? — Pool Blues.

Dear Pool Blues: It isn't easy, but would you share your pool at certain times? Once neighbors discover that swimming is "by invitation only", the situation eases off.

One family solved it with flags on the gate keyed to indicate that the pool was for family use only, blue to show that neighborhood children were welcome to come in for a dip.

The pool is your investment, yours to enjoy. You have the right to make the rules in your "outdoor living-room".

(Has Doris helped you with a problem? Write and tell her so! Address your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Ann Landers

Nuts About Astrology

Dear Ann Landers: There's one subject never mentioned in your column. I suspect you are afraid of irritating a few million idiots. I am talking about astrology. A couple of nuts in the office who consider themselves highly intelligent wouldn't dream of making a move without consulting their "charts."

One is an Aries who believes her destiny is to be a world leader. She couldn't be more moth to a flame. In fact, she's a troublemaker who has managed to make life so miserable for three good employees here that they quit. I might be next.

The other is a Libra who insists that her sign has placed her on a higher moral plane than anyone in the office. I've watched her operate and she could engrave her code of ethics on the knee of a bee and still have room for the Gettysburg Address.

I hope you will put the knock on these Phony Baloneys and express your views on astrology.—Sick Of Them

Dear S.O.T.: I know very little about astrology but I do know several people who are far cry from Phony Baloneys and horoscope-hooked. My personal inclination as far as astrology is concerned parallels that of Shakespeare's Cassius, who said, "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings."

Dear Ann Landers: My dear brother Kenny was a factory representative. He knew all kinds of people. A few weeks ago Kenny dropped dead of a heart attack.

After the services, a couple of people came to my sister-in-law's house. She took Kenny's death very hard and was under the impression that a well-dressed man sought me out when he couldn't find her. He told me that Kenny owed him $900 from two poker games. The message was clear—he expects the family to pay the money. When I asked if he had anything in writing he said, "The Guy's word was good as gold. He always paid me before." The man left his card and said he'd be in touch in two weeks.

A few days later I told my sister-in-law about it. She said she never knew Kenny played poker for such high stakes but if he owes the money she'll manage to pay it somehow. My husband told her, "It's a racket. Forget it." I said I would write to Ann Landers. Answer, please.—Talsa

Dear T.: Since the man had nothing in writing and your sister-in-law never saw him before, I'd say your husband gave her the right advice.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend friend who has a habit that drives me nuts. Nell is a darling person and knows everything that goes on in town. We talk on the phone every day. My complaint is this: "I can't recall a single conversation when she didn't say, "Hold on a minute—" then she leaves the phone. Her "minute" can be anything from 30 seconds to 20 minutes.

One day I timed it. When I called her back, half an hour later, her line was busy. The next morning she phoned to apologize. She went to answer the doorbell and forgot I was waiting.

This morning Nell gave me the "hold on a minute" routine again and I waited seven minutes by the clock. (Her dog had to go out.) Any suggestions?—Slow Burn

Dear Slow: The next time Nell says, "Hold on a minute," hang up. When she calls back tell her exactly what you told me.

MR. AND MRS. LEONARD RUNHAM

Runham — Mandley

Kathleen Lenore Mandley became the bride of Mr. Leonard Runham on the Hill Church on the arm of her mother to wed Leonard Patrick Runham early in July.

Kathleen is the daughter of Mrs. Mildred Mandley, Belleville, and the late William D. Mandley. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joan H. Runham, of Athens, Ontario.

The Rev. J. Arnold Dunlop officiated at the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of imported French lace fashioned in Dresden styling with a v-neckline and long sleeves. A headpiece of French lace motifs and satin loops held the tiered silk illusion veil. She carried red roses and white carnations.

Donna Whitehorne, of Smiths Falls, Ontario, attended the bride.

She wore a gown of pink and yellow voile with an empire waist and short ruffled sleeves. She wore white mums in her hair and carried a colonial bouquet of white mums and pink sweetheart roses.

John C. Runham, the brother of the bridegroom, attended the bridegroom.

After a wedding trip to Washington, D.C., and points south, the couple took up residence in Athens, Ontario.

Mini-skirts Banned, Hot Pants Debated African Women Called Fashion Crazy

LUSAKA, Zambia (Reuter) — Like their sisters elsewhere in black Africa, Zambia's housewives are in trouble for spending too much time and money on fashionable clothes and not enough on the family.

Leaders in other parts of Africa have brought in legislation intended to uphold the dignity of African womanhood.

Uganda's President Idi Amin, a staunch Moslem, has banned miniskirts. Similar prohibitions are in force in Malawi and Zanzibar.

In Kenya, some male members of Parliament recently called on President Jomo Kenyatta's government to follow suit and were told by Attorney General Charles Njonjo that if bared female thighs offend them they need only look the other way.

Here in Lusaka, perhaps black Africa's most fashion-conscious capital city, the miniskirt is regarded as almost square.

In Zambia, sartorial dispute on the women's pages centres upon such topics as whether or not pant suits and hotpants ought to be worn to the office.

"Zambian girls are only a step behind swinging London in taking up trends," says Clava Sikanetta, a columnist in the Zambia Daily Mail.

There are, however signs that concern is now growing here at the craze for Western-inspired fashions and the attitudes it both reflects and encourages.

Recently, Zambia's fashionable young women were rapped on the knuckles by no less a dignitary than Mrs. Chibesa Kankasa, director of the women's brigade of the governing United National Independence Party (UNIP).

On an official tour of the copper belt, Mrs. Kankasa warned: "Our ambitions have been misplaced. We always want to look like white women. This is a shame."

It was time, Mrs. Kankasa said, for Zambian housewives to stop nagging their menfolk for more money to spend on new dresses and instead to pay more heed to the family.

The women's leader said: "The Western type of clothing has taken so much of our time that we do not have a moment to prepare well-cooked meals for the family but depend on canned foodstuffs."

"Our society is sick with many cases of broken marriages, runaways, daughters dagga (hashish) smoking teenagers and prostitution in schoolgirls. Where are we going and what, as mothers, are we doing about these problems?"

Mrs. Kankasa said most Zambian women had not failed in their loyalty to their nation. She could not understand why they had not been faithful "to their traditions and culture."

If you are considering the purchase of a used car, be sure to check the brake pedal, advises Consumers' Association of Canada. If the rubber of the pedal is worn thin or worn off at the corner, the car has probably been driven many thousands of miles. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Jeans!

TORONTO (CP) — Once the uniform of the working man and the youngster's favorite knockabout gear, jeans are a smash hit with every member of the family today.

Every day you see jeans on the street but on the weekends even grownups wear them to browse around stores and boutiques, shop at the supermarkets and go to the cottage.

Even models and socialites are wearing jeans for radical chic or that non-fashion look which is supposed to prove they are not competing when it comes to clothes.

The more bruised and faded the jeans, the better young people like them. Manufacturers have been quick to meet the need so there are lots of faded denims around.

They've even come up with faded jeans bearing silver studs or fancy embroidery for the more sophisticated.

"We've been selling jeans for 20 years but they took off as leisure wear five years ago," says Irving Lerman, owner of a chain of stores in Toronto.

"People have more leisure today," he says. "Jeans are comfortable to wear and there's a big demand for them today."

At right, top, powder blue corduroy jeans are teamed with sweater, braces and jazzy bell for the look of today.

And Jewels

PARIS (AP) — The fall couture collections went on display at showings here Monday, and the outfits of Jean-Louis Scherrer drew much attention.

"That's just the thing to wear in Carlo Ponti's Rolls Royce," said one observer on seeing a huge, Scherrer-designed bottle-green cape with a bottle-green fox collar over a bare chiffon dress.

The collection of Scherrer, whose society clientele seems always to be growing, is on the conservative side, but flattering and pretty.

The consensus seemed to be that the clothes are very feminine.

What Scherrer likes is tweeds, his exclusive designs, with fur. The suits have straight skirts covering the knee and long skinny cardigans. The muffler, in tweed, is trimmed in fox at both ends.

Tweed-belted coats, in the tone tones of ochre, rust and bottle green, have huge fox collars and cuffs. They go over tweed suits or a skirt and knitted "tweed" turtleneck.

As an alternative, Scherrer likes classic camel's hair for coats and skirts.

For evening, it's chiffon in dull colors—purple, bottle green, black and gray—embroidered in rhinestone stripes. Often the party dresses come with mesh face veils spattered with diamond sequins.

The grey mohair cape goes over a long mohair skirt. The top is in chiffon embroidered in silver flowers, as in the helmet.

Louis Feraud, who also presented his offering today, had an unhappy idea: black. Almost everything in his collection is black, with an occasional white.

"Was there a sale of black fabric?" inquired one observer with tongue in cheek.

Radical chic or casual non-fashion look, whatever you want to call it, is achieved by blue jeans worn with matching battlejacket. Tank top is emblazoned with stars and stripes.

Police to Be Replaced By New Security Men

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General John Yarenko said last Monday provincial police officers will be replaced as members of a Legislature security like" duties at the legislature to force by 80 government services participate in "the pursuit of the criminal element".

Mr. Yarenko said the provincial police also would be replaced at Osgoode Hall and Ontario Place although they would supplement the new security corps in special circumstances.

Previously, security duties were shared by the provincial police, privately-contracted agencies and personnel from the ministry of government services.

However, exports for the first half of this year climbed 22 per cent from the first six months of last year to a total of $11.8 billion, including a 31 per-cent rise to the United States, it said.

Exports to Japan soared 76 per cent, or $284 million, to a total of $752.7 million to make that country Canada's second best customer after the U.S. it said.

Sales to U.S. Dip

OTTAWA (CP) — Total Canadian exports dipped last month because of a drop in sales to the United States, but exports for the first half of 1973 were still up substantially to America and the rest of the world, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

Exports in June totalled $1.06 billion on a seasonally-adjusted basis, down $61 million from May, the report said.

"A rise of $21 million in shipments to the United Kingdom was more than offset by declines to the United States of $64 million and $18 million to other countries", the report said.

Murder Charge Laid

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — A 26-year-old student counsellor at Confederation College here has been charged with non-capital murder in connection with the death of an archaeology instructor at nearby Lakehead University.

James George Morris, originally from Big Trough Lake, Ont., was arrested early Sunday. He appeared in provincial magistrates' court Monday and was remanded in custody for one week.

Leadership - - and Lunch

Donald Deacon, MPP York Centre, explains political opinions and reasons he is seeking Ontario Liberal leadership, during Belleville lunch with party organizers in Quinte ridings Monday. Among leading Liberals were George Cunningham (left) Ameliasburgh township, and Charles Bates, Melrose, president Hastings provincial riding association.

Donald Deacon

Centralization Target Of Liberal Contender

More local autonomy must be injected into decisions involving Ontario's development, Donald Deacon, MPP York Centre and candidate for the Liberal leadership in the province, said Monday.

Local participation in solving local problems must replace the centralist "needs-ing" of the Davis government, Mr. Deacon told Quinte-area Liberal organizers.

To stimulate local decision-making, all provincial grants to local governments should be made unconditional.

Grassroots autonomy dominated discussions as Mr. Deacon, the only candidate so far to confirm his leadership candidacy - even if party leader Robert Nixon steps down - introduced himself to executive spokesmen of district Liberal riding associations.

The Four Seasons Hotel luncheon was a prelude to a day-long tour the 52-year-old Mr. Deacon planned through Hastings County and adjoining municipalities.

The Davis government had been guilty of only token attention to local community attitudes throughout the province, Mr. Deacon claimed.

Decisions are taken by the provincial government involving communities whose citizens don't have the opportunity to list local priorities and aspirations.

Some 80 per cent of all provincial funds given municipalities are in conditional grants - which tie spending to centralized direction from Queen's Park.

This "ignores the intelligence and the common sense that we can harness in local communities to look after the needs as the people in those communities see them," said Mr. Deacon.

The active involvement should be reflected in the approach to regional government, the leadership candidate declared.

As a basic step a cost-value evaluation should be carried out to define what benefits are offered by regionalization.

But regionalization must be "based on actual community need." Its size "should not be designed by Queen's Park for convenience of Queen's Park administration."

Opportunity must be more evenly dispersed throughout Ontario, said Mr. Deacon.

The concentration of government in agencies and decision-making together with economic opportunity in Toronto is now resented throughout the rest of the province. Any city of over a million population "is actually a drain" on the state, Mr. Deacon said.

Lack of Candidates Surprises Hopeful Successor to Nixon

Liberal party organizers in the Quinte ridings Monday were introduced to the man who — so far — is the only candidate for the party's Ontario leadership.

And Donald Deacon can't understand why he's still running a one-man race.

The MPP for York Centre declared his intentions May 14 and has been campaigning ever since.

Seeking the leadership also means all the work of building the party and finding the right people to run a successful election campaign, he says.

"For that reason I don't understand others who are interested in the leadership not having declared themselves at this time," Mr. Deacon added in an interview.

It was the second time in two months local Liberal organizers had discussed the Ontario leadership at the Four Seasons Hotel.

On May 14, they met with party leader Robert Nixon, who earlier had announced his intention of resigning his post.

A leadership convention has been called for Oct. 27-28.

But during his Belleville visit, Mr. Nixon also said he was reserving the right to decide if he should run again.

Mr. Deacon says the fact no one else has showed up for the leadership race so far is no sign of a weak party spirit.

Since Mr. Nixon has indicated he might seek to remain leader, there may be reluctance to run against him.

The 53-year-old Mr. Deacon, a successful businessman, resigned his financial interests in 1967 to enter the legislature for York Centre.

His trip to Belleville yesterday is one in a series through local ridings in which he aims at making himself known to Liberal organizers — who will be among delegates to the leadership convention.

He also wants to speak the community feeling of Ontario's constituencies, something which he views as politically significant.

Local autonomy was one of the issues he stressed during lunch Monday with local party organizers. Communities must be involved in decisions affecting their needs, insisted Mr. Deacon.

Houses Will Move Again

Three local brick houses located on the site of the new Belleville Transit Commission garage to be constructed on Coleman Street are to see still another move.

The three houses, at 388- 393-396 Coleman Street were moved to their present location from South Coleman Street a number of years ago when the addition to the International Hardware Company (Corbin Lock) plant was constructed.

Now they are again in the path of construction and city council has authorized the transit commission to call tenders for their sale and removal. Tenants of the three houses are being given notice to vacate.

With removal of the houses, the transit commission will build a new half-million-dollar garage and commission headquarters.

Heart Attack Preceded Fire

Damage to the apartment of Gardiner Duff, the retired Belleville pharmacist whose body was found by firemen last Friday night, is estimated at $5,000, Deputy Fire Chief Robert Emerson said today.

He arrived at the figure after joining Belleville Fire Department inspectors in an investigation of the 166 George St. apartment Monday.

Deputy Emerson placed a value of $2,000 on furniture destroyed by heat and flames. Repairs will cost an additional $3,000, he said.

An autopsy Saturday revealed Mr. Duff suffered a fatal heart attack prior to the fire. Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott said flames probably erupted when Mr. Duff dropped a cigarette after being overcome by the coronary.

Inspectors' evidence supported Dr. Scott's assumption. They reported finding cigarettes and packages on a coffee table in front of the chesterfield on which Mr. Duff's body was discovered.

No inquest has been called.

Mayor Seeks Services Study

TRENTON — Mayor Duncan MacDonald has asked for complete services cost study of town-owned industrial land.

With this information he said the Public Utilities Commission and the town could come to some decision in the negotiating of land sales.

This is one of several moves by the PUC to put a stop to problems concerning rec-upping costs of services from benefitting companies.

The mayor on several occasions has urged that a standing policy be created to do away with alleged service give aways.

Grant Made To Authority

Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins has announced that the Moira River Conservation Authority has received a provincial grant of $750 for development work at the Thurlow Conservation area. The grant was made under the Conservation Authorities Act.

An authority official said today that the grant would be used for a road extension in the property, for planting trees and a general cleanup to encourage wild life.

Back to the Drawing Board

Teachers from around Ontario are taking part in a fine-arts summer course at Centennial Secondary School to assist them with techniques of teaching art to their students. Various subjects are studied including paper cutting, shown by the sculptured head, poster design, crafts and paper mache. Teachers are holding an Open House Wednesday between 7-9:30 p.m. at the school. Classes wind up August 3.

Farmers Need Rain - - Badly Milk, Field Crops Hard Hit

Where's all that rain that people were complaining about last spring?

That is the question that Quinte district farmers and dairymen are asking today as lack of moisture is drying out field crops and cutting milk production.

Ted Foley, Foxboro Cheese Factory, north of the city, says that since the end of June milk receipts at the factory have dropped off about 20%.

And the milk volume is still going down," he said.

Mr. Foley said that as a result of drying pastures, milk receipts at his factory were down about 34,000 pounds daily from peak flow earlier in the year.

D. H. Miles, an official of the provincial ministry of agriculture food farm management division said that drying pastures will result in a scarcity or shortage of industrial milk which is used for cheese and other manufactured milk products.

And some farmers are saying that shortages resulting from drought could cause still higher food prices later this year.

Many dairymen in the Quinte district have already commenced supplementary feeding of cattle to offset drying pastures.

And the dry weather of the past few weeks is taking its toll of field and forage crops.

One Thurlow farmer said he was turning his cattle into a field of oats which was dry-ing up because of rain lack.

Douglas Tipper, county agricultural representative at Stirling, said that high land pastures were being particularly hard hit by the drought.

They are drying out fast, the milk flow is going down and young cattle out to pasture are not doing nearly as well as expected," he said.

And the dry weather has struck hard at this year's pea crop.

Mr. Tiper quoted a Quinte area canning factory fieldman as saying that the pea crop was drastically down, in some cases as much as 50 per cent of that of last year.

Even this year's potato crop is feeling the lack of moisture.

Above normal rain during the early growing season urpl potato roots near the surface. Now with the dry weather, the roots are feeling the moisture pinch and the percentage of small potatoes is greatly increased.

The dry weather is speeding up the ripening of fall wheat which is said to be about 10 days earlier than expected. Oat fields in some cases are heading out with only a few inches of stalk.

The immediate effects of the dry weather insofar as city dwellers are concerned is parched lawns.

Urban dwellers generally are revelling in the "fine" weather for their holiday period.

But the Stirling agricultural representative is wondering what these same people will be saying next winter when food prices go up another 10 per cent or so.

Because of the lack of rain and parched crops "we are coming to that" he suggests.

Abduction Charged

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Police Chief George Pitt said today that two young men charged in connection with the abduction of a 19-year-old Picton girl Saturday night have been released on bail. Investigation of the incident is being continued through the Picton Provincial Police.

Looking for Bugs

Inspectors from the ministry of transportation and communication search high and low for problems that might create a safety hazard on this car. Among details checked on the ministry's safety lane at Belleville Fairgrounds are lights, accessories, suspension, brakes and steering. The lane will be in operation until Friday for Quinte-area drivers. From left are Bill Kemp, A. C. Uprichard and Doug Turner.

Bleecker Bus Bay In Time for Fair

It's on the wrong side of the street for normal route operation, but thanks to a new bus bay on Yeomans Street, city transit riders will no longer have to cross the street to attend special events at the Belleville fairgrounds.

The new bus bay is on the west side of Yeomans Street, opposite the Ben Bleecker Auditorium where a new pedestrian entrance to the grounds has been provided.

City parks board employees installed the new bay and have poured a sidewalk extension from the Bleecker Auditorium to Yeomans Street.

Lewis McMullen, manager of the Belleville Transit Commission, said today the bus bay would give buses stopping at the fairgrounds some place to get on and off the street to load and unload.

Also, he said it would make it unnecessary for riders going to the fairgrounds to cross the street after getting on or off the bus.

Classrooms to Become Public School Libraries

Nineteen Hastings county elementary schools will have new library resource centres by September.

The board of education for the district at its summer meeting, approved plans to spend $63,300 to renovate, former classrooms to serve as libraries. The classrooms became available for other uses because of declining enrolments.

Schools that will get the renovated rooms are: Maynooth, Bancroft, Batawa, Coe Hill, Madoc Township, Collège Street, Queen Mary, Victor Carswell, North Trenton, H. J. Clarke, Bayside, Bayview, Harmony, King George, Prince Charles, Queen Victoria and Hillcrest, Faudash and Roslin's Creek.

Along with the renovation proceeds came a master-plan to be used in all Hastings county schools in the future.

It starts with a basic off-white paint for all walls. Corridors and other common areas will have accents of various shades and tints of yellow and green, with co-ordinated curtains and carpet colors.

For south and west rooms, accent colors of blue; green and gold have been chosen. Rooms facing east and north will have orange and yellow color schemes.

Several choices in each material and color are available, so that staffs at different schools can choose individual color schemes within the broad boundaries dictated by the plant department's recommendations.

Stanfield Coming For Corn Roast

Hon. Robert Stanfield, leader of the Progressive Conservative opposition party in Ottawa will visit Hastings riding on August 9.

The announcement of Mr. Stanfield's visit to the riding was made today by Hastings MP Jack Ellis, who said that although full details have not yet been worked out, the highlight will be a corn roast on the grounds of Mother's Restaurant north of Highway 7 between Madoc and Actinolite.

Hot buttered corn on the cob from local growers, hot dogs and soft drinks, will be on the menu. The east will all be there with Mr. Ellis and members of the PC party acting as hosts. The event gets under way at 4:30 p.m.

Buses are being arranged for senior citizens from all parts of the riding while young party officials will be on hand to help control traffic.

Mr. Ellis noted that this will be the first opportunity for riding members to visit informally with Mr. Stanfield His last stop here was a hurried visit during the 1972 election campaign.

Speeches will be at an absolute minimum during the Aug. 9 visit with only the party leader himself slated to talk.

This, Mr. Ellis said, would allow more time for direct personal contact between Mr. Stanfield and those attending.

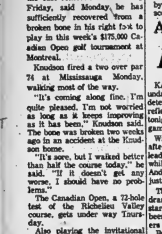
Knudson Back Just in Time

TORONTO (CP) — Tour veteran George Knudson, who had the cast removed from his leg Friday, said Monday he has sufficiently recovered from a broken bone in his right fo·k to play in this week's $175,000 Canadian Open golf tournament at Montreal.

Knudson fired a two over par, 74 at Mississauga Monday, walking most of the way.

"It's coming along fine. I'm quite pleased. I'm not worried at long as it keeps improving as it has been," Knudson said. The bone was broken two weeks ago in an accident at the Knudson home.

"It's aware, but I walked better than half the course today," he said. "If it doesn't get any worse, I should have no problems."



The Canadian Open, a 72-hole test of the Richelieu Valley course, gets under way Thursday.

Also playing the invitational at Mississauga Monday were U.S. tour veterans Lee Trevino, winner of the Canadian Open two years ago at Richelieu, with a 68, and golfing millionaire Arnold Palmer with a 71.

Gray to Meet Jose Napoles

TORONTO (CP) — Clyde Gray of Toronto will go after the world welterweight boxing championship in a bout here with Jose Napoles of Mexico Sept. 22, a New York promoter said Monday.

Mike Malitz, vice-president of Top Rank Inc. of New York, said in a telephone interview that both parties have agreed on the 5-round championship bout although no contracts have been signed.

Annual All-star Game at Kansas City

Rival Managers Want This One

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An undaunted Dick Williams and a determined Sparky Anderson reflect the intensive mood of tonight's 44th all-star baseball game at posh Royals Stadium.

Williams left a hospital bed after a recent appendectomy to lead the American League team while National League Manager Anderson vows: "I'm here for just one thing—to win."

The setting is particularly dramatic, considering that all-star games in the past have been brushed off by some players as insignificant exhibitions.

But Anderson has expressed a fierce desire to beat the American League in the mid-summer classic.

"I'll try to figure out what moves Williams will be making, and everybody on my staff will be ready to help out," says the Cincinnati Reds' manager.

A sellout crowd of more than 40,000 will be on hand at baseball's newest park while millions more watch the star-studded affair on television, including CBC viewers in Canada. Game time is 8:30 p.m. EDT.

Anderson isn't taking this game lightly for a reason. He feels he has something to prove.

"I'd like to be on the winning side for a change," says Anderson, who has lost two World Series and was the losing manager in the 1971 all-star game at Detroit.

"That's why I picked some of the ballplayers I picked. I wanted guys who could come off the bench and help me win.

"I'm not here to get players into the game. I'm not here to make everybody happy. I'm not here to change the players in my lineup. I'm here to win. That's the only thing I have in mind."

"He's the kind of manager who wants to be in there all the time," said Oakland's Jim (Catfish) Hunter, the American League's starting pitcher.

"I wouldn't be surprised if he called the shots over the telephone from his hospital bed last week when coach (Irv) Noren managed the team."

Along with the managers, the players have shown an uncommon competitive desire.

Both third baseman Ron Santo of Chicago Cubs and shortstop Chris Speier of San Francisco Giants were injured last week, but will be in the National League's starting lineup. And Atlanta Braves' star Hank Aaron expressed professional pride when he said:

"I would like to play as long as Sparky will let me. I'll play and will do anything that will help us win."

Hunter, a 16-game winner, faces Rick Wise of St. Louis Cardinals in an attempt to cut into the National League's 24-18 lead in the series which started back in 1933. There has been one tie in all-star competition.

Wise said he'd pitch the American League hitters "with an old philosophy—high and tight and low and away."

"I try to hit spots no matter whether the batter is left handed or right-handed," said he Cardinal right-hander.

'Designated Hitter The Kiss of Death'

The designated hitter (DH) is only 3½ months old and relatively pleased with himself. But pitchers who like to hit and baseball glove manufacturers are among those who probably wish the DH was never introduced in American League baseball.

But enemy No. 1 has got to be the growing number of players the DH has relegated to the bench and kept there—the designated sitters.

"The DH has been the kiss of death for me," says New York Yankees' Ron Swoboda.

"Now I play so infrequently. The rule's hurt me cause ·I haven't had as much of a chance to prove what I've got to prove, that maybe I'm coming out of a slump. It's hurt because there's not that much pinch-hitting."

Swoboda, a part-time player with the Yankees last year when the designated hitter was only a twinkle in the eye of American League President Joe Cronin, went to bat 113 times. This year, however, Swoboda has left the bench to hit just 28 times and the Yankees have reached the 100 mark in games played.

Swoboda's inactivity can be attributed partially to New York's 1973 squabbles. Matty Alou and Jim Ray Hart, but let's not forget the newest kid on the block—the designated hitter.

There's no doubt the DH removes one weak spot from the lineup, formerly occupied by the pitcher. There's also no doubt that starting pitchers stay in the game longer, especially in tie or one-run games, necessitating fewer lefty-righty batting switches.

And there's also no doubt that the effect of all this has been to make the 25th player's play even spottier.

Tennis Championships

No Issues Settled In Opening Action

WINNIPEG (CP) — Pressure, the self-built and sometimes self-destroying kind, will probably play the most important role in determining the singles winners at the Canadian closed tennis championships.

The opening-day play failed to settle any issues, although one seed in the women's section, Barb Breakenridge of Toronto, No. 4, was upset.

"With the men's section so wide open, there will be a tremendous amount of pressure on a lot of individuals," Peter Burwash, the 1971 champion, said after his victory Monday. "You'll see a few guys fall through the week because of the pressure."

It's the lack of pressure, however, that Burwash is hoping will guide him back into the victor's circle' worth $1,000 to the top man and $750 to the woman champion.

"Not being seeded . . . there's not much pressure," Burwash said. "It's actually a bonus.

"But with the Davis Cup thing past . . . that's considerable pressure off me."

Burwash, of Toronto, came into the, week-long competition better prepared physically and mentally than last year, when the pressure, of defending champ title, quitting the Davis Cup team and a tough draw combined to bring him down.

But it still won't be easy, he says.

"This is the best draw Winnipeg has ever had, by far. There are a few older guys that can play well, as well as a real tough depth of younger players who can play. In 1971 no one really pushed me until the semi-finals. Here, there are five kinds of guys.

"The guy who wins this will be a good representation of No. 1."

Pierre Lamarche, the happy hard-hitter from Montreal, had some kind of weird-looking first-round match but included himself among the five players he says have a good chance to win.

"I won't give you any names, but I'll say there are five guys who can win (I don't see a n) other winning s."

Lamarche, the sixth seed, started badly against Lindsay Bellamy of Calgary and trailed 2-0 and 4-2 before he finally got his game under control.

"I had trouble serving because whenever I looked up my glasses would get all wet. It was the same thing with lobs . . . and he played a lot of them today."

Lamarche beat Struzey 6-4, 7-5 in a game which saw 13 service breaks.

Light rain dampened things throughout the day but affected only the first matches, delaying them about 20 minutes.

Play in most of the matches was generally slow and uninspiring as players found themselves adjusting to the slow, Winnipeg Canoe Club clay courts while trying to shake the effects and dampness of the air.

Stephanie Bardsley of Vancouver achieved the only upset of the day by beating Brzakovsky 6-2, 6-4 in a game dominated by lengthy baseline-to-baseline rallies.

"I was content to sit back and play the baseline game and wait for her to make the mistakes," Bardsley said after she had Brzakovsky at her own game.

Third-seeded Don McCormick of Victoria had no problem winning his opening-round match, beating Paul Krause of Winnipeg 6-1, 6-0. Other seeded men winning their opening matches were Dave Brown of Wexiga, Ont., No. 5, Ken Blema of Toronto, No. 7, and Jim Boyland, Toronto, No. 8.

In the women's section, defending champion Janice Thom of Vancouver breezed to a 6-3, 6-1 triumph over Pia-Ann Mushian of Burlington, Ont., and Andrene Martin of Montreal, seeded No. 3, downed Jane Gardner of Dartmouth, N.S., 6-2, 6-0.

The second-seeded woman, Vicki Berner of Vancouver, the 1971 champion, needed her first-round match against Benita Sawyer of Toronto but officials allowed the match to be postponed until today.

Junior Sailors At Trenton Meet

TRENTON — Junior sailors from eastern Ontario competed here all weekend, hoping to be included in Canada's national team.

Though the meet at Canadian Forces Base Trenton was an important one, a small turnout washed out one category for the three-day regatta.

Trenton sailors showed strongly in the events challenged by sailors from six other clubs.

Ken Colton and Martha Cofton of Trenton placed first and third in 19 years and under Laser category with Ottawa competitor Al Meller coming second.

The Laser, little more than a stream - lined platform on which to mount a mast and tiller, was the fastest class to be raced over the three days.

In the 13 years and under Nordberg class Kingston crew Tony Wing and Susan Dolton won, followed by Brockville's Ben Panter and Hunter Shannon. In third was Trenton team Mardy Fraser and Patti Gower.

The Kingston crew of David Boyd and Cindy Grabo won the 16 years and under Albacore competition with a Deep River crew in second followed by Trenton's David Trettman and Andrew Tipper. This was the most sought after win with all seven clubs fielding entrants.

In the 19 years and under Albacores with spinnaker top places were taken by Kingston, Brockville and Deep River. No Trenton boats competed in this category.

Bay of Quinte sailors did little during the events with Robbie Boyle and Peter Chave placing fifth in the 13 and under Nacklegra and the team of Michael Chave and Martin Semeniuk placing sixth in 16 and under Albacores.

Winners from each of the competitions will be going on to provincial regattas during the summer for further eliminations to finally decide the national team.

The final cache will be made towards the end of the season at a final meet in Ottawa.

This marked the second year running for Trenton to act as host for the regional meet.

Some 28 sailors attended, coming from Brockville, Belleville, Cornwall, Deep River, Ottawa, Belleville and Trenton.

12 Team Operation For Metro League

TORONTO — The Metro Jr. B hockey League will operate on a one division for another year, it was decided at a meeting here last night. The decision came on a motion by Belleville's Jim "Snipe" Matthews, after a move to have the league formed into two divisions was defeated.

The OHA had laid out the two divisions, to be called groups one and two, for the playoffs. They will consider the Metro Finals as the All-Ontario playoff round.

The teams will play a balanced 48 game schedule with eight teams making the playoffs and four teams out. The East-West divisions will be used for the All-Star game only.

Other motions passed at the meeting included the use of the three men officiating system once again this season. The determining of the final playoff spot should there be a tie will be done with a sudden death game on control ice the night following the completion of the regular schedule.

Bill McCreedie was returned as league treasurer and Jack Minaker was elected to the post of secretary.

The two divisions for the all-star game will be as follows: East: Belleville, Oshawa, Markham, Pickering, Peterborough, and Oak Ridges. West: St. Michael's, Wexford, Bramalea, Etobicoke, Toronto Red Wings, and Toronto Nationals.

It was also announced that season tickets for the Belleville Bobcats will go on sale on Friday Oct. 5, with a road game and open their home schedule on Sunday, Oct. 7.

Auger's in Squeaker Over Rollins Crew

By AL TEEWORTH

Auger Men's Wear beat first place Rollins Construction last night in Commercial Softball League action, but it took them a while to do it. The Trenton team downed the Construction men 4-3 in 12 innings to record their 10th win of the season. In the other game at the Alemite, the Elks Jrs., decidedsted at one point after eight innings of play when the curfew was reached, that game will be replayed in its entirety at a later date.

Auger's got their run in the bottom of the 12th after Jim Clement singled. He was safe at second when Theriault's fielder's choice and was driven home on Al Ferguson's base hit.

Larry Mavety had opened the scoring in the game in the second with a solo home run. Rollins tied it up with Carl Boomhower's triple and Glen Carleton's single in the third, and had gone two runs up by the sixth.

Auger's replied with two runs in the bottom of the sixth after consecutive singles by Al Ferguson and Scott Reid. Larry Mavety moved the runners around with a fly ball and an error on Steve Barker's ball to Rollins' second baseman Dave Akey scored the runs.

Both pitchers went the route with Scott Reid coming up victorious over Ken DeMille. Reid allowed 11 hits on the Auger mound while fanning seven and walking the same number. DeMille had a bit more control, allowing only seven hits, while striking out 13 and issuing only three free passes.

Mavety had his home run for Auger's and Al Ferguson had two key wing Dutton to had a double while Jim Clement, Jack Jury, and Scott Reid had base hits to round out the hitting for the winners.

For Rollins it was DeMille with two doubles and Carl Boomhower, a triple and single to lead the attack. Glen Carleton had a double and single Five other players had singles to their credit.

The second game was strictly a pitching duel as it ran for as long as it lasted. The only run came in the top of the fourth on a base hit by Bill Motormen.

In the third, Terry Meagher drew a walk from Devolin pitcher Don Holloway. Everett Hall, after Dale Akey was hit for the second time in the game, and scored on a base hit by Ron Hill, the only one allowed by Holloway.

Holloway got their run after Tom MacDonald was hit by a Ron Hill pitch. Clayton Woods cashed the run with a double. Woods also collected the only other hit off Hill with a bunt single in the bottom of the seventh.

Holloway gave up only the hit to Hill, and fanned 13 while giving up four walks. Hill allowed the two hits to Woods, while striking eight batters, and walking three batters.

Realtors Hang On

Fraser and O'Neil picked up some valuable property in Monday night's Commercial Major Softball squirt action but the Kinsmen Hawks had to be the prize.

The Realtors grabbed a share of fifth spot and kept in contention for the playoffs by Hawks 18-8.

Dave Moher led the winners with a home run, double and single and Jeff Pease added a triple and single.

Ron Gee tripled for the Hawks with four runs batted in behind the league leading Stirling Sheet Metal if the totalization was a protested game last night.

Sun Luck Gardens secured their bold on third place in the standings by outscoring Richard Ellis Printing 27-8.

In the final game of the night Claude Lucas Spur jumped into fourth spot with a 20-19 victory over Dalton Beverages.

BYBF Rolling Along

Like old man river, BYBF just keeps rolling along.

The Yardmen girls continued to sweep aside all opposition by trouncing the Bell Broadroom 13-6 in Monday night league action and District Ladies Softball League game.

BYBF raced to the lead with seven runs in the first inning but stalwart Wendy Corbay ran into difficulties in the second inning as the Bell Broadroom jumped on her for six runs and four hits. Dependable Sue Morton took over in the third and fired three innings of shutout relief. She allowed five hits and struck out five.

Judy Woodley and Morton hammered home runs and singles and Donna Pyatt on punched a double to add two safeties for the pennant leading Yardmen.

Mary Anne Sills gave the Bell Broadroom their second while whiffing seven and walking four. Fredrie Eaton had a double for the losers only extra base hit.

Albacore Sailors at Work

Putting everything they have into it, two young sailing enthusiasts compete in Albacore event during week-end event held at the CFB Trenton club.

Palmer Fuels Rally Erases 7-0 Deficit

grip of defeat but the Belleville Gems let a win slip through their fingers in a pair of Prince Edward North Shore Softball League games Monday night.

The Gemlets came from 2 - 0 and 4 - 2 deficits to edge O'Brien's Tyres in seven and eight innings and the cellardwelling Gems blew a 7-0 lead and fell to Stirling 8-7 in nine.

The Stables pushed across two runs in the sixth inning to frames and Harold Werkhoven came through with the game winning RBI single.

Earl Colton buried the win for the Stables giving up nine hits and striking out 13. Werkhoven, Dave Findlay and Jack Crozier each had two hits in the come-from-behind victory.

Bruce Sutherland hurled six innings for O'Brien's allowing four runs on seven hits. He struck out 10 before Pat Macacie came in for the last two innings. Macacie took the loss allowing the winning run in the eighth.

The Gems had seven runs after three innings but could not hold the lead and remained mired in last place.

Tom Lickers led the Palmer rally with two hits including a home run. Paul Petingill stroked three hits for the Fuelmen with Hugh Holmes and Paul Lavender adding two hits each.

Dennis Snell and Bill Hobbs combined for the win with Hobbs throwing three innings of shutout relief.

Ken Kerrick took the loss for the Gems.

Coach Switches Jobs

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Joe Mullaney, coach of Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association has accepted a similar position with Utah Stars of the same league. The Associated Press learned Monday night. Mullaney had coached the Colonels, who went to the final game of championship playoffs before losing this spring, since 1971.

Script Means Nothing

There were a lot of heads shaking after Monday night's Industrial Softball League action because there were a lot of unbelievable results.

The Lenders' Mark Sheridan is shaking his head because he can't believe he struck out 14 and gave up only six hits and still lost 4-3 to the CN: Mead Johnson are shaking their heads because they can't believe they had such an easy time in demolishing UIC 16-1: and the Brooke Bond are shaking their heads because they can't believe they blew a 6-3 lead in the seventh inning and lost to the Intelligencer 7-6.

Sheridan was mowing down the Trainmen but the run away pennant winners kept plugging away and grouped two runs together in each of the first and fifth innings to record their 18th win of the season against only two losses.

Wayne Casselman did not have the strikeout total of Sheridan but he did fire a four hitter for the win. He whiffed five and didn't walk a man.

Rob McMurter and Mike Fahey each had two hits for the Trainmen with Herm Van Daalen homered for the Lenders who remained with Brooke Bond in second place behind the CN.

Mead Johnson stretched their western division lead to five points over UIC by whelming the Unemployment men 16-4.

Sonny Holoway went the distance for the winners giving up seven hits and striking out 10. He outlasted Ron Embury, Pete Hamilton and Joe Scanlan who each tried to stuff out the Meads hitting.

Blaine Young led the winners 15 hit surge with a home run and two singles. Gary Genereaux had a homer and single and Mark Reid three singles.

Scanlan had a triple and Bill Healy a double and single for the losers.

The Intelligencer kept their playoff hopes alive by nipping Brooke Bond 7-6 and they did it on only two hits.

Trailing 6-3 going into the bottom of the seventh the In-

"I didn't say I could pick the winner. I just said I'd go get you a winner."

Melrose Gets Win In Ninth

Carnilton Plane's Congrete were half an inning away from a win over South Hastings Baseball League leading Melrose but it proved to be half an inning too long.

Melrose scored two runs in the bottom of the ninth to give the Concreteers 6-5 and add to their lead over the second place Carnilton club.

Ted Abrams opened the Melrose rally with a hit and he then raced to third on Glen McEachern's hit. McEachern moved to second on a passed ball and Bruce Pascoe delivered a two run single to dash Carnilton's upset hopes.

Ron McTaggart lasted seven and a half innings for Melrose giving up eight hits. He struck out eight before giving way to Ted Abrams who shut out Carnilton over the final two innings.

Rick Meagher tripled and singled and McEachern had a double and two singles for the winners. Pascoe added three singles and Randy Pascoe two in Melrose's 12 hit output.

Bob Robb took the loss for Carnilton going the distance. He also connected for four singles in his own behalf. Bruce Clapp punched a trio of safeties in a losing effort.

Records Fall To Dolphins

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Dolphin Swimming Club from Vancouver has added a dominant force in Canadian swimming circles for several years. It continued its domination at the Canadian swimming championships Monday as swimmers from the West Coast group took all eight events, smashing five records.

The Dolphin women grabbed four of the records while the men smashed the existing mark in the 200-metre freestyle relay.

The women also set a record in the 200-metre relay and had three individual marks as Leslie Cliff cabbed the 200-metre freestyle, Wendy Cook won the 200-metre backstroke and Jennifer McHugh captured the 200-metre butterfly.

Ian MacKenzie of Ocean Falls, B.C., won the men's 200-metre freestyle and butterfly and finished second in the 100-metre backstroke.

Stephen Pickell, a 15-year-old high school student, upset the favored MacKenzie in the backstroke event, marking the first time he has ever beaten the team-mate in a race.

Pickell was clocked in 59.3 seconds, while MacKenzie's mark was 1:00.07.

But it was the times registered by the Dolphin girls that drew the raves from the crowd.

Miss Cook, who established a Canadian record of 1:06.1 in the morning preliminaries in the 100-metre backstroke, splashed to the new mark of 1:06.8. It was the fastest time registered this season by a swimmer in the event and was only two-tenths of a second off the existing world mark set by Maren Hole of South Africa in 1968.

Cook, Donna - Marie Gurr, who set the previous Canadian record for the event, 1:08.4 in 1972, finished second with a time of 1:07.10 in Monday's final.

Miss Cliff's record time in the 200-metre freestyle was 2:16.3, eclipsing the old mark of 2:16.1 set by Mary Beth Rondeau of Vancouver in 1972.

Miss McHugh broke both the Canadian open and closed mark as she splashed to victory in 2:34.8 in the 200-metre butterfly. The previous Canadian closed mark was held by Miss Cliff, who swam the distance in 2:36 last year while the open record was 2:4.9, established by Debbie Hardwick of the United States last year.

The women's records t nite in the 200-metre freestyle relay was 1:53.4 compared with the old mark of 1:54.5 set by the Dolphins in 1971 in Edmonton.

The men's record in the 200-metre freestyle relay of 1:37.1 bettered the old record set last year by the Dolphins at 1:38.3.

The Dolphin swimmers and the other competitors will show their wares today as the four-day meet, which is also serving as a trial for the world championship team, continues.

It's A Family Affair

WINONA, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario shooting championships are becoming a family affair for the Ron family of St. Catharines.

Gilmour Ron, 52, and his children, Sandy, 16, and Vicki, 18, won a total of 18 awards at the shoot which ended Monday.

Winning shooting championships is becoming commonplace to Gil, a consulting engineer for a St. Catharines firm. He's competed in five Olympic games, won the King's prize at the Bisley shoot in England, captured a gold medal at British Empire games and won numerous Ontario and Canadian championships.

During the weekend he took the $200 free prize and the Lieutenant-governor's medal, walked off with the president's match and finished second in the Mercer Memorial Aggregate, for which he won the Governor-General's bronze medal. He won the R. S. Mercer Memorial Award as winner of the Ottawa Aggregate, and was master category aggregate winner on both Saturday and Monday.

Vicki, competing in the marksman (beginner or novice) category won the Gibson match—a 200-yard shoot—and the City of Toronto match—shot at 300, 500 and 600 yards.

Sandy Ron, competing in the sharpshooter class, took top honors in the president's match, the City of Toronto match, won the sharpshooter division of the daily aggregate both Saturday and Sunday and took the Capt. Guy F. McKenzie Memorial Trophy as the top sharpshooter in the competition.

Larry Fish of Oakville won the Mercer Memorial Aggregate title.

A. J. Tetlow of Kingston was the master category winner of the Gibson Match—a 200-yard shoot. The Bankers Match—a 200-and 300-yard shoot, was won by Fish. Harry Axam of Toronto took the master class of the Tail-Brassey Match which is shot at 200, 300 and 500 yards. Norm Beckett of Ancaster was the master class of the 600-yard event.

One hundred and sixty-five competitors took part in the 93nd annual event.

Stapleton To Cougars

CHICAGO (CP) — Defenceman Pat Stapleton's wife confirmed reports Monday night that her husband is moving to Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association from Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

In a telephone interview, Mrs. Stapleton said details of her husband's contract terms would be released this morning at a news conference called by the Cougars.

The Cougars have called a news conference for 10:30 a.m., CDT.

The 30-year-old Stapleton, Sarnia native, has been with the Black Hawks since 1965-66.

SETS LIFT RECORD

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Twenty-year-old Mikhail Maksimov of the Soviet Union set a world junior light heavyweight weight-lifting record Monday when he snatched 314.16 pounds at the Moscow regional championships. He beat by 2.20 pounds the record set a week ago by his compatriot Anatoly Selyanov.

Pearce Potent

REGINA (CP) — Bob Pearce scored as a quarterback, wide receiver and punter to the Saskatchewan Roughriders to a 22-12 victory Monday night over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the final Western Football Conference exhibition game for both teams.

Pearce caught a 10-yard pass from quarterback Ron Lancaster for a second-quarter touchdown and scrambled for a 19-yard score when he was shifted to quarterback in the third quarter. He also punted a 51-yard single.

The other Saskatchewan touchdown was scored by rookie Canadian defensive back Dave Richardson on a 46-yard return of an intercepted pass in the opening minutes of the game. Jack Abendschan converted all the touchdowns.

Pearce almost scored again on the last play of the game as he ran from his quarterback position for 36 yards before being stopped short of the Winnipeg goal.

All Winnipeg's scoring came in the first half, with Don Jonas connecting on field goals from the 27 and 15 and throwing a 35-yard touchdown pass to Pete Ribbins.

Four in the Fold

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League announced Monday the signing of defencemen Glen Cickello, Brian Middleton and Jerry Ribeau and goalie Kevin Neville.

All four players were picked by the Red Wings in this year's NHL draft of amateur juniors.

Cickello and Neville, a Newfoundland native, played last season in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series. Cickello was with Hamilton Red Wings and while Neville played with the national junior champion Toronto Marlboros.

Middleton comes from the University of Alberta while Ribeau played last season with Montreal in the Quebec Junior Hockey League.

The four are to report to the Port Huron Wings Sept. 9 for a training camp for amateurs and minor-league professionals.

Winnipeg Signs Spring

WINNIPEG (CP) — Centre Dan Spring, who has played the last two seasons with Dallas Black Hawks of the Central Hockey League, has signed a contract with Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association.

Spring, 21, six-foot, 183-pound native of Roseland, B.C., played junior hockey with Edmonton Oil Kings and Oshawa Generals. In 1971 Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL sent him to their Dallas farm team.

Largest Entry Ever For Canadian Henley

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The Royal Canadian Henley regatta which gets under way Thursday on the Henley course here will be the biggest in its 91-year history.

More than 1,100 competitors from 54 rowing clubs in three countries will take the starter's gun in 120 races spread over four days of rowing.

"Without a doubt, it's the largest entry in history," said Claude Lemieux of Hamilton, regatta chairman for the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen. "In fact, it could well be the biggest regatta in the world."

Racing starts at 8.30 a.m. Thursday with heats for the afternoon's four finals. It continues to 7.45 p.m., with more heats for Friday's marathon 11-hour program.

Friday's opening event gets under way at 9 a.m., the first time finals have banked up into the morning. With 87 events, the races go every 15 minutes without stop.

Saturday, it's a 1.30 p.m. start, all leading up to Sunday's 17 senior finals which get underway at 2 p.m.

Perhaps it's about time we considered going to a five-day regatta, suggested Saunders as he went over the official draw Monday night. "Certainly, we're going to have to do something if the regatta keeps on growing like this."

St. Catharines has 58 individual entries in the four-day Henley, 27 more than Toronto Argonauts. Hamilton Leanders have 36 and the Quebec Rowing Federation 22 while the New York Athletic Club and Buffalo West Sides are scheduled to send 12 each.

There are three Mexican rowing clubs entered — Club Espana, Club Astarca and the Mexican national team, all from Mexico City, are back for another crack at the Henley.

New faces include the Florida Crew Boosters, Radcliff College of Boston, Newpiett Beach of California, and Peterborough Rowing Club. Lincoln Park of Chicago and L o n g Beach, Calif., are back after an absence of several years.

The women's entry is away up, too," Saunders noted. "Last year, we had only 12 heats in our three women's events. This year, we've got heats with more than 100 girls rowing."

An added attraction this year is a lightweight eight-oared trial to determine North America's entry in a special 150-pound eight race to be held in conjunction with the European men's rowing championships at Moscow next month.

Quebec Team Members Injured in Accident

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — An accident which caused injuries to 11 members of the Quebec province rowing team today may force the team out of this month's Canadian rowing championships.

The van carrying the team went out of control on Highway 401 near Bowmanville, 10 miles east of here and rolled over.

Ontario Provincial Police said 10 team members were treated in hospital for minor injuries. One member, Michel Blandeau of Boucherville, Que., was admitted for multiple fractures, including a possible skull fracture. His condition was reported as serious.

The team's boats, carried on a trailer, also were damaged in the accident.

The team was en route to St. Catharines, Ont., for the July 26-29 championships.

"Bob, Hodgkins, you should've had better luck than to try to bring your boat vaulting pole to the meet a mile boat!"

Street of Gold

a street of gold, but really only a reasonable facsimile, appeared in Edmonton as part of the city's Klondike Days celebration. The city was painted gold for the promenade where interested citizens dress in the fashion of the late 1800s and take a stroll. (CP Photo)

Young Players Hard Workers

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — The Mariposa Arts Theatre, aided by a contingent of undergraduates from York University working on an Opportunities for Youth grant, won applause for effort Saturday night in a production of Guys and Dolls.

What the production lacked in professional polish a n d, even more sadly, in musical pitch, intonation and attack, it fairly made up in its setting, energy and cast enjoyment. Most of he audience enjoyed it enough, too, to come back for the second act after the intermission.

The Mariposa Arts Theatre is an active amateur group of about 150 actors, singers, musicians and stagehands that for the last two summers has staged the Mariposa Summer Festival of Fine Arts. This year they have been joined by senior students from York University's theatre arts school in Toronto.

Guy and Dolls, the Broadway hit show based on stories of New York's seedier life by Damon Runyon, has a difficult score and lyrics by Frank Loesser which require great professional polish to bring it off.

There was some good singing and acting Saturday night, but the orchestral forces were so thin and uncertain that at times the singers carried the load not only with little from, but in spite of, the accivky in the pit.

Stars of the show were clearly Geraldine Barnard of Orillia playing Miss Adelaide, "the well-known fiancee" of 14 years who "never got near enough to the church to be left at it," and York's Steven Thorne as Nathan Detroit, her dice-loving and procrastinating fiance. As the play progressed, he showed good timing as a comedy actor.

Mary Jo Masterson played Sarah Brown, the mission leader, and Bob Brown played Sky Masterson, who bets $1,000 he can take her to Havana for the night, and does. She sang with a clear, high soprano voice, and he, too, came on stronger as the play progressed. Both are in the Mariposa Arts Theatre group.

The stage direction, design and lighting and the musical preparation were all by York students, though Charles Wood of Orillia took over the conducting chore for performances.

The festival plays in the city hall opera house, a gem of a theatre which was restored in 1815 after a fire, and has remarkable facilities for a community theatre. The local talk is that the city will move out of the old city hall next year and the theatre group will be able to take full command, restoring more of the backstage rooms.

What Saturday's production revealed was the difference between the well-presented amateurs and the fledgling university-trained professionals in the theatre. The former seem never to know what to do with their hands. The latter never let their attention wander from the part they are playing.

York's theatre department is directed by all-round actor-writer-director-producer Mavor Moore, and the experience his students can get here— as well as what the amateurs can learn from the students—should benefit the Mariposa Festival.

Founding director C. Jack on Spear said the festival hopes to expand next year. It now runs four days a week, Wednesday through Saturday, and will repeat Guys and Dolls this week, followed by Agatha Christie's mystery, Ten Little Indians, by Rogers and Hammerstein musical, The King and I, and the French farce with music, An Italian Straw Hat, the latter running two week .

Moscow Awards

Dancers Receive Honors

TORONTO (CP) — The National Ballet's Karen Kain and Frank Augustyn have returned home laden with honors from an international competition in Moscow, and with some regrets.

They worked so hard in the competition they had no time or were too tired to take in many of the sight-seeing attractions in the Russian capital.

Miss Kain, 22, won a silver medal and Mr. Augustyn, 20, placed seventh among male dancers, all of them older and more experienced. But together, they placed first, dancing the Bluebird pas de deux from Tchaikovsky's Sleeping Beauty. The competition drew 73 contestants from around the world.

Miss Kain and Mr. Augustyn will dance together again next week at Ontario Place in the Toronto waterfront, and then with the rest of the ballet company begin intensive work on their fall tour program, which opens in Windsor, Ont., Sept. 26.

"We never had time to do anything we wanted to do in Russia," Miss Kain said in an interview. "I'd look out every day from my hotel room and see tour boats on the Moscow River, but I wasn't able to get time for a cruise."

After the Moscow competition, Miss Kain and Mr. Augustyn played two performances with other contest winners in Leningrad, and then took holidays in Europe before returning to Toronto.

Their biggest problem in the competition was adapting themselves to the raked stage of the Bolshoi Theatre, Mr. Augustyn judged that the back of the stage was about three feet higher than the front, so that they had to dance on a sloped surface.

"It made it very difficult," Miss Kain said. "Some parts of our performance were made more difficult than others.

"The Bolshoi stage is also old and worn, and it has trap doors in it, and we had to be careful that we didn't twist an ankle."

Community Octopus

Residents of Cannon Beach, led by artist Bill Swidel and contractor Ray Watkins, built this used rock pas to call attention to Sand Castle Day, when 4,000 persons built replicas of all sorts of things on the Pacific beach. Like the octopus, their creations lasted only till the next high tide. (AP Photo)

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Drop the subject of money, and all goes better. Romance and entertainment coons together, even - under quiet circumstances.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Appearing at your best is appropriate, inspires somebody to help with tedious chores or even to take them off your hands.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be open-hearted, willing to accept people as they are, bu be less eager to scatter your material resources among them.

Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22): Imbe recorded as lazy; develop to avoid confusion and possible loss.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep homelife separated from business or commercial activity. Current circumstance is necessary for future benefits.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Social whirls catch you up. Use every chance to find out what makes others tick—you will need the information.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Benefits come from cross-currents in today's events, according to what you do to protect your own interests. Express deep feelings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do something that your mate enjoys, take times to listen to your people. A career change is at hand.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's your turn to speak up, explain the ideas you've developed, but be sure they're genuinely helpful to those near you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Overcome laziness to get something useful done. Leave no chore out of its proper sequence.

Pisces (Feg. 19-March 20): Your most charming side shines brightly, if you will but let it. Minor conflicts pass rather quickly.

Surgery Needed To Find Trouble

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently I was in hospital because of severe aches in the stomach. After x-raying me, the doctor said he was not looking for what's wrong. Well, I'm home again and the pains are back, so he said I'd just have to suffer it. It is something in the colon, he thinks.

So if he x-rays abowel with barium, how can surgery help?

What are the colon do exactly, and will you write something about it? Also, if I just take tranquilizers will that help? I hate to live on pills but they do take away. I'm also afraid that if he cuts me open it could be a cancer of some sort. Does cancer ever start in the colon?—h.v.

Answer: Well, if it's cancer (which it probably isn't) it will be there if he doesn't "cut you open."

Cancer can start in the colon, just as it can start anywhere else your digestive system, but it generally causes symptoms other than pain in its early stages—and when it does reach the painful stage, it isn't a pain that will help when you take tranquilizers.

So there are some reasons why I wouldn't expect your trouble to be cancer.

Now as to surgery. This would be what is known as an exploratory operation, sometimes necessary when other methods of diagnosis do not reveal what you need to know.

X-ray is useful because it indicates density of the tissue through which the rays pass. Bones are dense, so they throw a strong shadow on the x-ray plate. But soft tissues permit the rays to pass through easily and throw little shadow.

If the colon is filled with material (including the colon) does not show up very sharply, being all soft tissue. Therefore, the patient is said to have nothing abnormal—a chalky-looking fluid which does not let the rays pass through so readily. It is also filled with intestine will throw a sharp shadow on the plate and in that way the size and shape of the intestine can be seen clearly. (Other tests, including blood and enzyme levels, also may indicate trouble when x-rays don't.)

Evidently in your case no hard abnormality showed up. All the same, you hurt. Therefore surgery may disclose some other abnormality that the x-ray didn't show. I wouldn't try to guess what—without further information. However, your physician apparently sees some suspicions, since he mentioned the surgery.

What does the colon do? It finishes absorbing nutrients from your food, and secrets excess water from the remaining material making it to be expelled.

The colon can develop various ailments (mucous colitis, spastic colon, nervous colon, and others) and some of them are much intensified by nervous tension—which could explain why tranquilizers help you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are avocados high in cholesterol? I have heard some people say they are, some not.—Mrs. G. L.

No, not high in cholesterol—but some people rightly avoid them just because of the calories involved. They are high in vegetable fats, which, of course, are high in calories.

The bidding:

6 ♦	Pass

Opening lead—nine of clubs.

It would seem that declarer requires a successful spade finesse to make the slam, but actually South has a much better chance than that.

A good rule for declarer, to follow — when the outcome of a hand seemingly rests on where a particular card (here, the king of spades) is located — is to start looking for ways and means of making the slam even if the king is wrongly placed.

In line with this, after assessing his prospects, South should realize that the ♦ ace makes the contract regardless of which defender has the ♠ king of spades, if West has the ace of hearts.

So, after taking the ace of clubs, drawing two rounds of trumps and winding up in his hand, South plays a low heart to the king at trick four. If West gets the ace, as he does, South's worries are over, so let's assume he permits dummy to win with the king.

This does not get West off the hook, because declarer pursues his plan by cashing his remaining clubs, discarding the nine of hearts from his hand on dummy's last club.

Declarer then plays a heart to his unrelated queen. West takes the ace but must give up the ghost, whatever he returns. If he plays a spade, declarer's spade finesse succeeds, and if he plays a heart, South discards a spade from dummy as he ruffs the return in his hand, in that way eliminating dummy's spade loser.

So — oddly enough — when dummy comes down, South prays that West was dealt the ace of hearts, and it is only when and if East shows up with that card that South prays nex that East was also dealt the king of spades.

Tomorrow: A Cardinal sin.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

a-Cleaning's a breeze! Thanks to the deep-cleaning action of this great workhorse. The secret's in the beater-bar. It roots out dirt. Brings even deep-down grit, lint, clinging animal hair to the surface of the carpet. This, teamed with the powerful suction, means effective cleaning action on any rug — from indoor/outdoor to shag. Give it a try. Let Kenmore lighten your workload!

b-Great value from Kenmore! Lets you zip through cleaning chores. Cup-type dust container empties like an ashtray. No bags, no mess! Just dial the nozzle to your cleaning needs. Gay tartan cover adds smart good looks to great value. 39.98

$290,000,000 Bid

Development Co. After Texasgulf

OTTAWA (CP) — Catching everybody by surprise, the Canada Development Corp. Tuesday announced a move, that if successful, could open its stalled program to the public.

The CDC jumped New York and Toronto stock market prices by almost $5 in offering to purchase 10 million shares of Texasgulf, a multinational natural resource company based in New York.

With about $50 million in its coffers, the CDC would purchase the shares for $290 million or $29 a share.

Closing prices on the New York and Toronto stock markets Tuesday were $24.25 a share for Texasgulf.

If successful in its bid, the CDC would own more than 33 per cent of the approximate 30.4 million shares of Texasgulf's outstanding common stock. The CDC now owns 749,800 shares of common stock.

This coupled with the 20 per cent of common stock now owned by private Canadians, would give Canadians voting control—53 per cent—in a multinational company.

Although CDC officials were unavailable for comment, former CDC president Marshall Crowe said in March that the corporation is waiting for "a major acquisition in the resources field" before offering its shares to the public.

Texasgulf is basically a mining operations with interests in agriculture, chemical, oil and gas development.

It operates Kidd Creek Mines at Timmins, Ont., one of the world's largest single producers of zinc and silver. It has reported that Canadian operations have contributed to approximately 68 per cent of operating income since 1967.

Established in 1971 to develop and maintain a strong domestic control in the Canadian sector of the economy, the CDC was intended to give Canadians a greater opportunity to invest in domestic economic development.

But The CDC has been holding off making shares available to the public in an effort to establish an investment record for potential investors to examine before they decide to buy shares. Eventually, private investors will hold 90 per cent of the 200 million authorized common shares, which are restricted to Canadian citizens and residents.

The government now owns all shares which it purchased for $10 each. In the initial operation of Texasgulf, the corporation opened its 300 million shares to the public for $10 a share, common shares would provide $3 billion in capital. Non-voting preferred shares could add another $1 billion, with still another $1 billion possible for borrowing.

Tuesday's announcement could be the catalyst needed to open CDC's shares to the public.

But the political ire of opposition parties surfaced Tuesday following the announcement.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said "it was never the purpose of the CDC to do this sort of thing."

"It reeks of questions that have to be answered."

New Democratic Leader David Lewis said that considering the corporation is operated by businessmen, not the government, he is not too excited by the announcement.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said the news "smells of a sell-out to me."

It might be a good investment but the CDC was set up to provide development of domestic interests, Texasgulf, as a multinational corporation, would "have little loyalty to Canada," he said.

David M. Crawford, Texasgulf secretary, said in New York Tuesday night that the CDC offer "comes as a complete surprise." He declined further comment.

Government officials also were unavailable for comment.

Since 1971, the CDC has made a number of major investments operating on money received from shares sold to the government.

Included are the controversial purchasing of Polymer Corp., a petrochemical corporation based in Sarnia, Ont., from the government and Connaught Medical Research Laboratories in Toronto.

Others include: 35-per-cent ownership of Versatetek, a Toronto venture capital company; major ownership of Ventura West Capital Ltd. to be formed in Vancouver; majority ownership in Omnimedic Inc., a Quebec holding company; and a venture capital company being formed in Montreal.

The CDC also has shown an interest in purchasing government interests in Panarctic Oils, Northern Transportation and Eldorado Mining and Refining Co.

Heads Down

At the Belleville playground track and field meet at O.S.D. Tuesday, Robbie Salter made like Superman to clear the high jump bar, but the landing was a little different from the take-off. A two-foot jump ended in a one-head landing, but the sponge made a good landing pad.

Fight Just Begun Against Tankers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has "just begun to fight," the proposed shipment of Alaskan oil through waters bordering the British Columbia coast, Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Tuesday.

The weapons would include representations to the United States government and alerting residents on both sides of the narrow Strait of Juan de Fuca, between Vancouver Island and Washington state, of the danger of oil spills from the giant tankers.

British Columbia would be hardest hit by an oil spill in the strait, but Washington would also be endangered, Mr. Sharp said.

Both in and out of the Commons, Mr. Sharp insisted that the Canadian position was known. He said he himself had made "many representations" on the issue.

However, he wanted to make "a distinct separation between the question of the approval of the Alaska pipeline route and the movement of oil through the Strait of Juan de Fuca."

Whether the U.S. should build a pipeline across Alaska and carry oil down to California was not a question for Canada.

"However, with respect to the visiters of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, I believe we have just as much interest as the United States," he said.

"It is on this point we have centred our objections," added Mr. Sharp. "I say . . . if we could remove that problem, the rest is a matter that does not impinge on directly."

Parliamentary Parley Is Held Behind Doors

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and United States legislators argued about tankers versus pipeline behind closed doors for about five hours Tuesday. One of the American group said later that if the Canadian proposals meant an increase in oil spills, "that's one we couldn't refuse."

Whether this is what the Canadian argument did mean or whether a proposed increase in pipeline flow to the Pacific Northwest of the U.S. would come at the expense of oil deliveries to other U.S. points, was not made clear.

The meeting was between five Canadian senators and 12 members of Parliament with their American counterparts on the Canada-U.S. interparliamentary group.

"They came to talk primarily of Puget Sound traffic," said Senator Ted Stevens (Republican-Alaska) during a break in the talks. Canada fears dangerous oil spills from tankers travelling along the West Coast.

Reds Shell Phnom Penh Airport

PHNOM PENH (Reuter) — At least 10 people were killed or wounded in a Communist rocket barrage on Phnom Penh's international airport today.

It was the first time the Cambodian capital had been shelled since early June and forcibly brought home to residents that encircling Communist troops were within striking distance.

The shelling attack sent thousands of people scrambling into the centre of the city and armored cars were called out to patrol the streets.

Several rockets fell within 500 yards of Prime Minister In Tam's residence and just 200 yards away from Vice-President Cheng Heng's house in the western Suburbs. Both men were believed to have been at home at the time.

The rockets were believed to have been launched from the Communist's southern front close to the industrial suburb of Takhmau, only six miles from the city centre.

Bay Bridge Facelift

Rising like a huge metallic monster out of the Bay of Quinte, this crane is being used to rehabilitate the pier and abutment of the Bay Bridge. The work, started in June, involves backfilling the pier and abutment with concrete to reinforce the concrete which has deteriorated. A survey crew is working there at present. The actual bridge work is being done by a Stratford construction company. The project, authorized by the ministry of transport and communications, is expected to be finished this summer, says a ministry official.

Libya to Try Four Hijackers

CAIRO (AP) — The Libyan government announced today that it will try the four hijackers who took over a Japanese Jumbo jetliner and blew it up on the airfield at Benghazi, Libya, Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency said its information came from Radio Tripoli, the voice of Col. Muammar Khadafy's Libyan regime. Khadafy has been hospitable to Arab hijackers who landed in Libya, but this foursome was disowned by all recognized Palestinian guerrilla groups.

Transportation Stressed

Concessions Made West Fall Short of Targets

CALGARY (CP) — The four western premiers are gaining concessions from the federal government—but generally are not getting what they asked for.

The premiers ended the first day of a meeting on western economic opportunities disappointed and somewhat confused. Prime Minister Trudeau said he thought the premiers' discussions Tuesday had been "productive".

The premiers, dealing only with topics on which they could agree, had worked the better on their presentation for transportation changes.

This is what they got:

—A federal commitment to provide the provincial governments, on a confidential basis, with all the information available on railway costs.

—A commitment to recognize regional development as an essential part of transportation policy.

—A promise to ask the railways to withhold any across-the-board increases in freight rates for the next 18 months.

—Agreement to ask the Canadian transport commission to review some of the rates which the premiers complained of from the west.

—A proposal to create a federal-provincial transport body to examine transportation problems in the west.

—A $150-million federal commitment to improve primary highways in the west, development of the port at Churchill, Man., and abolition of tolls on licensed commercial carriers passing through national parks.

Virtually all the federal concessions were announced in an opening statement by Transport Minister Jean Marchand. The west gained little in hours of hard negotiations.

They had wanted public disclosure of railway cost information, and a rewriting of the Transportation Act to stress the importance of regional development.

The western provinces had hoped for some federal reaction to their major proposal designed to lower freight rates in relation to actual costs of the railway, with Ottawa taking over the railway road beds as part of the subsidy.

Instead, Prime Minister Trudeau criticized the premiers for not giving him the proposal in advance. He said the federal government will study it. However, neither he nor Mr. Marchand appeared enthusiastic.

The prime minister noted after the conference that both Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba had said they want to study the proposal further before agreeing.

Mr. Marchand estimated that the proposal for the federal government to take over railway road beds might cost more than $3-billion "for something that will not have been improved by the fact that we own them."

Premier Lougheed disagreed, saying the cost would be more like 25 per cent of the transportation budget. He did not give figures.

The west's proposal was that freight rates could be lowered if the federal government provided as much support for the "lined assets" of railways as it does for other forms of transportation which have federally-financed airports and highways.

The west did gain agreement on some statements of philosophy.

Prime Minister Trudeau agreed that the west no longer should be treated as a "hinterland," designed only to provide raw materials to serve central Canada.

Instead, the federal government is committed to a balanced and diversified western economy, the prime minister said.

Bob Hope's Home Burns

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope's million-dollar desert dream house burned down Tuesday.

The Palm Springs fire department said it had no immediate idea what caused the blaze.

Hope was at his home in Toluca Lake near Hollywood and was not available for comment.

The imposing home overlooked this exclusive resort area, and Hope had claimed the mushroom-shaped roof alone cost $$54,000. The building, located on 2.3 acres, was reported to have contained 20,000 square feet of floor space.

Train Delayed

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Picket lines were set up by the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks at a railway station here Tuesday afternoon and a CP Rail spokesman said the transcontinental passenger train, The Canadian, was delayed 20 minutes. Supervisory personnel filled the job gap. The lines went up about 1 p.m. EDA in Chatham Bay South and were removed four hours later.

Will Fight Guerrillas

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Prime Minister Golda Meir reiterated today that Israel would continue to strike at Arab guerrillas wherever they could be reached, but expressed her continuing willingness to negotiate a peace settlement, including compensation and help for Arab refugees. In a major policy statement to parliament, Mrs. Meir disclosed that there had been a number of futile secret contacts on the peace question.

Talks Broken Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations between CP Air and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM) broke off Tuesday night. The talks were called to prevent a nationwide strike scheduled for noon today.

"The union demands are far in excess of the recent Air Canada settlement package and the union's last stated position to the membership," said Glen Fenby, the airline's industrial relations director. A CP Air spokesman said no further negotiations were requested by the union.

Two Guards Slain

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A former death row prisoner, armed with a pistol, shot and killed two guards at Ohio's new southern correctional facility Tuesday, prison officials said. The 23-year-old convict, identified as Wayne Lester Emery of Dayton, killed one guard and then tied three others into a human shield against the guns of other guards, said Bennett Cooper, director of the state department of correction and rehabilitation. The other guards finally rushed and overpowered Raney who shot and killed one of his three hostages, Cooper said.

Build Glass House

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A house built almost completely of broken bottles processed with cow manure is the goal of a suburban Van Nuys company. "We combine powdered glass, bottles, the labels, tops and everything else with cow manure," said Jerry Johnson, technical manager for Environ Control Products, Inc. "Then we put it in a furnace where it acts as a foaming agent, and the resulting material is 100 per cent glass." Johnson said the material, called Envirite, could be made as porous as a sponge or as smooth as stone.

Anne Gets Permission

LONDON (Reuter) — Princess Anne obtained Tuesday the formal permission of her mother, Queen Elizabeth, to marry navy lieutenant. The Queen signed the constitutional document approving Princess Anne's marriage following a meeting of the Privy Council.

Gandhi Not Coming

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — External Affairs Minister Swaran Sing will represent India at next month's Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Ottawa, it was announced Tuesday. The announcement gave no reason for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi not undertaking the trip.

Smithfield Store To Close

A community business centre and meeting place dating back beyond the memories of even the oldest residents, is to disappear from the village of Smithfield, west of Trenton.

It is Cole's General Store and post office, Smithfield's only general trading spot, which has served the community since before the turn of the century. The store and post office will close its doors July 31.

Co-owners of the store, Mrs. William McIlveen and Mrs. Al Robbins, want to retire from active business and no one in the village wants to take on the responsibility of the post office.

Accordingly, after the end of the month, Smithfield residents, the majority of them retired people and airforce personnel, will no longer go to the general store to get their mail. Instead the approximately 120 postal patrons will get their mail from four village lock boxes.

And with the closing of the post office, Smithfield will no longer be a postal address. The new address will be RR 2, Brighton.

The present owners have operated the store for 24 years, taking over from their now deceased uncle, Laird Cole, who in turn operated the store for 15 years.

The original owner of the store and Mrs. McIlveen has no idea of the date — was a man named John Rankin. He sold out to Horace Wood who in turn sold to Donald Minaker.

Back in 1935, while Mr. Minaker was the proprietor, the store burned and was rebuilt by E. A. Collins.

After Mr. Collins there were two sets of owners, before Mr. Cole took over.

The store and post office premises will be taken over by the husbands of the two proprietors in an expansion program for their lumber yard. The premises will be renovated for use as a builders' supply showroom.

In preparation for the closeout, the two store proprietors Monday ran a half price sale and although the event was advertised only by a sign in the window, villagers took full advantage of the discount prices.

"We almost sold the whole store," commented Mrs. McIlveen.

As noted above, the Smithfield general store and post office dates back many years and even the oldest residents cannot remember when there was no store or post office in the village.

With the exception of only a few years, the Smithfield post office has always been in the general store.

But with 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. store hours six days a week, Mrs. McIlveen admits the long hours behind the counter are beginning to take their toll.

So the decision was to close the store.

The postal department tried to find someone to take over the Post Office and there were no takers.

So a long-time Smithfield tradition is to pass out of existence.

And Smithfield residents will get their mail from most postal boxes on the corner.

Licences May Change

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Chauffeurs' driving licences may become as much a relic of the past in Ontario as the sight of a chauffeur-driven Pierce-Arrow.

A new licensing system for drivers in the province may be introduced as early as spring 1974, says Wally McCabe, manager of the drivers examination division, ministry of transport and communications.

He told a recent safety council meeting here the system probably will involve seven different driver permit categories.

The top permit would be for tractor - trailer drivers. Other driver categories would be:

—For buses with capacity exceeding 24 passengers.

—For vehicles exceeding 24,000 pounds registered gross weight.

—For buses with a capacity not exceeding 24 passengers.

—Standard operator permit.

—Motorcycle permit.

—Instruction permit.

Mr. McCabe said a person would be permitted to drive any vehicle, either privately or commercially, up to the category of the licence he holds.

At present Ontario has only two general driver permit categories: A standard permit restricting a person to non-commercial driving and a chauffeur's licence required by all those who drive for pay.

The multi-category system proposed for Ontario already is being used in New Brunswick, British Columbia and Alberta and is under study by other provinces, said Mr. McCabe.

He said at first the proposed system would affect only the top two categories—transport bus drivers would require certificates of medical fitness and periodic eye examinations.

Fire Rips Restaurant

TRENTON — Fire tore through the Triple R Restaurant Tuesday night.

The volunteer fire department of Sidney Township answered the 11 p.m. alarm.

Describing the scene, deputy chief Steve Watts said: "It was a very bad fire which started in the cooking area of the establishment" located near the junction of Aikens Road and Highway 2.

Seventeen firemen fought the blaze and remained at the scene for more than three hours. A spokesman for the department could give no clue as to the cause of the fire which gutted the cooking area and left the remainder of the shop damaged by smoke and water.

Mr. Watt said the business and building were owned by Robert LaMore. The building was insured.

How to Beat the Heat

Hot sticky weather has been known to drive even the most mild and meek to desperate measures in an attempt to cool off. This man, spotted walking along Front street, carries two ice cream cones for double relief. Iago the dog, meanwhile, finds it cooler to relax on the sidewalk in the shade of a truck. Warm, humid weather is expected to remain in the Quinte region at least until the weekend, CFB Trenton's duty forecaster says.

District Obituaries and Funerals

ROBERT V. LAWSON
Halifax-Trenton

The funeral of Warrant Officer Robert V. Lawson of Halifax, who died July 15th as result of an accident near Stirling, was held July 19 from the Protestant Chapel, CFB Trenton.

Padre S. Horne of CFB Trenton, and Rev. C. Sapiet of Stirling conducted the funeral held under the direction of the Weaver Funeral Home. Interment was in Stirling cemetery.

Sergeants of the Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, acted as bearers.

Born at Trenton 40 years ago, the deceased was the son of Mrs. Harry (Lawson) Conlon, RR 3 Trenton and the late F. Lawson. Educated in Trenton schools, he was a Canadian Forces warrant officer and had been stationed in Halifax for the past five years. He was a member of the station sergeant's mess and the Royal Canadian Legion.

He is survived by his wife, the former Evelyn Dalton, a son Larry and a daughter Debra, both at home, and brothers and sisters Allan, RR 3 Trenton, Russell, James, and Ronald, all of Trenton, Alfred of RR 1 Campbellford, Clarence of Frankford, Reginald, RR 1 Trenton, and Raymond of Belleville, Mrs. Ana Stewart of Schomberg, Mrs. Dorothy Crawford, Trenton and Mrs. June Crouch, Trenton.

RICHARD BAILEY

Aside from her husband, she is survived by a son, Wallace of San Francisco, and two daughters, Mrs. Ray (Jean) Donovan of Kingston, and Mrs. Frank (Dorothy) McGillivray, Toronto. There are six grandchildren.

Mrs. Muir was the last of her family.

Resting at the Thompson Funeral Chapel, the funeral will be held Thursday with Rev. Laurie Sutherland officiating at the 2 p.m. service. Interment, Belleville Cemetery.

Epilepsy: Possible Factor in Shooting

TORONTO (CP) — John Fedgar McRae, 60, shot and killed by a policeman on the doorstep of his Toronto home June 8 after ignoring orders to drop a rifle, was an epileptic who could have reacted irrationally under stress, a coroner's jury was told Tuesday.

Dr. John Edmeads, a neurologist, testified that he feared Mr. McRae on 19 occasions for two types of epileptic seizures. One of these, temporal lobe seizure, can produce irrational personality traits, he said.

"It often brings people into conflict with the law and temporary lobe seizure is often pleaded as a defence (in the courts)," he said.

Preliminary evidence showed that Mr. McRae was of exemplary character but was acting in an unusual manner June 8.

In the afternoon he rejected his job as a stationary engineer at a hospital and later that evening made a series of phone calls to a local radio station, the fire department, and finally early June 6, to police headquarters.

Mr. McRae asked that a policeman be sent to his home because "I got some cold beer here and I don't know what to do with it . . . I want a policeman to come down that's thirsty."

Police tapes of the conversation showed that at one point Mr. McRae threatened to blow the head off the officer to whom he was speaking if "you don't get that officer around here."

Jury was told two constables and a sergeant were sent to the McRae home. The constables arrived first and when the Constable Vincent McCarthy, saw a man come to the door with a rifle pointed to the floor he shouted at him to drop it.

As the gun was raised and aimed at him, Constable McCarthy shouted a second caution, then fired a shot from his .38 calibre service revolver,

"Buying or selling a house may be the biggest transaction in your lifetime. Why not consult a First Rate Broker?"

Smaller Home for Aged Caused by High Costs

PICTON — The proposed new Prince Edward County home for the aged will be reduced in size from 160 beds to 94 beds in an effort to bring its estimated cost within a budget of $1,500,000.

Tenders for the county home were opened at a meeting of the social services committee in June with the lowest being $1,794,000.

Representatives of the ministry of community and social services stated firmly that they could not possibly allow another quarter million dollars for the project.

To save costs council agreed to reduce the number of beds and is considering other economies such as elimination of a greenhouse; using the existing driveway instead of a new driveway, and

RCMP Still Probe Guns

TORONTO (CP) — The possibility that more than one illegal shipment of arms has been made to the Irish republic from Toronto is being investigated by the RCMP.

RCMP Sgt. Charles Martin disclosed Tuesday that the probe into illegal activities has not ended with the arrest of a Toronto man in Dublin just over a week ago. But the police spokesman would give no hints as to the extent or direction of the investigation.

Police seized four sten guns, a Russian-built machine gun, 11 handguns, 11 grenades, 9,700 rounds of ammunition and 29 magazine clips from sten and brens guns at a Toronto home July 13.

RCMP officials disclosed Tuesday that on later raids to the same house, 50 pounds of gunpowder and several hundred bullets were seized.

other tender of $1,080 was submitted by Sinclair Alarms.

eliminination of a proposed three-car garage. The size of the community centre area also might be reduced and one of the building's two elevators eliminated. The six sunrooms located at the ends of each wing possibly could be cut from the plans.

Additional rooms could be added in later years when it becomes economically feasible to expand facilities at the new home.

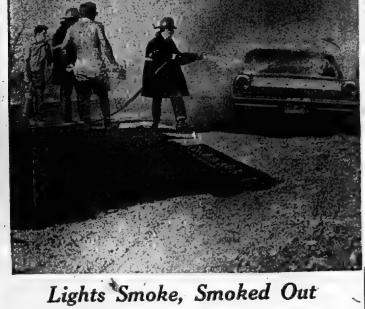
Chairman of the social services committee Allan Anderson, reeve of Bloomfield, said prospects looked "much brighter" after the elimination of certain facilities was suggested.

Hopefully, the alterations will allow both the county and the ministry to come closer to last year's projected budget.

The new building will be constructed of white brick and in compliance with suggestions from the ministry, will in no way resemble an institution. Its appearance will not be affected by the proposed reductions in facilities.

Tenders for the new home will be re-advertised.

Horse Barns Remain Open



PICTON — Prince Edward County Council has reversed its decision to cease rental of its horse barns at Picton Fairgrounds.

It has been agreed to lease both barns to the county fairboard for $275 a year. Rental horse owners using the facilities to remain.

Chairman of the property and supply committee Hillier reeve Lewis Wight said that the barns offer stalls for a number of horsemen who cannot stable elsewhere.

Earlier this month Picton town council prepared a formal motion asking county council to reconsider its decision to shut down the stables.

He's Home Again!

The welcome was warm and delighted as Major Pete De Tracey arrived home at CFB Trenton Tuesday after 24 days on relief missions in Africa. Racing to greet him at airbase terminal were daughters Jennifer, 7, Kara, 5.

UN Praise for Local Airmen In African Relief Operation

TRENTON — A plane load of armed forces personnel touched down at Canadian Forces Base Trenton late Tuesday afternoon, returning from three weeks involvement with African emergency airlift operations.

The Canadian forces Hercules landed at 4:40 p.m. following completion of the 28-hour flight from the African port of Lagos, a central holding area of supplies for drought-stricken sub-Saharan countries.

More than 20 of the 30 men returning home are stationed at Trenton's 436 Squadron and were met by commanding officer Lt.-Col. Harry Wilkinson and, later, in customs by a throng of family and friends.

The mission of airlifting grains and staples to African peoples is being heralded as the "largest airlift for Canada to have ever taken part in."

An information officer who for the last three weeks has toured the emergency zone, said: United Nations official Trevor Page applauded the Canadian consistent accuracy in the most needy area and doing the most efficient job."

In a press conference the information officer recounting the UN spokesman, said, "others (donor countries) have had greater frustrations during airlift operations."

Canadian armed forces personnel from Edmonton will remain in Africa for another three weeks completing the airlift. It is hoped the airlifted rations will maintain the population there until crops can be successfully planted and reaped.

While this time of year traditionally is the rain season for African farmers, downpours stood in the way and unless crops can be planted soon, Africans will be eating airlifted food until next summer. Seed must be in the ground soon before the growing season, which ends over December, comes to a close.

Officials could not say what long-range plans for the situation were. They said the Canadian airlift was satisfying an immediate need.

Canadian airmen, in their duties ferrying supplies from the "congested" Lagos harbour to four distribution depots 1,000 miles into the interior, each logged 125 hours flying time during 24 days. The allowable limit is 125 hours over 30 days.

"This is the most intensive flying these men have ever seen," said an armed forces spokesman.

The same spokesman said the normal day could begin at 3 a.m. with bedtime coming around 9 p.m.

So far, Canadians have airlifted 1,500 tons of supplies into the interior. A goal of 2,200 tons has been set for the entire stay.

No one could comment whether Canada would continue the airlift if food could not be grown this year.

One said, "if they don't get rain this year I don't know what they'll do."

Major Bob Beaton, pilot of the plane, conjectured "the rest of the world will have to feed them."

Currently six other countries are sending aid to Africa.

Tops At Horse Meet

He captured the Limit Class driving King's Aristocrat, and later won the hackney pony stake with the same highstepper.

The Cranwell Stables entry of King's Aristocrat and Ridan's Chicago Hood won second place in the pairs class when driven by Mr. Lockyer.

Both ponies have appeared at the Quinte Exhibition Park this season to parade race horse entries to the post.

Urge Disaster Plans For Municipalities

PICTON — Quinte Emergency Measures co-ordinator Angus Duffy has urged Prince Edward's 18 municipalities to develop procedures disaster plans individually.

At a county council meeting Tuesday, Col. Duffy explained that, with the advice and assistance of the municipalities, he would develop the needed plans. When completed the plans would be submitted for council's approval.

He stressed the importance of preparation for peacetime disasters such as the hubbub that swept Brighton this month and said that residents expect this protection. The responsibility for it lies with municipal officials.

In times of emergency, Col. Duffy said it is necessary to have a central headquarters

Permissive Jailing Stays

VICTORIA (CP) — Despite a few spectacular escapes, the federal government plans to maintain its permissive prison system, Paul Faguy, commissioner of penitentaries, said Tuesday.

Here to open a $167,000 vocational training building at William Head correctional security prison, Mr. Faguy said neither airlines nor highways are closed after a serious accident, but the situation is studied and measures are taken to try to prevent the accident occurring again.

"We've had some spectacular failures from time to time, but, taken in the context of more than 67,000 permits in one year, they are relatively very, very few," he said of the program.

The con-return rate in the system's temporary absence program is less than half of one per cent of the total number of permits granted, he said.

Hydro Rates Increased At Picton

PICTON — The Picton Public Utilities Commission has announced an increase in its electricity rates here.

As of October 1 the increase, recommended by Ontario Hydro, will be 12 per cent for residential consumers and 10.7 per cent for general service including commercial and industrial customers.

Chairman of the Picton PUC David Hickman has stated that this is the first increase effected by the town's commission in two years. Customers are enlisted by here in advance of at least 60 days prior to any proposed increase.

He's Alive!

VICTORIA (CP) — The federal tax department has officially declared Leon Victoria man it declared dead April 13.

A tax office spokesman here said Tuesday an inquiry conducted by Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury discovered Arthur Petersen of Victoria was sent a form letter April 19 for deceased taxpayers instead of a form asking for clarification of a minor error in his tax returns.

Books for the Young

Scarcely a day goes by that some new Opportunities for Youth or Local Initiatives Program grant is not announced.

We can see there are all these various activities, funded by the Government or courtesy, of the true facts are to be known, of the taxpayer. Some of these projects seem useful enough while others are of more dubious import. They give people something to do though and that is the thing.

One we have been reading about which is of unusual interest is under way in Kitchener-Waterloo. There, seven young people — in their late teens by the look of them — have been awarded a $11,300 grant to produce books on topics such as over-population and single-parent families.

A little young for such a project? Well maybe, but an illustration from the book, Minoo's Family, showing a couple arguing and pointing out the ingredients of a family split is indicative of an effective means of communicating such problems to younger children.

For instance, this in neat handwritten print, beside an angry Mum and Dad: "In Minoo's family moomie and daddy didn't spend very much time together but every time they did something always went wrong. Sometimes they got angry and shouted at one another."

Fair enough! As Tim Wynne Jones, one of the seven (five of whom are young women) put it: "Although the books are very symplistic, the characters have to be recognizable and relatable. . ." And the group is trying out other story ideas — among them over-population — on the youngsters first.

"Books for real kids" is how Sue Gustar, another member of the group put it. And that gives a clue to the maturity of today's youngsters, and at the same time, the inadequacy of literature already available — because in many instances it does not reflect changing lifestyles. For example, a bibliography explaining the group's work points out that although 50 per cent of children in many day centres (which same such books) are from one-parent families, pre-school books emphasize traditional middle-class nuclear living and don't include children from single-parent families or communes."

Pre-school literature is also under fire in that it portrays mother at home with the children, while other races and cultures are portrayed negatively.

This then does seem like a worthwhile project, which not only affords this group something upon which to focus their creative talents but sets other community interests thinking of ways and means of communicating better the realities of the day to the smaller fry. It deserves to succeed.

Death Wish

Observing with growing concern what appears to be a form of mass suicide on the highways, we are reminded of the fact that psychologists see in this growing evidence of a subconscious death wish."

There is confirmation of this in the findings of other countries. Errol Hoffman is an Australian researcher on a sabatical in Toronto and he says that when seat belts were made compulsory in his country — the first highly-industrialized country to introduce such legislation — there was a lot of public complaining.

"Some people in Melbourne," said Mr. Hoffman (who does road safety research at the university there)," made quite a point of their right to get smashed up. . ."

"But, what about other people's rights," he went on. "What about hospital beds, medical services that could be made available for others. . . ?"

How true! Meanwhile, instead of accident statistics declining they seem to be on the upswing. The aftermath of long weekends in particular is a horror story with no ending.

Australian statistics incidentally parallel our own. Over the past decade more than 30,000 Australians have been killed and 750,000 injured in traffic accidents at an estimated cost to the nation of some $800 million annually.

However since the seat belt edict was passed Mr. Hoffman says there has been a marked reduction in the number of deaths and injuries.

This speaks for itself. The same beneficial results could be obtained here — that is the government, in face of the truly appalling statistics, willing to act?

Quebec Press Is Skeptical

PM and the Monarchy—Is He Just Looking for Votes?

By RICHARD JACOBSON

OTTAWA — In another 10 days or so, Prime Minister Trudeau will be back replaying his so recently revived role as "Queen's Man".

His aides, disturbed by charges in the Quebec press that it is all a vote-winning ploy, emphasize that he has always been a supporter of what they call the "constitutional monarchy".

He spoke up during his professional days for the monarchy as a "constitutional institution" when the students at Laval University, fired up by the separatists, rioted in the streets of Quebec City and tried storming the Chateau Frontenac in demonstrations against the Queen.

Claude Wagner, then Quebec Justice Minister and now Conservative MP for Saint Hyacinthe, called out his club-swinging, orange-slickered riot police and battered down the demonstrators just a block short of the Queen, but when the Queen was dining with the leaders of Quebec.

Supporter of the constitutional monarchy though he always may have been, never before has he so ostentatiously courted the crown as on the Queen's recent Ontario - Prince Edward Island - Alberta tour.

With what half-full devotion he appeared to press his suit as a true lover of the monarchy.

And now he is going to be continuing the courtship during five of the days of the forthcoming Commonwealth conference.

While he could be convincing a great many people of his reconversion as a "Queen's Man" that experienced Quebec Trudeau - watcher, Le Devoir of, Montreal, the house organ of French Canada's Intellectuals finds his motivations and choices that none of it is for real.

This leading Quebec newspaper has accused the Prime Minister of employing the Queen for the purpose of blatant politicking.

He insists that in all his royal pictures he is not so much courting the Queen as what it is cal's the royalist vote hoping to bring back into the Liberal fold the Wanzink Andas who deserted him in last October's election.

This, according to Le Devoir, which speaks for so-deme, the professions and the very Frenchness of Quebec, it is all a transparent, if skilled political act to recapture wavering English hearts in Ontario and the West.

The Quebec paper seems undisturbed by which him playing what it says is this royalist charade because, believes Le Devoir, the monarchy, while expensive, is "harmless".

But while Le Devoir and the Quebec press generally remain unconvinced of the Prime Minister's sincerity in his new role of the "Queen's Man" Liberal party public relations types are busy flogging the royal image.

They have even been dropping the word that Prince Charles just might become Governor General.

Groovy, except that there is no precedent for the Prince of Wales, heir apparent to the throne, taking such a post, even if it were, which appears uncertain, constitutionally possible.

Another measure of the depth of the premier's devotion to the monarchy may be taken in his letter External Affairs Minister Sharp has written to William Toby Oliphant of Ottawa.

Mr. Costello had accused Mr. Sharp of deliberately permitting the sluminess of Canada House in London as a calculated policy of downgrading relations with Britain.

He made the initial accusation early last May, and later, in June, wrote Mr. Sharp again, offering to "pass the hat" to raise funds for Canada House.

And later still, a Canada House official announced that the place would be cleaned up and converted into a Canadian and drop-in centre.

Coincidentally with the London announcement, Mr. Sharp has now finally answered Mr. Costello, writing:

"I can assure you that in no way may indifference on the part of U.K. being downgraded. Nevertheless tell Canadian government believes that survival of our substantive bilateral relationship . . . will depend to a great extent on the determination of both sides to sustain valid existing relationships and to develop new ones . . .

To Mr. Costello this sounds as if Mr. Sharp is equating Britain with Uganda or Zambia.

..AND WE CORRECTED THE NURSE WHO SUGGESTED YOU WERE HERE TO HAVE A TAPEWORM REMOVED."

Portuguese Are Accused of Atrocities in Africa

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A well-organized propaganda campaign launched at the opportune moment is clouding the important visit of Portugal's Prime Minister Marcelo Caetano to Britain.

The occasion is the 600th anniversary of the world's oldest alliance, the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty of 1373. The anti-Portuguese attack concentrates around the news from a Father Adrian Hastings, a second-hand report of an event he did not witness, of an alleged village massacre in Mozambique.

The reported massacre suddenly brought to light, took place last December when, according to Father Hastings, 600 Portuguese Black troops led by white officers used terrible ferocity to burn a village and kill its 400 defenceless inhabitants.

Let's face it; these things have happened in Africa ever since the wars of decolonization began with similar ferocity in the struggle for Algerian liberation in the mid-1950s.

If the Portuguese have committed this atrocity or others, their troops join the ranks of French legionnaires, not to forget United States troops in Vietnam who set fire to whole hamlets and murdered villagers indiscriminately or otherwise.

This grim aspect of the continuing non-nuclear wars of our time sickens everyone. But it is also sickening to see such vicitims exploited for the propaganda battles of a determined few whose alternatives for power really aren't much better.

Portugal's avowed and sizeable enemy is the pockets of Mossambique (Portuguese East Africa) which now claim to "rule" La Freimo, a dedicated army tough, resistance settlement led by Harvard Portuguese-educated or army trained black leaders.

Freimo with headquarters in Tanzania, is much more than a guerrilla army.

It has created the makings of a "government-in-exile", operating jungle clinics on politics, maintaining schools and hospitals.

The Portuguese, who insist all their big African possessions are "overseas territories" of their Iberian homeland, are beleaguered by guerrilla movements in all of them. Angola—(Portuguese West Africa)—a rich region on the other side of the continent and tiny Portuguese Guinea, a poor one.

Lisbon could easily relinquish her steamy and costly strip of Guinea which its rebels have already re-named the independent state of Guinea-Bissau.

This name will not confuse it with the independent, neo-Marxist Republic of Guinea next door. It's in a worse mess than Portugal's colonies have ever been, a showcase of how a new African nation has and can do everything wrong.

This very skilful anti-Portuguese demonstration which has won both press and much public opinion in Britain to its point-of-view, again calls Portugal "Europe's poorest country." This of course, is nonsense.

Turkey, Bulgaria, Albania, Malta, most of rural Italy, Poland or Yugoslavia are poorer than Portugal. Angola, Portugal's diadem in Africa, if anything is richer than the homeland with a gross national product now exceeding $1 billion.

The unfortunate effect of these campaigns by the British Left, the oldtimers who won't forget Franco in Spain won his civil war and Portugal's Salazar helped him, or newcomers who fry the same political fish, is that they make the Iberian Peninsula of 1973 into the darkest corner of Europe. There are no grounds for darker.

Open guerrilla warfare in Ulster has meant the arming of 15,000 British troops. The Catholic Irish call them an occupying force. Were such to be a Portuguese army in Africa?

The Right Rev. C. D. Howe, minister of trade and commerce, will speak in Marmora at a political rally in support of C. W. (Clute) Foster, Liberal candidate for the new federal riding of Hastings-Frontenac.

A national health program, which would assure no person would be denied adequate hospital and medical care for want of money, is the aim of the Liberal government at Ottawa, according to Hon. Paul Martin, minister of health and welfare. Speaking at a Liberal rally at BCIVS in support of Frank S. Fidlwell, Liberal candidate for Hastings South, Mr. Martin said the health of a nation's people was its most important asset.

The Hon W. A. Goodfellow, minister of public welfare, for the Province of Ontario, will be the guest speaker at the Lac Grillo picnic to be held at Scarles Beach, Oak Lake.

Despite assurances to the contrary, recent amendments to the compulsory labor order, now embracing youths in the 16-18 year bracket, is not so encouraging as first impressions might indicate, it was stated by H. H. Reed of the National Selective Service following receipt of calls from anxious parents. "Definitely it is not the intention of the Selective Service officers to break up homes, nor is it their intention to interfere with the future education of the boys coming under the order," assured the manager of the local Selective Service office.

Italian dictator Benito Mussolini resigned and was arrested 30 years ago today—in 1943. Throughout the country demonstrations bore witness to the popular relief at the end of Duce's rule. Mussolini was rescued in a daring raid by German parachutists in the Abruzzi Mountains, but in 1945 he was captured with his mistress by Italian partisans and executed.

1963—The United States, British and the Soviet Union initialled a nuclear test-ban treaty.

1952—The European Steel and Coal Community was established.

1945—Prince Duke of Kent was killed in a plane crash in Scotland.

1907—Japan took control of Korea.

Medical Policy

The following is the text of a letter from Health Minister Richard Potter to Mrs. Grace Villeneau face, in reply to one from Mrs. face which appeared in The Intelligencer recently:

I have your letter of June 18 and note your remarks about the need for medical check-ups.

Let me say that the public references to this matter arise from a report of recommendations of a Task Force of the Council of Health and no rulings or restrictions have been issued from my Ministry that there is to be a restriction on medical check-ups in line with the Task Force recommendations.

In any event, I am quite sure that where there is a medical need as in the case you outline there would be a continuous need for follow-up medical service, and should it prove feasible to adopt the Task Force recommendations as to situations where there is a history of illness and a continuing need for diagnoses and treatment.

I am well aware of the great work carried on by the Cancer Society and the medical profession and I would certainly not wish to destroy the progress the Society and those concerned with it have made over the years.

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's QUEEN'S PARK BUREAU

TORONTO — A rather important document was made public here today without getting too much attention.

The document was one of three reports prepared by a task force studying the ministry of community and social services.

The task force, made up of public servants, was reviewing the ministry, its operation, operation and potential future.

Its findings in the task force came to this conclusion, among others:

"There are a number of indications that the traditional market place will no longer be expected to provide sufficient, suitable, paid employment for all who want to work."

"Simultaneously, there is a growing recognition that there is a wealth of socially-useful work to be done that is not 'economic' in the usual sense."

"L. I. P. and O. F. Y. are two examples of governmental programs filling this response."

It then goes on to say that in future the ministry will have an important role in planning and delivering such programs.

L. I. P. and O. F. Y., of course, are one-year projects.

The point is that they did "creep". They started on a small scale and gradually grew.

There was never any thought really that they would be permanent. With winter works, in fact, every year it was late in the fall before they were made to go ahead with the program.

But now it seems they are to be taken as an accepted fact of life.

The task force report gives it the stamp of legitimacy and continuity.

Fruit Salads: A Cure for the Wilts

Guaranteed to revive any wilted summer appetite, cool, ripe fruits — fresh or canned — are welcome. Whether its dessert or a main dish, what could be more appetizing than a fruit salad?

For a simple dessert or light lunch, mound a colorful array of melon balls, apple slices, peach slices.

Serve with a creamy dressing like

Apricot Cream Dressing

1 pkge. (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons milk
¼ cup apricot puree (or apricot baby food)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt

Blend cream cheese and milk until smooth. Add apricot puree, lemon juice and salt. Beat with electric mixer or whirl in blender. Chill. Makes 1 cup.

Ginger Cream Dressing

1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon liquid honey
2 tablespoons minced candied or preserved ginger

Combine and chill ingredients. Allow flavors to blend a few hours or even overnight.

Minted Apricot Salad

1 pint (1 pound) cottage cheese
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
¼ teaspoon salt
9 fresh apricots
1 cup diced honeydew melon
1 cup sliced strawberries
1 cup diced cup chopped cashews
8 romaine leaves
Mint Sauce (recipe below)

Combine cottage cheese, mayonnaise and salt in large mixing bowl. Wash apricots; reserve 4 for garnish. Remove pits and quarter the remaining 5 apricots. Combine apricot quarters, melon, strawberries and cottage cheese mixture; toss with two forks to mix. Cover and chill.

Just before serving, add cashews and toss lightly to mix.

Serve cottage cheese - fruit mixture on romaine leaves in individual serving plates.

For garnish, cut reserved apricots in halves; remove pits. Cut each half into 6 strips and arrange in pinwheel fashion on top of each of 8 servings.

Serve with:

Mint Sauce

¼ cup mint jelly
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons lime juice
¼ teaspoon grated lime peel

Beat mint jelly until smooth and creamy. Gradually beat in oil and lime juice; add lime peel.

To prepare salad when apricots are out of season, substitute a 30-ounce can of apricot halves. Drain and reserve 8 halves for garnish. Cut remaining halves in half and use for salad.

Light, Cool and Refreshing

Light and cool and refreshing: fresh fruits served with a creamy dressing for a dessert or light lunch. These and other fruit salads are the answer to wilted summer appetites.

Chicken Fruit Salad

5 cups cut-up chicken
1 cup seedless green grapes
Salad greens
Orange sections
Banana slices
Pineapple chunks

Orange Tarragon Dressing
(recipe follows)

Combine chicken with grapes. Place on bed of salad greens and surround with fruit. Pour dressing over all. Serves 8.

Orange Tarragon Dressing
one-third cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
two-third cup salad oil
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon

Combine all ingredients in bowl or jar with tight-fitting lid. Beat or shake until well blended.

Put the whole thing together and there you have a really super chicken salad, nice enough for the smartest luncheon.

Lemon Custard Pears

1 (29 ounces) can Bartlett pear halves; quartered
1 (11 ounces) can mandarin oranges
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 egg, well-beaten
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
Maraschino cherries

Drain fruit, reserving syrups. Measure syrups to make 1½ cups. Combine fruit syrups, lemon juice, salt and cornstarch in small saucepan.

Cook, stirring constantly until thickened and bubbly. Add small amount of hot mixture to egg; blend thoroughly. Return to hot mixture and cook, stirring, one minute longer. Remove from heat; add grated lemon peel. Cool. Place small amount of lemon custard in four sherbet glasses. Place orange segments between pear quarters. Divide remaining custard over fruit. Arrange in centre and top with maraschino cherry. Serve well chilled.

Women Smokers . . . Women Libbers?

By DORIS CLARK

Women Smokers . . . Why are the numbers increasing? It's partly "Women's Lib". For a long time there were all kinds of things they didn't let women do - they couldn't wear pants, they weren't supposed to drink, they weren't supposed to vote, they weren't supposed to do almost anything - and by gosh (Now, they're going to win everything!

Women have won the battle, the fears of being ostracized as not being a lady, as not having good manners, of not being a very good mother, have all gone and women are taking up the habit.

Women smoke for all the other reasons too. Every place you turn, there is some kind of influence towards smoking . . . songs have been written about it, the highest on television smoke, the hero smokes.

The influence is there and the women are buying it. — Dr. F. H. Wake, psychologist, in bulletin of Canadian Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Dear Doris: I am 14 and have a big problem: Hair! Not on top of my head but on my face, chest and neck. I am so worried and scared. I won't be able to wear a bikini for a halter top, for one thing.

It is not just peach fuzz but big black hair. I can hide my chest in winter, but what happens now? I am scared to go to my doctor, and Mom is too old-fashioned. She simply said to leave it alone. She also added not to put any cream on it or I would make it grow or get a rash.

I still didn't do anything and the hair still keeps on growing. — Please, Please Advise.

Dear Please: That is a big problem again! Boys grow as much hair as they can, wherever they can. But the girls' growth. Or shave.

The only permanent removal is done by electrolysis, in the hands of an expert. I'm sending you my 20-cent leaflet on "Removing Unwanted Hair."

There are worse things than going without a bikini, but I'd urge that you see your doctor. Perhaps some hormone problem is causing the extra hair, and this may level out as you mature. He will probably consult with a skin specialist, and when the specialist recommends will certainly be rash-free.

MR. AND MRS. HUGHES GOLDIE

Goldie — McIntyre

(Tebbel) Jean McIntyre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McIntyre of Brampton recently exchanged wedding vows with (Alexander) Hughes Goldie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goldie, Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long empire styled gown of white organza over moire with a floor length veil secured by a lace cap. She carried a bouquet of minuet roses, deep pink carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Andrea McIntyre was her sister's maid of honor.

Bridesmaids Mrs. Fran McIntyre, sister in law of the bride, and Janet Goldie, sister of the bridegroom wore long deep rose crepe gowns and carried nosegays of deep pink carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Best man was Neil Castonguay of Chelmsford, Ontario. Ushers were Lt. John McIntyre, brother of the bride and Gary Whitfield.

Following their honeymoon to Cape Cod, Mr. and Mrs. Goldie will reside in London, Ontario.

Consumers' Association of Canada reminds homemakers that meat foods can safely be refrozen if still cold - about 40 deg. F. Deseronto Woman Writes

She's been a supply teacher and a library worker and now she's the Deseronto correspondent for The Intelligencer, all a far cry from the stenographer she thought she'd be as a girl in England.

Margaret Jackson, our newest "country correspondent", came to Canada from England in 1964 as a widowed warbride. Later she met and married William Jackson, one of Belleville's "Jackson line" hockey-playing brothers.

"I like people. And you always get a little kick out of it when you see something in print," she says.

Ann Landers

He's Drunk, She's Mortified

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so mortified I can't show my face. Last night was our 18th wedding anniversary. We had 15 couples in for dinner. My husband got so cockeyed drunk that when the guests began to leave he walked into the front closet, put on his coat and hat and started to walk out the front door with his mother and dad.

I asked him where he was going. He replied, "Home." I said, "John, you are home." He mumbled, "That's good. This is no night to go anyplace." Everyone roared. I wanted to sink through the floor.

My husband is not much of a drinker. In fact, this is the only time he has ever been known to get so soiled.

John's mother phoned this morning to ask how much he has been drinking of late. She is afraid he might become alcoholic. (Her brother had the problem.) Now I am concerned. Please tell me if alcoholism runs in families.—Washington, D.C.

Dear Wash.: From the sound of your letter I don't think you have anything to worry about. I'll bet John won't touch a drop for a long time.

Alcoholism is not hereditary, but the cultural and environmental patterns that encourage it can tend to repeat themselves in the same family.

Dear Ann Landers: This morning, when I turned the pockets of my husband's work pants inside out before putting them into the washing machine, I found a bank deposit slip. It was from a local bank on the other side of town. The account is under his nickname. The amount of the deposit was only $20 but it disturbed me that he would have a secret account.

I am mystified and hurt. We've been married two years and I always thought we had very good communication. We both work and have always shared everything—or so I believed.

Should I come right out and tell him I found the deposit slip and ask him to explain why he needs a secret bank account? Or would it be best to remain silent and hope one day soon he will tell me of his own volition?—Southern Cal

Dear S. C.: Hand your husband the deposit slip and tell him you think it's sweet that he wanted to surprise you by building up a secret nest-egg. A wife who assumes the best instead of the worst has a chance of getting it.

Dear Ann Landers: Why, after a date, would a fellow say, "I had a groovy time. You're terrific. I'll call you soon?" The girl waits for the call because she believes he meant it. Weeks pass. He doesn't call and she feels like a damned fool.

I'm not saying that every dude who takes a girl out has got to invite her for a second date. But why can't he be honest and keep quiet if the evening was a bomb? Why does he lie and say he'll call her soon? What's wrong with just saying, "Good-night?"

Please print this. Maybe it will reach the right eyes.—Still Waiting

Dear S.W.: How would you like it if a guy said, "I had a rotten time. You're a dog. You'll never hear from me again?"

Most fellows try to be polite at the end of an evening, so that loose aromatic farewells like perfume. They were meant to be inhaled—not swallowed.

Confidential to Fact or Fiction: It's a fact. The first-born tend to be achievers. Example: Of the first 23 astronauts to go on U.S. space missions, 21 were the eldest or only children.

Satin by Day, Moh air by Night, New Fall Collection 'Stunning'

PARIS (AP) — "Yes, it's definitely a sophisticated season," says Dior's designer, Marc Bohan.

His new fall collection is sophisticated indeed, in the sense of a contradiction in terms: satin for day, mohair by night.

The designers—after passing through every phase of pants, skirts, lengths and widths during the last few years—now are searching for a new look by mixing everyday and evening fabrics.

Bohan mixes them well. His new clothes are stunning.

His colors are Chinese—lacquer red, jade, terra cotta and ivory, but most of all blue. Chinese blue, Bohan explains with a grin, is closely related to the blue of jeans.

He likes it for everything, from his chenille or knitted beta down to mink, for mufflers or as trim on his belted trench coats, which also come in orange and green.

There are more pants at Dior than are likely to turn up at most houses. The line is wide and cuffed, under figured satin overblouses and long jackets.

In coats, Bohan shows two extremist silhouettes, the straight belted coat and the enormous cape, which he calls "pyramidal."

This last comes in shetland or tight, unlined mohair. The coat has a huge upturned collar, raglan sleeves and doesn't close. If the wearer doesn't clutch it together, the cocoon hangs limp like a giant rag.

For a gag, perhaps, but likely to brighten up a little black dress is a huge black velvet hat bristling in ostrich feathers.

Poles Wear U.S. Badges On Clothes

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Teen-agers here have a new fashion craze—American armed forces insignia on their clothes.

The insignia are an increasingly frequent sight on Warsaw streets. Popular badges are those of the United States Army and Air Force, usually sewn on lapels and sleeves.

"I can't sell enough of them," said one grey-haired shopowner in the capital. "I've got another shipment coming in tomorrow."

As with most small commercial ventures in Poland, the American "insignia market is being supplied through a bit of unofficial private enterprise.

In the city of Poznan, 200 miles west of Warsaw, a group of Poles are reported to be working around the clock turning out replicas of the U.S. badges.

There is no evidence to suggest the latest fashion carries political undertones. Young Poles always have been avid collectors of badges, and the craze for U.S. military insignia represents only a new, if somewhat sensitive, extension of this Communist-ruled state.

Asked why he sported a U.S. Ranger badge, a 15-year-old boy gave this typical reply: "It's the fad here. I bought it because I like it."

The Communist press here is not amused.

Zolnierz Wolnosci, organ of the Polish armed forces, expressed concern that the craze for U.S. slogans and badges is growing in popularity among athletes.

"If some aging playboy wants to adorn himself with insignia that used to be worn by murderers of unarmed Vietnamese, or some drug-addict girl puts them on her sleeve—to hell with them," the paper wrote. "But when an athlete parades around in such dress, a protest is needed."

Poles have been known for their strong sense of individuality, especially when compared with their conservative eastern neighbors. However, the Zolnierz Wolnosci article suggested there may be limits.

Describing how one Polish sportsman was stirred during a shooting match between the Polish and Soviet armies, the writer said:

"I noticed with astonishment that one of our young marksmen, Andrzej B., was dressed in a yellow shirt bearing the large inscription 'U.S. Jackie'. Jackie."

Organizers should have told him his dress "wasn't fitting for a representative of the Polish army team."

Folk Poets Supplanted By Radios

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — Folk poets who roam the Brazilian backlands with legends, gossip and news are being supplanted by transistor radios, TV and comic books.

Men who used to sing their verses in crowded markets and plazas in poverty-stricken northeastern Brazil are hardly seen any more. Their crudely-printed pamphlets, which for generations informed people about everything from historical figures to current events, are becoming scarce.

This region, traditionally one of the most backward in Latin America, now gets its news by satellite and in color. But a few of the town criers still try to scrape out a living.

"I study, I listen. I use my imagination," said poet Antoni Domingos dos Santos, a wrinkled man of 80 with a white straw hat and silver-topped wooden cane. He was trying to sell two original poems in a bus station at the town of Juazeiro do Norte.

One poem was about a local priest said to have performed miracles before he died 40 years ago. Peasants believe he will return to mete out justice on Doomsday. The other was called Description of the Bus Station.

Santos, who can barely read or write, recites his poems to a printer who writes them down and charged him five cents apiece for printing them in eight-page pamphlets. Santos tries to sell them for 15 cents but said business is bad.

The Ford Foundation provided a $4,500 grant several years ago for the study of this form of folk literature. But Mildenson, a Texas-born professor who lives and teaches in Brazil, headed a team that collected hundreds of pamphlets and sent samples to the British Museum, Yale and Harvard.

Some were versions of the 800-year-old story of Charlemagne, while others dealt with topics as current as President John Kennedy's assassination.

These Brazilian folk poems are known as "string literature," because they used to be displayed hanging from strings wherever people congregated.

Showdown Delayed

Canada Square Financing Is Delayed by Hydro Probe

TORONTO (CP) — There have been difficulties financing the $96 million Ontario Hydro headquarters being built here because of a provincial inquiry into allegations of patronage in letting the contract.

George Faliaryan, lawyer for Gerhard Moog, head of Canada Square Corp. told a select legislature committee Tuesday that no bond purchase agreement has been executed.

"... and accordingly the financing for this particular project hasn't been put in the form in which it ordinarily would have been placed if it had not been for the intervention of this committee," said Mr. Finlayson.

Mr. Moog, who now is the main witness before the Inquiry, appears headed for a confrontation with the committee over the production of files relating to correspondence about financing the building his company is erecting.

The committee backed away from a confrontation over presentation of the documents Tuesday when it didn't ask for the files.

Although Mr. Moog previously had been served with Speaker's warrant demanding production of the information, the committee opted to give Mr. Moog's lawyer a chance to delineate his objections to turning over the files.

"The moment of truth has yet not arrived," said Chairman John MacBath (PC—York West) at the close of Tuesday's session.

The issue appears to hinge on a trip made to Switzerland by Mr. Moog and his close friend Premier William Davis in August, 1971.

Mr. Moog testified that he discussed financing with a Zurich banker during the trip.

The premier had earlier told the committee that he was unaware of the discussion.

Although Mr. Finlayson previously had maintained that Swiss bankers were loath to have their business dealings made public, he described the banker as a former Swiss interested in a project in which Ontario Hydro would be a tenant.

In subsequent correspondence, Mr. Moog said he received a polite "no" from the Swiss bank.

Mr. Finlayson, told the committee that a letter of commitment was obtained from another financial institution but the deal for financing hadn't been closed.

Mr. Moog read a lengthy opening statement to the committee which outlined the proposed building's potential and said that the building could have been less expensive but that its quality would not have been so high.

The confrontation over the file of correspondence could climax today.

If Canada Square refuses to produce the file it could result in a contempt citation.

However, nobody, including Mr. MacBeth, is certain as to what disciplinary action can be taken.

Ministry of Health Blamed

No Plans to Handle Radiation Leaks

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that confidential papers of Ontario's environment ministry show the provincial government has no official plan to cope with possible major radiation leaks beyond the site of Pickering nuclear generating station, east of Toronto.

According to the papers, the provincial ministry of health is to blame, says the newspaper.

The situation is described in reports written by W. L. Dick, a special projects engineer with the environment ministry's industrial wastes branch.

Mr. Dick wrote:

"In December, 1970, the ministry of health was assigned the responsibility of developing an off-site contingency plan for the Pickering G.S. (Generating Station).

"This plan was to be completed prior to the start-up of the first unit in February, 1971. The plan has not yet been prepared even though Pickering G.S. is now at full power."

Later, a senior emergency planner with the provincial government confirmed that while Ontario Hydro has an emergency plan to cope with a radiation leak within the bounds of the Pickering site, no agreed plan exists for areas beyond the site.

"Something could be patched together in a hurry," he said.

The papers say the federal government's Atomic Energy Control Board (AECB) has set radiation emission limits so low that Canada's embryonic nuclear power industry could be given a "license to pollute."

And the provincial environment ministry cannot dispute these limits because it lacks experts in radioactivity, the papers reveal.

Mr. Dick said in his reports that Ontario Hydro tries to limit radiation discharges to one per cent of the federal limits.

He wrote that the AECB leaves the monitoring of radiation discharges to the operator of nuclear plants, conducting no independent testing.

Off-site monitoring of radiation discharges have not been a priority of the federal or provincial governments, Mr. Dick wrote.

The papers also show the environment ministry is incapable of checking the environmental impact of Ontario Hydro's plans to build four new generating stations, expand three existing ones and also expand the Bruce heavy water manufacturing plant on Lake Huron.

The papers show that the Emergency Measures branch has recently become involved in the question of a safety plan if a radiation leak outside the Pickering plant.

Dr. Jan Muller, a radiation expert with the health ministry, said later all technical work on an emergency plan has been completed. Some administrative problems—who will do what—are outstanding, he said.

But Dr. G. J. Sloppe, chief of the health ministry's environmental health effects service, denied that his ministry is in charge of drawing up the emergency plan.

Safety Record

SMOOTH ROCK FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The bleached kraft pulp mill in this northeastern Ontario town, operated by the Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., has achieved a safety record of one million consecutive manhours without a lost-time injury, a company spokesman said.

FLQ Cases Still Before Courts

MONTREAL (CP) — What is the record of arrests, charges and prosecutions in connection with the 1970 kidnap-murder crisis perpetrated by the Front de Liberation du Quebec?

Nearly three years after the events of the October crisis, the story is still unfolding in Montreal courtrooms, with the end not yet in sight.

The defence served notice of appeal in the case of Jacques Rose, now awaiting sentence following conviction on a charge of complicity after the fact of kidnapping in the case of Pierre Laporte, the Quebec Labor minister who was slain in captivity Oct. 17, 1970.

Prosecutor Fernand Cote told a reporter the outcomes of other appeals also are pending. Inspector Jean Coutellier, chief of the Quebec Provincial Police security service, recalled in an interview that 62 of the 463 persons arrested in the crisis were eventually charged, the majority having been released without any charges being laid. An independent jally indicated fewer than 30 convictions.

Jacques Rose was one of four young men arrested in an underground hideway Dec. 4, 1971, and charged with the murder and kidnapping of Pierre Laporte. The first of the four to escape conviction on both the major counts, he was convicted on the lesser charge of accessory in his fourth trial.

His older brother, Paul Rose, former teacher, was sentenced March 14, 1971, to life for the murder of Laporte. On Nov. 30, 1971, he was given another life sentence for his part in the kidnapping.

Francis Simard, given a life term for murder May 30, 1971, also was charged with kidnapping but has not been brought to trial on that charge.

Bernard Lortie was sentenced to 20 years in jail Nov. 23, 1971, after being found guilty of complicity in the Laporte kidnapping. The Crown has not proceeded against him with a charge of murder.

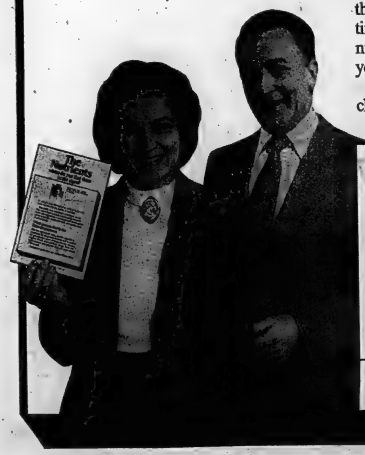
Joan Fielden, Dominion's home economist/consultant discusses

The Nutrients

How much nutrition do you need and where do you find it?



Shopping's easy, right! You buy meat in the meat department and fruit and vegetables at the produce counter. But what do you buy if you want to be sure your family's receiving their daily requirements of Niacin, Calcium or Iron? How much fish should you serve in a week? How much milk should you drink? What vitamin helps maintain healthy gums, and what foods do you look for to supply it?

Free this week - Guide #6

In her sixth guide Joan discusses The Nutrients: "Where do you find them in the store?" You'll also find helpful advice on buying and storing as well as a table that gives maximum time limits for maximum nutrition in the foods you freeze.

Available Free at our checkout counters.

Cooperman Resignation Accepted by UCS Board

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

At a hastily-called special meeting last night, the United Community Services board of directors accepted the resignation of executive director Isidore Cooperman.

Mr. Cooperman tendered his resignation for board consideration July 6 saying, "I think my usefulness has come to an end" as a result of a "vendetta" carried on by a "small group of determined people."

ISIDORE COOPERMAN

Acting UCS president, Wayne Wickson, said after the closed door meeting in St. Michael's rectory, Mr. Cooperman's resignation becomes effective August 31.

In a supplementary motion, Mr. Wickson said the board expressed not only its regrets, but even resentment at the sources and their alleged harassment directed toward Mr. Cooperman in his role as executive director.

Notice of meeting was delivered to board members either by hand or special delivery mail Friday, at which time no agenda was included. Implied topic of discussion was a "letter to the editor" which appeared in The Intelligencer last week. Original copies were included in each unsigned notice.

Penned by Citizens Bureau program director, William Hockley, the letter was critical of practices of the UCS board and Mr. Cooperman. In part, the letter called for lack of "secrecy" and "committee overkill".

Commenting after the meeting, Mr. Wickson said the letter "was the specific cause of the meeting. We discussed its implications but the general consensus was that it wasn't worth bothering with. The board didn't intend to do anything about it."

Purported reason for the meeting — Mr. Hockley's course from the UCS sponsored, federally-funded Citizens Bureau — was discussed but no action was taken, according to Mr. Wickson.

"One other decision was made. The board will initiate a search for Mr. Cooperman's replacement," said Mr. Wickson.

Rad Wrecked

A westend man who went outside to investigate a noise during the night found someone had pushed an iron bar through his grill and twisted the core of the radiator.

Garth Sharp, 99 Purdy St., told city police he saw an individual drive off on a moped cycle.

Damage to the radiator was $20. The incident took place shortly before 2 a.m.

Police Get Phony Five

City police Tuesday received a counterfeit $5 bill that had been deposited in the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

The bill, an old-style issue, bore the serial number S-X 2261210.

Picketers Call for of 'Empire'

Picketers carrying signs calling of an end to Cooperman's Empire" parade in front of St. Michael's Rectory on Church Street where the United Community Services board of directors held a special closed-door meeting last night. Spokesman Clarence Young (far left) stated the object of the protest was to initiate their disapproval of UCS executive director, Isidore Cooperman. UCS directors accepted the resignation Mr. Cooperman tendered for board consideration July 6.

Scrounging Is the Technique That Makes New Docks Possible

By HARRY MULBALL
Staff Reporter

Filling a crucial community need doesn't inevitably cost a fortune.

What you do, says Belleville city councillor Stu Meeks is scrounge.

Right now, Alderman Meeks is chauffeuring a prime example of his principle into reality — the city's Victoria Park dock installation which, he hopes, will ease pressure on the community's crammed leisure boat facilities — a need long felt in a city that is the biggest centre on the Bay of Quinte, a waterway now busier than ever with summer traffic.

To accommodate 40 boats, the new docks are being built on a $2,000 budget from city council, plus $1000 expected rentals. Had customary approaches been taken in its construction, the facility might well have cost seven times it much, believes Ald. Meeks.

"If we hadn't scrounged around for material — and without volunteer labor — the bill for the whole undertaking could have run as high as $20,000," he says.

What the project amounts to, is harnessing community goodwill to economically meet a community need — an approach espoused by the councillor when he ran for election last year.

At one candidates' meeting he called for more volunteer undertakings to ease demands on local governence and the municipal tax dollars.

The shortage of docking space for pleasure craft gave him a major opportunity to put his theory to the test. The problem is even more apparent this year, says the alderman whose business and recreation interests — boating enthusiast, skindiver, rescue-boat operator — keep him in constant contact with the waterfront.

Belleville, he says, is literally and figuratively "missing the boat" in not being able to offer boat facilities to touring yachtsmen and boatowners.

Almost every day in the present peak of summer holiday time, visiting craft turn away from the city for lack of docking space, says Ald. Meeks.

The chance to implement his plan for extra docks came in early June when city council granted the $2,000 to the Harbor Improvement Committee of which Ald. Meeks is chairman — to proceed with the proposal. Belleville parks board later approved the project.

Ald. Meeks meantime, already had been foraging community resources for the best prices on supplies.

One city heavy industry agreed to produce metal joists, another to drill the iron work ready for bolting — at a preferred prices.

The operator of a Hastings County lumber mill promised to furnish the needed lumber at what the councillor terms "bargain prices".

Labor — a major cost factor — also has been volunteered.

But the councillor did not wait for help when the first supplies of lumber arrived to start construction this week.

He shifted supplies to the park, where his household is moored, and went to work himself. Absence of an electrical outlet for power tools was solved by a portable generator.

Plans are to build 10 finger docks in four 10-foot sections. The sections will be joined and the docks floated on the west bank of the Moira River for mooring.

Ald. Meeks said he hopes the installation will be completed in maybe two weeks, when the facility will start generating rental revenue.

The docks will be removed during the winter — a time when the councillor, and the Harbor Improvements Committee will be pondering an even more ambitious undertaking.

It's an addition that could facilitate another 280 boats. An application already has been submitted for senior government works schemes, but comment to help would still be needed.

He's confident that project can be as willingly accomplished as its prototype now under construction.

Group Surveying Authority Lands

The Moira River Conservation Authority's three major parks are now being surveyed and planning guidelines are being drawn up for their development.

The survey is being done under the Ontario government's SWEEP program by three students, Kevin Murray of Belleville, Steve Rivers of Tweed and Patricia Patterson of Stirling.

Parks surveyed are the Price Conservation Area at Actinolite, the O'Hara's Mill Conservation Area northwest of Madoc and Col. Rorecon Area east of Thomasburg.

The Price Area was surveyed during May and maps and preliminary plans have been submitted to the Moira River Conservation Authority and the Conservation Authorities Branch of the ministry of natural resources. The Price Area has the shafts of two abandon ed gold mines and the ruins of a 19th century hammermill which once produced tools and implements for the surrounding area.

The surveying of O'Hara's Mill Area has also been completed. Among suggested developments are a demonstration sugarbush, a blacksmith shop and extended nature trails.

The team is now working on Vanderwater Park, a 600-acre area with many different types of land. General recommendations f the team cal for extension of camping facilities and further development of summer and winter activities.

Shoppers Festival Welcome

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

The Picton Shoppers' Festival sponsored by the Picton Merchants' Association opened here last week to stimulate business and attract tourists.

The merchants' group is behind this three - day program organized to revive sidewalk sales and good old summertime bargains. The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce has remained dormant in regard to summer store promotional projects for several years. In the effort to boost sales was a Centennial Year venture titled Loyalist Days. This program enjoyed several summer reruns but was cancelled about three years ago because of lack of participation.

The merchants' association has approximately 50 members in Picton and its shoppers' festival is geared to entertain summer visitors.

The festival opened Thursday with an auction sale and a tug-of-war between policemen and firemen. On Friday a bingo was held.

A street dance tonight will provide the climax for the three-day shoppers' spree and will be highlighted by a draw for a trip to Barbados, a television and a tape recorder.

The shoppers' festival is an by the majority of Main Street merchants. It indicates the businessman's recognition of the need for summer promotional programs to boost sales and drive traffic.

Although the chamber of commerce did not come forward with a scheme for the good old summertime, the Picton merchants' association has evolved to fill this need.

It's a long hot summer and activities such as the shoppers' festival offer a welcome break for tourists and local residents alike.

Children's Carnivals For MD Association

The Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada has a novel way of raising money to finance its battle against the disease.

It is promoting outdoor summer carnivals organized by children in their own neighborhoods. Each year the number of carnivals increases, and children are now making sizeable contributions to the association.

Games to be featured are penny sale, penny pitch, pot ball, Canadian woodsmen, pie toss, marble shot and fortune telling.

Boyce Book Praised In Review

Hutton of Hastings, Gerald Boyce's widely acclaimed account of William Hutton and early settlement days in colonial Ontario, has received more praise.

The Canadian Historical Review, in its June issue, calls the book a "small mint of rich material" and comments it as being "of considerably more than local importance".

Published quarterly, the Review is the journal of the Canadian Historical Association, Canada's leading historical organization.

Hutton of Hastings appeared last year after Mr. Boyce, vice-principal of Moira Secondary School and president of Hastings County Historical Society, spent several years placing Hutton's letters in historical and biographical context. It was produced as a commemorative project by Hastings County Council.

The Review says it is Hutton's views upon the state of education and its need for reform that are of particular value since they appear to have had an effect on the thinking of Egerton Ryerson.

Also useful are Hutton's "daily comments" on the chromores of his new society, his explanations of his difficulties as a farmer and his reflections upon politics and policies as they affected him in Hastings County.

The review was written by G. H. Patterson of the University of Toronto.

Money Not the Object Of All Public Servants

In these inflationary times with ever-higher salaries and honorariums for people in public service, the frequent claim that good people can't be attracted to public life without making it financially attractive, doesn't get any support from at least one former Belleville alderman.

Benjamin Safe, of A. Safe and Sons Ltd., Station Street scrap metal dealers, with 14 years' public service to his credit, feels there are still enough public spirited Canadians willing to serve their municipality without an accompanying price tag.

Mr. Safe served as alderman on city council for four years in the "hungry" thirties — from 1933 to 1936 — and again from 1954 to 1956, but refused to accept any payment for his services.

Neither did he accept any service on the utilities commission or for a similar term on the local high school board.

"I don't agree that you can not get good people to serve on council unless you pay them a good salary," Mr. Safe says.

But at the same time t'h

$1,000 for Brighton

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has voted a donation of $1,000 to the village of Brighton to offset storm damage there earlier this month.

The donation will be matched dollar for dollar by the provincial government, which declared Brighton a disaster area following the July 13 windstorm that damaged public and private property. A relief fund opened in the village this week.

long - time Belleville businessman admits that he hasn't much support for the feeling that residents should be prepared to offer their services gratis.

"These days everyone seems to be out for the dollar," he says.

Although at the time he was still in his early 30s, during his term on council in the depression years of the mid-1930s Mr. Safe served as chairman of the city council welfare committee and later as chairman of the public works committee.

Mr. Safe was first elected at the age of 23 and claims to be the youngest alderman ever to serve the city.

Now in his early 60s, Mr. Safe is the only former council member living who served on the council in 1933, the first year which he served as alderman.

Program Postponed

TRENTON — Apple-bobbing has been introduced to the Olympic event list, at least for 200 Trenton children who will take part in the Junior Olympics Thursday at Trenton High School.

The Olympics originally were scheduled for Wednesday. But the threat of rain forced organizers to choo se Thursday.

The events begin on the high school's playing field at 9.30 a.m. and should continue until late afternoon.

The participants, aged 6-11 years, are all from town-operated playgrounds.

Drain Tenders Opened Today

At its next monthly meeting, Thurlow Township council will consider tenders submitted by Quinte area firms for construction of the municipal open drain approved by the Ontario Municipal Board this spring.

Tenders contending the contract will have been opened their tenders by noon today, said township clerk-treasurer, Clare Horton, this morning.

The drain originates in the third concession of Tyendinaga Township, runs approximately eight miles westerly before emptying into the Moira River at Consecon.

The installation of the drain is intended to improve the drainage of the area's low lying land during spring runoff.

Now It's Work

City councillor Stu Meeks — with helping hand from volunteer Brad DeMille — begins work on new docks for Victoria Park pleasure craft rendezvous. Community goodwill greatens reduce actual cost of project. groups are expected to greatly reduce actual cost of project.

National League Romps to 7-1 Win

Bench, Bonds, Davis Blast Away

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A roast beef sandwich sat untouched before Sparky Anderson's desk, but he hardly glanced at it. He found the taste of victory better.

"This is great satisfaction to me," said the manager after the National League team defeated the American League 7-1 Tuesday night in the 44th All-Star baseball game.

The messing was obvious, for the Cincinnati Reds' skipper had finally broken a personal losing streak against the other league. He had lost two World Series and the 1971 All-Star game prior to Tuesday night's overwhelming success.

JOHNNY BENCH

"It was nervous before the game," said Anderson, "probably as nervous as the players. I really had butterflies."

But that uptight feeling vanished about the middle of the game, when the Nationals pulled away on home run power supplied by Johnny Bench, Bobby Bonds and Willie Davis.

"I was really thrilled with the way things were going," said the seven-layered Anderson. "I knew that we weren't going to have any trouble tonight."

For a brief moment, it appeared that Anderson's bad luck would continue against the American League. A double by Reggie Jackson followed by a single by Amos Otis gave the Americans a 1-0 lead in the second inning before a partisan crowd of 40,849 at Royals Stadium.

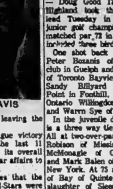
But then Anderson's own Reds helped produce the first four runs for the Nationals. Cincinnati's Pete Rose and Joe Morgan scored on singles by Cesar Cedeno and Bench also in the second.

The Reds' Bench smashed a long home run into the left field seats in the third and Morgan doubled and scored on Bonds' homer in the fifth. Davis finished the Nationals' long-ball attack with a two-run shot in the sixth.

Anderson said he was having too good a time to notice that his three Cincinnati players scored those game-breaking runs.

"It certainly helped to have Cincinnati players in there," said Anderson with a grin. "Those are three pretty good players, too."

Anderson found satisfaction too, in watching Bonds' performance. The San Francisco outfielder also got a double and was voted the game's most valuable player.



"Right now, he's baseball's most outstanding player," said Anderson, who had made a point of complimenting the player before the game. "When he hit his home run, I thanked him for backing me up."

Bonds' award, over the 385-foot mark in left centre, came off a slider on the outside part of the plate from California ace Bill Singer.

Like Anderson, American League manager Dick Williams of Oakland A's began his managing career with the old Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League. He had left a hospital bed after an appendicitis operation just last Thursday to manage in the game.

"I was feeling okay—until they started to bat," he said. "Then I felt a little pain.

"I got a little twinge when

WILLIE DAVIS

those balls started leaving the park."

The National League victory was its 10th in the last 11 games and boosted its overall series edge in All-Star affairs to 26-18 with one tie.

"I guess it proves that the National League All-Stars were better than the American League All-Stars this year—and 16 of the last 21 years as well."

Stapleton Eyeing Mikita

CHICAGO (CP) — Pat Stapleton joined the World Hockey Association's Chicago Cougars Tuesday and announced his first job will be to convince Stan Mikita to join him.

"I'd love to have Stan with me and I hope we can talk him into joining us," said Stapleton who signed a five-year contract as Cougars' playing-coach.

The Cougars would not say what the contract was worth but unconfirmed reports put it at about $1 million, including a $150,000 signing bonus.

Stapleton thus became the second major star to to leave the National Hockey League Chicago Black Hawks for the WHA. Left winger Bobby Hull, who jumped to Winnipeg Jets last year, was the first.

Stapleton, 33, a veteran of eight seasons with the Black Hawks and a nine-time NHL all-star, replaces Marcel Pronovost as coach of the Cougars who finished last in the WHA West Division last season.

Pronovost, after a year remaining on his contract, will be offered another post in the Cougar organization.

Bill Wirtz, Black Hawks president, expressed surprise Tuesday that Stapleton had joined the Cougars before the NHL's Aug. 10 deadline on contract offers.

"Pat must have gotten a great offer to have closed the door in such a hurry," said Wirtz.

Stapleton said he had not personally talked with the Hawks concerning a new contract.

"I left that up to my agent, he said.

Canadian Indy Race Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — Harvey Haden, president of Mosport Park racing circuit, said Tuesday he has cancelled the Canadian Indy road race scheduled for Aug. 5.

"We are faced with the unpleasant duty of cancelling the race," he said in a statement. "As of the entry deadline of Sunday midnight past we h a d received only seven entries.

"We feel the United Sates Auto Club (USAC) did not deliver the names of drivers and cars which we were led to believe we could have. . . .

"It is not the intention of ourselves . . . to attempt to deceive the public or media and therefore we have no choice other than to withdraw."

4 Swimmers Set Records

QUEBEC (CP) — Four Canadian records fell Tuesday at the Canadian intercollegiate championships, but one of the record-setters was not happy.

The Canadian Dolphins Swimming Club of Vancouver set a record in the women's 800-metre medley relay to cap off the evening which saw Marian Stuart establish a record in the women's 100-metre breaststroke, Brian Phillips splash to a record in the men's 100-metre freestyle and David Brummell set a standard in the men's 400-metre individual medley.

But the winners were the Dolphins' men in the 800-metre medley relay, Wendy Cook of Vancouver in the 100-metre freestyle, Peter Hrdlicka of Vernon, B.C., and a member of the Dolphins, in the 100-metre breaststroke and Leslie Cliff in the 400-metre individual medley.

The dissatisfied winner was Brummell, who had hoped for a better time than the 4:45.5 he registered.

The old record was 4:40.0 set by Edmonton's George Smith in 1969.

"It was shooting for a better time as I wasn't all that pleased in 1968 with what I did, even though it was a new record," Brummell said.

"I should be at least three to five seconds faster over-all. I need more training—that's all."

Miss Stuart, a 17-year-old junior college student from Pointe Claire, Que., splashed to a time of 1:16.1 in her win, eculpsing a record she set in the preliminary heats in the morning.

In the heat, she was timed in 1:17.3, three-tenth of a second faster than the record she set last year.

Phillips, a native of Winnipeg, snapped his old mark in the freestyle, covering the distance in 58.97 seconds. His previous record was 59.5 set in 1972.

The Dolphins' women's relay team was timed in 9:04.02 to better the old mark of 9:08.8 it held.

In the men's relay, the Dolphins were clocked in 8:51.1, well off the Canadian record.

Miss Cook was timed in 1:02.6 in the 100-metre freestyle and she was followed by Miss Cliff in 1:04.7.

Hrdlicka was timed in 1:08.3 in the 100-metre breaststroke.

Miss Cliff's time was 5:08.1 in the 400-metre individual medley, well off the record of 5:02.3 she holds.

John Vice One Stroke Off Pace

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Doug Good 17, of London Highland took the first-round lead Tuesday in the Ontario junior golf championship. Good matched par,72 in a round that included three birdies.

One shot back with 73s are Peter Bonanza of the Cutten club in Guelph and Mike Meade of Toronto Bayview. At 74 are Sandy Billyard of Lookout Point in Fonthill, a member of Ontario Willingdon Cup team, and Warren Lye of Weston.

In the juvenile division, there is a three way tie for the lead at two-over-par 74 as Glen Robison of Mississauga, Gary McMonagle of Credit Valley and Mark Balen of South Shore, New York. At 75 are John Vice of Bay of Quinte and Charles Slaughter of Sleepy Hollow in Smithville.

The 36-hole championship concludes today.

Thomas Goes to Work

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Duane Thomas appeared ready Tuesday to play football for Washington Redskins even if he didn't want to talk about it.

Thomas, obtained from San Diego Chargers last Thursday for two high draft choices, joined the Redskins at the training camp here and quickly won praise from coach George Allen and one of his assistants, Charlie Waller.

"Duane's in good shape," said Waller. "He's in better shape than I thought he would be.

"He picked up the offence pretty well," said Allen.

Thomas, along with his agent Abner Haynes, arrived at the camp Tuesday morning just prior to the Redskins taking the field, talked briefly with Allen and then donned shoulder pads, shorts and helmet for the work out.

He declined to meet with reporters.

One-hitter

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Fifteen-year-old Rick Joyal threw a one-hitter Tuesday night as Windsor Sandwich whipped Ojibways Canterbury 7-0 in the Ontario Senior Little League baseball championships.

Joyal struck out 13 to high-light the day's play.

Thunder Bay National American entered Cambridge 12-11 in another game.

Courts Under Water Anyone for Tennis?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rain continued to plague Canadian closed tennis championships Tuesday, forcing a suspension of play in the late afternoon with a dozen matches uncompleted.

The heavy downpour left about half the Winnipeg Kanoe Club courts under water. Officials rescheduled the matches for early today, with those in progress at the time the storm hit resuming at the point where play was halted.

In matches completed, the top three seeded women all won second-round matches easily, but two of the seeded men fell in the shuffle.

Ken Binns of Toronto, No. 7, demolished Peter Burwash, also of Toronto, No. 2, 6-4, 6-2 and the 1971 champion came back to win the first set, beating Binns 7-6, 6-4, 6-4.

"Those were almost the identical scores I had with him the last time we played," Burwash said. "Actually I should have won the third set a little easier. At 2-0 my plan was to tire him, but I threw a game. Then he played a good game and he was right back in it."

Binns had Burwash running all over the court in the first set, sending the former champion into the corners with hard cross-court smashes and then piling up points with chips to the opposite corners.

"I served better than any player here," Burwash said.

The other seed to fall was Jim Boyce of Scarborough, Ont. Boyce dropped a 2-6, 6-3, 6-4 decision to Chris Burr of

Mackey Retires

Mackey, 31, was a three-time All Pro and a five-time Pro Bowl performer during the National Football League seasons with Baltimore Colts.

After a bitter farewell in Baltimore, he signed with San Diego Chargers as a free agent last year.

Mackey caught 331 passes in the National Football League career that began in 1963 when the Colts drafted him No. 1 from Syracuse University.

He was voted the best tight end of the NFL; a first 36 years in a poll taken in 1971.

Etobicoke, Ont.

Ilires had after breezing through the first set, tired in the second and Burr, with a good forcing game kept Ilires on the left hand back court much of the time, and well-placed chip shots and overhand smashes to take the triumph.

"I was worried after that first set, as I felt Burr was tired at the right time," Burr said afterwards. "He can demolish me at the baseline game so I had to come up and force him."

Top-seeded Tony Bardsley of Vancouver barely worked up a sweat in winning his first match 6-0, 6-1 and Keith Carpbetter of Toronto, No. 2, had only a little more trouble in his initial outing, winning 6-2, 6-4.

Kitchener Improves Grip on Third Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener strengthened its hold on third place in the Eastern division of th Ontario Fastball League downing fourth-place Guelph Maltlands 5-2.

In other games, Niagara Falls defeated Woodstock 4-3 and, in a battle of division cellar dwellers, Welland beat St. Catharines 5-4.

Keith Wagler struck out 12 batters and allowed five hits as he won for Kitchener. Loan starter Dave Cox pitched seven innings giving up five hits, and was tagged for the loss. Reliever Dick Hamas pitched no-hit ball the rest of the way for London.

Ron Hershaw's solo home run for Kitchener as five batters had a hit each for the winners.

Harry Bartley and Bill Shadlock both had two hits for London.

Kitchener now is 1½ games in front of London.

Neudorf allowed five hits picking up the win and control ted a home run in the seco inning and a screaming doub in the fourth.

Dave Cooke and Frank Fal ner also added two hits as Niagara Falls produced eight hi off relief pitcher Bill Pollin.

Stan Lamb had two hits f Woodstock.

Latta in Playoffs

Latta has had its ups and downs in this year's South Hastings Fastball League roller - coaster ride but when a playoff spot finally presented itself they were at their peak.

Latta clinched a playoff spot and moved into a second place tie with Shannonville Tuesday night by blanking idle cellar dwelling Reserve 13-2.

John Pepper was the man of the hour for Latta throwing a one hitter over the six inning contest. He struck out four and walked one. Glenn Marsh collected for the only hit the Reserve could manage.

John Masterson led the winners in the hitting department with a home run. Reg Abrams added two doubles and a single and Damon Richardson punched a double and two singles. Dave Deed had two singles for Latta who have put together a winning streak to offset a poor start.

Bob Reid lasted only a third of an inning for the Reserve giving up seven runs. Glenn Marsh pitched the remainder of the game.

Bantams On Spree

Ajax may still be cleaning up after the destruction the Belleville Bantam B's rained on them in Tuesday night's South Central Lacrosse Association action.

Ten players joined in the goal scoring binge as Belleville rolled over the home Ajax team 17-2.

The winners netted six tallies in the first and poured in nine more in the second over a short staffed Ajax squad. Belleville outscored their hosts 2-1 in the final period.

Wood and Morelon answered for Ajax.

Jerry's Clicks For 26 Runs

Jerry's Motorcycle didn't spare the horses in their Thurlow Baseball Association tyke contest with Foxboro Cheese Factory Monday. Before the dust had cleared, Jerry's had a 26-6 win in the records.

Mike Emerson and Steven Wellman shared the pitching for the winners and they each belted a home run. Terry Radford connected for a pair of round trippers for the winners.

ZUGER RELEASED

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (CP) — Joe Zuger, formerly of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, who was recently picked up on waivers from Detroit Lions, was cut Tuesday by Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, leaving the team with just one punter, Spike Jones.

"All you have to do is go back into the record box, Reg I have to go home and face the wife"

Jewellers Top Mosquitoes

The Doug Jones Jeweller Flyers proved to be too hard a gem to crack for the Mosquito All-stars in a Belleville Minor Soccer Association pee-wee game Tuesday night.

The Flyers were hard pressed at times but managed to pull through to a 2-0 victory over the mosquitoes.

Steve Jessup and Tom Decker scored the winners' goals and Mike Wright earned the shutout.

Steve Molenaar is up in the air about Tuesday's Belleville Playground Track and Field meet but the touchdown was his main concern during his attempt at the long jump. The OSD track facilities were put to good use by more than 300 participants at the yearly event.

Mark Watson had six goals to lead the Whitby crew with Steve Case adding two and Dwayne Allison and Mike Raddell adding the single markers.

For the Belleville team it was Rick Barbeau and John Lowe with two goals each. Roger Chapman and Brent Walmsley tallied the singles.

Atom Flyers Are Fenced In

Supreme Fencing defeated the Atom Flyers 4-1 in a game played Monday night in Bay of Quinte Minor Soccer Mosquito action. Andy Empey had the hat trick for the winners while Steve Thompson had the odd tally. Paul Martin had the only goal for the Flyers.

Bardon Hex Rollins Again

By AL TEBWORTH

Bardon Supplies continued their mastery over Rollins Construction last night as they downed the Big Red Machine for the third time in four starts by a 3-1 score. In the other Commercial Softball League game, Howard and Robert defeated the Ellis Jrs. on only three hits, 7-0.

The Rollins — Bardon game had started out calmly enough, with only two baserunners in the first four innings but the next two told the story of the upset.

Rollins opened the scoring with a run in the bottom of the fifth. Dave Akey doubled and was sacrificed to third by Glen Carleton. After Dave Lott struck out, Ted Wallace drove Akey in with a single.

The top of the sixth was Bardon's inning. They collected their only runs of the game in the inning but they were enough to put the Constructionmen down for their second loss of the week.

Bill Dessy drew a walk with two out and Ted Wallwork followed with a home run for the winning hit. They then added an insurance run as Sid Davies singled and scored on Dave Akey's error.

Bill Harrison pitched the win for Bardon, allowing six hits. He struck out five and did not walk a man. Larry Griffin started for Rollins, going three perfect innings before being relieved by Ted Walle. Griffin struck out three men in the three innings he worked. Walle allowed all three Bardon runs, on three hits while fanning four and giving up one free pass.

Wallwork led the Bardon hitters with his home run, while Sid Davies and Gary Johnston had the only other hits for the winners. Dave Akey had a double and a triple for the losers. Larry Griffin had a double while Wayne McTaggart, Dave Lott, and Ted Walle had singles.

Howard and Robert Printing moved two points closer to third place Angus Mcn's Wear with their 2-0 shutout of the Ellis Juniors. Howard and Robert scored both their runs in the bottom of the first inning to record the victory their ninth of the season.

Dwight Bathwell drew a walk to start the rally, and Bob Ethier doubled the runner home. Bob Sweet then drove Ethier in with a triple.

The Juniors had several runners in scoring position throughout the game, but could not cash in on their opportunities.

Sweet threw the win for the Printers, allowing six hits. He struck out five and walked one. Ron Hill was the rake for the Juniors, allowing three hits while whiffing two and giving up one walk.

Swan had his triple to add to Ethier's double for the winners. Dwight Rathwell had the other hit for the Printers.

Dave Horwood and Pete Stalikovich each had a double and single for the Juniors, while Dale Akey and John Romano collected base hits.

AOCO Cooler

Stewart Warner and The Intelligencer have been hot on the heels of eastern division fourth spot holders AOCO but Tuesday night by taking a 7-2 Industrial Softball League decision over the Utilities.

Stewart Warner was held to a 4-4 tie by Canadian Tire in another game and the results left AOCO three points up on the intell and Warner-men who are tied for fifth place.

Wally Hall fired a five hitter for the Opticals, striking out six and walking two. His win came over the Utilities' Wilson Bulpitt who was touched for 10 hits.

Ron Wale smashed a triple and single for the winners who hold on to the final playoff berth in the east. Terry Kellar reached for three singles and Grant Collett for two doubles.

Jack Banville had a double and single and Bulpit two singles for the Utilities.

Stewart Warner had a 3-1 lead after one inning but had to rally for a run in the fourth to earn the tie with Canadian Tire.

The Tiremen reached Warner pitcher Dave Marvin for 15 hits but couldn't produce the winning tally. Andy Prince struck out two doubles and two singles and Bruce Clark a double and two singles for CTC.

Frieden buried a seven hitter on the Tire mound. Ken Tracie and Marvin hit him for home runs and Bill Lynch notched three singles as the Warner lad to pass the Intell fell a point shy.

In the final game of the night the Intelligencer moved into third place in the western division by virtue of a 9-0 forfeit win from Constellation.

Western Tire Edges Shell

Western Tire kept within striking distance of first place in Belleville Minor Softball Association peewee action Tuesday night by edging the Shell Combines 7-6.

Tim Soule hurled the Tiremen to their sixth win of the season by striking out 12 Shell batters. Barry Price had a double and single and John McKnight two singles for the winners who remain four points off the pace set by Chase's Grocery.

Tony Miller hammered a home run and single and Darren Millar pulled a triple for the Combines.

ADDERLEY TRADED

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Veteran defensive back Herb Adderley was acquired by Los Angeles Rams Tuesday in a National Football League trade which sent rookie guard Bill Dulac to New England Patriots. Adderley, 31, has played nine years with Green Bay Packers and three with Dallas Cowboys.

Wide Edge for CFL East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

11 pre-season exhibition games are any gauge in the Canadian Football League, Eastern Conference teams appear to hold the balance of power at the start of the 1973 schedule.

Toronto Argonauts ran the East's record in games against Western Conference foes to six wins, a loss and a tie when they defeated the winless Calgary Stampeders 21-18 in Calgary Tuesday night.

In other games on the final night of the exhibition schedule, Ottawa Roughriders hung on for a 13-9 win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats and British Columbia Lions defeated Edmonton Eskimos 36-13.

Alouettes each finished with three wins and one defeat, the best records in the country. Montreal's only loss was also the East's only defeat, a 23-14 Eskimo triumph July 6.

The Eskimos, Lions and Saskatchewan Rough Riders had the best western records, with two wins and two losses each.

Calgary had a chance for their first exhibition win when Marion Latimore intercepted a pass by Toronto quarterback Mike Rae at mid-field.

On a third-down play on the Toronto 39-yard-line, Stampeder quarterback Jerry Keeling had wide receiver Gerry Shaw in the clear in the end zone, but was just short with his pass.

A 75-yard Joe Theisman to Eric Allen pass-and-run play and a 30-yard run by Leon McQuay produced Toronto touchdowns. Place-kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn converted both and kicked a single and two field goals.

Peter Liske, returning to the Stampeders after a tour of the National Football League, found receiver Harry Copeland with a pass from 34 yards out for one touchdown and Silas McKinnie ran 12 yards for the other.

The Lions used a grind-it-out running game and a tough defence to win a hard-hitting game that featured a number of roughing penalties and ended with Edmonton flanker Bobby Taylor battling with B.C. defensive back Barry Arden as the two teams filed off the field.

Don Moorhead and Munro Eley each got B.C. touchdowns on runs, while Moorhead threw a 19-yard touchdown pass to Johnny Musso on the game's final play. Ted Gerela added two converts and a pair of field goals.

Tom Wilkinson passed to Calvin Harrell for the only Edmonton touchdown in the first quarter. Dave Oaker added a convert, a field goal and a single.

A series of penalties gave Hamilton seven downs in which to score a go-ahead touchdown from inside the Ottawa 13 in the last minute. Their last three chances were from the two.

A 18-yard pass from Rick Cassata to Lee Fobbs, Gerry Organ's field goal and single, and a two-point safety conceded by Alec Lockington accounted for Ottawa's points.

Bill Eiter threw a 13-yard pass to Tony Gabriel for Hamilton's only touchdown and Ian Sunter, who missed the convert, kicked a field goal.

Rentzel Suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Lance Rentzel, wide receiver with Los Angeles Rams, has been suspended for the 1973 season for conduct detrimental to the National Football League.

Rentzel has been under probation after being indicted for indecent exposure and, on another occasion, for possession of marijuana.

Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, said Tuesday in a formal announcement that he had notified Rentzel by letter of the action, adding that the player migh apply for reinstatement at the end of the 1973 season.

Rentzel's status will be reviewed at that time if such an application is made, Rozelle added.

Sarnia Girl Wins Twice

TORONTO (CP) — Unseeded Maureen Glaab of Sarnia scored a pair of victories Tuesday in the girls' under 16 division of the Ontario closed junior tennis championships.

She beat seeded Vickie Robinson of Toronto 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 in the morning, then downed unseeded Cathy Ophel of Ottawa 6-2, 6-2 in the afternoon.

The only other seeded player defeated Tuesday was Lynne Shami of Toronto, who lost to Gil White of St. Catharines 6-7, 6-3 in the boys' 16 and under division.

Owen Sound Drops Out

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — The Owen Sound entry in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League will not operate in the 1973-74 franchise, it was announced Tuesday.

W.R. Dare and Ian Thomson, who had been attempting to form a new team executive to meet a league deadline of July 25, said there was insufficient time to find solutions to the club's financial problems.

Last year's president, Harold Kendrick, resigned two weeks ago.

The club will ask the OHA for permission to suspend operations for one season and retain playing rights to players on its 1972-73 roster, provided it re-enters the league for the 1974-75 season.

Sport Briefs

MOVES TO STARS

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Joe Mullaney, head coach of Kentucky Colonels for the last two years, was named Tuesday as new coach of the rival Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association. The Stars head coach position had been open since the end of the last season, when LaDell Andersen resigned to become athletic director at Utah State University.

KELLEY GONE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles Tuesday dropped veteran linebacker Ike Kelley, a captain of the specialty teams who was sidelined last season with an injured knee. Also cut from the National Football League club roster were Bill Cody, linebacker, and Ted Hand, a free agent centre.

WILCOX OUT

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pitcher Milt Wilcox of Cleveland Indians has been placed on the 21-day disabled list, an Indians spokesman said Tuesday Wilcox was spiked during an American League baseball game with Oakland and suffered torn ligaments.

TO SERVE THEM ALL MY DAYS — R. F. Deiderfield.

This last novel of R. F. Deiderfield is a long and loving look at the boys and masters of a West Country public school in the years between World Wars I and II. It displays to the fullest, his narrative skills and his feeling for the English national character and the pageant of English history.

MONTROSE — The Captain-General — Nigel Tranter

This is the story of James Grahsem, the great Marquis of Montrose. It began in the earlier novel by Mr. Tranter called "The Young Montrose". Now, James Grahsem goes from the sorrowful aftermath through further chains of triumph to complete mastery of Scotland and a position to endanger Cromwell's England. After betrayal and desertion and his exile on the Continent, he meets Elizabeth, sister of his imprisoned master Charles. Charles' execution takes Montrose back to Scotland on a forlorn hope.

NETHERGATE — Norah Lofts

Nethergate is a house with a brooding, palpable oresence. Into it comes Isabella, a refugee from the French Revolution, a poor relation who does not find refuge there for long. For the sake of her daughter, Annabell, she suffers years of deprivation, fighting for the girl's happiness in a hostile world. The fortunes of these two are told by Norah Lofts with great sympathy and an intense awareness of what it was like, in those days, to be a woman in a man's world.

THE BROKEN BOUGH — Iris Bromige

Harriet's charming, self-centred actor-father was delighted when she broke off her engagement to Kevin. But was she right in doing so, and the book tells the real reason behind her decision.

THE HOLLOW HILLS — Mary Stewart

In this new novel, Mary Stewart tells the story of Merlin, and of the boyhood of Arthur from his birth to his accession to the throne of England. The countryside of England and Wales in the Dark Ages forms an almost tangible background with changing seasons, green rides through dark forests, and Merlin's cave above Carnarthen — to this wonderfully and powerfully realised picture of a hero come to manhood.

SADIE SHAPIRO'S KNITTING BOOK — Robert Kimmel Smith

Sadie Shapiro naively submits 36 of her best knitting patterns to a third-rate publishing house and the world learns that she is much more than the average little 72-year-old lady in tennis shoes who jogs as enthusiastically as she knits.

A GALLERY OF GHOSTS — Andrew Mackenzie

These ghost stories are the more enticing because they are taken from the personal experiences of such well known writers as Osbert Sitwell, C. G. Jung, L. A. Strong, Nigel Marsh and John Masters. It is a wonderful collection, and will provoke speculation on the entire field of paranormal experience.

Ship Refitted

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — The Bluenose II, replica of the famed Nova Scotia racing schooner, is being refitted at an estimated cost of $250,000. Tourism Minister Fraser Mooney said the, ship, when overhauled, will be used as a major tourist attraction and promotion vehicle. A good portion of the ship's time will be spent in Halifax where it will be available for harbor cruises and special charters.

Ehrlichman's Testimony Conflicts With That of Half Dozen Witnesses

J. D. EHRLICHMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman, his testimony in conflict with that of at least six others, faced renewed questioning today by the Senate Watergate committee.

Senator Daniel Inouye (Dem., Hawaii) said he was astounded by denials of Watergate complicity by the former presidential aide, who began his appearance Tuesday.

Committee chairman Sam Ervin challenged Ehrlichman openly on some elements of his story.

Committee chief counsel Samuel Dash, asked if he would care to comment on the former presidential adviser's credibility, said: "I'm more tempted now than with any other witness."

Dash said he was only about one-fifth through with his interrogation of Ehrlichman.

Tuesday the former chief domestic adviser:

—Said he is innocent of any wrongdoing in the Watergate affair.

—Accused ousted White House Counsel John Dean of responsibility for the Watergate cover-up and of lying to the committee.

—Denied testimony of former presidential lawyer Herbert Kalmbach, who swore Ehrlichman assured him payments to the Watergate lawyers and defendants were proper.

—Denied authorizing the 1971 burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, which he said was a legal, national-security operation that would not have been embarrassing even if exposed during last year's presidential campaign.

—Denied asking the Central Intelligence Agency to aid Howard Hunt, who took part in both the Ellsberg and Watergate jobs.

—Denied asking CIA officials to make up an excuse to interfere with the FBI's tracking down of Mexican financial links between the Watergate buggers and the Nixon re-election campaign.

By the end of the first day of testimony, Ehrlichman's story conflicted with those of Dean, Kalmbach, former acting FBI director Patrick Gray, and CIA officials Robert Cushman, Richard Helms and Vernon Walters.

Ervin particularly challenged Ehrlichman's assertion that White House money and campaign funds paid secretly to the Watergate lawyers and burglars were a legal defense fund similar to those set up by committees to aid Ellsberg and black militant Angela Davis.

"But do you not think most of the people contributed to their funds because they believed in the causes they stood for?" Ervin said.

"I assume that," Ehrlichman said.

"Well, certainly the Committee to Re-elect the President and the White House aides like yourself did not believe in the cause of burglars or wiretappers, did you?"

"No," Ehrlichman said.

He said the idea was to get good lawyers for the Watergate defendants and so delay the wiretapping trial until after the election. "That trial would have some political impact and good representation was, simply essential," he said.

Ervin also challenged Ehrlichman's contention that the president had the constitutional power and obligation to authorize the burglary to obtain psychiatric records of Daniel Ellsberg, the man who gave the Pentagon papers to newspapers, because the president is empowered "to do anything necessary" to defeat "foreign intelligence threats."

Ehrlichman said he specifically authorized a "covert operation" to examine files of Ellsberg's psychoanalyst, but decided that he authorized a burglary or even anything illegal or unethical. He said he believed a trained investigator could get the medical information from a doctor or nurse in some acceptable fashion.

Ehrlichman said the Soviet embassy had obtained the Pentagon papers prior to their publication in newspapers, and the conspirators who gave away the secret papers included some with "previous ties to domestic Communist activities."

Soviet diplomats have denied receiving the papers.

Ehrlichman quoted Nixon as saying in March that the breakin had been a constitutional, national-security operation. Nixon said May 22 he didn't authorize the break-in, didn't know about it ahead of time and would have stopped it if he had.

Former CIA deputy director Cushman testified in May that Ehrlichman called him in July 1971, before the Ellsberg burglary, and told h i m to give Hunt any help he would ask for. Among other things, Hunt got a camera, disguises and fake identification. Ehrlichman denied calling Cushman at all.

Former CIA Director Helms and deputy director Walters testified in May that Ehrlichman asked them to tell the FBI that secret CIA Mexican operations might be uncovered should agents follow the trail of Nixon campaign cash, but they replied that CIA operations were in no danger.

The money was traced eventually from Mexico City to the Miami bank account of a Watergate burglar.

Ehrlichman swore that Walters and Helms failed to give such a flat assurances that CIA secrets were safe.

In other Watergate developments:

—A federal judge ordered Nixon campaign fund raisers to disclose within 60 days a list of secret contributors to the 1972 campaign. The order came in a suit filed by Common Cause, the citizen's lobby.

—The top investigator for the Senate Watergate committee was accused by Republicans of spying on he 1960 Nixon campaign. Carmine Bellino denied the allegation, saying it was intended to disrupt the committee's current investigation.

Stratford's Pericles Called A Stunning Visual Production

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — William Shakespeare's play, Pericles, has just about died from the repertoire of most theatre companies. But it was revived here Tuesday night by the Stratford Shakespearean Festival.

If it catches on with festival audiences, it could have a long run into next season. And if festival audiences are looking for stunning costumes and stage effects, this production should suit them.

The opening-night capacity audience gave shouts of "bravo" and a standing ovation to the leading actors this evening. Edward Atienza as the narrator, Gower, and Nicholas Pennel as the Prince of Tyre, Pericles.

It's a large, sprawling work, travelling hither and thither across the eastern Mediterranean from Antioch to Tyre, Tharsus, Pentapolis, Ephesus and Mytilene, and points in between, with at least two storms at sea on the way.

Transferring this action to the Stratford stage called principally on the talents of designer Leslie Hurry, who set the various scenes by style of costuming.

The storms at sea were heightened by tape recordings of the great organ in St. Joseph's Oratory on Mount Royal in Montreal, and the Temple of Diana is made a scene of revelling mists.

The story is that of a young Greek god-like prince driven to amnesia by the tragedies that befall his wife and daughter, only in the end to be reunited with both after thinking them dead.

Pamela Brook has the leading lady role as Marina, Pericles' daughter, and Amelia Hall has the role of the original bawdy mistress of a brothel. . . .

Tony Van Bridge plays Simonides, the king of Pentapolis, with comic flare.

In all, the program lists 42 named parts, and assorted soldiers, lords, clients, vestal virgins and whores.

It is the first time in Stratford's 21 years that Pericles has been produced, and there is only one other work by the Bard of Avon that the Stratford company here has not yet essayed, Titus Andronicus.

Theatre critics blew hot and cold on the production.

Urjo Kareda of the Toronto Star wrote that presentation was "stolid, dutiful and unenchanted," and Herbert Whittaker of the Toronto Globe and Mail wrote that it was "a fairtale world unveiled, . . . so lovingly, so lavishly and with such corporate creativity."

Most of the reviewers wrote at length about the questionable authenticity of the text as Shakespeare's, and the difficulties of producing it.

Kareda wrote: "The frustration of Jean Gascon's production . . . is that it doesn't argue the play's strengths, doesn't release its potential.

"Perhaps by smajor disappointment with Stratford's Pericles is that it is so unattractive visually."

Whittaker wrote: "Step by step we are allowed to savor the coming together of two blameless victims as Nicholas Pennell, the golden Prince of Tyre, and Miss Brook (as his daughter, Marina) explore the full pathos of the situation.

"Hard the heart that is not wooed by this example of a dramatist at his ripest."

John Laycock in the Windsor Star writes that the rarely-produced play is a pot-boiler but the Stratford festival company gives it shape, and between touching moments the production can always fall back on "its never-failing spirit of extravagance."

"For that quality alone, Gascon and the festival may have earned Pericles a place in the more familiar Shakespearean repertoire."

E. H. Lampard in the St. Catharine Standard wrote that he could not recall ever having been moved to tears before by a Stratford production, but it happened in Pericles.

"The recognition scene between Pericles and his daughter Marina is played with such warmth and tenderness, such subtle nuances of feeling, that when he enfolds her in his arms, it is a moment of rare emotion in the theatre."

Jim Clemenis in the Hamilton Spectator said this fourth and final play in this season's festival "is a grand, sumptuous, stunningly outstanding production of Shakespeare's most difficult and least appreciated play."

Harvey Cleasid, Vancouver Sun: . . . Gascon opts for spectacle and loses sight of all psychological interest and dramatic purpose."

Bob Sokolsky, Philadelphia Bulletin: " . . . Gascon and the ambitious Stratford company are not only trying to make the show playable, they are almost setting away with it."

Anthony Bannon, Buffalo Evening News: "Director Jean Gascon gives the play its due, mixing labelled virtue with measures of equally earnest villainy without coying the brew with overt recognition."

MIAMI (AP) — Members of the Jewish Defence League (JDL) demonstrated Tuesday night at a performance of the Bolshoi Dance Academy.

Shouting "murderers" and "let my people go," 40 JDL members paraded in the rain outside the Dade County Auditorium, carrying signs protesting alleged oppression of the 3½ million Jews in the Soviet Union.

The touring group is made up of youths attending the Bolshoi Dance Academy.

Protesters said the ages of the performers was irrelevant.

"They are representing a government that oppresses Jews," said Victor Vancier, 17, of New York.

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP) — Popular recording artist B. J. Thomas was fined $66 Tuesday on traffic charges. Neither Thomas nor his lawyers could come up with the cash.

Thomas made his scheduled appearance in circuit court to face nine charges, including breach of peace, second-degree assault, resisting arrest, speeding and failure to carry a driver's license. The charges were reduced to three counts of breach of peace and two counts of failure to carry a licence.

Thomas, who earned more than $500,000 last year, sent his two lawyers dug into their pockets after Judge John Reynolds imposed the fine, but couldn't produce enough money.

Judge Reynolds ordered the singer's lawyer to return to court today to pay the fine.

Thomas repaid the consideration by giving Judge Reynolds his autograph.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — How would singers Tom Jones and Englebert Humperdinck settle who gets the fishing rights on a jointly owned ranch?

High card? Coin flip? Arm wrestle? Highest bid? No, it was darts in an imitation English pub.

Ted Hickman of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce said the dart game was the most logical sport for Welshman Jones and Englishman Humperdinck.

And Jones won.

"They wanted to settle this question about the fishing rights on a new 3,000-acre ranch they purchased recently," said Hickman. "So they called me, and I set it all up, with genuine English dartboards sent in from London."

Jones is appearing at San Carlos. Humperdinck is at Lake Tahoe, Nev. Sacramento is about halfway between.

Hickman said the two singers had singles matches and six-man team matches, with their bands and managers participating.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON
Thursday, July 26

Aries (March 21-April 19): Seek the hidden meaning in what is happening; push ahead to make something excellent of it. No energy is lost today.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Leave nothing to chance if it relates to your health—it's a good day for medical advice, general checkups.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You can put together a winning combination with the useful news, interesting people, and facts at hand.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The best way to get information is by asking a direct question—once you have it, use it. Co-operative others assist you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The current situation pails and you begin seeking broader views. Better details of the near-at-hand picture are just as exciting; take a look!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Coming improvements in earning power should be protected by diligence, and keeping personal projects private.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Watching the world go by brings you knowledge—wisdom, if put into proper perspective.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It is your turn to contribute to the common good. Your responsibility for the resources of somebody else is put to test.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Expenses rise, but the increase in service and convenience is worth more; Reflection gives intuition an extra opening.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be up and on the go early, there's much to do and learn while you have this upsurge of energy.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Interest in your work rises, and it is time to compare notes with others in the same phase of development.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Remember to touch all bases as you go around—everybody with a share in what you do must hear something of what's happening.

SHAWANO

GOOD LAKESHORE LOTS ARE SCARCE

CHOOSE YOUR SHAWANO LOT NOW

Big ½-acre lots from $5000

10% down and 9½% mortgage

Act now if you want to make your vacation home dreams come true.

The province is running out of recreational land. Present planning regulations have restricted private development and sale of even land for cottages is halted.

You can still buy large, well-wooded lakefront lots at Shawano. Most have 100 ft. frontage or more on lovely Deloro Lake. Prices start at $5000 with 10% down and easy rent mortgage arrangements.

Shawano has excellent year-round roads and every site has hydro. Model vacation homes, custom building service, general store and marina for your convenience.

One of the finest unspoiled wilderness areas in Southern Ontario, Shawano's unique features include 1,000 acres of lakes, outstanding swimming, boat-ing and fishing.

Shawano is 1100 ft. above sea level in the historic Highlands of Hastings County, 5 miles north of Madoc via Highway 62. Scenic drive all the way.

Visit the Shawano information office at the site or contact Joe Sullivan, resident manager at Peterborough 705-742-6274 or Gilmour 613-474-2203.

Edmonton Publisher Heads Independent Canada Body

EDMONTON (CP) — When a 300-pound woman complained that the smallest crate she was trying on made her look heavy, Mel Hurtig knew it was time to get out of the fur business.

The 41-year-old head of Hurtig Publishers, largest English-language trade publishing house outside Eastern Canada, says he didn't know what he wanted to do after graduating from high school. When his father became ill, he helped run the family fur store and stayed with it for three years — "one of the most boring things I've ever done in my life."

"You spend half of your waking time at work, so you might as well enjoy what you're doing," Mr. Hurtig said in an interview. He liked to read, and although he knew nothing about running a retail book store, he invested his savings of $500 and opened a small shop in downtown Edmonton in 1956.

Seventeen years later, his bookstores have been sold, but Mr. Hurtig now directs a publishing company that has issued 80 titles since 1967 and expects to have sales close to $500,000 this year.

Before opening the store, Mr. Hurtig received discouraging advice. Most persons in the industry told him he couldn't make a living selling books, that he should work for someone else before going into business for himself and that he needed at least $25,000.

The first two years were difficult — "we turned each book face out to make the shelf look full."

But business picked up. The store became one of the first in the city to stock low-quality paperbacks, and several other outlets were opened.

"I never made a substantial profit with the stores," said Mr. Hurtig, who is more widely known in some circles as chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada (CIC). "After I paid my own salary, I never managed more than six per-cent profit on sales.

"It's not make substantial money, you have to have a large chain operation and merchandise books. But you can't be primarily a merchandiser and run a personalized business."

The idea to go into publishing evolved over several years in the mid-1960s. The first title was published in 1967 and Mr. Hurtig credits Centennial celebrations with generating interest in books by Canadian authors.

The young company received a boost when the third book published—An Idiot Joy by Eli Mandel—received the Governor-General's Award for poetry.

The business has not grown to the point where Mr. Hurtig is too concerned about the finances to worry about the product. He reads all manuscripts prior to publication and makes extensive comments which are passed on to the editor and author. After that, he doesn't see the book until it is printed.

"If you have to be in business, I can't think of a better business. It's fascinating work and you are always getting an education. It's an exciting process to take ideas and bring them to fruition."

As chairman of the CIC, Mr. Hurtig has spent considerable time during the last 1½ years speaking across the country and in the United States.

"Our purpose is often misunderstood. We're not against foreign investment, but we're opposed to the unique-in-the-world levels of foreign ownership in Canada and the control over the Canadian economy and decision-making that results from this process."

The CIC distributes literature about foreign domination of the Canadian economy and does political lobbying. It plans to oppose the application by a consortium to build a natural gas pipeline from the Mackenzie Delta in the Northwest Territories.

The federal government's attitude toward publishing is a sore spot for Mr. Hurtig. He doesn't believe programs such as increased Canada Council grants to authors and promotion of Canadian books in foreign countries are effective.

"The emphasis in the Canadian publishing industry should be on none of these programs. It would be more productive and less costly if the federal government did as the Ontario government did and helped guarantee bank loans through chartered banks."

Mr. Hurtig says that "by nature, publishing produces relatively modest profits on volume compared to other industry."

"The traditional sources—chartered banks—have been reluctant to finance publishers. Publishing is a capital-intensive business that takes a tremendous amount of money. You might sink $50,000 into a book before it sees the shelf of a bookstore."

When Mr. Hurtig started in the retail business in 1956, one of every 10 books sold was Canadian. He estimates that now, one in every three is by a Canadian author, a result of better authors and publishing houses and an increased awareness of Canada by Canadians.

Mr. Hurtig sold his stores in 1972. "Instead of being a bookseller, I had become an accountant and manager. As the business expanded, I was dealing with debits and credits and almost everything else other than books."

Woman Appraiser

TORONTO (CP) — The Art Gallery of Ontario has commissioned Mrs. Jules Loeb, a collector of historical Canadian art, to appraise the Ontario gallery's collection of early Canadian art. A spokesman for the gallery said, Mrs. Loeb, who lives in Toronto, came to the gallery with the endorsation of the National Gallery of Canada.

Communes Find Rules Essential

TORONTO (CP) — Young people who enter communal life believing that they can disregard all traditional standards of behavior and discipline soon are disenchanted because "without rules and regulations and leadership a commune can't survive."

Dr. Saul Levine, a 36-year-old psychiatrist at the University of Toronto says the picture of the communes are flouting the manners and morals of civilized society is "fantasy."

Dr. Levine recently completed a study of 30 communes, 22 of them in Toronto, in conjunction with Dr. Robert Carr and Wendy Hornblas of the Hospital for Sick Children.

"Whatever the communalists initially intended or practised, in time they discover that to survive, a commune has to live by rules which govern sex, drug use, housekeeping and money," he says. "The rules are not too unlike those which govern straight society."

In the matter of sex, for example, most communes fall in love and insist that the privacy of their relationship be respected. Possessiveness and jealousy are characteristic of human beings in whatever situation they happen to be living.

Drug use in most communes was restricted to marijuana and hashish.

"Heroine, amphetamines and other narcotics were not tolerated," says Dr. Levine.

Why do people band together in this communal kind of life?

"The commune," explains Dr. Levine, "offers an alternate style of living to young couples, small families and single people who feel alone and isolated in the big city."

The people usually are dissatisfied with conventional living arrangements.

But they're not content to merely criticize the status quo and the establishment," he says. "They want to express their sentiments through their life style."

A communal living situation presents a great number of potential friction points. Members must work out ways of handling such problems as privacy, space and discipline. Thus, people with fairly similar values seem to get together in the first place.

A good way of telling whether life in a commune is healthy? In a good commune, "the pets are clean and sweet-tempered; in a bad one, they are ill-kept and ill-tempered".

Although harmonious communal living is not easily achieved, Dr. Levine feels that the practice probably will spread. However it does not necessarily threaten traditional family patterns.

"Communes are better for some people, serve as a temporary stop for others and encode growth for others," says Dr. Levine.

CIC Head

Mel Hurtig, chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada, is the head of Hurtig Publishers, largest English-language trade publishing house outside Eastern Canada. Mr. Hurtig says the CIC is a vehicle to greater Canadian independence and to "allow Canada a more active role in the world community of nations." (CP Photo)

Laird's Lump Shields Home from Car Noise

DAVIDSON, Sask. (CP) — Laird's Lump may be the second-highest man-made mountain in Saskatchewan, although it is only 10 feet high.

The 1,200-foot-long mound of earth, built between the main Regina-Saskatoon highway and Prairie View Lodge, is a far cry from 300-foot Blackstrap Mountain, built south of Saskatoon for the 1971 Canada Winter Games.

While Blackstrap received country-wide publicity, the mound in this community is not as well known but has become controversial in the district.

It was conceived by Elmer Laird, a 49-year-old district farmer and an acknowledged leader in the community. He is chairman of Prairie View Lodge, a senior citizens' home which serves five municipalities and five towns. The home accommodates 40 residents.

Laird's Lump is an experiment in noise pollution control. The provincial highways department and the environment department co-operated to spend $20,000 on the sound barrier between the home and the highway where huge transport trucks roar by at all hours.

The highway originally ran through the centre of Davidson, a community of 1,100 persons, but was routed around the town in 1970. The lodge was built on the town's eastern edge and at first was not affected by highway noise.

Mr. Laird said as soon as it was learned the new section of highway was to skirt the lodge grounds, "we became alarmed about the effect on our senior citizens of a constant rumble of cars, trucks and heavy transports."

Completed early in June, using earth hauled from east of the new highway section opposite the lodge, the mound is a stark lump of earth.

"The plans call for landscaping the earth barrier with trees and shrubs to make a pleasant recreation and picnic area for family parties," Mr. Laird said.

The lump was built after town residents prepared a brief and met personally with Highways Minister Elling Kramer.

The lump has been both acclaimed and damned by residents of the lodge. Some complain that it has obstructed their view of traffic whizzing by on the highway. Others say it has reduced the noise level. Still others complain about the drabness of the earth mound.

One resident, a veteran of the Second World War, summed it up.

"It looks like a rifle range," he said.

Collecting Shipwrecks His Hobby

TORONTO (CP) — For 32-year-old Wally Simpson, happiness is collecting shipwrecks—a hobby the former private detective has pursued since 1966.

"It began when I joined the Underwater Club of Canada," he explains. "Diving enthusiasts enjoy locating and exploring wrecks. Along with a few members of the club, I used to gather information about shipwrecks from local fishermen, other diving clubs, even the archives of local libraries. Then I used to check them myself, jot down descriptions and mark the sites on my maps."

Simpson, who now operates his own contracting company, decided to concentrate on the Georgian Bay area. Now a recognized expert in the underwater field, he has logged 32 separate shipwrecks in Georgia Bay alone.

To help other enthusiasts, I have collected them all together in a small book," he says. "I have included all the actual locations, descriptions, charts drawn up by myself and even photographs where possible."

To build the book, he first had to build his own mould. Then "with no background at all in electronics," he had to search electronic shops looking for parts for the steering mechanism. The steering is controlled by an electronic joystick so that children with badly deteriorated muscles easily can steer it.

Mr. Seto, who came to Canada from Hong Kong six years ago, said he has spent countless hours working on this device.

Cart Lets Palsy Victim Roam Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Five-year-old Andy Pegalo suffers from cerebral palsy and can only control his right arm.

But thanks to a cart designed by Michael Seto, 26, of Toronto, Andy and similarly handicapped children can whizz happily through the halls of the Ontario Crippled Children Centre.

Wally Motloch, a member of the centre's staff, technically describe the cart as "a powered platform which keeps a child mobile, close to the floor."

The cart is oval-shaped, battery-powered and made of glass fibre. It can go forward, backward, sideways, and can turn on a dime. In fact, it looks like a toy.

"I wanted it to look like a toy so that there wouldn't be any embarrassment for the kids using it," said Mr. Seto.

Mr. Seto, who recently graduated from the interior design course at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, designed the cart as a project for his final year.

Entitled Shipwrecks of Georgian Bay, the slim volume gives detailed directions for a shipwreck safari. Among the wrecks located by Simpson are the China, a wooden schooner that foundered on a reef in November, 1883, and the Griffon, the 17th-century ship belonging to French explorer La Salle.

Over the next few years, he hopes to add another 20 "finds" to his list.

No End in Sight In Hanging Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — With no end in sight to what some MPs are calling midsummer madness, the Commons echoed Tuesday night with sometimes passionate debate on amendments to the Criminal Code designed to make rape or kidnapping capital offences if the victim should die.

The amendments to the threatening bill is re-establish the partial moratorium on hanging until 1977 were proposed by Albanie Morin (L—Louis-Hebert).

Debate on them began last Friday, was put off until Monday and by Tuesday night, the House had spent more than eight hours on them. When this section of debate is done, it will be a repeat performance on companion amendments from Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham) to make air piracy a hanging offence if death is involved and to bang second-time murderers.

Capital punishment will have to wait, however, because today the Commons is scheduled to go back to consideration of a bill that would permit insurance of special coins and stamps to raise $200 million for the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal.

"That may take a day or even two," a government spokesman said.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand, in a brief interview outside the House Tuesday night, was cautiously confident that the capital punishment amendments would be defeated.

"We should be all right if they all show up," he said when asked if he had been canvassing Liberal MPs to find out how they intend to go in the first vote.

He indicated, however, that the margin by which the amendments would be defeated will be "a few less" than the 14 votes by which his bill was given second reading May 29 when the result was 138 to 114.

Asked whether there is any indication when the capital punishment debate will end, he said "that's anybody's guess."

However, all parties had routine caucus meetings scheduled today and a spokesman said "you never know, something might come out of those to smooth things out."

To Step Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) said Tuesday he will step down as Conservative House Leader at the end of this parliamentary session, expected to be late this year.

Trucking Firms Seek Leave To Move Goods on Sundays

OTTAWA (CP) — A sharp struggle is already underway in what is likely to be a landmark case in the trucking industry.

It pits motorists against truckers over whether two trucking companies should be allowed to transport goods on Sunday.

Reimer Express Lines Ltd. and Imperial Roadways Ltd., both of Winnipeg, have asked the Canadian transport commission (CTC) for exemption from prohibitions against Sunday trucking in the Lord's Day Act.

A public hearing is expected this fall.

The Canadian Automobile Association (CAA) has told the commission that if Reimer and Imperial are exempted other trucking firms will seek similar treatment. The CAA contends that highways are already more heavily travelled on Sunday than on any other day.

The association said trucks would ruin Sunday pleasure drives, hurt tourism and create safety hazards. It points to an accident near Barrie, Ont., March 18 involving a lumber truck and leading to 22 deaths.

Reimer and Imperial request the exemption for long-haul trips to Ontario and Quebec centres because they say Sunday travel is essential for business reasons.

The two companies say airlines and railways, their main competition, can operate freely on Sunday. Many customers wanted deliveries on Monday.

Three trucking companies have been granted certain exemptions from the Lord's Day Act since the CTC was created in 1967, replacing previous federal transport regulatory agencies.

Before the CTC was set up federal law did not permit sixday operations in trucking. But changes in the Lord's Day Act now allow the commission to make exceptions "with the object of preventing undue delay."

The most extensive exemption was granted to Day and Ross Ltd. of Hartland, N.B., in July, 1969. The company was allowed to provide continuous service throughout the week within the Atlantic provinces and to points in Ontario and Quebec.

Observers say the Reimer and Imperial case may be even more significant as attempts are likely to be made to define what undue delay means legally. Depending on the CTC ruling, it could open Canada's highways to widespread Sunday trucking.

'Asper' Wins Recount

WINNIPEG (CP) — A judicial recount of ballots cast in Wolseley riding in the June 28 Manitoba general election was conducted Tuesday and Liberal Leader Izzy Asper appeared to have a three-vote margin of victory.

Judge C. Irving Keith said he will issue an official certificate of count Monday.

A tally of the poll - by - poll count gave Mr. Asper 3,138 votes compared with 3,135 for Murdoch MacKay of the New Democratic Party and 1,807 votes for Progressive Conservative Robert Steen.

Wroeley, a west-central Winnipeg riding, would give the Liberals five seats in the 57-seat legislature. The NDP has 21 seats and the Progressive Conservatives have 31.

Mr. MacKay was declared the winner on election night, by a one-vote margin. However, after a recount recounts left him and Mr. Asper deadlocked. A returning officer then broke the tie by declaring in favor of Mr. Mackay.

Premier Ed Schreyer had indicated he favored appointing Mr. MacKay as attorney-general, to succeed the defeated A. H. Macking. Mr. MacKay served as chairman of the Manitoba Labor Board to contest the seat.

Three other recounts are scheduled in Manitoba: In Gimli and the Winnipeg riding of Crescentwood, where NDP candidates won by narrow margins, and in St. Boniface, where Cultural Affairs Minister Larry Desjardins lost in a close fight with Liberal Paul Marion.

'No More Giveaways' By Development Body

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — "There will be "no more giveaways" of financial assistance through the Ontario Development Corporation, Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism for the province, said Tuesday.

He told local businessmen "directors will have to use much more of their talents to determine if a firm qualifies for assistance" after a new policy of loans is implemented later this summer.

He said a fund of $43 million has been set up for northern, central and eastern Ontario and the accompanying regulations will make it "more challenging" to obtain financial assistance in central Ontario.

Mr. Bennett did not disclose the content of the new policy "because it is not yet approved by cabinet."

During a tour of the Sudbury region, Mr. Bennett suggested the area construct a sight-seeing tower to allow tourists to view open pit mining, nightly slag pours, Laurentian University and the region's many lakes.

Women Poor

MONTREAL (CP) — The "poverty of women" came as a shock to the 1967 royal commission on the status of women, Chairman Florence Bird said.

An analysis of individual tax returns showed women receive only 20 per cent of all earned income, Mrs. Bird told the 900 delegates to the Altrusa International convention being held here this week.

CP News Roundup

Feed Grain Rail Rates To Be Set

BRUDENELL, P.E.I. (CP) — Federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said a conference of provincial agriculture ministers here Tuesday that the government is working towards a national policy on feed grain freight rates and will make an announcement "at an early date."

Detail of the policy were not revealed. Farmers in the Maritime provinces and Quebec have been pressing for lower freight rates on western grain shipped for livestock feed to the East.

Mr. Whelan also announced a proposal to increase federal spending on research, development and testing of farm machinery by provinces that wish, to participate.

Federal and provincial departments agreed there is a need for more trained farm workers, and decided to work cooperatively to increase the number of skilled farm workers.

The issue will be discussed by federal and provincial representatives before the annual agriculture ministers conference begins next month in Truro N.S.

Mr. Whelan said he is determined the farm crops will not go to waste this year for lack of labor.

The ministers reaffirmed their commitment to orderly marketing on a national scale especially for poultry products and agreed to continue co-operative efforts in this area.

Mr. Whelan and ministers emphasized the need for full participation by the provinces in Canada's preparations for the forthcoming negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Mr. Whelan endorsed the request.

Mr. Whelan was speaking during the third day of the provincial ministers' meeting. The official business sessions ended

ROBERT ANDRAS

May Admit Farm Laborers

OTTAWA (CP) — Mexican and Portuguese migrant farm workers may be issued permits to pick fruit and vegetables in the Niagara Peninsula if they are required, Manpower Minister Robert Andras told the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Andras said unemployed persons often do not seek jobs harvesting because of the type of work involved.

If necessary, permits would be issued to permit foreign workers to take the jobs.

Voted in Error

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Improper voting procedures did occur during some Kingston Township elections, Mr. Justice Earl McEwen said Tuesday during his testimony in a provincial inquiry into alleged breaches of the Municipal Act and the Municipal Conflict of Interest Act.

Mr. McEwen said he was following information that township clerk Douglas Gordon by voting on matters where the vote was recorded and did not know it was incorrect until told so Monday by his lawyer, Julian Porter.

Status Bleak

OTTAWA (CP) — The status of women in the upper echelons of the federal public service is bleak, Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) told the Commons Tuesday.

She said the federal government is the largest employer of women in the country, yet opportunities, wages and the position of female governmentworkers are not near equal those of men.

She said the importance of a secretary's job is usually based on the importance of her boss's position.

Pensions Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is considering appointment of an independent adviser to help establish the real value of a controversial pension plan worked out between railway workers and their employers, Labor Minister John Munro told the Commons Tuesday.

The companies, including CP Rail, Canadian National Railways and nine smaller lines, say the plan will cost $46 million annually and give another 4.3 per cent in fringe benefit money to the workers. Union negotiators argue the value to workers is only about half that much.

Averages hourly earnings of non-operating and shopcraft workers now are $3.81.

The proposed pension plan is to be voted on when other contract provisions are tentatively settled.

Too Late

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — Micheline Laramee, a resident of Granby, left a note on her car when she went shopping, saying that she would be back "right away." When she returned three hours later, she found a parking ticket on which had been written: "Right away was not soon enough."

Oil Spilled

PRINCETON, Ont. (CP) — More than 1,300 gallons of sour oil spilled into a field and ran along a dried-up creek bed about two miles west of here Tuesday when a farmer laying drainage tiles struck an imperial Oil Ltd. pipeline, a company spokesman said.

The spokesman said the line from Sarnia to Toronto, automatically shut down when fracture occurred. Most of the oil was recovered from the creek, he added.

Princeton is about 10 miles east of Woodstock.

Report Hasty

OTTAWA (CP) — A committee report recommending tighter controls for television advertising aimed at children was thrown together with "unseemly haste" in a single sitting room, the Commons was told Tuesday.

The criticism came from Patrik Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) shortly before the House voted to adopt the report tabled July 16 by Ralph Stewart (L—Cochrane), chairman of the Commons broadcasting committee.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

CONSUMER ADVISOR
MIRACLE FOOD MART
75 REXDALE BLVD.,
REXDALE, ONTARIO

SHOP WISELY FOR SUMMER PRODUCE

Buying fruits and vegetables in season has been advised as long as most of us can remember. So we're inclined to believe that they're cheapest and best then, and should be used to the exclusion of frozen or canned ones.

It isn't necessarily so. While fruits and vegetables taste best and are highest in food value when fresh-picked and eaten as soon as possible after gathering, poor seasons sometimes result in their being high-priced, even at the peak of their season.

Don't automatically accept that you're saving by using fruits and vegetables in season. Check cost per serving against frozen and canned products. You may even find producers reducing the price of processed vegetables and fruits in storage, to make room for fresh packs.

Good judgment in shopping during the fresh fruit and vegetable season can save you money. Remember, that as long as cans are intact the food inside is safe, and colour, flavour and texture remain very good for one to two years. Frozen fruits retain quality up to 18 months, and frozen vegetables except onions for 9-12 months.

Non-ops Strike

All Ontario Rail Operations Cease

TORONTO (CP) — All rail operations in Ontario came to a standstill at 6 a.m. today as between 20,000 and 25,000 non-operating railway workers went on strike for 48 hours.

Telegram services through the province also shut down early today as telecommunication workers, affiliated with the non-operating rail union, began a 48-hour strike.

Picket lines will be maintained round-the-clock throughout the strike, said a representative of the Association of Non-operating Railway Employees, which is engaged in a contract dispute with the CNR, CP-Rail and eight smaller railways.

Commuters who travel the 42-mile corridor between Pickering, east of here, and Oakville on the west, moved into Toronto by bus instead of the government of Ontario GO train service. The service is operated by CN Rail.

The effect of the strike call after the apparent failure of last-minute mediation efforts by federal government appointee, William Kelly, was quick cancellation of Montreal-Vancouver trains by the CNR and CP Rail, who cited potential difficulties in moving equipment on schedule through the picket-bound central Canadian province.

Railway sources indicated the long-distance runs between the east and west coasts would not be resumed while the threat of further strikes in other regions threatens to strand trains or passengers at inconvenient locations.

Richard Smith, chairman of the non-operating workers' bargaining committee, announced the walkout at a news conference here, saying the union was working on a three-week plan of selective strikes which could tie up different regions for periods of two or three days at a time. The details of further strike action are not yet final, he said.

Besides the interruption of passenger service, both national railways slapped embargos on livestock and explosive freight shipments and said no freight would be accepted in Ontario during the strike. They cautioned that any freight shipments may be subject to delays.

CN recalled its Supercontinental which left here Wednesday for Vancouver when it reached Ottawa. The train returned to Montreal Wednesday night with its load of disgruntled passengers.

Vancouver-bound CN trains which left earlier continued to Vancouver but the east-bound Supercontinentals were ordered stopped at Winnipeg and Capreol, near Sudbury.

CP Rail ordered east and westbound versions of its Trans-continental stopped as they reached Sudbury, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, while ever major point was the next stop.

Tapes Refused

Court Ruling Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee voted unanimously today to challenge in court President Nixon's refusal to supply tape, recordings and documents sought for its inquiry.

Senator Howard Baker (Rep, Tenn.) vice-chairman of the committee, made the motion, after holding out the hope that there could be a compromise to a void a constitutional showdown in court.

Ervin had read to the morning session of the Watergate committee Nixon's letter which refused to comply with two committee subpoenas demanding that he turn over the tapes and documents.

Nixon's letter said in response to a subpoena demanding five specific conversations with former counsel John Dean that, "I must respectfully refuse to produce the recordings of the persons cited in previous presidential statements.

"It is quite possible," Nixon added, "that there are other records in my custody that would be within the ambit of that subpoena and which I could, consistent with the public interest and my constitutional responsibilities, provide for the select committee."

Ervin immediately rejected the Nixon response as impossible to live with.

"We are not clairvoyant," Ervin said as he opened the committee session. "You can't identify a document you've never seen."

Cuba Marks Anniversary

SANTIAGO, Cuba (CP) — In a spirit of solemn remembrance tempered by Cuba's unique pressed gaiety, Premier Fidel Castro marks the 20th anniversary of his revolution today amid growing conviction that some of his Soviet-inspired programs are showing results.

Two Policemen Shot

BELFAST (Reuter) — The British Army in Londonderry today hunted for youthful gunmen who shot down two unarmed military policemen. The two policemen were said to have been shot in the back while on patrol in the Catholic Bogside district of Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city, and local residents said two youths holding pistols were seen running away after the shooting.

Work Resumed

DETROIT (AP) — Work was back to normal Wednesday at a Chrysler Corp. plant shut down Tuesday when two workers seized control of an electric power source. Company spokesmen estimated production of 600 to 950 autos was lost because of the work stoppage Tuesday.

Canadian Drowns

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — A Canadian man was missing and presumed drowned in the St. Lawrence River Wednesday. State police and Ontario Provincial Police said a truck owned by Keith McConnel, 32, of St. Andrews West, Ont., was found parked on the Cornwall-Massena International Bridge along with his wallet and other personal possessions.

POP Seeks Money

TORONTO (CP) — People or Planes (POP), the group opposed to the proposed Pickering airport, has asked its witnesses at last winter's expropitiation hearings to countersign their witness fee cheques and return them to POP for its anti-airport fund. The organization has spent most of the $60,000 it raised in the 15 months since it was formed to fight the airport project.

College to Be Built

VICTORIA (CP) — Construction will begin in August on the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific, one of three United World Colleges, it was announced Wednesday.

Prison Diet Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Food served prisoners at Millhaven penitentiary near Kingston is lacking in nutrients, Dr. Barbara McLaren said in an interview Wednesday. Dr. McLaren, former head of food sciences at University of Toronto, said the diet, if prolonged for several years could lead to anemia, night-blindness, constipation, tooth problems, excess body fat and even heart disease.

In Belleville

Former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent is seen inspecting a Hastings and Prince Edward guard of honor at the CN station here during a visit to Belleville in 1950. Immediately behind Mr. St. Laurent is Frank S. Follwell, then M.P. for Hastings.

No Intervention Until Public Hurt

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — The federal labor department will not directly intervene in the rail-labor dispute as the minister indicates it is adversely affecting the public, Labor Minister John Munro said Wednesday.

During an old-fashioned political picnic sponsored by the Brantford Liberal Association here, Mr. Munro told an audience of 300 that his department is in favor of the collective bargaining process in "the hope it will settle the dispute."

He called on Liberal supporters for "understanding".

"We believe in freedom, but we must think of our fellow men," he said.

"Free collective bargaining is a Liberal policy and has been endorsed by both labor and management. Only when the well-being of the public is threatened should the government step in and impose compulsory arbitration.

"We've done it before, the heavy hand of state is denying a recognized right. But the rail men have always abided by the rules and we don't anticipate any trouble in this dispute."

Waiting to Picket

A Canadian National non-operating worker, coffee in hand, waits to go on picket duty this morning at Belleville Station, while others behind him help themselves to coffee and doughnuts. About 400 non-operating railway workers walked out in Belleville this morning in the first of a series of rotating strikes.

CP Air Services Curtailed by Strike

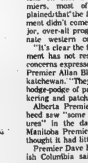
TORONTO (CP) — Emergency services put into effect at CP Air late Wednesday follow-ing a walk-out by 100 machinists are working well although "there are a few hassles," an airline spokesman said today.

"I don't know how long we'll be able to keep it up," he said, "but so far things are going as well as can be expected."

About 29 supervisors have taken over maintenance and baggage duties to maintain "essential and long-haul services", the spokesman said.

But services to and from Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Ottawa will be cancelled and flights between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver curtailed. Overseas flights have also been dropped.

U. S. Appeals Ruling Cambodia War Illegal



NEW YORK (AP) — The federal government has filed a notice of appeal to overturn a court decision that calls the United States bombing of Cambodia unconstitutional and orders it halted.

Hours after the ruling was announced Wednesday, U.S. Attorney Robert Morse said appeal papers are being prepared and that he will seek a stay of the order that takes effect Friday. He said the case will be carried to the Supreme Court if necessary.

In Washington, the White House had no immediate comment.

The permanent injunction against bombing and other military activities in Cambodia was issued by Judge Orrin Judd of the federal district court in a suit brought by Representative Elizabeth Holtzman (Dem., N.Y.) and three air force flyers.

Judd said that because Congress has never voted its approval, the government lacked the necessary authority "to order military forces into combat in Cambodia or to release bombs over Cambodia."

Courtly 'Uncle Louis' St. Laurent Dies at 91

QUEBEC (CP) — Louis Stephen St. Laurent, Canada's 12th prime minister, died Wednesday in his 92nd year of the tributes of his countrymen ring with a simple sincerity reminiscent of the man himself.

Mr. St. Laurent, who entered politics reluctantly as a "temporary job" at age 59, and earned the affectionate tag Uncle Louis, outlived by only seven months another former Liberal prime minister, Lester B. Pearson, his younger cabinet colleague, friend and successor.

"He loved Canada, he lived for Canada and his memory will be forever honored by our country," said John Diefenbaker, former Progressive Conservative prime minister who ended 22 years of Liberal rule when he defeated Mr. St. Laurent in a close but stunning upset in 1957.

"Canada is a better place because he lived among us," said Pierre Elliot Trudeau, who became Liberal prime minister in succession to Pearson after the period of Diefenbaker rule.

Both Houses of Parliament adjourned Wednesday after learning of the death of the statesman who championed national unity at home and daringly expanded Canada's role in international affairs.

Renault St. Laurent, who succeeded as head of his father's law firm, reported that the courtly old lawyer-politician died peacefully among members of his family in his Grande-Allee home in the heart of Quebec City at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mr. St. Laurent had been able to move about his home only with difficulty and with the aid of a walker ever since a fall broke his right hip in 1968. His condition deteriorated in the last few months and he received the last rites of the Roman Catholic church Sunday.

At age 65, Mr. St. Laurent, a successful corporation lawyer, was appointed counsel of a federal royal commission examining the economic and financial basis of Confederation and the distribution of legislative powers in Canada.

The reigning prime minister, M. L. Mackenzie King, persuaded Mr. St. Laurent to enter the cabinet after the death of Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe, his Quebec lieutenant.

It was under the St. Laurent rule that Newfoundland took its place as the 10th province of Canada; and he was sometimes referred to as a father of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In 1941 Mr. St. Laurent's first political test came on the explosive issue of compulsory overseas service. He went against the grain of public opinion in his own province and supported the government, and in 1944 when the government was forced to impose compulsory overseas service, he backed the move.

Mackenzie King said publicly he would have been forced to resign without St. Laurent's unwavering support. The Liberals won the first post war general election and St. Laurent was persuaded to remain in the government as the country's first full-time external affairs minister. He became prime minister on Nov. 15, 1948.

The eighth generation Canadian—his family name taken from the St. Lawrence river — initiated measures cutting colonial links with Britain, including political appeals to the Privy Council in London. He named Vincent Massey as Canada's first native born governor general and made the Queen of England the Queen of Canada as well.

Prof. [redacted] Thomson, biographer and former secretary to Mr. St. Laurent, said that the former prime minister's political ideas were moulded in his childhood conditioning. He was raised in a village which was half French-and half English-speaking, his parents coming of both groups.

"He did not think of language as a barrier to understanding," said Prof. Thomson. Only when he went to school did he learn he was bilingual."

Mr. St. Laurent went down to defeat in the general election of 1957 and he announced his intention to resign his Liberal leader Sept. 5, being replaced by Lester Pearson.

Waiting to Picket

A Canadian National non-operating worker, coffee in hand, waits to go on picket duty this morning at Belleville Station, while others behind him help themselves to coffee and doughnuts. About 400 non-operating railway workers walked out in Belleville this morning in the first of a series of rotating strikes.

'Positive' or 'Hodge-podge'?

West PMs See Federal Offers in Varying Ways

CALGARY (CP) — To the mixed reaction of the four western premiers, the federal government talked Wednesday about how it would spend more money in the region, how tariffs would work for the benefit of the west's industries, and how efforts would be made to eliminate long-standing transportation grievances.

In return, Ottawa took some lumps.

Prime Minister Trudeau and a dozen cabinet ministers spent the second day of this western economic opportunities conference struggling through the maze of transportation problems, offering assistance in developing mineral resources, and assuring the premiers of a greater federal presence in the area.

"I think we've made great progress," said the prime minister. "I hope we will make as much tomorrow."

But there were divided opinions on that among the premiers, most of whom complained that the federal government didn't come here with major, over-all programs to eliminate western complaints.

"It's clear the federal government has not responded to the concerns expressed by us," said Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan. "They've given us a hodge-podge of programs, a tinkering and patching."

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed saw "some positive-measures" in the day's work, but Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer thought it had little value.

Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia said the goodies handed out indicated an election soon.

"Here a college, there a college, here a vote, there a vote, everywhere a vote, vote," he quipped.

Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer said federal purchasing of western goods had increased in the west. In 1968-69 it amounted to $6.7 million, and last year it rose to $134.2 million.

Meanwhile, Defence Minister James Richardson said he is determined to decentralize "major components" of government spending. He talked about the aerospace, nuclear, electronic and communications industry and mentioned plans for a defence research establishment for Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Finance Minister John Turner assured the premiers he will attempt to reduce tariffs to improve the prices of cattle, oilseeds, livestock and other western goods. Mr. Lougheed said tariff cuts should also be designed around processed and manufactured goods to encourage industry.

Racketeers' Threats Close Montreal Cafe

MONTREAL (CP) — Gilles Mignault has decided to close his mid-town restaurant after being threatened by what he calls racketeers, who demanded protection money.

"I won't give those scums a cent," he said in an interview Wednesday. "No one ever paid me for not working. Why should I give these guys my hard-earned money?"

Mr. Mignault said he received a telephone call two weeks after he opened the restaurant about 18 months ago.

"The caller was a man with a European accent. He asked me if I were aware I had to pay $100 a month for protection. I told him the day I paid a scum like him I would close up shop."

Mr. Mignault said the protection peddlers tried to talk him into going along with them by offering him a commission for any customers he sent to them for loans, but he refused.

He said three men walked into the restaurant last May and beat up a customer, Mr. Mignault, who came to the defending struggle a shot was fired into the ceiling and the men fled.

One of the attacking men was arrested but said he found out a $3,000 price had been placed on his head the day he appeared at the preliminary hearing for him.

He closed his restaurant Monday after being threatened again last Friday, he said.

Camp Accepting City Applications

The Opportunities for Youth sponsored day camp for children at Plainfield will be accepting Belleville youngsters for the two weeks of July 30 through Aug. 10.

The recreation project has been accepting children aged 8 to 13 from the centre of the county since it opened four weeks ago and is now extending the day camp opportunity to city youngsters.

Ten young people, among them two qualified lifeguards, are running the day camp for the summer on an OFY grant. They offer arts and crafts, swimming, canoeing and campfire skills. A bus picks up the children every morning at 9.30 at various locations in the city and returns them at 3.30. Campers take their own lunch, but drinks are provided at the camp. Registration fee, which pays for the busing, is $5 a child a week.

Further information about registration can be obtained by telephoning Rob Kollars at 962-5685 or Loretta Fleming at 968-7751.

Fire Risk 'Extreme'

TWEED (Special) — The Ontario ministry of natural resources reports that the fire hazard is extreme in the Tweed Forest Area due to low July rainfalls. No burning permits are being issued while the danger lasts.

Three fires are now burning in the area. A fire crew has been sent to one in Anglesea township, where five acres are burning. A fire in Bedford township is burning over 3 acres and sidebar in Kaladar township is burning over one acre.

All campsites in northern provincial parks, including Bo Echo, Algonquin and Black Lake, are full for the weekend.

Youth Nicked By Bullet

MARMORA — A 15-year-old youth taking target practice in Marmora Township Wednesday evening accidentally shot himself in the leg with a .22 calibre bullet.

Monty Chrysler of Marmora was struck around the shin on his right leg. The bullet penetrated his shin and came out the other side.

The youth was attended by his family doctor and allowed to go home. The incident occurred at about 7 p.m.

Masons Elevate William G. Slack

Ontario Masons have chosen William G. Slack, retired Canadian Pacific Rail way agent in Belleville as District Deputy Grand Master in this district.

Mr. Slack is Past Master of the Belleville Lodge 123, a Rotarian and chairman of the worship and membership committee of Bridge Street United Church.

At the same 118th Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada held in Toronto, Robert S. Throop was elected Grand Senior Warden. Mr. Throop, an engineer employed by Ontario Hydro in Belleville, is a Past Master of Temple Lodge.

Eric McInroy of Marmora Lodge and Bruce Huyck of Craig Lodge, Deseronto were named Grand Stewards. Dr. George E. Turner of Windsor is now Grand Master, succeeding William R. Bailey, formerly of this area. More than 4,000 delegates attended the sessions.

Furniture Van Rolls

TWEED (Special) — A furton skid into a ditch on Highway 14, a mile north of Stirling July 23 and received $1,200 damage.

The van was driven by Michael Zimmer, 17, of Trenton, when it went out of control at 5:55 p.m. and semi-roiled in the ditch, coming to rest on the driver's side of the vehicle. Neither the driver nor his male passenger was injured.

Close Call

Two workmen installing a new brick front on the ANAF clubrooms on Front Street narrowly escaped injury Wednesday when the scaffolding on which they were working collapsed to the sidewalk. The men ecaped up in this pile of wreckage which blocked the sidewalk and lodged against the contractor's truck parked at the curb.

Sidewalk Sale Termed Success

The Fiesta Days format of the Downtown Association's sidewalk sale last week proved a great success, says Al Trotter, president of the association.

"Customer reaction, especially to the music, was enthusiastic," he says. "The same format will be followed in future years if city council gives authority for a mail."

Mr. trotter praised city police for the direction and protection officers gave during the time the mall was in operation.

Mlford Waller, winner of the free trip to The Bahamas, is still undecided about where he and his wife will take the seven-day holiday. Mr. Waller, owner of Radio Shack next to Amodeo's fruit market on North Front St., deposited his winning ticket when he was downtown buying a pair of swimming trunks.

"I'll have plenty of chances to use them now," he says.

Back From The West

Laurie Tugman, 19-year-old Consecon 4-H club member came back bearing gifts received during two-week Alberta tour. Among them was Stetson presented him by Calgary Stampede Board.

On Western Tour

Finds Farms Impressive

PICTON — An adherent of the advice "Go west young man," 19-year-old Laurie Tugman of Consecon has spent two weeks in Alberta through the 4-H Inter-Provincial Exchange Program.

Mr. Tugman was one of nine Ontario delegates chosen to visit another province to study its agricultural needs. He was selected during a 4-H leadership week in Guelph last year.

The trip to Alberta began with his arrival in Calgary on July 10 where he spent three days with eight fellow delegates from other provinces. The group toured the Banff area, visited the Calgary Stampede and The Royal Bank, sponsor of the exchange trips.

Mr. Tugman then travelled to a 1,000-acre grain and beef farm near Beiseker where he was a house guest with an Alberta family. He visited several neighboring farms and helped his hosts with farm work. A highlight of his stay was a tour of a nearby hutterite colony.

The Hutterites farm with modern machinery but do not own cars. Their dress remains old-fashioned despite use of up-to-date agricultural methods.

The Prince Edward County 4-H member remarks that he was impressed by the large scale farm operations in Alberta. Farmers worked spreads of up to 1000 acres and often had two or more hired men assisting. Machinery is modern and plentiful and seldom is manual labor necessary.

The weather in Alberta seems much drier than in Prince Edward County according to Mr. Tugman.

In the final days of his western visit he lived with a farm family in Olds, 50 miles north of Calgary. His hosts owned 200 head of purebred Hereford cattle.

Mr. Tugman observes that in Olds very few farm buildings could be seen. Cattle winter out-of-doors with only sheds and small barnyard shelters to protect them.

In the area of Alberta toured by Mr. Tugman the agricultural outlook seems highly prosperous. There are few run down farm lands. Although Calgary is industrialized there is no industry in the outlying areas where agriculture is the source of livelihood.

Part of the 4-H member's western trip includes a detailed report of Alberta's agriculture.

A graduate of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute Mr. Tugman has completed two year of university and this fall will continue his studies in chartered accountancy. He has worked as a part-time reporter for the Prince Edward County bureau of the Whitby Standard and this summer is employed by George Welch and Company, Chartered Accountants in Picton.

Double Hanging Cost County $96

PICTON — In 1864 it cost a total of $96.34 to hang Joseph Thompsett and David Lowder back to back for the murder of farmer Peter Lester. The men went to the gallows pleading their innocence and were buried in unmarked graves in the Prince Edward County jail yard.

An itemized account to the hanging fee certified by sheriff James Gillespie has been obtained by Picton photographer and history buff Victor Lord. Mr. Lord has a keen interest in the Thompsett - Lowder hanging and notes that most people he has spoken with feel that the two men were innocent. Their intuition largely is based on a letter written by Joseph Thompsett to his mother just 17 days before he was hanged. In this crudely penned farewell he repeatedly declared he was innocent of the crime.

"I never new that fatal shot was fired nor of that man was killed nor nothing of that murder nor my boots never made them tracks but the jury says I must die to pay some man's penalty," wrote Thompsett.

The statement for the hanging reads as follows: To expense of self (Sheriff Gillespie) and H. V. Carson to Kingston and return to take plans and c. of the Kingston scaffold $7.50.

H. V. Carson a-c for building and furnishing material for scaffold as per a-c and voucher attached, $35.35.

James Hart a-c material for black flag and cape .69.

F. Wood a-c making black cap .25.

N. Carter a-c for rope $1.05.

R. D. Hartkrier a-c printing copies of certificate of surgeon, declaration of sheriff and others and inquest $5.00.

Paid hangman $10.00; Refreshments for hangman $6.50.

Mr. Lord obtained a copy of the original document from the son of former Picton police chief Bert Biddle. Mr. Biddle headed the local force from 1918 until his death in 1965.

In his last letter to his family Joseph Thompsett, condemned to die, wrote, "But I forgive all those that swore false against me I forgive all my enemies I want them all to forgive me with all the reports no man can say I ever don him any wrong nor took any thing from him but my shoulders has boren many wrong that I never done."

He was hanged with Peter Lowder on June 10, 1864. The account for the hanging proceedings was certified by Sheriff Gillespie on the following day.

Courtesy Lord, Picton photographer and historian has a copy of 1864 costs for double hanging in Prince Edward County jail. The men paid stated that the innocence up to the hanging and the story has become a local legend.

Council Fires EMO Official

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The county council of Northumberland Durham has voted 19 to 14 to fire the county's emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator.

The decision came after lengthy and heated discussion during the open session of council Wednesday.

The move was precipitated by the recent windstorm which struck Brighton, causing heavy property damage.

Council was told local officials could not reach EMO co-ordinator Gordon Wright and it was not until neighboring Quinte EMO personnel arrived on the scene that measures were taken to set up emergency headquarters and communication lines.

The motion calling for the ousting of Mr. Wright came from Brighton Deputy Reeve W. P. Dunk and was seconded by Foster Russell, deputy reeve of Hamilton township.

Mr. Russell, explaining his support of the motion, recounted the time when there was a blackout across Cobourg. He said the EMO was nowhere to be found at the time.

Mr. Wright, at a council meeting in Brighton the morning following the July 13 storm said the first he heard of the occurrence was that morning, said Deputy Reeve Dunk. In later correspondence he told of procuring equipment the next morning to set up emergency measures, added the councillor.

"When you consider which way you will vote on the motion, think about that gentlemen," said Mr. Dunk.

Mr. Wright is employed full time as the EMO co-ordinator for the United Counties and according to county offices officials receives in excess of $9,000 annually.

Following the vote to fire Mr. Wright, several councillors asked if it was within the power of the council to fire the man when council pays only 10 per cent of his pay.

The federal government picks up 75 per cent of the tab and the province 15 percent. The EMO works on a $14,000 budget.

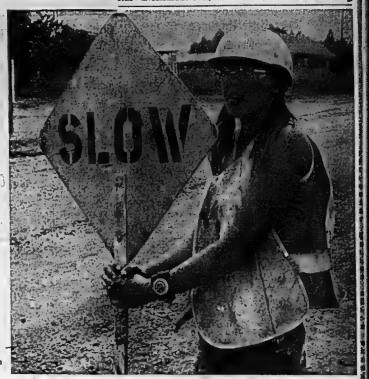
County Warden Weston Bannister said "If the motion is successful to fire him, we'll find one soon enough if we can do it legally".

Speaking impartially," said the Warden Bannister, "if we hired him, we can fire him."

It was determined that council did the screening of applicants and the eventual choice of Mr. Wright, employed as co-ordinator for approximately the past seven years.

Several pieces of correspondence were read during the discussion including a letter from the provincial department of EMOs. The letter stated he was "disturbed" when comparing the efforts of Mr. Wright's operation against Hastings EMO co-ordinated by Angus Duffy.

It was pointed out by several members of council that this was not the first time for Mr. Wright to come under criticism. A year ago he was asked to contact each of the municipalities in the area and alert them of the correct emergency procedures. Mr. Russell said this has never been done.



C. J. Northey, member of council and chairman of the EMO committee, asked if it was proper for Durham representatives to vote on the retention of a Northumberland employee. The United Counties will be dissolved in December.

Following the vote he said, "I don't agree with this way of doing business." Mr. Northey felt Mr. Wright should be asked to appear before council to offer some defense.

Both Brighton Reeve Dorothy Brimsted and Deputy Reeve Dunk recalled a meeting with Toronto EMO officials where they were advised it was within county council's power to fire the co-ordinator.

Council will immediately advertise for a replacement for Mr. Wright. He was not available for comment.

Earlier, Mr. Wright had said there was little the EMO could have done other than setting up communications. This was done by Quinte EMO operators, with the assistance of Mr. Wright's volunteers.

Traffic Director

For Highway 2 motorists this summer near Colborne road construction has some surprises. Traffic is being guided by three girls. Sherri Collingridge of Georgian Bay says it is a terrific job, though somewhat unusual, she admits.

CFB Planes Vietnam Bound

TRENTON — Canadian armed forces planes have left for Saigon to return Canada's contingent to the International Commission for Control and Supervision.

The contingent has been stationed in the east for the past several months, observing the Vietnam situation.

A Hercules from CFB Trenton's 436 Squadron departed for Saigon Wednesday morning and will be joined by a second 436 Hercules leaving today. The two planes will be returning with 25 tons of freight and are expected back in Canada August 1.

By Saturday afternoon two Boeing 707s from Trenton will have left for Saigon to evacuate the entire 263-man contingent.

A spokesman for the base said 16 of the men to be returned are stationed at Trenton.

While one 707 carrying VIPs will make stops at only Vancouver, Trenton and Ottawa, the other will make stops across the country dispersing men back to their home bases, including Trenton. This plane is expected to arrive July 31 at 10.30 p.m.

This move brings to an end canada's role in the ICCS which has been monitoring the Paris Peace pact negotiated by Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, designed to bring the Vietnam war to a close.

UCS Developments

Another 'chapter in the somewhat checkered history of the United Community Services has opened with the board's decision to accept the resignation of executive director Isidore Cooperman.

Whatever the differences that have arisen between the board and Mr. Cooperman in the past, his departure is an occasion for regret. Mr. Cooperman is a professional man who discharged his duties as he saw fit. Within the limits in the world though it is not difficult to understand how differences could arise between the executive director — the intelligent fund-raiser and differences of approach are right there.

Now the board is seeking a replacement for Mr. Cooperman. Will things be any different? Could the job not be done on a voluntary basis, or at least at less cost by a qualified local person? Is the board itself not top-heavy — too many cooks in effect spoiling the broth?

The board has been under criticism of late, yet acting chairman Wayne Wickson has said the consensus at a board meeting Tuesday night was that it was "not worth bothering about," and this in reference particularly to a recent letter in The Intelligencer. The letter was critical among other things of the board's penchant for holding its meetings behind closed doors.

The board must discharge its responsibility to the public, for this is, or should be, a very public organization, whose main function is the raising of monies to sustain the work of community groups which in turn aid citizens in need and foster community activities.

While remembering this duty the board may wish to ponder its usefulness, as presently constituted. There is concern over the practice of meeting in secret, which can only serve to lessen public confidence in its work still further. Now is the time, we suggest, to put the past behind, the Better to regain this confidence and work toward putting community services on a fresh and more effective basis. It must be done moreover in co-operation with the public, so that as the name of the organization implies, the community is served.

Lonely Pinnacle?

Blonde and lissome, Alice Dykstra is a most attractive Miss Downtown Belleville.

Chosen during the recent downtown sidewalk bean, Miss Dykstra has other strings to her bow besides her natural beauty. The 17-year-old Quinte secondary school student was Belleville Rotary Club's choice for the Adventure in Citizenship program. She went to Ottawa, joining Parliament among other activities, then returned to tell Rotarians about her experiences.

We hope Miss Dykstra's reign will not be tinged with the sour grapes attitude of last year's Miss Universe, a radiant young Australian from Perth, Kerry Ann Wells, experienced. In a TV magazine interview, Miss Wells is quoted as saying she regrets many people only see her all the typical questions asked of beauty queens.

"It is strange the way people react to me," said the former TV weather girl. "Oh, you're Miss Universe . . . It is as if Kerry Wells suddenly ceased to exist. I've always been a loner but this is the ultimate loneliness. It is like being in someone else's body."

Yet here is a lively young woman with intelligence as well as a social conscience. She points out that Australia's beauty pageants are presented to raise money for charity. Each girl must undertake some charitable tovward to be judged. Miss Wells made a recipe book to sell, with a helping hand from her parents.

When in Cali, Colombia, during her year as Miss Universe (a Filipino girl succeeded her in recent days) she took part in a fashion show to raise money for a boys' orphanage and was greatly taken with 100 or so youngsters on that troupe, especially in view of her interest in this kind of community work.

Australia though will not see Miss Wells for a while. It seems inevitable that her classic good looks would bring her the kind of offer she is now taking up — work as a model in New York. It was Thomas Wolfe who said, "You can never go home," but Miss Wells says Australia will always be home and with the kind of material success her new career will bring a jet flight "down under" now and again will be no problem.

Cabinet Man from Thunder Bay

Low-Key Approach Pays Dividends for Robert Andras

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — To the taxpayers, the Hon. Robert Knight Andras, the 52-year-old — darkly handsome, jowls jaunter — is a federal MP from Thunder Bay in Ministries of Manpower and Immigration.

But to the often deeply troubled federal government he is the cabinet "fireman", skilled now, through experience, in cooling out "hot" departments.

And to the opposition, he is the government's handy in a general MP from Thunder Bay is Minister of Manpower and Immigration.

But to the often deeply troubled federal government he is the cabinet "fireman", skilled now, through experience, in cooling out "hot" departments.

And to the opposition, he is the government's handy in a general MP assigned to the unappealing job of cleaning up administrative messes left by other cabinet ministers.

Highly mobile in the cabinet, he has done three "cool - out" jobs for Prime Minister Trudeau.

He drew his first role as cabinet fireman when former veteran Liberal MP, Paul Hellyer, a senior member of the cabinets of both Prime Ministers Pearson and Trudeau, resigned two years ago in a blow-up over government housing policy and what he charged was the tampering with the constitution.

Paul Hellyer, pushing for dramatic action on his housing program, wanted the federal government to bypass the provinces and deal directly with the municipalities.

He was rushing into a real confrontation with provincial premiers, which rightly considered the municipalities their business, when Prime Minister called him off and he stomped out of the cabinet.

Robert Andras moved in as Urban Affairs Minister, put out the fires of controversy by setting up a round of talks with the provinces, and proceeded to pick up the pieces of the federal housing policy.

All very quiet, unassuming, low key stuff.

The departmental fire alarm rang again a year later in Consumer and Corporate Affairs where the minister, Ron Basford, with his hotly controversial Competition Bill, was fast moving the federal government into another uncomfortable position of confrontation; this time with business and industry.

Ron Basford had fought so hard — and so publicly — for Bill Competition Bill — that he boxed himself into a corner.

There was no way left for him to pull back his bill and remove some of its more troublesome features without completely losing face.

So in came "fireman" Andras, quietly taking over Consumer and Corporate Affairs, to do the necessary surgery on objectionable sections of the legislation without removing its objectives.

The alarm clanged next, last November, in Manpower and Immigration where the since-resigned Bryce Mackasey was in trouble over those thousands and thousands of "visitors" illegally entering the country and in even more trouble over the $2 billion his stepped - up unemployment insurance benefits were costing due to, among other things, gross abuses of the system and a breakdown in his administration.

Mackasey, always dramatic, talking of "heads to roll" in his shattered department, and denouncing some colleagues for lack of faith, walked out after a teary farewell to his senior staff.

Into Manpower and Immigration strolled cool Robert Andras to take the heat off both the "visitor" and "poppy" problems.

It was not easy, either, because from the moment of resignation, Bryce Mackasey persisted in throwing verbal gasoline on the dying flames.

But compared to the heat that was on the department in Bryce Mackasey's last few months there, the fire is out at Manpower and Immigration.

How does the "fireman" douse the blaze when a department is wrapped in the flames of public controversy?

Well, say parliamentarians who watch him, he comes on very, very low key in the Commons "desk", in the House committee and in individual relationships with other MPs, government and opposition alike.

His smoothest operation is simply listening.

"He listens to people," says a colleague, "and when he talks, he talks with, not at them.

"He comes across giving you the feeling you are being consulted, that he wants to hear your opinion, and that you have something to say that will contribute.

"He invites your participation, and if you offer what you think could be a worthwhile idea or suggestion, and he likes it, he will say so."

But for all his talents, Robert Andras does not have an easy time. In a cabinet of generally small "I" liberals, a core of them activists and social innovators, he is seen by Prime Minister John Turner and Treasury Board President Charles Drury in the "take it easy" department.

A businessman, he is financially cautious, does not like running unbalanced budget situations unless he has a pretty fair idea of where he is going, questions when you watch him working his quiet way, you wonder if he is not driven to distraction by some of the excesses of the "big spenders" and "social experimenters" of the cabinet.

How to Secure Your Home While You Are on Vacation

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Going on vacation? Have fun—but don't forget to lock up first.

Nothing can spoil the memory of a happy vacation faster than the discovery that burglars or vandals have been at work while you were at play.

Fortunately, modern technology Lea provided a wide variety of devices to help protect your property automatically. But remember that here's no substitute for common sense.

Don't let the house appear to be untenanted. Stop newspaper delivery, have a neighbor pick up advertising fliers, leave lawn furniture or children's playthings where they would normally be, and close the garage door.

But how do you make the house appear to be occupied? One trick is to use sample, portable, clock-like timing devices (costing $10 to $15).

Use them to turn on a light and radio (the house might be sound occupied) every day at dusk and turn them off at bedtime. With two timers, lights in different parts of the house will be turned on and off at different times; thus re-inforcing the illusion of activity.

Many burglars "case" potential victims' houses by telephone. If they repeatedly get no answer, they may assume the coast is clear. Arrange with an answering service to take calls as if someone were home, or to give a false return time.

A good lock is fundamental. Burglars can pry open the typical lock by ulling a strip of plastic or a thin blade. So consider a jimmy-resistant dead-bolt on outside doors.

Most home-owners are familiar with simple chains for the inside of doors. But there are chain locks with attachments that can be secured from the outside of the house.

Suppose a determined burglar should gain entry to your empty house despite these precautions. You may still be able to protect your money, negotiable securities, stamps and coin collections, jewellery and the like by putting them in a fire-insulated wall safe.

Costs vary with quality, but a good safe might cost $1,000. But experts can crack almost any safe, if they have enough time.

So, if the value of your property is great enough, you may want to consider such sophisticated devices as these:

—Radar that sweeps an area as large as 10,000 square feet, and sounds an alarm when it picks up any movement.

—An electric detector which, when activated by movement or sound, turns on floodlights and an audible alarm.

—Concealed microphones inside the house, that trigger an alarm when they pick up the sound of an entry.

—Alarm systems that are set off by the pressure of feet on the floor or by the breaking of an infra-red ray.

Regardless of the system you choose, review your insurance policy before you go on vacation. Make sure there are no gaps in its protection, and that the dollar amount of the coverage is realistic in terms of today's prices.

Eye Test and Insurance

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

A piece I wrote here a while ago was based on wrong information.

So let's correct it.

The piece concerned health insurance and eye tests.

And I inferred that the government was contemplating removing all eye tests by ophthalmologists (medical doctors) from insurance coverage and saying only for tests by optometrists, (Para-medical professionals trained in eye-testing).

The plan has put optometrists a lower fee ($10) than ophthalmologists for eye tests, technically known as "refractions".

The point I discussed was that some sections of the public which were used to having their eyes tested by opthamnologist would not want to be forced to go to optometrists.

Now Health Minister Dr. Dick Potter gives his assurance that they won't be.

There will never been any thought, he says, that only eye tests by optometrists would be accepted by the insurance plan.

What happened is that the Ontario Health Council, an advisory committee to the ministry, made sweeping recommendations for more effective use of the health insurance plan (Which, of course, has been increasing tremendously in costs).

As a result every sector of the health disciplines is being studied, including opthalmologists and optometrists.

As a result of this study rumor got out, as rumors will, that all eye testing would be handed to optometrists.

Leaders in opthamology heard the rumor, believed it, and started to protest.

NDP member Dr. Morton Shulman also heard the rumor and carried the protest into the house.

But we now have the health minister's assurance that it was only a rumor, and a very poor one at that.

The optometrists., understandably anxious to increase the prestige of their profession welcomed the incident and hoped the scuttle-but-ing true.

It is possible their stature under the plan may be improved after the study of their role. But still they won't have any exclusive rights.

Incidentally the Health Council says that the ideal would be a team approach. Under this there probably would be eye clinic with probably an optomatologist in charge, a couple of optometrists for testing and an optician for fitting eye-glasses.

But it will be a long day before we will see this.

Pollution Inspector's Problems

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It was with interest but not surprise that I read of the difficulties of an environmental inspector in the Sudbury area.

This gentleman appears to be one of those strange individuals who seems to think he should do the job he is paid to do. Perhaps this might be all right in some vocations. But being an inspector of such things as air pollution in a place like Sudbury might be expected to be a little more trying than the average wage-earning chore.

From the story one gathers that Mr. MacKenzie, an inspector with the Ministry of the Environment, has been bold enough to suggest that the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd. is polluting.

Mr. MacKenzie is either naive or daft. He ought to know that such companies as Inco never do such things as pollute, at least not in the eyes of the Ontario government.

Perhaps he was not around when the minister of the day, Mr. Kerr, told the Dominion of Canada that Ontario had anti-pollution laws which were the envy of any in the country. As I recall he waxed eloquent on the teeth in the Act.

Perhaps the case of us that have tried to invoke the mighty to use these-teeth to take a bite out of pollution rather only to own well that for the most part it is pure window-dressing.

Mr. MacKenzie's fellow inspectors could tell him sad tale of dealings with are a nice enough set of blokes but don't put their effectiveness to the test or you may find he doomed to disappointment.

I sympathize with the predicaments of Mr. MacKenzie and I feel he ought to recognize that with the government of Ontario he is confronted by a Goliath of gutless, over-legislated, corporate - dominated province in Dominion. He will have to get the job in the first place, I imagine. Such people would be one of the individuals who are not prone to rock the boat.

Such a man I would be sure of more support and on reasonably safe ground if he looked around and prosecuted a housewife for throwing leaves in her backyard. They tell me the ministry is pretty hot on this sort of thing.

Peanut Costs Up

Ottawa Journal

Perhaps one of the most easily explainable examples of the interdependence of the world's several economic systems is the peanut. The explanation that the cost of something is "peanuts" is soon take on quite a different meaning. The price of peanuts has soared:

When the United States cut its export of soybeans to Japan, the Japanese, seeking a substitute for soybean protein, turned to domestic supplies of peanuts which were grown largely for export. Now Japan has stopped peanut shipments abroad. Since most Canadian peanut imports come from Japan, we too, are caught short and, by the law of supply and demand, the lowly peanut-butter sandwich could become an expensive treat.

FBI Chief's Protection of Friend Said Reason for 'Plumbers' Burglary

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman says the late J. Edgar Hoover was indictable and up-to-the-hilt and should have been retired as FBI director early in the Nixon administration. He said Hoover was retained because of political considerations.

Ehrlichman, formerly one of President Nixon's two top aides, faced a third day of questioning by the Senate Watergate committee today following a Wednesday session abbreviated by legal debate and a series of recesses.

Much of Wednesday's session was aimed at testing Ehrlichman's account of events leading up to the 1971 break-in and ransacking of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. At the time Ellsberg was being tried in the Pentagon papers case.

Ehrlichman said that Hoover deliberately held up the FBI's investigation of the Ellsberg leak because Ellsberg's father-in-law was an old friend whom Hoover would not let agents interview. That made it necessary, said the former presidential adviser, to assign the White House "plumbers" to conduct their own investigation.

Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep. Conn.) introduced a letter, from Hoover to plumbers' boss Egil Krogh, written in reply to President Nixon's request "that a comprehensive background paper on Ellsberg be sent to you."

The letter said the FBI had interviewed five individuals connected with the case and was willing to "proceed with interviews of all of the remaining individuals except Daniel Ellsberg."

Ehrlichman said that letter, like others before it, was "just tidying shortfall in performance . . . resorting to a well-known bureaucratic device of papering the file."

The letter was dated July 29, 1971, two weeks before Ehrlichman approved Krogh's proposal that "a covert operation be undertaken to examine all the medical files still held by Ellsberg's psychoanalyst, covering the two-year period in which he was undergoing analysis."

The same memo with that recommendation contained three references to Hoover and the FBI.

One said a preliminary psychological study of Ellsberg by the CIA was disappointing and superficial and that a more detailed study would be requested. "We will also make available to him (the CIA psychiatrist) here some of the other information we have received from the FBI on Ellsberg," Krogh said.

Despite Ehrlichman's claim that Hoover was dragging his feet, the memo said: "We have received a letter from Director Hoover confirming that the Ellsberg case and related matters will be handled on a "Bureau Special' basis."

And Krogh said the plumbers were "continuing to press the FBI" to check the accuracy of a report that Ellsberg had stored a foot locker containing film magazines in California to find out what was on the film.

Weicker asked Ehrlichman if the proper way to handle government agencies that fall short is to set up secret White House groups to do their work for them.

"No indeed," the former Nixon aide replied. "And I think, in retrospect, that the administration would have been far better off if Mr. Hoover had been retired earlier, pre-dating this episode, because many, many of the problems that we encountered were as a result of Mr. Hoover's very fixed views . . ."

Ehrlichman continued to insist he never authorized the Ellsberg break-in and said Nixon didn't give his express approval for such an operation. But Ehrlichman said the president impressed on the plumbers the vital importance of their investigation, which may have led them to believe the break-in was authorized.

Ehrlichman's lawyer, John Wilson, argued that the president may have a "reservoir of power" in a national-security matters that would lead the courts to decide the break-in was legal because it was necessary to protect the nation.

On a related point, Ehrlichman was asked to explain his role in discussing a possible offer of the FBI directorship to U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne while Byrne was presiding at the Pentagon papers trial of Ellsberg and Anthony Russo. Senator Daniel Inouye (Dem. Hawaii) asked if it wasn't a possible violation of legal ethics to discuss such a government job during a trial in which the White House had exercised enormous interest. Ehrlichman said he didn't believe it was.

Ehrlichman said he discussed the matter with Byrne on two occasions and that the judge "indicated a very strong interest" and saw "no reason why we couldn't talk right away."

Byrne, in a statement issued in Los Angeles, denied that he showed such an interest and said the reason for the second meeting was to confirm "my initial reaction rejecting consideration of any such proposal while the trial was in progress."

Connally Quits White House Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Connally has left the Nixon White House, raising questions about the stability of the entourage the president put together following Watergate-related resignations.

There is persistent speculation here that Melvin Laird, former defence secretary, is not entirely pleased as successor to John Ehrlichman and may quit as Nixon's top domestic policy adviser.

Laird, who said at the outset he planned to stay only a year, promises to remain on the job "as long as I can do some good." He has helped work out several major compromises between the White House and Congress but it is known that Nixon has not been adopting all of his advice.

Connally, whose resignation was announced by Nixon Wednesday, also found Nixon unreceptive to some of his counsel and, unlike Laird, felt he had no important job to perform in his part-time, unpaid status as a special adviser.

Connally, former Democratic governor of Texas and treasury secretary during Nixon's first term, plans to rejoin his Houston law firm Monday.

BUTLER BUILDINGS FRANCHISE NOW AVAILABLE IN THE QUINTE AREA!

Within the next few weeks a Buildership Franchise will be awarded in this area for the sale and construction of the well known line of Butler Pre-engineered Metal Buildings. Eligible applicants are now being considered.
Butler Manufacturing Company, world's largest producer of fine quality, pre-engineered metal buildings offers this outstanding growth and profit opportunity to an individual or organization with a background of experience in commercial and industrial building construction. Abilities to sell turn-key jobs, using the pre-engineered building concept, and to coordinate all sub-contract work are highly important.
Since most building orders are shipped direct from the factory to the job site, inventory storage is virtually unnecessary. However, the franchise holder must have adequate financial resources to maintain several simultaneous building projects. He must also have the aggressive sales personnel to conduct a continuous campaign for new business, produce sales, and develop sales volume in all potential market areas.
As part of the nationwide network of Butler Builders, this franchise will receive the full support of an extensive, end result-producing national advertising campaign with ample promotional material and sales aids for local use.

Two Soviet Space Ships Off to Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — Two unmanned Soviet space vehicles are speeding toward Mars to study the red planet and space conditions around it.

Tass said the second unmanned interplanetary station, called Mars 4, was launched Wednesday from a satellite orbiting the earth. The first ship, Mars 4, took off last Saturday.

The Soviet news agency said equipment is working normally on both spacecraft and that the space stations will reach the vicinity of Mars in mid-February.

Kenneth Gatland, president of the British Interplanetary Society, predicted the vehicles will try to drop television cameras and scientific instruments into the planet's cratered deserts. But Tass said only that "by means of the scientific equipment installed on board the station, Mars and its environs are to be explored and the characteristics of the interplanetary medium along the flight path are to be measured."

Tass said Mars 4 and Mars 5 are similar in design, and "simultaneous scientific research by the two stations will make it possible to obtain fuller data about the plane and he dynamics of physical processes which occur in space."

The news agency said at 7 p.m. EDT Wednesday the two space ships were 907,200 and 41,010 miles from the earth.

Gatland, who met with Soviet scientists earlier this year in Moscow, said another spaceship may be launched on the 76-million-mile journey before Aug. 9 when the month-long planetary alignment favorable to travel between earth and Mars ends. The next such alignment, called a launch window, will not appear for 26 months.

Big Appetite

ANITYVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A hungry prowler entered the Amity House Restaurant and devoured a 25-pound roast and four pies before he was caught by the cook.

But the cook, Katherine Reifsnyder, couldn't get any help from police in subduing the culprit.

Finally she did get help—from the Animal Rescue League—which placed the six-month-old, 70-pound St. Bernard in a shelter.

Authorities were still searching for his owner Wednesday.

Ask Study Of Price Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The special Commons committee on food prices called Wednesday for further study on prices.

Specifically, it recommended an international study to determine how effective price controls have been elsewhere in regulating costs and supplies.

In its second report, tabled in the Commons, the committee said the study should be carried out by the recently-formed food prices review board and it should start work immediately.

. . . The steady upward movement of food prices has caused continuing, growing concern to Canadians. The committee fully shares that concern."

The report also said the board should be discouraged from trying to set itself up as solely an educational agency. The board was established by the government after the committee recommended its formation in its first report three months ago.

It is designed to monitor food prices, determine which increases warrant investigation, and recommend action to the government. It has no power to control prices on its own.

The report, signed by Chairman Bud Cullen (L—Sarnia-Lambton), also asked the government to implement all remaining recommendations from its final report, "especially the recommendation to consider the feasibility of programs to provide food for low-income Canadians.

Adequate food for low-income persons should be a top government priority—the report said. "The committee would like some indication of action," although the report offers no specific ideas.

The committee majority rejected the Conservative demands for a 90-day price freeze.

Oil Guarantee Price For Avoiding Tankers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will have to make an agreement to supply refineries in Washington state with crude oil in return for an American agreement not to have tankers carry oil to them through the Strait of Juan de Fuca, Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday.

He told the Commons it has been the government's position that the Cherry Point, Wash., refineries can and should be supplied from inland sources to avert the danger of oil spills from tanker traffic along the British Columbia coast.

But Mr. Sharp did not want to reveal what guarantees Canada is prepared to give the Americans.

"If we want to negotiate and be successful, we do not give away our cards at the beginning," he said.

Mr. Sharp told the Commons Tuesday that with the Alaska pipeline likely to be approved by the U.S. Congress, Canada will really begin to fight the connecting tanker route.

He told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) that the job is to convince the United States there is no need for the tankers to supply the Cherry Point refineries.

They could be fully supplied by pipeline from the interior now and in the future.

Mr. Douglas noted that the capacity of the line across Alaska from northern oil wells would be two million barrels a day but the amount to be delivered in Washington state was only 190,000 barrels daily.

He asked for immediate negotiations between Canada and the U.S. "to ensure that this small amount of oil" be supplied overland. Mr. Sharp said he was pleased that Mr. Douglas supported the government's position.

Len Marchand (L—Kamloops), one of 17 Canadian parliamentarians who went to Washington Tuesday for a U.S.-Canada interparliamentary meeting on pipelines, said in an interview the Canadians were informed that the U.S. Senate had never considered approving a Canadian route.

Texasgulf Bid in Line With Aims

OTTAWA (CP) — A $280-million bid by the Canada Development Corp. (CDS$ for up to 10 million shares of Texasgulf Inc. is "quite in line with the statement of objectives for the corporation," Treasury Board President C. M. Drury told the Commons Wednesday.

Reg Stackhouse (PC—Toronto Scarborough East had asked whether the CDC offer indicates a change of policy by the corporation, moving away from what we felt was its intended purpose of increasing Canadian participation in our own economy."

The Crown corporation has made an offer to buy stock in Texasgulf Inc. of New York, a multinational company, at $29 a share in U.S. funds.

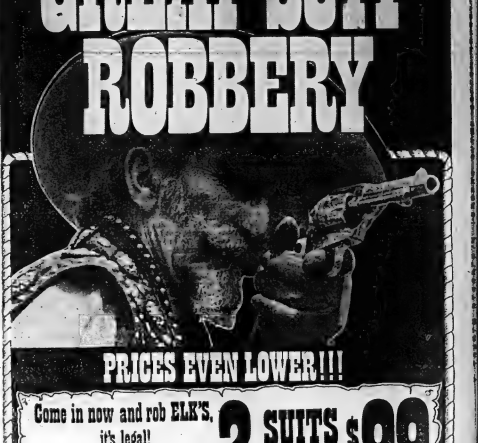
If the offer is accepted, the corporation will have more than 35 per cent of the approximately 30.4 million issued common shares of Texasgulf, which, along with shares already held in Canada, would put control of the company in Canadian hands.

Mr. Drury told Mr. Stackhouse the proposed purchase does not indicate a policy change.

Quoting former finance minister Edgar Benson, when the CDC was formed in 1971, he said the policy should "emphasize areas involving the development and application of new technology . . . those which involved the exploitation and utilization of Canadian natural resources, those which have special relevance to the development of the North."

Texasgulf operates in four major areas—metals, agriculture and chemicals, oil and gas, and exploration.

The metals division operates the Kidd Creek Mine near Timmins, Ont., the world's largest producer of zinc and silver with copper, lead and cadmium as byproducts.



The CDC says Texasgulf reports about 68 per cent of its operating income has come from Canadian operations since 1967.

MR. AND MRS. GERALD BRINKLOW

Brinklow Black

College Hill United Church was the recent setting when Barbara Lynn Black exchanged wedding vows with Gerald Wallace Brinklow.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Black, Belleville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brinklow, of Deseronto.

Mrs. James Fraser, as her sister's matron of honor, wore a long flock organza gown with tiny sprays of pastel flowers.

Bridesmaids Mrs. Ric Brinklow, and Melanie Black, sister of the bride wore identical gowns and carried clutch bouquets of miniature carnations, sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Best man was James Fisher, brother-in-law of the bride. Ric and Brian Brinklow, brothers of the bridegroom were ushers.

Winning

Alice Dykstra, Belleville's Downtown first bathing beauty chosen last Saturday says being "yourself" won her the title.

Alice in her spare time, when not working each day at W. T. Hawkins Ltd. from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day, enjoys bicycling with "my plain two-wheeler".

Swimming and running and walking are other pastimes for Miss Downtown Belleville. She also sews most of her clothes and takes grade 10 music.

Alice Catherine Dykstra is oldest of three children.

Miss Downtown Belleville suggests being natural and genuine. Women's Lib is something Alice agrees in part but "I won't go as extreme as some feminists ' do in fighting for their causes."

Grade 13 subjects for Alice include French that she will continue in university while studying to be a social worker.

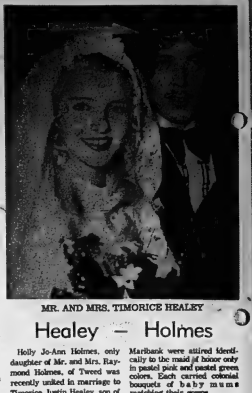
Art Fretter, Association President said time doesn't allow a complete beauty contest with talent entered. Each girl aged 16-21 who must be single and a Belleville resident is judged on looks, poise, personality.



Judges ask contestants their choice of questions.

Shirley Wooten, manager of W. T. Hawkins Ltd., where Alice works said beauty contests are good for companies to participate in the communities that they live.

"We live here and we should take part as often as possible."

When Shirley asked Alice Dykstra to enter the beauty contestant representing W. T. Hawkins Ltd., Alice was hesitant but never thought she would win.

Now Miss Downtown Belleville qualifies to enter Miss Dominion Canada.

MR. AND MRS. TIMORICE HEALEY

Healey — Holmes

Holly Jo-Ann Holmes, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Holmes, of Tweed was recently united in marriage to Timorice Justin Healey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Healey, Tweed.

Rev. J. E. Munro performed the ceremony in St. John's United Church, Tweed.

A French rose held the chapel length veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Maid of honor, Lori Wallace of Hamilton, cousin of the bride, wore a long pastel blue flocked organza gown and carried a colonial bouquet of blue baby mums.

Bridesmaids Sheila Prevost, Tweed and Sylvia Meeks, Marlbank were attired identically to the maid of honor only in pastel pink and tender green colors. Each carried colonial bouquets of baby mums matching their gowns.

Carrie-Ann Hughes, of Picketrie, niece of the bridegroom as the petite flower girl wore a long white peasant cotton gown and carried a basket of yellow and white mums.

Ring bearer was Robbie Cain of Napanee.

Stephen Holmes of Tweed, brother of the bride was best man. Laurie Healey, of Newburg, brother of the bridegroom and Murrey Goulah, of Renfrew, ushered guests.

A reception and dance was held at Lord O'Lakes Curling Lounge, Tweed.

Following a wedding trip to New York State, Mr. and Mrs. Healey will reside in Gratton.

A Major Revolution, Women's Lib Alters Life

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — 8 a.m.—husband leaves wife goodbye and goes to office. 12 noon—husband returns home for lunch. 1 p.m.—wife kisses husband goodbye and goes off to the same job her husband did in the morning.

This is circa A.D. 1978, says New York publisher Michael Korda. By that time, he believes, the biggest revolution in human history—women's liberation—will have swept the United States.

"The revolution is going to happen in the next five years," he says.

"Once the laws on equal rights begin to take hold and women move into higher jobs in proportion it will come with a sudden rush."

British born Korda, editor-in-chief and vice-president of Simon and Schuster, and a nephew of the late British film maker, Sir Alexander Korda, has just published a study on the revolution and male opposition to it in a book called Male Chauvinism.

"It's a major social revolution, much more important than the Chinese and Russian revolutions," Korda says.

"When before in history have 50 per cent of the population suddenly been unleashed. That's an awe-inspiring amount of energy, ideas and ambitions which have been repressed."

But Korda does not see any chance that the number of jobs available will double to accommodate the women who want to work. In fact, he believes the number of job opportunities may shrink.

This, he believes, will give rise to all sorts of accommodations in job sharing—like husband and wife sharing the same career, or a husband working one month and his wife the next or, in some cases, the man doing the housework and letting his wife be the breadwinner.

"If the wife and husband are both doctors I can see a situation where they split up office hours so they share a practice and a home and a family rather than the personal system where he is the important doctor with a practice and she is the lesser figure with a hospital job."

On "male chauvinism" he says: "Men are fighting a last-ditch stand because they are sexually afraid of women. They are dominated by the bugaboo of sexual performance being judged by women.

"What we have to do is accept women as equals and begin to communicate with them the sexual problems will begin to die down.

"I see women's liberation leading not just to liberation of women but to liberation of men in eliminating all those crazy, terrible, insane neuroses that afflict society now."

Korda, a keen gymnast, does not even subscribe to the idea that men are necessarily physically stronger than women.

"Look at this room," he said waving a hand around at the clients in a restaurant during an interview. "I would think it most doubtful if it were the men who were the stronger.

"There are a lot of women who are taller, stronger and more muscular than a lot of women who are in better physical shape."

But Korda believes that with contraception freeing women from an annual round of having babies, they will continue to get physically stronger.

'Boys Need Male Model'

OTTAWA (CP) — Little boys need male teachers as they can develop good self concepts says Bayne Logan, anassistant professor at the University of Ottawa.

All boys are handicapped from the time they start school because they develop more slowly than girls, he says. Male teachers are able to make them feel more comfortable.

"The influence of the teacher is simply awesome. I've just completed a doctoral thesis to show there's no other school in fluence to compare with it."

He wants to conduct a study of the influence of men in the primary grades but has had a snag. There aren't enough male teachers in the lower grades to provide a valid sample for research.

Dr. Logan thinks school boards should offer merit pay to primary teachers as a means of attracting more men.

"The primary grades are the most important in a child's entire school career. Here he is either made into a student or just broken."

His study would investigate to what extend boys identify with men and to what extent male teachers affect their academic achievements.

Dunk — Westlake

Linda Gail Westlake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Westlake, of First Street, Campbellford, recently became the bride of Larry Vincent Dunk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Dunk, of Marmora, at Christ Church Campbellford.

The bride, given in marriage by her father in a gown aided by her maid of honor, Judy McAdam of Stirling and her bridesmaids Janet Mills, Toronto, Karen Potter of Ottawa and Linda Scott of Campbellford.

The bathroom was attended by his best man, Peter Allen, of Campbellford. His brother, Ed Dunk and the bride's brothers, Jim and Gordon Westlake were ushers.

A reception was held at the Riviera Inn, in Campbellford, following which the couple made a wedding trip to Northern Ontario. They plan to reside in St. Catharines, Ont.

At Home

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tucker are invited to Westminster United Church, Wallbridge Loyalist Road, for an open house on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary. The celebration also honors the 88th birthday of Mrs. Edith Bristol. Friends are invited to attend Sunday July 29 from 2 to 5 p.m. Best wishes only please.

Harder for Women Smokers?

The meeting was Rotarian, in Vancouver; Mr. Francis Soper, editor of "Listen" of Washington, D.C. was guest. Of the 50 men present, average age sixty-ish down to 30, only two smoked. They were older members.

Later, Mr. Soper made this strange observation: "If that had been a women's business or professional group, the reverse would be true; maybe only two non-smokers".

I have read that it is harder for women to quit the noxious weed, once they get started at it, than the men. Pull up your socks, girls, and make that resolution to quit — and mean it sticks. Why feed yourself poison?

Dear Dorsi: As a social service student in a community college, I have an assignment about abortion: how they affect the patients, why they have them, reactions of the family or parents, and things like whether the patients have guilt feelings afterwards.

Would you please give me some ideas or some place to go to get started on this? — Social Service Student

Dear Student: There has been so much controversy about abortions that one hardly knows where to start. According to current research, finances and unmarried status are most often the reasons given for abortion; and there is a definite connection between the unwanted child and child neglect or abuse.

Your best source of reference is an excellent guide which has just been turned out. It has extracted information from 175 articles on abortion, with all its implications for individual emotional b a l ance and family planning. And many other aspects.

This brand new 79-page text is called "Therapeutic Abortion: An Abstracted Bibliographical Review." It is already to be found in the libraries of most schools of social work and on the desks of many social workers and paramedicals.

You should write for a copy to the editor, David W. Adams MSW, McMaster University Medical Centre, Hamilton, Ontario, enclosing $1.50 plus 18 cents in stamps or change (for postage).

Dear Dorsi: I'm 13 and I want to read The Happy Hooker. My mother won't let me. I've already read 75 pages, and I don't think it's so bad. Why won't she let me have it? — Well Adjusted — Or Maladjusted

Dear Adjusted: No, sex is not bad. But some people pervert it, and that isn't good I agree with your mother that a 13-year-old should have better things to do with her time than read this book.

You should be able to discuss sex freely with your parents, but these should be happy carefree years — not weighed down with the sordid problems of the adult world.

Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you Doris or can tell you how it's done in Canada. Write to her in care of this newspaper.

Confidential to Senior: "For air travellers 65 and over, there is no standby arrangement, but there is 20 percent off regular fare with reservation guarantee." This is the news from CP Air.

It was found that only 25 percent used standby while 60 percent used the 20 percent arrangement. In addition, there is an 8 to 30-day excursion fare for all ages, which costs a little less than the seniors' 20 percent. This is likely to take care of the majority of senior citizens' travel as they usually take a longer period than eight days.

(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 25 cents and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Confidential to Puzzled Father: Your girl bullies the two younger ones with scoldings and the punches — because she resents them. And because, let's face it, you are not home enough to back up their mother in giving loving concern, either in discipline or encouragement.

The neighbor who says your teen has a "low self-image" is probably right, and there is your clue. Praise, interest in talking or playing with her, would boost her e-g-o. This means you, and no one else.

If her hair is pretty, ask her. If she does any one thing well, say so. If you love her, give yourself and your time to her, regularly. She'll respond.

MORE BIRTHS

TOKYO (AP) — Babies were born on the average of one every 16 seconds in Japan last year, while people died at the rate of one every 46 seconds. The result was nearly 1.4 million more people in the country, the government said.

Ann Landers
'Neither Beautiful nor Satisfying

Dear Ann Landers: Please have a word for the girls in your reading audience who have given up their virginity in exchange for a few hours of sex to tell the truth about it. How did they feel then when the "love affair" was over? My daughter is 20 years old and very naive. She started out to sleep with a 19-year-old boy recently. Why? Because all her friends were doing it and after listening to them tell how wonderful and beautiful sex was, she began to believe she was missing something.

I know that sex between the young and inexperienced is not their beautiful nor satisfying. I'm sure they are merely attempting to rationalize their guilt and loneliness and trying to save face. It's too late to help my daughter escape the hurt and bitterness that is bound to come her way, but perhaps though the anonymity of your column, some of the girls who will come forward and tell what really happens to their self-respect and self-image when they begin sleeping around so they won't feel left out. — Not Too Old To Remember

Dear, Not Too Old: Here's a word for you and an open letter to a man's nylon ski jacket that developed some holes in a hurry following dry-cleaning. A simple chemical test using water and litmus paper revealed that the owner of the jacket had unknowingly brushed against his terry acid with his sleeve.

When the jacket was cleaned, the cleaning solution neutralized the acid sufficiently for holes to develop.

From September, 1971, to August, 1972, the service determined that the consumer was at fault in 22 per cent of the cases it handled. The manufacturer and dry-cleaner were each blamed in 39 per cent of the instances.

Fourteen per cent of the cases involved fibre identification and flammability testing. 13 per cent were natural damage, such as moths, and in 11 per cent, the service was not able to say what caused the damage.

Consumers upset about dragged hems, colors that fade and other fabric problems can turn to the University of Alberta for help.

The assistance is provided by a textile analysis service established by the school of household economics in 1970 which is handling about 79 problems a month.

The service, says textile technologist Barbara Miller, is available to consumers, tanners, garment manufacturers, retailers and lawyers litigating disputes. A well-equipped laboratory enables Mrs. Miller to examine a variety of problems — shrinking, stretching, color changes, stains and decomposition—and to determine the causes.

The parties involved settle the matter themselves, and if the manufacturer is at fault, it is usually suggested that the material be returned to the retailer.

"If a person is looking for drapes, they can phone us for advice at no charge," says Mrs. Miller. The analysis service costs $5 with a higher fee for requests from outside the province.

Citing examples of the service's work, Mrs. Miller referred to a man's nylon ski jacket that developed holes in a hurry after following dry-cleaning. Dear Ann: First I want to make it clear that I am not a teen-ager. I was widowed in 1967 and am the mother of three children.

For the last year I have been going with a man who owns a landscaping business. Last night was a special affair at his lodge. I had my hair done professionally and bought a new dress and matching shoes for the dinner dance.

When Bert came for me, he said, "I hope you won't mind riding in the dump truck. My neighbor asked if he could borrow my sedan for a special occasion."

I was shocked. After all, wasn't this a "special occasion?"

Donald Soutter Says Plan On Radiation Leaks Drafted

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario health ministry officials hope to make final at a mid-August meeting a draft plan to cope with possible radiation leaks that spread beyond the site of the nuclear generating station at Pickering.

Donald Soutter, a community relations consultant with the health ministry, said Wednesday no date has been set for the meeting.

Before the draft plan becomes ministry policy, it must be approved by the program committee, Mr. Soutter said.

The program committee will also decide whether to make the plan public.

Mr. Soutter's comments followed the publication Tuesday of confidential papers of the Ontario environment ministry which said the health ministry was 2½ years late in producing its plan.

Before the eventual health ministry plan becomes government policy, it must be approved by the cabinet's social policy committee, the priorities and planning committee and the management board as well as the full cabinet.

The process of cabinet approval could take from "four days to four months, depending on the degree of concensus at the outset and the importance of the matter," a deputy minister said.

Secret Report Opposes Cut-rate Oil at Home

OTTAWA (CP) — Contradicting the government report on energy, a secret document submitted to a cabinet committee last spring says holding domestic oil and gas prices below world prices is an unacceptable way to siphon excess profits from the petroleum industry.

The document, which formed the basis for the report tabled in the Commons June 28, proposes instead that increased royalties and taxes be levied on the industry as a means of collecting revenue.

A leaked cabinet record reveals the cabinet committee on priorities and planning decided April 10 that the document should be redrafted to portray "a more neutral stand on major issues where government policy has not yet been established."

The Canadian Press has obtained copies of the record and the unpublished version of the energy report.

Both the published report and the confidential paper call for a more flexible and efficient method of collecting "economic rent"—an oil industry term meaning the difference between gross selling prices and production costs, including a fair return on investment.

Unless that rent goes to the government in various kinds of taxes, or is channelled back to consumers in the form of lower prices, it stays with the companies as excess profits.

The published energy report says that either higher taxes or lower prices are possible ways to collect that rent.

But the unpublished original rules out lower prices.

"Although a low energy price represents a feasible mechanism to earn economic rent, the potential disruption of supply and demand, the inefficiency of rent collection, and the reduction of competition that are associated with this system would appear to make it an unacceptable alternative."

The unpublished document also flatly denies the assertion in the published report that higher taxes and royalties could slow exploration and development.

"Although the impact of tax and royalty provisions are major determinants in industry investment decisions, the importance of these can be overstated," the document says.

Even in the face of tax increases, it says, "high rollers" stay in the game" if chances remain for large discoveries.

The unpublished document cites the same disadvantages of artificially-low prices as does the government report. But it draws the stronger conclusion that the disadvantages make the low-price system an impossible means of collecting rent.

In any case, the document says, it would be hard to bring prices more than 20 or 30 per cent below international prices because of high costs on frontier development. At this differential, it would be doubtful that significant incentive would remain to spur new industry.

NDP Opposes Olympic Financing

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democratic attempt to block a bill to raise funds for the 1976 Summer Olympics at Montreal was expected to be crushed in the Commons today.

The NDP has asked the House to postpone final approval of the bill for six months, which would have the effect of killing it.

The postponement attempt was made Wednesday in a motion by Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming). Debate was cut short when the House adjourned after hearing of the death of former Liberal prime minister Louis St. Laurent.

The bill would authorize sale of commemorative coins and stamps and a national lottery. Profits from which would go to the Games committee. The committee has estimated that coin sales will produce $250 million, stamps and related products $10 million and the lottery $22 million.

Quiet on Local CN Scene As Strike Halts Activity

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

All railway freight and passenger service came to a standstill in Belleville today as the city's 700 non-operating railway workers started a series of rotating strikes at 8 a.m.

Everything was quiet and without incident this morning as about 50 picketers of five non-operating employees' unions marched at the Canadian National station on Station St.

The picketers, carrying signs, were arranged in pairs with about 14 groups with about three or four members to a group. Each group works a four-hour shift with pickets maintained on a 24-hour basis.

The picketers will stay until Saturday at 6 a.m., in keeping with the rotating strike tactics. At that time another province or group of provinces will start their strike, while the Ontario workers go back to work.

The dispute is over wages, job security, sick leave and shift differential. Although the pension issue has been settled, there is some dissatisfaction with the outcome.

The union gave the company 12-hours' notice before beginning the strike.

Strike headquarters at the Club Canara on Station Street was bustling this morning as strike organizers set about making everything as smooth running as possible.

Said Jack Thomas, local union chairman of the CBRT, this morning: "Things are going 101 per cent. Our object was to be things up and this is what is happening."

He said he wasn't sure what their next step would be. "The next move depends on Canadian National. We're striking for a better standard of living. We're trying to offset the inflationary spiral.

"Who knows what will happen?" continued Mr. Thomas. "It all depends on how Canadian National will react.

"If everything goes as we plan. We could be back to work on Saturday. But it's a two - party system," he said.

While no one is sure how long the strike will last one picketer, who has worked for CN eight years, said this morning: "We're all prepared to go out for a long time. In 1966 we were ordered to go back to work. With rotating strikes we can't be ordered back to work," he said.

The workers involved in Belleville come from five unions while the nine railway operating unions not on strike have agreed to honor the picket line set up. The non-operating workers in Belleville include: signalmen, clerks, maintenance workers, warehousemen, baggagemen, expressmen.

Of the 400 railway workers on strike, about 20 are women, with some manning the picket lines. The others keep busy at strike headquarters making coffee or sandwiches or typing.

Yesterday, three union members decided to get a head start on the strike and staged an unauthorized, although legal, jump on things. The unions have been in a legal position to strike since last week.

Jack Thomas, local chairman, said an average of about 14 passenger and 23 freight trains pass through Belleville each day. There are about 10 passenger trains, six of them local the others stemming from major centres such as Toronto, which originate in Belleville.

Yesterday a trans-continental train had to be returned to Montreal and other destinations because of the Ontario strike.

The last wage increase for the workers was 19 months ago. The union is asking for 27 per cent wage increase over two years while the railway is offering a 13½ two year wage increase.

The union representative has recommended a 21 per cent increase in wages over two years, according to Mr. Thomas.

Stirling's Program Combines Work with Play This Summer

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

STIRLING — All play and no work may make for a dull recreation program.

At least, that may party explain the popularity of a novel summertime scheme for youngsters in this village.

The program organized by a small group of young Stirling area men and women offers a diversity of recreation pursuits. But it also puts children to work for the community - on spruce-up projects suggested by local municipal officials.

The concept has drawn enthusiastic response.

The youngsters themselves have signed on in droves. About 150 turned up the first week. With family vacations now at a peak, present registration runs 50-75.

As for the adults, villagers think it "a great idea," says Reeve Edward Klompmaker. "Everybody is praising them for the work they're doing - and the kids are eager to go."

So far, the project has been confined to giving fresh coats of paint to village property.

On the list of spruce-up accomplishments for the summer are the village bridge, the cenotaph, hydrants, street signs and Stirling ball park.

The concept is designed to instill a sense of community involvement at an early age, explains Dave Stapley, one of six organizers of the program.

The work idea was deliberately built into the scheme when the group first planned it back in February and submitted it for a federal Opportunities for Youth grant.

"The kids are not only doing something they like themselves," says John Mouck, another member of the group. "This makes them more conscious of what has to be done in a community. They get to appreciate how much work goes into things and this can maybe offset vandalism some time."

The federal government apparently also found the concept to its liking. It approved a $5,100 grant for the program which the six had unofficially dubbed Sum Fun '73.

The total plan also is filling a void in local summer recreation, explains John, since there is no play program in the village for several years. It also is drawing youngsters from a wide radius in the surrounding rural countryside.

The projects organizers all have a background of work youth groups.

With six supervisors, the program can achieve wide diversification to match a range of demand from its participants.

"You have to let them have as many choices as possible," explains John Mouck. "If a recreation program and there is no way everybody is going to do the same thing at the same time and enjoy it."

Drama music, playground games, arts and crafts can all be in full swing simultaneously at the village public school — rented for the project.

Full-length movies have also been programmed every two weeks and special events — picnics, hikes — regularly take youngsters outside the school location.

Various community groups and businessmen have supported the program with material and financial donations.

County Votes $5,000 to Brighton

COBOURG — The County Council of Durham-Northumberland Wednesday decided to contribute $5,000 to the relief fund for restoration in storm-damaged Brighton village.

In earlier talks the figure started off at $500 with one councillor saying a nominal sum should be donated.

This money, hopefully to be supplemented by other donations from other municipalities and industry, will be matched dollar for dollar by the provincial government.

The province officially declared Brighton a disaster area following the July 13 wind storm that ripped through the central portion of the village.

Gamesmanship

Diversified programming gives youngsters wide choice of pursuits in Stirling recreation project. With counsellor John Mouck, Robert Ray, 5, Michael Barry, 10 are about to learn floor hockey.

Hydro Rate Increase Outlined with Bills

With the arrival of their July bills, city householders are learning just how the recently approved hydro rate increases affect their bi-monthly payments.

A rate change notification enclosed with this month's utility bills states the overall average electric rate increase is 8.4 percent.

This is broken down to show that residential service rates have been increased 9.7 cents, general service 7.3 per cent and small commercial 11.1 per cent.

The rate change notice points out that the former electric rates charge by the Belleville Utilities Commission had been in effect since May 1971 and since then the commission's operating expenses have increased.

In the past two years two increases of 8 per cent each have been put into effect by Ontario Hydro while commission wage rates increased by seven per cent this year and nine per cent in 1972.

Material costs have increased similarly.

The new residential rates show a charge of 4.5 cents for the first 50 KWH and 1.6 cents for the next 200 KWH.

New rates have also been put into effect for flat rate water heaters, ranging from $1.65 a month for a 400-watt element up to 3.88 for a 1,000-watt element. All element sizes over 1000 watts will be charged at the rate of 36.8 cents per 100 watts per month.

All this means that consumers' electric bills will jump by close to 10 per cent for the same amount of power used, while the two-month charge for flat rate electric water heaters in the 1,000-watt range will be up by about $1.

Tribute Paid By Former Colleague

That was the tribute that Frank S. Follwell, former MP for Hastings, today paid to Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, who died Wednesday in Quebec City.

Mr. Follwell was the Hastings representative at Ottawa from 1949 until 1957, during the period when Mr. St. Laurent was prime minister of Canada.

"Mr. St. Laurent first of all was a dedicated Canadian," said Mr. Follwell. "He frequently made the point during his term as prime minister that government was being run for all of Canada."

Mr. Follwell said that he was planning a visit to Quebec in the near future and had intended going to see Mr. St. Laurent.

"I am truly sorry to hear of his death — I should have gone last week," Mr. Follwell said.

As Others See Us

Peter McMillan focuses a television camera on Carol Grills and Grant Churcher, counsellor-trainees and Tony Lagan during the course Mr. Lagan is giving at Quinte Secondary School. The teenaged counsellors will offer their services free this fall to augment the guidance counselling department in city schools.

Student Counsellors Valuable Addition to Guidance Staff

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A youngster who had never talked in school got counselling and opened up for the first time.

An aggressive little bully got counselling and stopped terrorizing the school yard during recess.

Not unusual cases - most psychological support services in schools can point to the same record.

But these youngsters were counselled by teenaged high school students. The first enlisted in a peer - counselling program that is probably unique in Canada.

The principle behind the peer-counselling service now being developed in Hastings county is simple. Psychologists have proved that shy people can learn to help the troubled just as effectively as professionals. And in local schools they're just what's going to do in the fall.

Peer-counselling in Hastings county style, is the inspiration of Tony Lagan, one of the two members remaining on the psychological support team in the county. He prefers to be known as a "special counsellor".

Last year he trained four teenagers as counsellors and they were used for four months in three schools.

The results they obtained encouraged Mr. Lagan to expand the program this summer with a month-long training session for 25 selected students. They will be available on demand of principals, to go into schools this fall and work on a one-to-one basis all year with troubled youngsters. They will perform their counselling functions about a half-day a week during regular school hours. The youngsters chosen for counselling will be those who have been assessed first by a psychologist and judged to need the type of help the peer-counsellors can give.

"Professionals don't have a monopoly on helping people," says Mr. Lagan. "Psychiatric nurses, with a bit of training, have proved to be more effective 'in mental hospitals than psychiatrists."

Experiments have proved that people from his own community are more likely to help a troubled person than someone from outside. And the student counsellors are, very much a part of the school community in which the troubled youngster is acting out his conflicts.

"Peer-counselling," says Mr. Lagan, "is based on a belief in kids."

All sorts of troubled children are sent to school — children whose parents have separated, children left on their own most of the time; children who have too much responsibility too young, in looking after younger brothers and sisters; children who are lonely and have no friends; children no one cares about.

They become classroom problems, demanding too much of the teacher's attention by withdrawing, by constant nagging and whining or by misbehaving spectacularly.

Given the undivided attention, an hour a week, of a senior student who cares, they are transformed.

"The counsellor's time with a kid is not a fact-finding interrogation," says Mr. Lagan. "It's not for the purpose of getting to know about the kid, but getting to know the kid. We stress how he feels about things now, not what his mother did to him. That kind of back-passing isn't helping. It isn't understanding. Our counsellors help the kid to decide what he can do now about the way he feels about things. He can become a lot more mature, more responsible.

It has that effect on the trainee-counsellors, too. Mr. Lagan feels strongly that the role of school psychologist is not to cure emotional disease, but to prevent its development. He believes the school psychologist has a responsibility to teach a subject forgotten on the curriculum — how to cope with feelings, how to understand and get along with people.

"I've learned more about behavior here than in 12 years at school," a trainee told him.

Mr. Lagan's training course is a learning - by - doing program, with academic emphasis discouraged. The trainees, all aged 16 to 18, are taught how to recognize what people are saying by the non - verbal messages they project, how to listen, how to respond. Telling them is unimportant. Part of the course — the students film themselves constantly in role-playing sessions.

"With instant audio visual feedback they learn how their behavior looks to other people," says Mr. Lagan.

Key to a successful peer-counselling service, says Mr. Lagan, is trainee selection. The students chosen must be mature, sensitive and open to self-understanding.

"Counselling is an art - all I do is polish up the techniques," says Mr. Lagan.

Hastings county board of education, with the provincial government, is funding the project. Each trainee is paid about $18 a week in take-home pay. The peer-counsellors' services will be given free to the schools in the fall.

The county, hard-pressed to hire enough elementary school guidance councillors, will get a return on its investment; in counsellors it doesn't have to pay. Professionals will be free to deal with more serious problems.

Timbers, Wannamaker Chalk Up Shutouts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshawa got superb pitching from Barry Timbers and Paul Wannamaker Wednesday to win both games of a double-header against Kitchener and expand their lead in the west division of the Ontario Fastball League.

Timbers pitched a two-hitter as Oshawa ran up a 9-0 victory in the opener and Wannamaker was even tougher, handcuffing Kitchener to only one hit in a 3-0 win.

At Woodstock, Welland moved to within one game of escaping the east-division cellar with a 3-2 victory over the home town team.

At Kitchener, Phil Solomon had five hits during the two games to pace the Oshawa attack. Jim Rowden belted a three-run homer and Wayne Colley a pair of hits in the first game.

Gary Kriss spoiled Wannamaker's no-hit bid in the second game with a clean single into right field in the fourth inning.

Keith Wagler and Reg Mantle were the losing pitchers.

The victories give Oshawa a 6-0 two-game lead over second-place Toronto in the race for the western division pennant.

At Woodstock, Ken Rhora pitched a four-hit shutout for Welland's second win in two days, putting them within one game of fourth-place Woodstock.

Rhora batted in Welland's first run with a looping single in the fourth inning and Bruce Everest tallied the second run on a bases-empty homer in the sixth. Herb Hiebert's sacrifice fly put the third Welland runner across in the ninth.

Hank's Blasts Worth Money

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves announced Wednesday they will continue to give money to fans who retrieve and return Hank Aaron's home run balls in Atlanta Stadium until he breaks Babe Ruth's record of 714.

The Braves also announced establishment of a perpetuating college scholarship in Aaron's name to be given each year to a graduating high school senior of Aaron's choice.

The home run money will be given only at home games on Aaron's lower total—673 for his 706st homer, 5702 for the 706nd, etc.

Robert Winborne, 18, of Atlanta, received 700 Eisenhower silver dollars last Saturday night when he presented Aaron with his 700th home run ball.

Reluctant Swimmer Sets Three Records

QUEBEC (CP) — Ian Mackenzie was not planning to come to the Canadian swimming championships after he suffered a back injury in a fall in late May.

But his coach, Deryk Snelling of Vancouver's Canadian Dolphin Swimming Club, convinced the Ocean Falls, B.C., native to join the team to see what would happen. What his happened is this—Mackenzie has won three individual events, with his latest victory a record-setting time Wednesday night in the mens' 200-metre backstroke.

Mackenzie was timed in 2:10.7, breaking his previous record of 2:12.09 set in 1972.

Mackenzie's record-breaking effort was one of five Wednesday, bringing to 14 the number of records set in this year's meet.

David Brumwell of Calgary broke the existing standard in the men's 200-metre individual medley and a fellow Calgarian, Anne-Marie McCaffrey, surprised herself by winning the women's 400-metre freestyle in record time.

The Dolphins continued to establish records in the relay event as both the men's and women's team won the 400-metre freestyle relays.

Other winners Wednesday were Vancouver's Wendy Cook and Leslie Cliff in the 200-metre backstroke and 200-metre individual medley respectively and Deane Buckboro in the 400-metre men's freestyle. Mackenzie who won the 200 - metre freestyle and the 200-metre butterfly Monday night, breezed to an easy win in Wednesday's race. He was challenged slightly at the end by Montreal's John Hawes but hung on.

Brumwell's record was his second in as many nights. Tuesday he established a new standard in the 400-metre individual medley.

His time Wednesday was 12:12.7, breaking the old mark of 2:13.2 set by Clayton T. Evans in the Canadian championships last year.

Miss McCaffrey, who won in 4:41.8, got off to a good start in the first 100 metres of a race she said she never expected to win.

"I wasn't planning for the record at all," she said. "I thought Janice Steinhouse would get it and I'd be second." Miss Steinhouse finished second in the race.

The Dolphins new mark in the women's relay was 4:00.1 breaking the old standard of 4:11.1 set last year.

The men's relay team was clocked at 3:30.4, bettering the old mark of 3:41.7 set by the Lethbridge, Alta., Amateur Swimming Club in the nationals last season.

Buckboro's time in the men's individual medley was 4:12.5.

Says Billie Should Have Declined

CLEVELAND (AP) — At least one person rooting for Billie Jean King when she faces hostler Bobby Riggs in a $100,000 tennis match this fall says she should have declined the challenge—that's Larry King. Billie Jean's husband of eight years.

"I don't think she should play Bobby, and I told her so," King said. He was in Cleveland to announce draft rounds in the newly formed World Team Tennis League, of which he's a co-founder.

"There's little to be gained from this from a women's tennis standpoint," King said. "The only argument this answers is fallacious.

"It's not clouds the issue. It could be a possible setback for women's tennis. It's a downright risk. It has nothing to do with winning or losing," he said.

Good News for Skins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I'm happy to be here and coach George Allen is happy that I'm here," concluded running back Larry Brown who rejoined Washington Redskins Wednesday.

And while the news got better in the 'Skins' National Football League training camp, it got worse for Minnesota Vikings who learned that defensive back Karl Kassulke has slipped into "very critical condition" as the result of a motorcycle-auto accident.

Brown Wednesday ended an 11-day holdout, which cost him about $300 in fines a day, while he was attempting to negotiate a multi-year contract which he said would provide him with added security.

He refused comment on whether the Redskins had given him any such assurances, but during a team workout, he went over to shake the hand of the man who may have brought coach Allen a lot of security for the coming season—Duane Thomas.

Allen said he was not sure how he would deploy the one-two offensive punch of Brown and Thomas; He said that definitely Brown would be at halfback, while the rest of the offence would be played "by ear."

A hospital spokesman said Kassulke's condition had worsened following three hours of surgery, One of the physicians attending the popular Viking player said Kassulke probably never regain normal use of his legs.

Kassulke, 32, was a passenger on a motorcycle which was involved in a collision with a car June 23.

The Vikings traded a high 1974 draft choice to the Oakland Raiders for three-year-veteran Greg Slough. The Vikings said Slough would be tried at all three linebacking positions.

Coach Don Shula of the Dolphins announced the signing of running back Mercury Morris, wide receiver Howard Twilley and cornerback Curtis Johnson. Veteran offensive guard Ed Budde returned to the Kansas City Chiefs after walking out of camp on the first day of practice Monday.

Pittsburgh Steelers reported 12 players currently unable to participate in practice because of injuries. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw missed passing drills for the second straight day due to a slightly pulled stomach muscle.

CTC Rekindles Spark Intell Hopes Fading

Canadian Tire's playoff hopes were sparked back to life and The Intelligencer's aspirations dashed in a pair of contests Wednesday night.

Canadian Tire upset Mead Johnson 7-2 to move into the western division fourth place tie with the Independents and the Post Office edged the Intell 11-10 to put the Printers on the brink of elimination.

Canadian Tire went ahead 7-6 with three runs in the first and four in the third with six of those tallies resulting from a pair of home runs by Alec Belch.

Andy Pruden fired the win for CTC allowing seven hits and striking out nine. Harold Wilkinson took the loss for western division leading Mead Johnson giving up seven runs on eight hits in three innings of work. Sonny Holoway birthed one hit relief for the next four innings. He struck out nine.

Pruden had two hits for the winners to go along with Belch's home run heroics.

Blaine Young had two zeroes for the losers.

The Posties scored three times in the third inning to tie the game at 10 apiece and then chased Bazza a run in the bottom of the seventh to tarnish the Intell's chances of making the playoffs.

The Intell remains three points behind fourth pl ce Canadian Tire and have only two games remaining.

Pinch hitter Bill Pearce was the man of the hour for the Postie dwelling inside-the-park hit in Jim Burke for the winning run. Burke had been called in to run for Gord Campbell, Pearce and John Fair. ning with a single.

Harry Reid had three hits for the winners with two each going to Tom Woods, Campbell, pearce and John Fair.

Joey Edwards started for the Printers with John Edwards relieving in the third. They gave up 13 hits.

Raceway Lineup

Harry Burkitt will be trying for his first win behind a harness horse Friday night in a race other than a qualifier. The former bantamweight at the Belleville circuit will be making his bid on Bar Slate Marty in the third race at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway's nine race card.

In the feature race Friday night, it will be six horses entered at the one mile distance. Stardale Flasbey, King Lester, Hallie Purdue, Mr. Chick, Galety's Julie, and Dorothy Rick will be going for the $500 purse.

Two Upsets Recorded In Squirt Division

A pair of upsets were recorded in Belleville Minor action Wednesday night and they ended a pair of season long streaks.

William Belch Construction scored a single run in the ninth inning to edge Complete Rent-alls 6-5 and hand the Renters their first loss of the season in 10 starts. At the other end of the scale the Malcolm Brothers squirts stopped the Belleville Plaza 9-7 for their first win of the year.

Jim Noble had two singles for the Belch squad including one in the ninth which led to the winning run. John Ricketts had a two run homer for the winners in support of pitcher Dean Stobiker who picked up 13 strikeouts.

Ty Cole smashed a triple, double and single for the Renters who still hold down first place. John Mundzirski fanned 12 to run his season total to 122.

Three singles and a double from Gord Spurgeon and Mike Crowe led the Malcolm Brothers to their first win of the year. Hugh Brennan added two doubles and a single and Robbi Caverly two singles and a double.

In a lone bantam contest Stephen Lacroce moved within two points of first place Belleville Police by nipping the Kinsmen Phillies 12-11.

Jerry Pearce and Paul Wilson recorded 17 strikeouts for the Phillies but 11 walks proved to be their downfall.

Bill Forbes produced a three run triple and a single and picked up the win for the Licence in relief of Mark Bashall. Eric Powell had a homer and a double for the winners.

ATHLETES NEEDED

HELSINKI (AP) - The Finnish track and field association's athletes are on pins and needles. The association has decided to try acupuncture to keep them fit. Acupuncture is a Chinese practice in which needles are stuck into the body at various points to cure ailments.

Brad Rose of the Belleville Downtown Merchants Bantams takes some extra batting practice in preparation for Saturday's Bantam Tournament. The Belleville squad will play in the first game of the tourney when they meet Corbett Park at the Alemite at 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Bantams in Tourney

A lack of games may hurt Belleville Bantams chances in their own tournament this Saturday. The Belleville Downtown Merchants have played only six or eight games in a unit according to Coach Bert Trice.

Although the boys all play in the house league, they are, of course, split up to make the league as even as possible. The Merchants have played only a few exhibition games with insignificant results.

In their only tournament start, in Picton, the locals went down to defeat in their first two games, but according to Trice, should have won the second game.

With many first year bantams on the squad, officials are looking more toward next year, when it is hoped to form a midget house league. The team will perform in that league as a unit, rather than be split up.

Teams included in this year's tournament are the host Belleville club, Corbett Park, Willowdale, Picton, Warsaw, Stirling, Alderwood, and Lindsay. Games will be played at the Alemite and CNRA fields, with the championships being scheduled for 4 p.m. and 8.30 p.m. at the Alemite.

Trimmed

The Belleville Police concludes had a Belleville Minor Soccer Association game Wednesday night but wound up getting a trim instead.

The police fell to the 211 Barber Salon 4-2 in a lone composite game.

BYBF in High Gear

After jumping to a quick 14-0 lead after one inning the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund pursued the situation and decided to continue their batting practice and fi led to a 27-6 Belleville and District Ladies Softball League victory over Bob Bland-Read Barn.

The pennant leading BYBF were run reaped in connecting for 45 hits before the game was mercifully called after five innings.

Bayview Falls To Consecon

Consecon downed Bayview 4-2 in a Prince Edward North Shore Softball League game played last night in Ameliasburgh. Art Keller went the route for Consecon, giving up two runs on four hits. He struck out five and walked one.

Don Baxter was the loser for Bayview, allowing five hits. He whiffed seven and issued one free pass.

Steve Tripp had a home run to lead the Consecon team.

In the other game, R wa's O'Brien's Tree Service over the Belleville Gems by a 10-4 count. No scoresheet was turned in for that game.

Sue Morton was the main heroine in a bevy of stars hitting a home run double and four singles plus batting a four hit, nine strikeout win. Marj Reid had a homer, triple and three singles, Joyce McFarlane a homer run and four singles, Penny Hughes a triple and four singles and Trudy Huggins a triple and three singles in the winners carnicade of hitters.

Lis Reid too the brunt of the BYBF force hurling the entire five innings for the Barn. Judy Scanlan tripled in the losers' picture of futility.

In a somewhat closer game T. Bailey Roofing strengthened their grip on third place in the standings by stopping Belleville Broadloom 23-12.

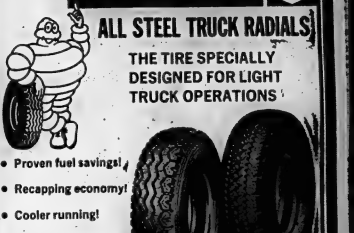
The Roofers scored 11 runs in the third inning to decide the outcome. Donna Evans reached for a homer, double, and two singles for the winners with Mary Barberstock hitting a triple, double and single and Lillian Barberstock connecting for three doubles and a single.

Nora Barberstock pitched the win, allowing 30 hits. Mary Anne Sills took the loss for the Broadloom.

Chris Smith, Lea h Van Kempen and Rose Ann Hevinga had home runs for the fifth place Broadloom.

"Relax, you don't have to worry about the speed limit when you're driving a shuck beach!"

QHF Rovers Dump CFB 4-1



The Quinte Help Fund Rovers defeated CFB Trenton in an exhibition soccer match last night in Trenton by a score of 4-1.

Chris Johnson had two goals for the winners, while Dave Dracon and Bob Watson had the single markers. CFB's only goal came when a rover player headed the ball into his own net.

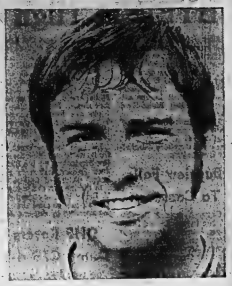
No Room At Top In SHBL

Those with claustrophobia should steer away from the South Hastings Baseball League because there is no closer place than atop the league standings.

Four points separate the top four teams and after two games Wednesday night, the standings have shifted dramatically. Latta swept aside fifth place Read 7-3 and moved into sole position of second spot behind leading Melrose, and Carnahan edged Shannonville 6-5 to move into third. The Shannonville loss left them in fourth, a drop from second which they held just one day ago.

John Masterson won his sixth game without a loss in hurling Latta to their victory over Read, who are now eliminated from the play-off picture. He allowed just two hits in the seven inning contest and struck out ten.

His two home runs and double brought in four runs to virtually win his own game. Robin Allison had two singles to Latta's seven hit output.



Larry Coffey took the loss for Read, striking out seven and walking one. Paul Hanley punched a home run and Dick Walsh a double for the losers' only hits.

Defending league champions Carnahan Place's pushed across two runs in the top of the sixth to edge Shannonville and move past the Hawks in the standings.

Bernie Coughlin pitched four innings for the winners before giving way to Ken Abrams who recorded the win. The pair allowed eight hits while fanning three.

Coughlin stroked two doubles and five other players had singles for the Concretemen.

Bill and Glenn Berbestock shared the Shannonville pitching duties giving up seven hits. Bill led a home run for the Hawks.

Eagles' Talent Hunt Showing Results

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

Check off one forward position on the 1973-74 Belleville Screaming Eagles roster.

An eight-year veteran of the senior hockey wars, all with Kingston, Charlie Convery has agreed to suit up with Eagles for the new campaign.

With all that experience, the high scoring left winger is not yet ready for the tag; Elder Statesman. He's only 28.

Patrolling his wing on a line with centre Dick Cherry and Tom Carty on the right flank, Convery clicked for 19 goals and 27 assists last season.

The Kingston captain, Charlie's 68-point effort was second only to Pete Kennedy who finished up with 85 (28 and 29).

A five-foot-eight, 172 pound-digger, Convery was born in London, Ont. The family moved to the Kingston area when he was one-year-old.

Before landing the senior ranks, he spent four seasons with the Junior B Frontenacs. He moved to the juniors from the all-Ontario championship Kingston Midget A squad of 1960-61.

"I'm looking forward to playing with Belleville," says Charlie.

"We'll have a first rate club and definitely finish up near the top," he predicts.

Officials of the Eagles are very high on Convery. So high, in fact, that when the time was ripe to begin making announcements concerning the acquisition of players, he was the man chosen to lead the way.

Club president Gery Rock says, "This is the type of player we want, alright. He has the proper attitude. He wants to play hockey. The guy is really keen."

It won't be long before Convery is performing in a Duz in the meantime, he's busy playing softball. A pitcher with the Oakleaf Cheer-Oats Screaming Eagles uniform team in the Kingston Major League, Charlie owns a 5-3 record.

Belleville Deserves Its Title Says Writer

Dear Sir:

I hope that you will print this letter for it is the only way that we can possibly hope to reach the many people of your community that have befriended us during the past two years.

I coach the Guelph bantam team which has entered the Belleville Golden Bat Tournament for the last two years. In 1972 we advanced to the finals and were amazed at the support the local people gave our club. The boys were billeted and no favor we asked was refused.

This year we arrived in town for the tournament, certain that 1973 would not be the same. That thought was proved true the first night . . . 1973 was even better.

People shook our hands as we got out of the cars, questioned us about our town, asked for boys by name and made us feel at home in less than five minutes.

On Saturday, we lost two games, failing to score a run. As a coach, I was thoroughly disappointed and prepared to leave. But it didn't matter that we had lost, Belleville wanted us to stay.

They had planned having the team for two nights and stay we must. Words cannot express the gratitude that we have for you people and the way you treated us.

Of the many tournaments I have attended, all must be evaluated in terms of your event. Belleville truly is "the friendly city" and all we can do is say thanks to each and every one of you.

Three One-acters Open at Playhouse

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Excelsior Colfax yelled "steal my girl, will yah", checked Saturday Thomas DeMo out the window, and saved Parted on Her Wedding Night from as lethargic an ending as the beginning he'd been.

The melodrama, written by Leland Price, was the first one-act comedy of three performed by members of Theatre August opening night Wednesday. The Evening of Comedy ends its four-day run at the Pinnacle Playhouse Saturday.

Then, a futuristic website depicting the meeting of five characters, Phythick and Miss Europe, after the world has been atomized into dust, needed no assistance from plotsmashing, rosy-cheeked eyes such as Excelsior Colfax. The subdued, but expressive, characterization of Greg Hunter and Debbie Anderson provided a refreshing contrast to the occasional sluggishness of Parted.

The final comedy of the evening, The 101st needed less a sustained characterization than Then, and more assistance from playwright Kenneth Cameron in vanishing the system under which his characters played the charity-ball racket.

With much wringing of hands and a constant rising and falling ash in her voice, Ann Wilson failed to understand the delicate balance of manners required to play the melodramatic wronged heroine, Faith Throebert, in Parted.

Mother Mahoney, played by Tigger, in vain made the attempt to salvage the lethal explanatory scenes, but her Irish accent and motherly consolation failed to alleviate the sluggishness of Ann Wilson's abject statements of her sorry case.
